INTRODUCTION

CHRISTOPHER MARLOWE, a Canterbury shoemaker's son, was born in the same year as Shakespeare, 1564, ten years after John Lyly, seven after Kyd, six after Peele, four after Greene, and three before Nash. He was at King's School, Canterbury, and at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge; but we know nothing of him at either place, except that he became Bachelor of Arts in 1583. In the ten years left to him of life he wrote the two parts of Tamburlaine the Great, Doctor Faustus, The Jew of Malta, Edward the Second, The Massacre at Paris, Dido, Queen of Carthage, and may have handled and partly or largely written many other plays, including The True Tragedy, printed in this volume, also the first two cantos of "Hero and Leander," a lyric, and another lyric of which only a fragment survives. Probably at Cambridge, or during that period, he translated parts of Ovid and of Lucan, and immediately after leaving Cambridge he may have gone to the wars in the Low Countries where Sidney died in 1586. Certain it is that by 1587 the play of Tamburlaine had been written and performed. Of his contemporaries Lyly had already written Alexander and Campaspe, Sapho, Gallathea, Endimion. Peele's Arraignement of Paris had appeared about 1581, when he was of the same age as the Marlowe who wrote Tamburlaine. Greene's Friar Bacon has been also attributed to the year 1587, but 1591 is a more probable date. The first English tragedy in blank verse and of something like the type afterwards to be established, the Gorbuduc of Norton and Sackville, had been performed as early as 1561. It lacked the new life of the Renaissance which had kindled it as much as it did the old life of the past age and the miracle plays. It was written in blank verse of a lifeless regularity and monotony that has a slight charm only occasionally, as in:—

Are they exiled out of our stony breasts
Never to make return?

By no exaggeration can it be called a dramatic poem at all.

The Arraignment of Paris can be so called, but rather because it is a drama and is full of poetry than because it is a poem in dramatic form. The writer was bent chiefly upon his beautiful verses, many of them lyrical, with the result that a series of extracts from the play give a higher opinion of it than the whole can ever do. The blank verse is silver sweet, but it has little variety, and would be more perfect in its own kind had it received the grace of rhyme, as, for example, in this characteristic passage from a speech by Paris before the Council of the Gods:—

And for the one, contentment is my wealth;
 A shell of salt will serve a shepherd swain,
 A slender banquet in a homely scrip,
 And water running from the silver spring.
 For arms, they dread no foes that sit so low;
 A thorn can keep the wind from off my back,
 A sheep-cote thatched a shepherd's palace hight.
 Of tragic Muses shepherds con no skill
 Enough is them, if Cupid be displeased,
 To sing his praise on slender oaten pipe

The plays of Lyly that preceded Tamburlaine were all in prose: it was not until he wrote The Woman in the Moone that he used blank verse, and that was not before 1591.

Tamburlaine was, in fact, the first notable English poem in blank verse that was also essentially a play. The Arraignment could never have been a popular entertainment; it could be imitated, it could be excelled, but it did not show the way to any development of the drama; it contained no seeds of growth; in action alone it was naught. But Tamburlaine was all action; it could only teach its highest form of life with the aid of actors and a stage; and, moreover, it was written in blank verse, and for the first time proved that verse to be well suited to natural dialogue; it was pleasant to the ear and capable at once of great beauty and of as direct an appeal even to the untutored ear as prose. It was in the very year of its appearance abused as the work of one of the "idiot art masters who intrude themselves to our ears as the alchemists of eloquence, who (mounted on the stage of arrogance) think to outbrave better pens by the swelling bombast of braggart blank verse." As the persons of the play included an emperor and empress, a sultan and five kings, besides Tamburlaine himself, who drove a coach and kings, a "great and thundering speech" and "high astounding terms" were in place. But it was out of no sense of its dramatic fitness that Marlowe put this tremendous English music into the mouths of kings, nor is it for any such reason that, despite the ridicule of Nash and Jonson and Lamb, we read it still. We read it, I think, because it has a richness and a speed which are the admirable expression of something swift and aspiring in the spirit of the writer himself, of Marlowe in his first youth. We think, not of the bloody conqueror, but of the youthful poet, when we read:—

Zenocrate, lovelier than the love of Jove,
Brighter than is the silver Rhodope,
Fairer than whitest snow on Scythian hills,—

and the whole of that speech. It was Marlowe who could not speak of a burden but as—

Of such a burthen as outweighs the sands
And all the craggy rocks of Caspia.

It was certainly Marlowe and not Tamburlaine who spoke the words:—

• Nature that framed us of four elements,
Warring within our breasts for regiment,
Doth teach us all to have aspiring minds . .

though it was Tamburlaine that added—

The sweet fruition of an earthly crown.

So delighted is Marlowe in this new-found means of expressing his burning thought—a means of expression as direct and worshipful as the smile of love, the dance, the nakedness of beauty, the running of athletes—that it is a matter for amazement that he should drop into prose as he does in the fourth scene of the fourth act, and the second scene of the fifth. As an exhibition of human energy, beautiful and swift, Tamburlaine can never cease to please.

The two parts of Tamburlaine proved that Marlowe was a great poet, a great master of the music and magic of words. He had, we can well believe, done no violence to his poetry in composing this prodigious spectacle; it expressed the melody and the hundred images that were in his mind, and at the same time he had presented a whole which was easily understood. His example, continued until his death in 1593, could not but compel the English drama into a new and permanent course. His verse could not remain without imitators of its sound and form. The abundant luxuriance of imagery was equally effective. Had Spenser and Sidney been more nearly contemporary with Marlowe, it is hardly credible but that even they would have written plays as the author of Venus and Adonis afterwards did, for it was now clear that a man might be an exuberant poet and a playwright at once;—not merely a lofty poet as was Sophocles; for there was no kind of poetry which need be excluded from drama of this kind. It was Marlowe, in short, who made it certain that the English drama was to be of that gorgeous texture which we now see it to be. With this great good went some harm, and chiefly the awful example of putting any matter whatsoever into verse, his prose being, so far as can be seen, introduced not as appropriate but as necessary to break the monotony; and of making dialogue falsely poetical by putting, for example, into the mouth of Tamburlaine such a comparison as—

Like to an almond tree y-mounted high. . . .

Marlowe chose Tamburlaine and the kings as he chose words and images and cadences, because they were magnificent, and because their violent passions and prodigious acts satisfied his need of magnificence. But the life and death of Tamburlaine was far from being an adequate theme. The two plays were a freak of the infinite crude ambition of this young man of Kent in the marvellous company of young countrymen, wild, poor, laborious, who loved so well the small comprehensible England of this day. The plays were a tour de force. Marlowe cared nothing for emperors except for their clothes and cavalcades and for the pinnacle from which they would fall. We see him pouring out his poetry almost regardless of his characters. That the author of "Come live with me and be my love" was a great lyric poet there can be no doubt, but his lyric gift was so well satisfied with its opportunities in the plays that this poem is the only complete and separate lyric of his which we possess. The poetry was the thing. It would out; and with all respect for Tamburlaine, no one can read it without wishing that Marlowe had been able to give up one of the two parts for a narrative.

In a life so brief and full and fiery as Marlowe's there are certain to be many losses which it is only mortal to imagine and then regret, and the greatest regret is not that he did not complete The Jew of Malia as he began it, but that he attempted only one narrative poem and left that half untold. Our literature is not poor in narrative poetry on a large scale. In the first rank we have Chaucer, Shakespeare, Coleridge, Shelley, Keats, and the author of Tristram of Lyonesse; in the second, Dryden, Byron, Crabbe, Scott, and Morris—to mention a few. But “Hero and Leander” is the half of a poem that would have been unsurpassed, and equalled by “Lamia”—and by how few others! The versification is superb in its massiveness, delicacy, and diversity. For a peer in pictorial effect it had to wait over two hundred years, and it passes from picture to action and dialogue with perfect fitness and ease. It combines a classic clearness with the rapture of romance, as if a Grecian statue had breathed to speak its welcome to the Renaissance, or were about to do so; but Marlowe died and Chapman knew not the incantation.

In the legend of Doctor Faustus the poet had a perfect subject—the student “born of parents base of stock,” who hoped by magic to encompass

A world of profit and delight,
Of power, of honour and omnipotence—

to gain pearls and gold and “pleasant fruits and princely delicacies,” “strange philosophy,” and the secrets and armies of kings. Into this subject Marlowe could without hesitation or obstacle put the whole of himself, his intellectual subtlety and experience, his love of beauty, of power, and of luxury. He used the legend with only just so much of the paraphernalia of the supernatural as was easily and almost universally credible in his day; and he made Faustus a human, individual student of that age, with a shade of rusticity—one can imagine him with an accent as probably Marlowe had the accent of Kent—which adds to the intense reality of the whole, to the beauty and dalliance of the central part, the kissing of Helen, the snatching of the pope’s dish, and to the terrible splendour of the end. His mighty line—mighty in its movement as in its content—was at its proper task in expressing those “brave translunary things.” Excluding the prose buffoonery which is unlikely to have been his, the play has the simplicity of a lyric. It is small wonder that Goethe should say how greatly it was all planned, and that Mr. Swinburne should call its author the first great English poet, seeing with what fitness the exquisite parts are subordinate to a noble whole.

If in Tamburlaine the young Marlowe expressed his nature, so ardent, so luxurious, so volatile, against odds, and in Faustus with a perfect harmony between the subject and what we may surmise of himself, in Edward the Second the same nature found an outlet while at the same time creating a world outside itself. Edward the Second is not Marlowe as Tamburlaine was and as Faustus was, yet we have in his speeches not solely the tragic pleasure of watching him enjoying, struggling, sinking, to the end, but also that other pleasure of feeling that the maker of this vivid world is Marlowe himself, and that it is, therefore, what it is and not another world. Here as in Faustus, the soaring vein of the poet plunges with equal speed to agony. That a king spoke Marlowe's words in Tamburlaine was no advantage; but in Edward the Second the king adds a precious colour to the canvas—a king in whom he shows that the woe of the Renaissance equalled its joy. In the character of Edward he anticipates all Shakespeare's sense of the tragedy of princes, a sense which must have been quickened in Shakespeare if he really collaborated with Marlowe in The True Tragedy. Here Marlowe's almost hectic love of loveliness—his characteristic word is "lovely," I think—is most finely expressed; here, too, his love of luxury, as in—

Music and poetry are his delight;
Therefore I'll have Italian masks by night,
Sweet speeches, comedies, and pleasing shows;
And in the day, when he shall walk abroad,
Like sylvan nymphs my pages shall be clad;
My men, like satyrs grazing on the lawns,
Shall with their goat-feet dance the antic hay.
Sometimes a lovely boy in Dian's shape,
With hair that gilds the water as it glides. . . .

Here his fancy is put to its apt dramatic use as in that speech of the mournful Edward—

My heart is as an anvil unto sorrow,
Which beats upon it like the Cyclops' hammers,
And with the noise turns up my giddy brain,
And makes me frantic for my Gaveston.

Here his tenderness and sense of fate are most powerful, whether in the great passages or in the lesser, as when the Queen says at a touch of courage in her child—

Ah, boy! this towardness makes thy mother fear
Thou art not marked to many days on earth.

Here is his sumptuous diction at its height as when he puts into young Mortimer's mouth the simple statement—

This tottered ensign of my ancestors
Which swept the desert shore by that dead sea
Whereof we got the name of Mortimer
Will I advance upon this castle's walls.

Here his blank verse, though almost uncontrollably sweet and swift, has gained in force and variety and, always delightful in itself, is yet equal to all the occasions of a tragedy.

In none of the other plays have all of Marlowe's powers combined so happily to one great end. He was hurried, as in the later part of The Jew of Malta; he was handling only a contemporary subject, and that more or less in the manner of a chronicle play, as in The Massacre at Paris; or he had an intractable subject, as in Dido, Queen of Carthage. But in all he brought an intense poetic nature to bear upon human action and character, and, especially in Dido, enjoyed to the full the many opportunities of expressing luxury and barbaric simplicity of love and hate. No other poet would have made Æneas say, when he fears the farewell to his queen—

Her silver arms will coil me round about
And tears of pearl cry: "Stay, Æneas, stay."

No other would have made the queen say, when she suspects the Trojans of stealing away—

I would have given Achates store of gold
And Ilioneus gum and Libyan spice;
The common soldiers rich embroidered coats,
And silver whistles to control the winds,
Which Circe sent Sichæus when he lived—

or have made her beg her sister to mount Æneas on her jennet that he might ride as her husband through the streets while she goes up into a turret from which to gaze on him.

Of the many plays doubtfully or in part attributed to Marlowe The True Tragedy is printed here. It is thought by some that Shakespeare, Greene, and Peele had also a hand in it, and that Shakespeare used only his own share in the third part of King Henry VI., into which it developed. Miss Elizabeth Lee, on the other hand, thinks that Marlowe and Greene, aided perhaps by Peele, wrote this play and its companion, Contention, and that it was with Marlowe's help that Shakespeare converted them into the second and third parts of King Henry VI. To Marlowe she attributes, and very naturally, the characters of King Henry, of York, of Richard of Gloucester, and of Margaret of Anjou. The True Tragedy was not published until 1595, but it must have preceded Henry VI., and there is some evidence that that play was written before 1592. It was presumably because Shakespeare incorporated something from Greene's contribution when he developed The True Tragedy into the third part of Henry VI., that Greene called him an "upstart crow," in A Groat'sworth of Wit. The versification convinces many that a large part of The True Tragedy was by Marlowe, though it cannot be too carefully considered how easy it would have been for other men, especially Greene and Peele and Shakespeare, who were familiar—as who were not?—with Marlowe's style, to write like him, and still more so if he were collaborating with them; and it is therefore unsafe to argue for Marlowe's or against Shakespeare's authorship on the ground of the absence—that is to say, the scarcity—of rhymes. Neither The True Tragedy nor the third part of Henry VI. could, if entirely by Marlowe, add to his reputation except for productivity, though passages like the following, whether by Shakespeare or by him, are in the vein of Edward the Second—

How couldst thou draine the life bloode of the childe,
 To bid the father wipe his eyes withal,
 And yet be seene to bear a woman's face?
 Women are mild, pitiful, and flexible,
 Thou indurate, sterne, rough, remorseless.
 Bidst thou me rage? why now thou hast thy will
 Wouldst have me weep? why so, thou hast thy wish.
 For raging words blowe up a storm of tears,
 And when the rage allays the rain begins.
 Those tears are my sweet Rutland's obsequies,
 And every drop begs vengeance as it falls,
 On thee, fell Clifford, and thee, false Frenchwoman . . .
 Keep thou the napkin and go boast of that,
 And if thou tell the heavy story well,
 Upon my soul the heavens shall shed tears,
 I, even my foes will shed fast falling tears,
 And say, alas, it was a piteous deed.

It should be noticed in this play how the division into lines has been corrupted, first, by the printer's necessity, and second, by his stupidity. For example, when a line is overlong the excessive word is carried on as if it belonged to the next: thus "bootie" is carried on in—

So triumphs theeves upon their conquered
Bootie: so true men yield by robbers overmatcht.

In that way many of the eccentric "verses" in Blake's prophetic books were created. Of the second kind of corruption the following speech by the Queen is an example:—

Had I been there, the soldiers would have tost
Me on their lances' points | before I would have
Granted to their wills | The Duke is made
Protector of the land. | sterne Fawconbridge
Commands the narrow seas. | And thinkest thou then
To sleep secure? | I heer divorce me Henry
From thy bed, | untill that Act of Parliament
Be recalde, | wherein thou yieldest to the house of Yorke.

An amended division of the verses has been suggested by the perpendicular lines added in this quotation. In speaking the hundreds of other misprinted lines the sound will easily guide the reader to something like the arrangement which the printer has corrupted.

EDWARD THOMAS.

The following is a list of his published works:—

Tamburlaine. In two parts, 1587; first published, 1590; The Tragical History of Doctor Faustus, probably written soon after the above play; entered on the Stationers' Books, 1600-1; earliest known edition, 1604; The Jew of Malta, exact date of composition uncertain; acted, 1591-2, Edward II., entered on the Stationers' Books, 1593; The Massacre at Paris, acted 1592-3; The Tragedy of Dido (in collaboration with Thomas Nash), published 1594; Hero and Leander, 1598 (the poem was completed by George Chapman); Translation of Ovid's Elegies, earliest editions undated; First book of Lucan's Pharsalia, extant early edition, 1600; Lyric, "Come live with me and be my love," printed (imperfectly) in The Passionate Pilgrim, 1599; complete in England's Helicon, 1600; Another poem is given in England's Parnassus, 1600. Plays in which Marlowe's collaboration is a matter of discussion are: Taming of a Shrew (1594); Titus Andronicus, the old King John, and the three parts of Henry VI.

WORKS.—With Life by G. Robinson, 1826; with some account of life and writings, by A. Dyce, 1850, 1858, by Lt.-Col F Cunningham, with preface, 1870, 1871; by A. H. Bullen, with introductory account of life and works, 1885; Plays and Poems (Newnes), 1905; New Universal Library, 1906.

SELECTIONS.—Poems, ed. by R. Bell, 1856; Bohn, 1876; Five plays by Havelock Ellis, with introduction on the Drama by J. A. Symonds (Mermaid Series), 1887, 1903; Canterbury Poets, 1885. Several editions of separate plays.

LIFE.—F. G. Lewis: Christopher Marlowe, His Life and Works, Lecture, 1890; J. H. Ingram: Christopher Marlowe and his Associates, 1904; see also introductions to above editions, and Dr. A. W. Ward's introduction to his edition of Faustus.

THE PROLOGUE

FROM jiggling veins of rhyming mother-wits,
 And such conceits as clownage keeps in pay,
 We'll lead you to the stately tent of war,
 Where you shall hear the Scythian Tamburlaine
 Threatening the world with high astounding terms,
 And scourging kingdoms with his conquering sword-
 View but his picture in this tragic glass,
 And then applaud his fortunes as you please.

Marlowe's Plays

ACT I

SCENE I

Enter MYCETES, COSROE, MEANDER, THERIDAMAS, ORTYGIUS, CENEUS, MENAPHON, with others.

Myc. Brother Cosroe, I find myself agriev'd;
Yet insufficient to express the same,
For it requires a great and thundering speech:
Good brother, tell the cause unto my lords;
I know you have a better wit than I.

Cos. Unhappy Persia,—that in former age
Hast been the seat of mighty conquerors,
That, in their prowess and their policies,
Have triumph'd over Afric, and the bounds
Of Europe where the sun dares scarce appear
For freezing meteors and congealed cold,—
Now to be rul'd and govern'd by a man
At whose birthday Cynthia with Saturn join'd,
And Jove, the Sun, and Mercury denied
To shed their influence in his fickle brain!
Now Turks and Tartars shake their swords at thee,
Meaning to mangle all thy provinces.

Myc. Brother, I see your meaning well enough,
And through your planets I perceive you think
I am not wise enough to be a king:
But I refer me to my noblemen,
That know my wit, and can be witnesses.
I might command you to be slain for this,—
Meander, might I not?

Mean. Not for so small a fault, my sovereign lord.

Myc. I mean it not, but yet I know I might—
Yet live; yea, live; Mycetes wills it so.—
Meander, thou, my faithful counsellor,
Declare the cause of my conceived grief,
Which is, God knows, about that Tamburlaine,
That, like a fox in midst of harvest-time,
Doth prey upon my flocks of passengers;
And, as I hear, doth mean to pull my plumes:
Therefore 'tis good and meet for to be wise.

Mean. Oft have I heard your majesty complain
Of Tamburlaine, that sturdy Scythian thief,

That robs your merchants of Persepolis
 Trading by land unto the Western Isles,
 And in your confines with his lawless train
 Daily commits incivil outrages,
 Hoping (misled by dreaming prophecies)
 To reign in Asia, and with barbarous arms
 To make himself the monarch of the East:
 But, ere he march in Asia, or display
 His vagrant ensign in the Persian fields,
 Your grace hath taken order by Theridamas.
 Charg'd with a thousand horse, to apprehend
 And bring him captive to your highness' throne.

Myc. Full true thou speak'st, and like thyself, my lord,
 Whom I may term a Damon for thy love:
 Therefore 'tis best, if so it like you all,
 To send my thousand horse incontinent
 To apprehend that paltry Scythian.
 How like you this, my honourable lords?
 Is it not a kingly resolution?

Cos. It cannot choose, because it comes from you.

Myc. Then hear thy charge, valiant Theridamas,
 The chiefest captain of Mycetes' host,
 The hope of Persia, and the very legs
 Whereon our state doth lean as on a staff,
 That holds us up and foils our neighbour foes:
 Thou shalt be leader of this thousand horse,
 Whose foaming gall with rage and high disdain
 Have sworn the death of wicked Tamburlaine.
 Go frowning forth; but come thou smiling home,
 As did Sir Paris with the Grecian dame:
 Return with speed; time passeth swift away;
 Our life is frail, and we may die to-day.

Ther. Before the moon renew her borrow'd light,
 Doubt not, my lord and gracious sovereign,
 But Tamburlaine and that Tartarian rout
 Shall either perish by our warlike hands,
 Or plead for mercy at your highness' feet.

Myc. Go, stout Theridamas; thy words are swords,
 And with thy looks thou conquerest all thy foes.
 I long to see thee back return from hence,
 That I may view these milk-white steeds of mine
 All laden with the heads of killed men,
 And, from their knees even to their hoofs below,

Besmeared with blood that makes a dainty show,

Ther. Then now, my lord, I humbly take my leave.

Myc. Theridamas, farewell ten thousand times.

[Exit Theridamas.]

Ah, Menaphon, why stay'st thou thus behind,

When other men press forward for renown?

Go, Menaphon, go into Scythia,

And foot by foot follow Theridamas.

Cos. Nay, pray you, let him stay; a greater [task]

Fits Menaphon than warring with a thief:

Create him pro-rex of all Africa,

That he may win the Babylonians' hearts,

Which will revolt from Persian government,

Unless they have a wiser king than you.

Myc. Unless they have a wiser king than you!

These are his words; Meander, set them down.

Cos. And add this to them,—that all Asia

Lament to see the folly of their king.

Myc. Well, here I swear by this my royal seat—

Cos. You may do well to kiss it, then.

Myc. Emboss'd with silk as best beseems my state,

To be reveng'd for these contemptuous words!

O where is duty and allegiance now?

Fled to the Caspian or the Ocean main?

What shall I call thee? brother? no, a foe;

Monster of nature, shame unto thy stock,

That dar'st presume thy sovereign for to mock!—

Meander, come: I am abus'd, Meander.

[Exeunt all except Cosroe and Menaphon.]

Men. How now, my lord! what, mated and amaz'd

To hear the king thus threaten like himself!

Cos. Ah, Menaphon, I pass not for his threats!

The plot is laid by Persian noblemen

And captains of the Median garrisons

To crown me emperor of Asia;

But this it is that doth excruciate

The very substance of my vexed soul,

To see our neighbours, that were wont to quake

And tremble at the Persian monarch's name,

Now sit and laugh our regiment to scorn;

And that which might resolve me into tears,

Men from the farthest equinoctial line

Have swarm'd in troops into the Eastern India,

Lading their ships with gold and precious stones,
And made their spoils from all our provinces.

Men. This should entreat your highness to rejoice,
Since Fortune gives you opportunity
To gain the title of a conqueror
By curing of this maimed empery.
Afric and Europe bordering on your land,
And continent to your dominions,
How easily may you, with a mighty host,
Pass into Græcia, as did Cyrus once,
And cause them to withdraw their forces home,
Lest you subdue the pride of Christendom!

[Trumpet within.]

Cos. But, Menaphon, what means this trumpet's sound?

Men. Behold, my lord, Ortygius and the rest
Bringing the crown to make you emperor!

Re-enter ORTYGIUS and CENEUS, with others, bearing a crown.

Orty. Magnificent and mighty prince Cosroe,
We, in the name of other Persian states
And commons of this mighty monarchy,
Present thee with th' imperial diadem.

Cen. The warlike soldiers and the gentlemen,
That heretofore have fill'd Persepolis
With Afric captains taken in the field,
Whose ransom made them march in coats of gold,
With costly jewels hanging at their ears,
And shining stones upon their lofty crests,
Now living idle in the walled towns,
Wanting both pay and martial discipline,
Begin in troops to threaten civil war,
And openly exclaim against their kings:
Therefore, to stay all sudden mutinies,
We will invest your highness emperor;
Whereat the soldiers will conceive more joy
Than did the Macedonians at the spoil
Of great Darius and his wealthy host.

Cos. Well, since I see the state of Persia droop
And languish in my brother's government,
I willingly receive th' imperial crown,
And vow to wear it for my country's good,
In spite of them shall malice my estate.

Orty. And, in assurance of desir'd success,

We here do crown thee monarch of the East,
 Emperor of Asia and Persia;
 Great lord of Media and Armenia;
 Duke of Africa and Albania,
 Mesopotamia and of Parthia,
 East India and the late-discover'd isles;
 Chief lord of all the wide vast Euxine Sea;
 And of the ever-raging Caspian Lake.

All. Long live Cosroe, mighty emperor!

Cos. And Jove may never let me longer live
 Than I may seek to gratify your love,
 And cause the soldiers that thus honour me
 To triumph over many provinces!
 By whose desires of discipline in arms
 I doubt not shortly but to reign sole king.
 And with the army of Theridamas
 (Whither we presently will fly, my lords,)
 To rest secure against my brother's force.

Orty. We knew, my lord, before we brought the crown,
 Intending your investion so near
 The residence of your despised brother,
 The lords would not be too exasperate
 To injury or suppress your worthy title;
 Or, if they would, there are in readiness
 Ten thousand horse to carry you from hence,
 In spite of all suspected enemies.

Cos. I know it well, my lord, and thank you all.

Orty. Sound up the trumpets, then.

All. God save the king!

[Exeunt.

SCENE II

Enter TAMBURLAINE leading ZENOCRATE, TECHELLES, USUM-CASANE, AGYDAS, MAGNETES, Lords, and Soldiers laden with treasure.

Tamb. Come, lady, let not this appal your thoughts;
 The jewels and the treasure we have ta'en
 Shall be reserv'd, and you in better state
 Than if you were arriv'd in Syria,
 Even in the circle of your father's arms,
 The mighty Soldan of Ægyptia.

Zeno. Ah, shepherd, pity my distressed plight!

(If, as thou seem'st, thou art so mean a man,)
 And seek not to enrich thy followers
 By lawless*rapine from a silly maid,
 Who, travelling with these Median lords
 To Memphis, from my uncle's country of Media,
 Where, all my youth, I have been governed,
 Have pass'd the army of the mighty Turk,
 Bearing his privy-signet and his hand
 To safe conduct as thorough Africa.

Mag. And, since we have arrived in Scythia,
 Besides rich presents from the puissant Cham,
 We have his highness' letters to command
 Aid and assistance, if we stand in need.

Tamb. But now you see these letters and commands
 Are countermanded by a greater man;
 And through my provinces you must expect
 Letters of conduct from my mightiness,
 If you intend to keep your treasure safe,
 But, since I love to live at liberty
 As easily may you get the Soldan's crown
 As any prizes out of my precinct;
 For they are friends that help to wean my state
 Till men and kingdoms help to strengthen it
 And must maintain my life exempt from servitude—
 But, tell me, madam, is your grace betroth'd?

Zeno. I am, my lord,—for so you do import.

Tamb. I am a lord, for so my deeds shall prove;
 And yet a shepherd by my parentage.
 But, lady, this fair face and heavenly hue
 Must grace his bed that conquers Asia,
 And means to be a terror to the world,
 Measuring the limits of his empery
 By east and west, as Phœbus doth his course—
 Lie here, ye weeds, that I disdain to wear!
 This complete armour and this curtle-axe
 Are adjuncts more becoming Tamburlaine.—
 And, madam, whatsoever you esteem
 Of this success, and loss unvalued,
 Both may invest you empress of the East;
 And these that seem but silly country swains
 May have the leading of so great an host
 As with their weight shall make the mountains quake,
 Even as when windy exhalations,

Fighting for passage, tilt within the earth.

Tech. As princely lions, when they rouse themselves,
Stretching their paws, and threatening herds of beasts,
So in his armour looketh Tamburlaine.

Methinks I see kings kneeling at his feet,
And he with frowning brows and fiery looks
Spurning their crowns from off their captive heads.

Usur. And making thee and me, Techelles, kings,
That even to death will follow Tamburlaine.

Tamb. Nobly resolv'd, sweet friends and followers!
These lords perhaps do scorn our estimates,
And think we prattle with distemper'd spirits:
But, since they measure our deserts so mean,
That in conceit bear empires on our spears,
Affecting thoughts coequal with the clouds,
They shall be kept our forced followers
Till with their eyes they view us emperors.

Zeno. The gods, defenders of the innocent,
Will never prosper your intended drifts,
That thus oppress poor friendless passengers.
Therefore at least admit us liberty,
Even as thou hop'st to be eternised
By living Asia's mighty emperor.

Agyd. I hope our lady's treasure and our own
May serve for ransom to our liberties:
Return our mules and empty camels back,
That we may travel into Syria,
Where her betrothed lord, Alcidas,
Expects the arrival of her highness' person.

Mag. And wheresoever we repose ourselves,
We will report but well of Tamburlaine.

Tamb. Disdains Zenocrate to live with me?
Or you, my lord, to be my followers?
Think you I weigh this treasure more than you?
Not all the gold in India's wealthy arms
Shall buy the meanest soldier in my train.

✓ Zenocrate, lovelier than the love of Jove,
Brighter than is the silver Rhodope,
Fairer than whitest snow on Scythian hills,
Thy person is more worth to Tamburlaine
Than the possession of the Persian crown,
Which gracious stars have promis'd at my birth.
A hundred Tartars shall attend on thee,

Tamburlaine the Great

Mounted on steeds swifter than Pegasus;
Thy garments shall be made of Median silk,
Enchas'd with precious jewels of mine own,
More rich and valurous than Zenocrate's;
With milk-white harts upon an ivory sled
Thou shalt be drawn amidst the frozen pools,
And scale the icy mountains' lofty tops,
Which with thy beauty will be soon resolv'd:
My martial prizes, with five hundred men,
Won on the fifty-headed Volga's waves,
Shall we all offer to Zenocrate,
And then myself to fair Zenocrate.

Tech. What now! in love?

Tamb. Techelles, women must be flattered:
But this is she with whom I am in love.

Enter a Soldier.

Sold. News, news!

Tamb. How now! what's the matter?

Sold. A thousand Persian horsemen are at hand,
Sent from the king to overcome us all.

Tamb. How now, my lords of Egypt and Zenocrate!
Now must your jewels be restor'd again,
And I, that triumph'd so, be overcome?
How say you, lordlings? is not this your hope?

Agyd. We hope yourself will willingly restore them.

Tamb. Such hope, such fortune, have the thousand horse.
Soft ye, my lords, and sweet Zenocrate!
You must be forced from me ere you go—

A thousand horsemen! we five hundred foot!
An odds too great for us to stand against.
But are they rich? and is their armour good?

Sold. Their plumed helms are wrought with beaten gold,
Their swords enamell'd, and about their necks
Hang massy chains of gold down to the waist;
In every part exceeding brave and rich.

Tamb. Then shall we fight courageously with them?
Or look you I should play the orator?

Tech. No; cowards and faint-hearted runaways
Look for orations when the foe is near:
Our swords shall play the orators for us.

Usur. Come, let us meet them at the mountain-top.
And with a sudden and an hot alarum

Drive all their horses headlong down the hill.

Tech. Come, let us march.

Tamb. Stay, Techelles; ask a parole first.

The Soldiers enter.

Open the mails, yet guard the treasure sure:
Lay out our golden wedges to the view,
That their reflections may amaze the Persians;
And look we friendly on them when they come:
But, if they offer word or violence,
We'll fight, five hundred men-at-arms to one
Before we part with our possession;
And 'gainst the general we will lift our swords,
And either lance his greedy thirsting throat,
Or take him prisoner, and his chain shall serve
For manacles till he be ransom'd home.

Tech. I hear them come: shall we encounter them?

Tamb. Keep all your standings, and not stir a foot:
Myself will bide the danger of the brunt.

Enter THERIDAMAS, with others.

Ther. Where is this Scythian Tamburlaine?

Tamb. Whom seek'st thou, Persian? I am Tamburlaine.

Ther. Tamburlaine!

A Scythian shepherd so embellished
With nature's pride and richest furniture!
His looks do menace heaven and dare the gods;
His fiery eyes are fix'd upon the earth,
As if he now devis'd some stratagem,
Or meant to pierce Avernus' darksome vaults
To pull the triple-headed dog from hell.

Tamb. Noble and mild this Persian seems to be,
If outward habit judge the inward man.

Tech. His deep affections make him passionate.

Tamb. With what a majesty he rears his looks!—

In thee, thou valiant man of Persia,
I see the folly of thy emperor.

Art thou but captain of a thousand horse,
That by characters graven in thy brows,
And by thy martial face and stout aspect,
Deserv'st to have the leading of an host?
Forsake thy king, and do but join with me,
And we will triumph over all the world:

I hold the Fates bound fast in iron chains,
 And with my hand turn Fortune's wheel about;
 And sooner shall the sun fall from his sphere
 Than Tamburlaine be slain or overcome.
 Draw forth thy sword thou mighty man-at-arms,
 Intending but to raze my charmed skin,
 And Jove himself will stretch his hand from heaven
 To ward the blow, and shield me safe from harm.
 See, how he rains down heaps of gold in showers,
 As if he meant to give my soldiers pay!
 And, as a sure and grounded argument
 That I shall be the monarch of the East,
 He sends this Soldan's daughter rich and brave,
 To be my queen and portly emperess.
 If thou wilt stay with me, renowned man,
 And lead thy thousand horse with my conduct,
 Besides thy share of this Egyptian prize,
 Those thousand horse shall sweat with martial spoil
 Of conquer'd kingdoms and of cities sack'd:
 Both we will walk upon the lofty cliffs;
 And Christian merchants, that with Russian stems
 Plough up huge furrows in the Caspian Sea,
 Shall vail to us as lords of all the lake;
 Both we will reign as consuls of the earth,
 And mighty kings shall be our senators.
 Jove sometimes masked in a shepherd's weed;
 And by those steps that he hath scal'd the heavens
 May we become immortal like the gods.
 Join with me now in this my mean estate,
 (I call it mean, because, being yet obscure,
 The nations far-remov'd admire me not,)
 And when my name and honour shall be spread
 As far as Boreas claps his brazen wings,
 Or fair Bootes sends his cheerful light,
 Then shalt thou be competitor with me,
 And sit with Tamburlaine in all his majesty.

Ther. Not Hermes, prolocutor to the gods,
 Could use persuasions more pathetical.

Tamb. Nor are Apollo's oracles more true
 Than thou shalt find my vaunts substantial.

Tech. We are his friends; and if the Persian king
 Should offer present dukedoms to our state,
 We think it loss to make exchange for that

We are assur'd of by our friend's success.

Usum. And kingdoms at the least we all expect,
 Besides the honour in assured conquests,
 Where kings shall crouch unto our conquering swords,
 And hosts of soldiers stand amaz'd at us,
 When with their fearful tongues they shall confess,
 These are the men that all the world admires.

Ther. What strong enchantments tice my yielding soul
 To these resolved, noble Scythians!
 But shall I prove a traitor to my king?

Tamb. No; but the trusty friend of Tamburlaine.

Ther. Won with thy words, and conquer'd with thy looks,
 I yield myself, my men, and horse to thee,
 To be partaker of thy good or ill,
 As long as life maintains Theridamas.

Tamb. Theridamas, my friend, take here my hand,
 Which is as much as if I swore by heaven,
 And call'd the gods to witness of my vow.
 Thus shalt my heart be still combin'd with thine
 Until our bodies turn to elements,
 And both our souls aspire celestial thrones.—
 Techelles and Casane, welcome him.

Tech. Welcome, renowned Persian, to us all!

Usum. Long may Theridamas remain with us!

Tamb. These are my friends, in whom I more rejoice
 Than doth the king of Persia in his crown;
 And, by the love of Pylades and Orestes,
 Whose statues we adore in Scythia,
 Thyself and them shall never part from me
 Before I crown you kings in Asia.
 Make much of them, gentle Theridamas,
 And they will never leave thee till the death.

Ther. Nor thee nor them, thrice-noble Tamburlaine
 Shall want my heart to be with gladness pierc'd,
 To do you honour and security.

Tamb. A thousand thanks, worthy Theridamas.—
 And now, fair madam, and my noble lords,
 If you will willingly remain with me,
 You shall have honours as your merits be;
 Or else you shall be forc'd with slavery.

Agyd. We yield unto thee, happy Tamburlaine.

Tamb. For you, then, madam, I am out of doubt.

Zeno. I must be pleas'd perforce,—wretched Zenocrate!

[Exeunt.]

ACT II

SCENE I

Enter COSROE, MENAPHON, ORTYGIUS, and CENEUS, with Soldiers.

Cos. Thus far are we towards Theridamas,
And valiant Tamburlaine, the man of fame,
The man that in the forehead of his fortune
Bears figures of renown and miracle.
But tell me, that hast seen him, Menaphon,
What stature wield he, and what personage?

Men. Of stature tall, and straightly fashioned
Like his desire, lift upwards and divine;
So large of limbs, his joints so strongly knit,
Such breadth of shoulders as might mainly bear
Old Atlas' burden; 'twixt his manly pitch,
A pearl more worth than all the world is plac'd,
Wherein by curious sovereignty of art
Are fix'd his piercing instruments of sight,
Whose fiery circles bear encompassed
A heaven of heavenly bodies in their spheres,
That guides his steps and actions to the throne
Where honour sits invested royally;
Pale of complexion, wrought in him with passion,
Thirsting with sovereignty and love of arms;
His lofty brows in folds do figure death,
And in their smoothness amity and life;
About them hangs a knot of amber hair,
Wrapped in curls, as fierce Achilles' was,
On which the breath of heaven delights to play
Making it dance with wanton majesty;
His arms and fingers long and sinewy,
Betokening valour and excess of strength;—
In every part proportion'd like the man
Should make the world subdu'd to Tamburlaine.

Cos. Well hast thou pourtray'd in thy terms of life
The face and personage of a wondrous man:
Nature doth strive with Fortune and his stars
To make him famous in accomplish'd worth;
And well his merits shew him to be made
His fortune's master and the king of men,

That could persuade, at such a sudden pinch,
 With reasons of his valour and his life,
 A thousand sworn and overmatching foes.
 Then, when our powers in points of swords are join'd,
 And clos'd in compass of the killing bullet,
 Though strait the passage and the port be made
 That leads to palace of my brother's life,
 Proud is his fortune if we pierce it not;
 And, when the princely Persian diadem
 Shall overweigh his weary witless head,
 And fall, like mellow'd fruit, with shakes of death
 In fair Persia noble Tamburlaine
 Shall be my regent, and remain as king.

Orty. In happy hour we have set the crown
 Upon your kingly head, that seeks our honour
 In joining with the man ordain'd by heaven
 To further every action to the best.

Cen. He that with shepherds and a little spoil
 Durst, in disdain of wrong and tyranny,
 Defend his freedom 'gainst a monarchy,
 What will he do supported by a king,
 Leading a troop of gentlemen and lords,
 And stuff'd with treasure for his highest thoughts!

Cos. And such shall wait on worthy Tamburlaine.
 Our army will be forty thousand strong,
 When Tamburlaine and brave Theridamas
 Have met us by the river Araris;
 And all conjoin'd to meet the witless king,
 That now is marching near to Parthia,
 And, with unwilling soldiers faintly arm'd,
 To seek revenge on me and Tamburlaine;
 To whom, sweet Menaphon, direct me straight.

Men. I will, my lord.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II

Enter MYCETES, MEANDER, with other Lords; and Soldiers.

Myc. Come, my Meander, let us to this gear.
 I tell you true, my heart is swoln with wrath
 On this same thievish villain Tamburlaine,
 And of that false Cosroe, my traitorous brother.
 Would it not grieve a king to be so abus'd,

And have a thousand horsemen ta'en away?
 And, which is worse, to have his diadem
 Sought for by such scald knaves as love him not?
 I think it would: well, then, by heavens I swear,
 Aurora shall not peep out of her doors,
 But I will have Cosroe by the head,
 And kill proud Tamburlaine with point of sword.
 Tell you the rest, Meander: I have said.

Mean. Then, having pass'd Armenian deserts now,
 And pitch'd our tents under the Georgian hills,
 Whose tops are cover'd with Tartarian thieves,
 That lie in ambush, waiting for a prey,
 What should we do but bid them battle straight,
 And rid the world of those detested troops?
 Lest, if we let them linger here a while,
 They gather strength by power of fresh supplies.
 This country swarms with vile outrageous men
 That live by rapine and by lawless spoil,
 Fit soldiers for the wicked Tamburlaine;
 And he that could with gifts and promises
 Inveigle him that led a thousand horse,
 And make him false his faith unto his king,
 Will quickly win such as be like himself.
 Therefore cheer up your minds; prepare to fight:
 He that can take or slaughter Tamburlaine,
 Shall rule the province of Albania;
 Who brings that traitor's head, Theridamas,
 Shall have a government in Media,
 Beside the spoil of him and all his train:
 But, if Cosroe (as our spials say,
 And as we know) remains with Tamburlaine,
 His highness' pleasure is that he should live,
 And be reclaim'd with princely lenity.

Enter a Spy.

Spy. An hundred horsemen of my company,
 Scouting abroad upon these champion plains,
 Have view'd the army of the Scythians;
 Which make report it far exceeds the king's.

Mean. Suppose they be in number infinite,
 Yet being void of martial discipline,
 All running headlong, greedy after spoils,
 And more regarding gain than victory,

Like to the cruel brothers of the earth,
 Sprung of the teeth of dragons venomous,
 Their careless swords shall lance their fellows' throats,
 And make us triumph in their overthrow.

Myc. Was there such brethren, sweet Meander, say,
 That sprung of teeth of dragons venomous?

Mean. So poets say, my lord.

Myc. And 'tis a pretty toy to be a poet.

Well, well, Meander, thou art deeply read;

And having thee, I have a jewel sure.

Go on, my lord, and give your charge, I say;

Thy wit will make us conquerors to-day.

Mean. Then, noble soldiers, to entrap these thieves

That live confounded in disorder'd troops,

If wealth or riches may prevail with them,

We have our camels laden all with gold,

Which you that be but common soldiers

Shall fling in every corner of the field;

And, while the base-born Tartars take it up,

You, fighting more for honour than for gold,

Shall massacre those greedy-minded slaves;

And, when their scatter'd army is subdu'd,

And you march on their slaughter'd carcasses,

Share equally the gold that bought their lives,

And live like gentlemen in Persia.

Strike up the drum, and march courageously:

Fortune herself doth sit upon our crests.

Myc. He tells you true, my masters; so he does. —

Drums, why sound ye not when Meander speaks?

[Exeunt, drums sounding.]

SCENE III

Enter COSROE, TAMBURLAINE, THERIDAMAS, TECHELLES, USUMCASANE, and ORTYGIUS, with others.

Cos. Now, worthy Tamburlaine, have I repos'd

In thy approved fortunes all my hope.

What think'st thou, man, shall come of our attempts?

For, even as from assured oracle,

I take thy doom for satisfaction.

Tamb. And so mistake you not a whit, my lord;

For fates and oracles [of] heaven have sworn

To royalise the deeds of Tamburlaine,

And make them blest that share in his attempts
 And doubt you not but, if you favour me,
 And let my fortunes and my valour sway
 To some direction in your martial deeds,
 The world will strive with hosts of men-at-arms
 To swarm unto the ensign I support.
 The hosts of Xerxes, which by fame is said
 To drink the mighty Parthian Araris,
 Was but a handful to that we will have:
 Our quivering lances, shaking in the air,
 And bullets, like Jove's dreadful thunderbolts,
 Enroll'd in flames and fiery smouldering mists,
 Shall threat the gods more than Cyclopien wars;
 And with our sun-bright armour, as we march,
 We'll chase the stars from heaven, and dim their eyes
 That stand and muse at our admired arms.

Ther. You see, my lord, what working words he hath;
 But, when you see his actions top his speech,
 Your speech will stay, or so extol his worth
 As I shall be commended and excus'd
 For turning my poor charge to his direction:
 And these his two renowned friends, my lord,
 Would make one thirst and strive to be retain'd
 In such a great degree of amity.

Tech. With duty and with amity we yield
 Our utmost service to the fair Cosroe.

Cos. Which I esteem as portion of my crown.
 Usumcasane and Techelles both,
 When she that rules in Rhamnus' golden gates,
 And makes a passage for all prosperous arms,
 Shall make me solely emperor of Asia,
 Then shall your meeds and valours be advanc'd
 To rooms of honour and nobility.

Tamb. Then haste, Cosroe, to be king alone,
 That I with these my friends and all my men
 May triumph in our long-expected fate.
 The king, your brother, is now hard at hand.
 Meet with the fool, and rid your royal shoulders
 Of such a burden as outweighs the sands
 And all the craggy rocks of Caspia.

Enter a Messenger.

Mes. My lord,
 We have discovered the enemy

Ready to charge you with a mighty army.

Cos. Come, Tamburlaine; now whet thy winged sword,
And lift thy lofty arm into the clouds,
That it may reach the king of Persia's crown,
And set it safe on my victorious head.

Tamb. See where it is, the keenest curtle-axe
That e'er made passage thorough Persian arms!
These are the wings shall make it fly as swift
As doth the lightning or the breath of heaven,
And kill as sure as it swiftly flies.

Cos. Thy words assure me of kind success:
Go, valiant soldier, go before, and charge
The fainting army of that foolish king.

Tamb. Usumcasane and Techelles, come:
We are enow to scare the enemy,
And more than needs to make an emperor.

[Exeunt to the battle.]

SCENE IV

Enter MYCETES, with his crown in his hand.

Myc. Accurs'd be he that first invented war!
They knew not, ah, they knew not, simple men,
How those were hit by pelting cannon-shot
Stand staggering like a quivering aspen-leaf
Fearing the force of Boreas' boisterous blasts!
In what a lamentable case were I,
If nature had not given me wisdom's lore!
For kings are clouts that every man shoots at,
Our crown the pin that thousands seek to cleave:
Therefore in policy I think it good
To hide it close; a goodly stratagem,
And far from any man that is a fool:
So shall not I be known; or if I be,
They cannot take away my crown from me.
Here will I hide it in this simple hole.

Enter TAMBURLAINE.

Tamb. What, fearful coward, straggling from the camp,
When kings themselves are present in the field!

Myc. Thou liest.

Tamb. Base villain, darest thou give me the lie?

Myc. Away! I am the king; go; touch me not.

Thou break'st the law of arms, unless thou kneel,
And cry me "mercy, noble king!"

Tamb. Are you the witty king of Persia?

Myc. Ay, marry, am I: have you any suit to me?

Tamb. I would entreat you to speak but three wise words.

Myc. So I can when I see my time.

Tamb. Is this your crown?

Myc. Ay: didst thou ever see a fairer?

Tamb. You will not sell it, will you?

Myc. Such another word, and I will have thee executed.

Come, give it me.

Tamb. No; I took it prisoner.

Myc. You lie; I gave it you.

Tamb. Then 'tis mine.

Myc. No; I mean I let you keep it.

Tamb. Well, I mean you shall have it again.

Here, take it for a while: I lend it thee,

Till I may see thee hemm'd with armed men;

Then shalt thou see me pull it from thy head:

Thou art no match for mighty Tamburlaine. [Exit.

Myc. O gods, is this Tamburlaine the thief?

I marvel much he stole it not away.

[Trumpets within sound to the battle: he runs out.

SCENE V

*Enter COSROE, TAMBURLAINE, MENAPHON, MEANDER, ORTYGIUS, THERIDAMAS, TECHELLES, USUMCASANE,
with others.*

Tamb. Hold thee, Cosroe; wear two imperial crowns;

Think thee invested now as royally,

Even by the mighty hand of Tamburlaine,

As if as many kings as could encompass thee

With greatest pomp had crown'd thee emperor.

Cos. So do I, thrice-renowned man-at-arms;

And none shall keep the crown but Tamburlaine:

Thee do I make my regent of Persia,

And general lieutenant of my armies.—

Meander, you, that were our brother's guide,

And chiefest counsellor in all his acts,

Since he is yielded to the stroke of war,

On your submission we with thanks excuse,

And give you equal place in our affairs.

Mean. Most happy emperor, in humblest terms

I vow my service to your majesty,
With utmost virtue of my faith and duty.

Cos. Thanks, good Meander.—Then, Cosroe, reign,
And govern Persia in her former pomp.

Now send embassage to thy neighbour kings,
And let them know the Persian king is chang'd,
From one that knew not what a king should do,
To one that can command what 'longs thereto.

And now we will to fair Persepolis
With twenty thousand expert soldiers.

The lords and captains of my brother's camp
With little slaughter take Meander's course,
And gladly yield them to my gracious rule.—

Ortygius and Menaphon, my trusty friends,
Now will I gratify your former good,
And grace your calling with a greater sway.

Orty. And as we ever aim'd at your behoof,
And sought your state all honour it deserv'd,
So will we with our powers and our lives
Endeavour to preserve and prosper it.

Cos. I will not thank thee, sweet Ortygius;
Better replies shall prove my purposes.—
And now, Lord Tamburlaine, my brother's camp
I leave to thee and to Theridamas,

To follow me to fair Persepolis;
Then will we march to all those Indian mines

My witless brother to the Christians lost,

And ransom them with fame and usury:

And, till thou overtake me, Tamburlaine,

(Staying to order all the scatter'd troops,)

Farewell, lord regent and his happy friends.

I long to sit upon my brother's throne.

Mean. Your majesty shall shortly have your wish,
And ride in triumph through Persepolis.

[Exeunt all except Tamb., Ther., Tech., and Usum.]

Tamb. And ride in triumph through Persepolis!—

Is it not brave to be a king, Techelles!—

Usumcasane and Theridamas,

Is it not passing brave to be a king,

And ride in triumph through Persepolis?

Tech. O, my lord, it is sweet and full of pomp!

Usum. To be a king, is half to be a god.

Ther. A god is not so glorious as a king:

I think the pleasure they enjoy in heaven,
Cannot compare with kingly joys in earth;—
To wear a crown enchas'd with pearl and gold,
Whose virtues carry with it life and death;
To ask and have, command and be obey'd;
When looks breed love, with looks to gain the prize,
Such power attractive shines in princes' eyes.

Tamb. Why, say, Theridamas, wilt thou be a king?

Ther. Nay, though I praise it, I can live without it.

Tamb. What say my other friends? will you be kings?

Tech. I, if I could, with all my heart, my lord.

Tamb. Why, that's well said, Techelles: so would I:—
And so would you, my masters, would you not?

Usun. What, then, my lord?

Tamb. Why, then, Casane, shall we wish for aught
The world affords in greatest novelty,
And rest attemptless, faint, and destitute?
Methinks we should not. I am strongly mov'd,
That if I should desire the Persian crown,
I could attain it with a wondrous ease:
And would not all our soldiers soon consent,
If we should aim at such a dignity?

Ther. I know they would with our persuasions.

Tamb. Why, then, Theridamas, I'll first assay
To get the Persian kingdom to myself;
Then thou for Parthia; they for Scythia and Media;
And, if I prosper, all shall be as sure
As if the Turk, the Pope, Afric, and Greece,
Came creeping to us with their crowns a-piece.

Tech. Then shall we send to this triumphing king,
And bid him battle for his novel crown?

Usun. Nay, quickly, then, before his room be hot.

Tamb. 'Twill prove a pretty jest, in faith, my friends.

Ther. A jest to charge on twenty thousand men!
I judge the purchase more important far.

Tamb. Judge by thyself, Theridamas, not me;
For presently Techelles here shall haste
To bid him battle ere he pass too far,
And lose more labour than the gain will quite:
Then shalt thou see this Scythian Tamburlaine
Make but a jest to win the Persian crown.—
Techelles, take a thousand horse with thee,

And bid him turn him back to war with us,
 That only made him king to make us sport:
 We will not steal upon him cowardly,
 But give him warning and more warriors:
 Haste thee, Techelles; we will follow thee.

[Exit Techelles.]

What saith Theridamas?

Ther. Go on, for me.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE VI

Enter COSROE, MEANDER, ORTYGIUS, and MENAPHON, with Soldiers.

Cos. What means this devilish shepherd, to aspire
 With such a giantly presumption,
 To cast up hills against the face of heaven,
 And dare the force of angry Jupiter?
 But, as he thrust them underneath the hills,
 And press'd out fire from their burning jaws,
 So will I send this monstrous slave to hell,
 Where flames shall ever feed upon his soul.

Mean. Some powers divine, or else infernal, mix'd
 Their angry seeds at his conception;
 For he was never sprung of human race,
 Since with the spirit of his fearful pride,
 He dares so doubtlessly resolve of rule,
 And by profession be ambitious.

Orty. What god, or fiend, or spirit of the earth,
 Or monster turned to a manly shape,
 Or of what mould or mettle he be made,
 What star or fate soever govern him,
 Let us put on our meet encountering minds;
 And, in detesting such a devilish thief,
 In love of honour and defence of right,
 Be arm'd against the hate of such a foe,
 Whether from earth, or hell, or heaven he grow.

Cos. Nobly resolv'd, my good Ortygius;
 And since we all have suck'd one wholesome air,
 And with the same proportion of elements
 Resolve, I hope we are resembled,
 Vowing our loves to equal death and life.
 Let's cheer our soldiers to encounter him,
 That grievous image of ingratitude,

That fiery thirster after sovereignty,
 And burn him in the fury of that flame
 That none can quench but blood and empery.
 Resolve, my lords and loving soldiers, now
 To save your king and country from decay.
 Then strike up, drum; and all the stars that make
 The loathsome circle of my dated life,
 Direct my weapon to his barbarous heart,
 That thus opposeth him against the gods,
 And scorns the powers that govern Persia!

[Exeunt, drums sounding.]

SCENE VII

*Alarms of battle within. Then enter COSROE wounded, TAMBURLAINE, THERIDAMAS, TECHELLES, USUMCASANE,
 with others.*

Cos. Barbarous and bloody Tamburlaine,
 Thus to deprive me of my crown and life!—
 Treacherous and false Theridamas,
 Even at the morning of my happy state,
 Scarce being seated in my royal throne,
 To work my downfall and untimely end!
 An uncouth pain torments my grieved soul
 And death arrests the organ of my voice,
 Who, entering at the breach thy sword hath made,
 Sacks every vein and artier of my heart.—
 Bloody and insatiate Tamburlaine!

Tamb. The thirst of reign and sweetness of a crown,
 That caus'd the eldest son of heavenly Ops
 To thrust his doting father from his chair,
 And place himself in the empyreal heaven,
 Mov'd me to manage arms against thy state.
 What better precedent than mighty Jove?
 ✓ Nature, that fram'd us of four elements {
 Warring within our breasts for regiment,
 Doth teach us all to have aspiring minds:
 Our souls, whose faculties can comprehend
 The wondrous architecture of the world,
 And measure every wandering planet's course,
 Still climbing after knowledge infinite,
 And always moving as the restless spheres,
 Will us to wear ourselves, and never rest,

Until we reach the ripest fruit of all,
 That perfect bliss and sole felicity,
The sweet fruition of an earthly crown.

Ther. And that made me to join with Tamburlaine;

For he is gross and like the massy earth
 That moves not upwards, nor by princely deeds
 Doth mean to soar above the highest sort.

Tech. And that made us, the friends of Tamburlaine,
 To lift our swords against the Persian king.

Usurp. For as, when Jove did thrust old Saturn down,
 Neptune and Dis gain'd each of them a crown,
 So do we hope to reign in Asia,
 If Tamburlaine be plac'd in Persia.

Cos. The strangest men that ever nature made
 I know not how to take their tyrannies.
 My bloodless body waxeth chill and cold.
 And with my blood my life slides through my wound;
 My soul begins to take her flight to hell,
 And summons all my senses to depart:
 'The heat and moisture, which did feed each other,'
 For want of nourishment to feed them both,
 Are dry and cold; and now doth ghastly Death
 With greedy talents gripe my bleeding heart,
 And like a harpy tires on my life.—
 Theridamas and Tamburlaine, I die:
 And fearful vengeance light upon you both!

[Dies.—Tamburlaine takes Cosroe's crown, and puts it on his own head.]

• Tamb. Not all the curses which the Furies breathe
 Shall make me leave so rich a prize as this.
 Theridamas, Techelles, and the rest,
 Who think you now is king of Persia?

All. Tamburlaine! Tamburlaine!

Tamb. Though Mars himself, the angry god of arms,
 And all the earthly potentates conspire
 To dispossess me of this diadem,
 Yet will I wear it in despite of them,
 As great commander of this eastern world,
 If you but say that Tamburlaine shall reign.

All. Long live Tamburlaine, and reign in Asia!

Tamb. So; now it is more surer on my head
 Than if the gods had held a parliament,
 And all pronounc'd me king of Persia.

[Exeunt]

ACT III

SCENE I

Enter BAJAZETH, the KINGS OF FEZ, MOROCCO, and ARGIER, with others, in great pomp.

Baj. Great kings of Barbary, and my portly bassoes.

We hear the Tartars and the eastern thieves,
Under the conduct of one Tamburlaine,
Presume a bickering with your emperor,
And think to rouse us from our dreadful siege
Of the famous Grecian Constantinople.
You know our army is invincible;
As many circumcised Turks we have,
And warlike bands of Christians renied,
As hath the ocean or the Terrene sea
Small drops of water when the moon begins
To join in one her semicircled horns:
Yet would we not be brav'd with foreign power,
Nor raise our siege before the Grecians yield,
Or breathless lie before the city-walls

K. of Fez. Renowned emperor and mighty general,
What, if you sent the bassoes of your guard
To charge him to remain in Asia,
Or else to threaten death and deadly arms
As from the mouth of mighty Bajazeth?

Baj. Hie thee, my basso, fast to Persia;
Tell him thy lord, the Turkish emperor,
Dread lord of Afric, Europe, and Asia,
Great king and conqueror of Græcia,
The ocean, Terrene, and the Coal-black sea,
The high and highest monarch of the world,
Wills and commands, (for say not I entreat,)
Not once to set his foot in Africa,
Or spread his colours in Græcia,
Lest he incur the fury of my wrath:
Tell him I am content to take a truce,
Because I hear he bears a valiant mind:
But if, presuming on his silly power,
He be so mad to manage arms with me,
Then stay thou with him,—say, I bid thee so;
And if, before the sun have measur'd heaven

With triple circuit, thou regreet us not,
 We mean to take his morning's next arise
 For messenger he will not be reclaim'd,
 And mean to fetch thee in despite of him.

Baj. Most great and puissant monarch of the earth,
 Your basso will accomplish your behest,
 And shew your pleasure to the Persian,
 As fits the legate of the stately Turk.

[Exit.

K. of Arg. They say he is the king of Persia;
 But, if he dare attempt to stir your siege,
 'Twere requisite he should be ten times more,
 For all flesh quakes at your magnificence.

Baj. True, Argier; and trembles at my looks.

K. of Mor. The spring is hinder'd by your smothering host;
 For neither rain can fall upon the earth,
 Nor sun reflex his virtuous beams thereon,
 The ground is mantled with such multitudes.

Baj. All this is true as holy Mahomet;
 And all the trees are blasted with our breaths.

K. of Fez. What thinks your greatness best to be achiev'd
 In pursuit of the city's overthrow?

Baj. I will the captive pioners of Argier
 Cut off the water that by leaden pipes
 Runs to the city from the mountain Carnon;
 Two thousand horse shall forage up and down,
 That no relief or succour come by land;
 And all the sea my galleys countermand:
 Then shall our footmen lie within the trench,
 And with their cannons, mouth'd like Orcus' gulf,
 Batter the walls, and we will enter in;
 And thus the Grecians shall be conquered.

[Excunt.

SCENE II

Enter ZENOCRATE, AGYDAS, ANIPPE, with others.

Agyd. Madam Zenocrate, may I presume
 To know the cause of these unquiet fits
 That work such trouble to your wonted rest?
 'Tis more than pity such a heavenly face
 Should by heart's sorrow wax so wan and pale,
 When your offensive rape by Tamburlaine
 (Which of your whole displeasures should be most)

Hath seem'd to be digested long ago.

Zeno. Although it be digested long ago,
As his exceeding favours have deserv'd,
And might content the Queen of Heaven, as well
As it hath chang'd my first-conceiv'd disdain;
Yet since a farther passion feeds my thoughts
With ceaseless and disconsolate conceits.
Which dye my looks so lifeless as they are,
And might, if my extremes had full events,
Make me the ghastly counterfeit of death.

Agyd. Eternal heaven sooner be dissolv'd,
And all that pierceth Phœbus' silver eye,
Before such hap fall to Zenocrate!

Zeno. Ah, life and soul, still hover in his breast,
And leave my body senseless as the earth,
Or else unite us to his life and soul,
That I may live and die with Tamburlaine!

Enter, behind, TAMBURLAINE, with TECHELLES, and others.

Agyd. With Tamburlaine! Ah, fair Zenocrate,
Let not a man so vile and barbarous,
That holds you from your father in despite,
And keeps you from the honours of a queen,
(Being suppos'd his worthless concubine,)
Be honour'd with your love but for necessity!
So, now the mighty Soldan hears of you,
Your highness needs not doubt but in short time
He will, with Tamburlaine's destruction,
Redeem you from this deadly servitude.

Zeno. Leave to wound me with these words,
And speak of Tamburlaine as he deserves:
The entertainment we have had of him
Is far from villany or servitude,
And might in noble minds be counted princely.

Agyd. How can you fancy one that looks so fierce,
Only dispos'd to martial stratagems?
Who, when he shall embrace you in his arms,
Will tell how many thousand men he slew;
And, when you look for amorous discourse,
Will rattle forth his facts of war and blood,
Too harsh a subject for your dainty ears.

Zeno. As looks the sun through Nilus' flowing stream,

Or when the Morning holds him in her arms,
 So looks my lordly love, fair Tamburlaine;
 His talk much sweeter than the Muses' song
 They sung for honour 'gainst Pierides,
 Or when Minerva did with Neptune strive:
 And higher would I rear my estimate
 Than Juno, sister to the highest god,
 If I were match'd with mighty Tamburlaine.

Agyd. Yet be not so inconstant in your love,
 But let the young Arabian live in hope,
 After your rescue to enjoy his choice.
 You see, though first the king of Persia,
 Being a shepherd, seem'd to love you much,
 Now, in his majesty, he leaves those looks,
 Those words of favour, and those comfortings,
 And gives no more than common courtesies.

Zeno. Thence rise the tears that so disdain my cheeks,
 Fearing his love through my unworthiness.

*[Tamburlaine goes to her, and takes her away lovingly
 by the hand, looking wrathfully on Agydas, and says nothing. Exeunt all except Agydas.]*

Agyd. Betray'd by fortune and suspicious love,
 Threaten'd with frowning wrath and jealousy
 Surpris'd with fear of hideous revenge,
 I stand aghast; but most astonied
 To see his choler shut in secret thoughts,
 And wrapt in silence of his angry soul:
 Upon his brows was pourtray'd ugly death;
 And in his eyes the fury of his heart,
 That shone as comets, menacing revenge,
 And cast a pale complexion on his cheeks.
 As when the seaman sees the Hyades
 Gather an army of Cimmerian clouds,
 (Auster and Aquilon with winged steeds,
 All sweating, tilt about the watery heavens,
 With shivering spears enforcing thunder-claps,
 And from their shields strike flames of lightning.)
 All-fearful folds his sails, and sounds the main,
 Lifting his prayers to the heavens for aid
 Against the terror of the winds and waves;
 So fares Agydas for the late-felt frowns,
 That send a tempest to my daunted thoughts,
 And make my soul divine her overthrow.

Re-enter TECHELLES with a naked dagger, and USUMCASANE.

Tech. See you, Agydas, how the king salutes you!

He bids you prophesy what it imports.

Agyd. I prophesied before, and now I prove

The killing frowns of jealousy and love.

He needed not with words confirm my fear,

For words are vain where working tools present

The naked action of my threaten'd end:

It says, Agydas, thou shalt surely die,

And of extremities elect the least;

More honour and less pain it may procure,

To die by this resolved hand of thine

Than stay the torments he and heaven have sworn.

Then haste, Agydas, and prevent the plagues

Which thy prolonged fates may draw on thee:

Go wander free from fear of tyrant's rage,

Removed from the torments and the hell

Wherewith he may excruciate thy soul;

And let Agydas by Agydas die,

And with this stab slumber eternally. [Stabs himself.]

Tech. Usumcasane, see, how right the man

Hath hit the meaning of my lord and king!

Usum. Faith, and, Techelles, it was manly done

And, since he was so wise and honourable,

Let us afford him now the bearing hence,

And crave his triple-worthy burial.

Tech. Agreed, Casane; we will honour him.

[Exeunt, bearing out the body.]

SCENE III

Enter TAMBURLAINE, TECHELLES, USUMCASANE, THERIDAMAS, a Basso, ZENOCRATE, ANIPPE, with others.

Tamb. Basso, by this thy lord and master knows

I mean to meet him in Bithynia:

See, how he comes! tush, Turks are full of brags,

And menace more than they can well perform.

He meet me in the field, and fetch thee hence!

Alas, poor Turk! his fortune is too weak

T' encounter with the strength of Tamburlaine:

View well my camp, and speak indifferently;

Do not my captains and my soldiers look

As if they meant to conquer Africa?

Bas. Your men are valiant, but their number few,
And cannot terrify his mighty host:
My lord, the great commander of the world,
Besides fifteen contributory kings,
Hath now in arms ten thousand janizaries,
Mounted on lusty Mauritanian steeds,
Brought to the war by men of Tripoly;
Two hundred thousand footmen that have serv'd
In two set battles fought in Græcia;
And for the expediton of this war,
If he think good, can from his garrisons
Withdraw as many more to follow him.

Tech. The more he brings, the greater is the spoil;
For, when they perish by our warlike hands,
We mean to set our footmen on their steeds,
And rifle all those stately janizars.

Tamb. But will those kings accompany your lord?

Bas. Such as his highness please: but some must stay
To rule the provinces he late subdu'd.

Tamb. [To his Officers]. Then fight courageously: their crowns are yours,

This hand shall set them on your conquering heads
That made me emperor of Asia.

Usum. Let him bring millions infinite of men,
Unpeopling Western Africa and Greece,
Yet we assure us of the victory.

Ther. Even he, that in a trice vanquish'd two kings
More mighty than the Turkish emperor,
Shall rouse him out of Europe, and pursue
His scatter'd army till they yield or die.

Tamb. Well said, Theridamas! speak in that mood;
For will and shall best fitteth Tamburlaine,
Whose smiling stars give him assured hope
Of martial triumph ere he meets his foes.
I that am term'd the scourge and wrath of God,
The only fear and terror of the world,
Will first subdue the Turk, and then enlarge
Those Christian captives which you keep as slaves,
Burdening their bodies with your heavy chains,
And feeding them with thin and slender fare;
That naked row about the Terrene sea,
And, when they chance to rest or breathe a space,

Are punish'd with bastones so grievously
That they lie panting on the galleys' side,
And strive for life at every stroke they give.
These are the cruel pirates of Argier,
That damned train, the scum of Africa,
Inhabited with straggling runagates,
That make quick havoc of the Christian blood:
But, as I live, that town shall curse the time
That Tamburlaine set foot in Africa.

Enter BAJAZETH, Bassoos, the KINGS OF FEZ, MOROCCO, and ARGIER; ZABINA and EBBA.

Baj. Bassoos and janizaries of my guard,
Attend upon the person of your lord,
The greatest potentate of Africa.

Tamb. Techelles and the rest, prepare your swords;
I mean t' encounter with that Bajazeth.

Baj. Kings of Fez, Morocco, and Argier,
He calls me Bajazeth, whom you call lord!
Note the presumption of this Scythian slave!—
I tell thee, villain, those that lead my horse
Have to their names titles of dignity;
And dar'st thou bluntly call me Bajazeth?

Tamb. And know, thou Turk, that those which lead my horse
Shall lead thee captive thorough Africa;
And dar'st thou bluntly call me Tamburlaine?

Baj. By Mahomet my kinsman's sepulchre,
And by the holy Alcoran I swear,
He shall be made a chaste and lustless eunuch,
And in my sarell tend my concubines;
And all his captains, that thus stoutly stand,
Shall draw the chariot of my emperess,
Whom I have brought to see their overthrow!

Tamb. By this my sword that conquer'd Persia.
Thy fall shall make me famous through the world!
I will not tell thee how I'll handle thee,
But every common soldier of my camp
Shall smile to see thy miserable state.

K. of Fes. What means the mighty Turkish emperor,
To talk with one so base as Tamburlaine?

K. of Morocco. Ye Moors and valiant men of Barbary,
How can ye suffer these indignities?

K. of Arg. Leave words, and let them feel your lances' points,

Which glided through the bowels of the Greeks.

Baj. Well said, my stout contributory kings!

Your threefold army and my hugy host
Shall swallow up these base-born Persians.

Tech. Puissant, renown'd, and mighty Tamburlaine,
Why stay we thus prolonging of their lives?

Ther. I long to see those crowns won by our swords,
That we may rule as kings of Africa.

Usum. What coward would not fight for such a prize?

Tamb. Fight all courageously, and be you kings:

I speak it, and my words are oracles.

Baj. Zabina, mother of three braver boys

Than Hercules, that in his infancy
Did pash the jaws of serpents venomous
Whose hands are made to gripe a warlike lance,
Their shoulders broad for complete armour fit,
Their limbs more large and of a bigger size
Than all the brats y-sprung from Typhon's loins;
Who, when they come unto their father's age,
Will batter turrets with their manly fists;—
Sit here upon this royal chair of state,
And on thy head wear my imperial crown,
Until I bring this sturdy Tamburlaine
And all his captains bound in captive chains.

Zab. Such good success happen to Bajazeth!

Tamb. Zenocrate, the loveliest maid alive,
Fairer than rocks of pearl and precious stone,
The only paragon of Tamburlaine;
Whose eyes are brighter than the lamps of heaven,
And speech more pleasant than sweet harmony;
That with thy looks canst clear the darken'd sky,
And calm the rage of thundering Jupiter;
Sit down by her, adorned with my crown,
As if thou wert the empress of the world
Stir not, Zenocrate, until thou see
Me march victoriously with all my men,
Triumphing over him and these his kings,
Which I will bring as vassals to thy feet;
Till then, take thou my crown, vaunt of my worth,
And manage words with her, as we will arms.

Zeno. And may my love, the king of Persia,
Return with victory and free from wound!

Baj. Now shalt thou feel the force of Turkish arms,

Which lately made all Europe quake for fear.
 I have of Turks, Arabians, Moors, and Jews,
 Enough to cover all Bithynia:
 Let thousands die: their slaughter'd carcasses
 Shall serve for walls and bulwarks to the rest;
 And as the heads of Hydra, so my power,
 Subdu'd, shall stand as mighty as before:
 If they should yield their necks unto the sword,
 Thy soldiers' arms could not endure to strike
 So many blows as I have heads for them.
 Thou know'st not, foolish-hardy Tamburlaine,
 What 'tis to meet me in the open field,
 That leave no ground for thee to march upon.

Tamb. Our conquering swords shall marshal us the way
 We use to march upon the slaughter'd foe,
 Trampling their bowels with our horses' hoofs,
 Brave horses bred on the white Tartarian hills.
 My camp is like to Julius Cæsar's host,
 That never fought but had the victory;
 Nor in Pharsalia was there such hot war
 As these, my followers, willingly would have.
 Legions of spirits, fleeting in the air,
 Direct our bullets and our weapons' points,
 And make your strokes to wound the senseless light;
 And when she sees our bloody colours spread,
 Then Victory begins to take her flight,
 Resting herself upon my milk-white tent.—
 But come, my lords, to weapons let us fall:
 The field is ours, the Turk, his wife, and all.

[Exit with his followers.]

Baj. Come, kings and bassoes, let us glut our swords,
 That thirst to drink the feeble Persians' blood.

[Exit with his followers.]

Zab. Base concubine, must thou be plac'd by me
 That am the empress of the mighty Turk?

Zeno. Disdainful Turkess, and unreverend boss,
 Call'st thou me concubine, that am betroth'd
 Unto the great and mighty Tamburlaine?

Zab. To Tamburlaine, the great Tartarian thief!

Zeno. Thou wilt repent these lavish words of thine
 When thy great basso-master and thyself
 Must plead for mercy at his kingly feet,
 And sue to me to be your advocate.

Zab. And sue to thee! I tell thee, shameless girl,
Thou shalt be laundress to my waiting-maid.—
How lik'st thou her, Ebea? will she serve?

Ebea. Madam, she thinks perhaps she is too fine;
But I shall turn her into other weeds,
And make her dainty fingers fall to work.

Zeno. Hear'st thou, Anippe, how thy drudge doth talk?
And how my slave, her mistress, menaceth?
Both for their sauciness shall be employ'd
To dress the common soldiers' meat and drink;
For we will scorn they should come near ourselves.

Anip. Yet sometimes let your highness send for them
To do the work my chambermaid disdains.

[They sound to the battle within.]

Zeno. Ye gods and powers that govern Persia,
And made my lordly love her worthy king,
Now strengthen him against the Turkish Bajazeth,
And let his foes, like flocks of fearful roes
Pursu'd by hunters, fly his angry looks,
That I may see him issue conqueror!

Zab. Now, Mahomet, solicit God himself,
And make him rain down murdering shot from heaven,
To dash the Scythians' brains, and strike them dead,
That dare to manage arms with him
That offer'd jewels to thy sacred shrine
When first he warr'd against the Christians!

[They sound again to the battle within.]

Zeno. By this the Turks lie weltering in their blood,
And Tamburlaine is lord of Africa.

Zab. Thou art deceiv'd. I heard the trumpets sound
As when my emperor overthrew the Greeks,
And led them captive into Africa.
Straight will I use thee as thy pride deserves;
Prepare thyself to live and die my slave.

Zeno. If Mahomet should come from heaven and swear
My royal lord is slain or conquered,
Yet should he not persuade me otherwise
But that he lives and will be conqueror.

Re-enter BAJAZETH, pursued by TAMBURLAINE,

Tamb. Now, king of bassoes, who is conqueror?

Baj. Thou, by the fortune of this damned foil.

Tamb. Where are your stout contributory kings?

Re-enter TEHELLES, THERIDAMAS, and USUMCASANE.

Tech. We have their crowns; their bodies strow the field.

Tamb. Each man a crown! why, kingly fought, i'faith.

Deliver them into my treasury.

Zeno. Now let me offer to my gracious lord

His royal crown again so highly won.

Tamb. Nay, take the Turkish crown from her, Zenocrate,

And crown me emperor of Africa.

Zab. No, Tamburlaine; though now thou gat the best,

Thou shalt not yet be lord of Africa.

Ther. Give her the crown, Turkess, you were best.

[Takes it from her.]

Zab. Injurious villains, thieves, runagates,

How dare you thus abuse my majesty?

Ther. Here, madam, you are empress; she is none.

[Gives it to Zenocrate.]

Tamb. Not now, Theridamas; her time is past:

The pillars, that have bolster'd up those terms,

Are faln in clusters at my conquering feet.

Zab. Though he be prisoner, he may be ransom'd.

Tamb. Not all the world shall ransom Bajazeth.

Baj. Ah, fair Zabina! we have lost the field;

And never had the Turkish emperor

So great a foil by any foreign foe.

Now will the Christian miscreants be glad,

Ringing with joy their superstitious bells,

And making bonfires for my overthrow:

But, ere I die, those foul idolaters

Shall make me bonfires with their filthy bones;

For, though the glory of this day be lost,

Afric and Greece have garrisons enough

To make me sovereign of the earth again.

Tamb. Those walled garrisons will I subdue,

And write myself great lord of Africa:

So from the East unto the furthest West

Shall Tamburlaine extend his puissant arm.

The galleys and those pilling brigandines,

That yearly sail to the Venetian gulf,

And hover in the Straits for Christians' wreck,

Shall lie at anchor in the Isle Asant,

Until the Persian fleet and men-of-war,

Sailing along the oriental sea,

Have fetch'd about the Indian continent,
 Even from Persepolis to Mexico,
 And thence unto the Straits of Jubalter;
 Where they shall meet and join their force in one,
 Keeping in awe the Bay of Portingale,
 And all the ocean by the British shore;
 And by this means I'll win the world at last.

Baj. Yet set a ransom on me, Tamburlaine.

Tamb. What, think'st thou Tamburlaine esteems thy gold?
 I'll make the kings of India, ere I die,
 Offer their mines, to sue for peace, to me.
 And dig for treasure to appease my wrath.—
 Come, bind them both, and one lead in the Turk;
 The Turkess let my love's maid lead away.

[They bind them.]

Baj. Ah, villains, dare you touch my sacred arms?

O Mahomet! O sleepy Mahomet!

Zab. O cursed Mahomet, that mak'st us thus
 The slaves to Scythians rude and barbarous!

Tamb. Come, bring them in; and for this happy conquest
 Triumph, and solemnise a martial feast. [Exeunt.]

ACT IV

SCENE I

Enter the SOLDAN OF EGYPT, CAPOLIN, Lords, and a Messenger.

Sold. Awake, ye men of Memphis! hear the clang
 Of Scythian trumpets; hear the basilisks,
 That, roaring, shake Damascus' turrets down!
 The rogue of Volga holds Zenocrate,
 The Soldan's daughter, for his concubine,
 And, with a troop of thieves and vagabonds,
 Hath spread his colours to our high disgrace,
 While you, faint-hearted base Egyptians,
 Lie slumbering on the flowery banks of Nile,
 As crocodiles that unaffrighted rest
 While thundering cannons rattle on their skins.

Mess. Nay, mighty Soldan, did your greatness see
 The frowning looks of fiery Tamburlaine,
 That with his terror and imperious eyes

Commands the hearts of his associates,
It might amaze your royal majesty.

Sold. Villain, I tell thee, were that Tamburlaine
As monstrous as Gorgon prince of hell,
The Soldan would not start a foot from him.
But speak, what power hath he?

Mess. Mighty lord,
Three hundred thousand men in armour clad,
Upon their prancing steeds, disdainfully
With wanton paces trampling on the ground;
Five hundred thousand footmen threatening shot,
Shaking their swords, their spears, and iron bills,
Environing their standard round, that stood
As bristle-pointed as a thorny wood;
Their warlike engines and munition
Exceed the forces of their martial men.

Sold. Nay, could their numbers countervail the stars,
Or ever-drizzling drops of April showers,
Or wither'd leaves that autumn shaketh down,
Yet would the Soldan by his conquering power
So scatter and consume them in his rage,
That not a man should live to rue their fall.

Capo. So might your highness, had you time to sort
Your fighting men, and raise your royal host;
But Tamburlaine by expedition
Advantage takes of your unreadiness.

Sold. Let him take all th' advantages he can:
Were all the world conspir'd to fight for him,
Nay, were he devil, as he is no man,
Yet in revenge of fair Zenocrate,
Whom he detaineth in despite of us,
This arm should send him down to Erebus,
To shroud his shame in darkness of the night.

Mess. Pleaseth your mightiness to understand,
His resolution far exceedeth all.
The first day when he pitcheth down his tents,
White is their hue, and on his silver crest,
A snowy feather spangled-white he bears,
To signify the mildness of his mind,
That, satiate with spoil, refuseth blood:
But, when Aurora mounts the second time,
As red as scarlet is his furniture;
Then must his kindled wrath be quench'd with blood,

Not sparing any that can manage arms:
 But, if these threats move not submission,
 Black are his colours, black pavilion;
 His spear, his shield, his horse, his armour, plumes,
 And jetty feathers, menace death and hell;
 Without respect of sex, degree, or age,
 He razeth all his foes with fire and sword.
Sold. Merciless villain, peasant, ignorant
 Of lawful arms or martial discipline!
 Pillage and murder are his usual trades:
 The slave usurps the glorious name of war.
 See, Capolin, the fair Arabian king,
 That hath been disappointed by this slave
 Of my fair daughter and his princely love,
 May have fresh warning to go war with us,
 And be reveng'd for her disparagement. [Exeunt.

SCENE II

Enter TAMBURLAINE, TECHELLES, THERIDAMAS, USUM-
 CASANE, ZENOCRATE, ANIPPE, two MOORS drawing
 BAJAZETH in a cage, and ZABINA following him.

Tamb. Bring out my footstool.

[They take Bajazeth out of the cage.

Baj. Ye holy priests of heavenly Mahomet,
 That, sacrificing, slice and cut your flesh,
 Staining his altars with your purple blood,
 Make heaven to frown, and every fixed star
 To suck up poison from the moorish fens,
 And pour it in this glorious tyrant's throat!

Tamb. The chiefest god, first mover of that sphere
 Enchas'd with thousands ever-shining lamps,
 Will sooner burn the glorious frame of heaven
 Than it should so conspire my overthrow.
 But, villain, thou that wishest this to me,
 Fall prostrate on the low disdainful earth,
 And be the footstool of great Tamburlaine,
 That I may rise into my roval throne.

Baj. First shalt thou rip my bowels with thy sword,
 And sacrifice my heart to death and hell,
 Before I yield to such a slavery.

Tamb. Base villain, vassal, slave to Tamburlaine,
 Unworthy to embrace or touch the ground

That bears the honour of my royal weight;
Stoop, villain, stoop! stoop; for so he bids
That may command thee piecemeal to be torn,
Or scatter'd like the lofty cedar-trees
Struck with the voice of thundering Jupiter.

Baj. Then, as I look down to the damned fiends,
Fiends, look on me! and thou, dread god of hell,
With ebon sceptre strike this hateful earth,
And make it swallow both of us at once!

[Tamburlaine gets up on him into his chair.]

Tamb. Now clear the triple region of the air,
And let the Majesty of Heaven behold
Their scourge and terror tread on emperors.
Smile, stars that reign'd at my nativity,
And dim the brightness of your neighbour lamps;
Disdain to borrow light of Cynthia!
For I, the chiefest lamp of all the earth,
First rising in the east with mild aspect,
But fixed now in the meridian line,
Will send up fire to your turning spheres,
And cause the sun to borrow light of you.
My sword struck fire from his coat of steel,
Even in Bithynia, when I took this Turk;
As when a fiery exhalation,
Wrapt in the bowels of a freezing cloud,
Fighting for passage, make[s] the welkin crack,
And casts a flash of lightning to the earth:
But, ere I march to wealthy Persia,
Or leave Damascus and th' Egyptian fields,
As was the fame of Clymene's brain-sick son
That almost brent the axle-tree of heaven,
So shall our swords, our lances, and our shot
Fill all the air with fiery meteors;
Then, when the sky shall wax as red as blood,
It shall be said I made it red myself,
To make me think of naught but blood and war.

Zab. Unworthy king, that by thy cruelty
Unlawfully usurp'st the Persian seat,
Dar'st thou, that never saw an emperor
Before thou met my husband in the field,
Being thy captive, thus abuse his state,
Keeping his kingly body in a cage,
That roofs of gold and sun-bright palaces

Should have prepar'd to entertain his grace?
 And treading him beneath thy loathsome feet,
 Whose feet the kings of Africa have kiss'd?

Tech. You must devise some torment worse, my lord,
 To make these captives rein their lavish tongues.

Tamb. Zenocrate, look better to your slave.

Zeno. She is my handmaid's slave, and she shall look
 That these abuses flow not from her tongue.—
 Chide her, Anippe.

Anip. Let these be warnings, then, for you, my slave,
 How you abuse the person of the king;
 Or else I swear to have you whipt stark nak'd.

Baj. Great Tamburlaine, great in my overthrow,
 Ambitious pride shall make thee fall as low,
 For treading on the back of Bajazeth,
 That should be horsed on four mighty kings.

Tamb. Thy names, and titles, and thy dignities
 Are fled from Bajazeth, and remain with me,
 That will maintain it 'gainst a world of kings.—
 Put him in again. [They put him into the cage.]

Baj. Is this a place for mighty Bajazeth?
 Confusion light on him that helps thee thus.

Tamb. There, while he lives, shall Bajazeth be kept;
 And, where I go, be thus in triumph drawn;
 And thou, his wife, shall feed him with the scraps
 My servitors shall bring thee from my board,
 For he that gives him other food than this,
 Shall sit by him, and starve to death himself:
 This is my mind, and I will have it so.
 Not all the kings and emperors of the earth,
 If they would lay their crowns before my feet,
 Shall ransom him, or take him from his cage:
 The ages that shall talk of Tamburlaine,
 Even from this day to Plato's wondrous year,
 Shall talk how I have handled Bajazeth:
 These Moors, that drew him from Bithynia
 To fair Damascus, where we now remain,
 Shall lead him with us wheresoe'er we go.—
 Techelles, and my loving followers,
 Now may we see Damascus' lofty towers,
 Like to the shadows of Pyramides
 That with their beauties grace the Memphian fields.
 The golden stature of their feather'd bird,

That spreads her wings upon the city walls,
Shall not defend it from our battering shot:
The townsmen mask in silk and cloth of gold,
And every house is as a treasury;
The men, the treasure, and the town are ours.

Ther. Your tents of white now pitch'd before the gates,
And gentle flags of amity display'd,
I doubt not but the governor will yield,
Offering Damascus to your majesty.

Tamb. So shall he have his life, and all the rest:
But, if he stay until the bloody flag
Be once advanc'd on my vermilion tent,
He dies, and those that kept us out so long;
And, when they see me march in black array,
With mournful streamers hanging down their heads
Were in that city all the world contain'd,
Not one should scape, but perish by our swords.

Zeno. Yet would you have some pity for my sake,
Because it is my country and my father's.

Tamb. Not for the world, Zenocrate, if I have sworn.—
Come; bring in the Turk.

[Exeunt]

SCENE III

Enter SOLDAN, KING OF ARABIA, CAPOLIN, and Soldiers, with streaming colours.

Sold. Methinks we march as Meleager did,
Environed with brave Argolian knights,
To chase the savage Calydonian boar,
Or Cephalus, with lusty Theban youths,
Against the wolf that angry Themis sent
To waste and spoil the sweet Aonian fields.
A monster of five hundred thousand heads,
Compact of rapine, piracy, and spoil,
The scum of men, the hate and scourge of God,
Raves in Egyptia, and annoyeth us:
My lord, it is the bloody Tamburlaine,
A sturdy felon, and a base-bred thief,
By murder raised to the Persian crown,
That dare control us in our territories.
To tame the pride of this presumptuous beast,
Join your Arabians with the Soldan's power;
Let us unite our royal bands in one,

And hasten to remove Damascus' siege.
It is a blemish to the majesty
And high estate of mighty emperors,
That such a base usurping vagabond
Should brave a king, or wear a princely crown.

K. of Ar. Renowned Soldan, have you lately heard
The overthrow of mighty Bajazeth
About the confines of Bithynia?
The slavery wherewith he persecutes
The noble Turk and his great emperess?

Sold. I have, and sorrow for his bad success;
But, noble lord of great Arabia,
Be so persuaded that the Soldan is
No more dismay'd with tidings of his fall,
Than in the haven when the pilot stands,
And views a stranger's ship rent in the winds,
And shivered against a craggy rock:
Yet in compassion to his wretched state,
A sacred vow to heaven and him I make,
Confirming it with Ibis' holy name,
That Tamburlaine shall rue the day, the hour,
Wherein he wrought such ignominious wrong
Unto the hallow'd person of a prince,
Or kept the fair Zenocrate so long,
As concubine, I fear, to feed his lust.

K. of Ar. Let grief and fury hasten on revenge;
Let Tamburlaine for his offences feel
Such plagues as heaven and we can pour on him:
I long to break my spear upon his crest,
And prove the weight of his victorious arm;
For fame, I fear, hath been too prodigal
In sounding through the world his partial praise.

Sold. Capolin, hast thou survey'd our powers?

Capol. Great emperors of Egypt and Arabia,
The number of your hosts united is,
A hundred and fifty thousand horse,
Two hundred thousand foot, brave men-at-arms,
Courageous and full of hardiness,
As frolic as the hunters in the chase
Of savage beasts amid the desert woods.

K. of Ar. My mind presageth fortunate success;
And, Tamburlaine, my spirit doth foresee
The utter ruin of thy men and thee.

Sold. Then rear your standards; let your sounding drums
Direct our soldiers to Damascus' walls.—

Now, Tamburlaine, the mighty Soldan comes,
And leads with him the great Arabian king,
To dim thy baseness and obscurity,
Famous for nothing but for theft and spoil;
To raze and scatter thy inglorious crew
Of Scythians and slavish Persians.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE IV

*A banquet set out; and to it come TAMBURLAINE all in scarlet,
ZENOCRATE, THERIDAMAS, TECHELLES, USUMCASANE,
BAJAZETH drawn in his cage, ZABINA, and others.*

Tamb. Now hang our bloody colours by Damascus,
Reflexing hues of blood upon their heads,
While they walk quivering on their city-walls,
Half-dead for fear before they feel my wrath.
Then let us freely banquet, and carouse
Full bowls of wine unto the god of war,
That means to fill your helmets full of gold,
And make Damascus' spoils as rich to you
As was to Jason Colchos' golden fleece.—
And now, Bajazeth, hast thou any stomach?

Baj. Ay, such a stomach, cruel Tamburlaine, as I could willingly feed upon thy blood-raw heart.

Tamb. Nay, thine own is easier to come by: pluck out that;
and 'twill serve thee and thy wife.—Well, Zenocrate,
Techelles, and the rest, fall to your victuals.

Baj. Fall to, and never may your meat digest!—
Ye Furies, that can mask invisible,
Dive to the bottom of Avernus' pool,
And in your hands bring hellish poison up,
And squeeze it in the cup of Tamburlaine!
Or, winged snakes of Lerna, cast your stings,
And leave your venoms in this tyrant's dish?

Zab. And may this banquet prove as ominous
As Progne's to th' adulterous Thracian king
That fed upon the substance of his child!

Zeno. My lord, how can you suffer these Outrageous curses by these slaves of yours?

Tamb. To let them see, divine Zenocrate,
I glory in the curses of my foes,

Having the power from the empyreal heaven

To turn them all upon their proper heads.

Tech. I pray you, give them leave, madam; this speech is a goodly refreshing for them.

Ther. But, if his highness would let them be fed, it would do them more good.

Tamb. Sirrah, why fall you not to? are you so daintily brought up, you cannot eat your own flesh?

Baj. First, legions of devils shall tear thee in pieces.

Usum. Villain, knowest thou to whom thou speakest?

Tamb. O, let him alone.—Here; eat, sir; take it from my sword's point, or I'll thrust it to thy heart.

[Bajazeth takes the food, and stamps upon it.]

Ther. He stamps it under his feet, my lord.

Tamb. Take it up, villain, and eat it; or I will make thee slice the brawns of thy arms into carbonadoes and eat them.

Usum. Nay, 'twere better he killed his wife, and then she shall be sure not to be starved, and he be provided for a month's victual beforehand.

Tamb. Here is my dagger: despatch her while she is fat; for, if she live but a while longer, she will fall into a consumption with fretting, and then she will not be worth the eating.

Ther. Dost thou think that Mahomet will suffer this?

Tech. 'Tis like he will, when he cannot let it.

Tamb. Go to; fall to your meat. What, not a bit!—Belike he hath not been watered to-day: give him some drink.

[They give Bajazeth water to drink, and he flings it on the ground.]

Fast, and welcome, sir, while hunger make you eat.

—How now, Zenocrate! doth not the Turk and his wife make a goodly show at a banquet?

Zeno. Yes, my lord.

Ther. Methinks 'tis a great deal better than a consort of music.

Tamb. Yet music would do well to cheer up Zenocrate.

Pray thee, tell why art thou so sad? if thou wilt have a song, the Turk shall strain his voice: but why is it?

Zeno. My lord, to see my father's town besieg'd,

The country wasted, where myself was born,

How can it but afflict my very soul?

If any love remain in you, my lord,
Or if my love unto your majesty
May merit favour at your highness' hands,
Then raise your siege from fair Damascus' walls,
And with my father take a friendly truce.

Tamb. Zenocrate, were Egypt Jove's own land,
Yet would I with my sword make Jove to stoop.
I will confute those blind geographers
That make a triple region in the world,
Excluding regions which I mean to trace,
And with this pen reduce them to a map,
Calling the provinces, cities, and towns,
After my name and thine, Zenocrate:
Here at Damascus will I make the point
That shall begin the perpendicular:
And wouldst thou have me buy thy father's love
With such a loss? tell me, Zenocrate.

Zeno. Honour still wait on happy Tamburlaine!
Yet give me leave to plead for him, my lord.

Tamb. Content thyself: his person shall be safe,
And all the friends of fair Zenocrate,
If with their lives they will be pleas'd to yield,
Or may be forced to make me emperor;
For Egypt and Arabia must be mine.—

Feed, you slave; thou mayst think thyself happy to be fed from my trencher.

Baj. My empty stomach, full of idle heat,
Drawn bloody humours from my feeble parts,
Preserving life by hastening cruel death.
My veins are pale; my sinews hard and dry;
My joints benumb'd; unless I eat, I die.

Zab. Eat, Bajazeth; let us live in spite of them, looking some happy power will pity and enlarge us.

Tamb. Here, Turk; wilt thou have a clean trencher?

Baj. Ay, tyrant, and more meat.

Tamb. Soft, sir! you must be dieted; too much eating will make you surfeit.

Ther. So it would, my lord, 'specially having so small a walk and so little exercise.

[A second course is brought in of crowns.

Tamb. Theridamas, Techelles, and Casane, here are the cates you desire to finger, are they not?

Ther. Ay, my lord: but none save kings must feed with these

Tech. 'Tis enough for us to see them, and for Tamburlaine only to enjoy them.

Tamb. Well; here is now to the Soldan of Egypt, the King of Arabia, and the Governor of Damascus. Now, take these three crowns, and pledge me, my contributory kings. I crown you here, Theridamas, king of Argier; Techelles, king of Fez; and Usumcasane, king of Morocco.—How say you to this, Turk? these are not your contributory kings.

Baj. Nor shall they long be thine, I warrant them.

Tamb. Kings of Argier, Morocco, and of Fez,
 You that have marched with happy Tamburlaine
 As far as from the frozen plage of heaven
 Unto the watery Morning's ruddy bower,
 And thence by land unto the torrid zone,
 Deserve these titles I endow you with
 By valour and by magnanimity.
 Your births shall be no blemish to your fame;
 For virtue is the fount whence honour springs,
 And they are worthy she investeth kings.

Ther. And, since your highness hath so well vouchsaf'd,
 If we deserve them not with higher meeds
 Than erst our states and actions have retained,
 Take them away again, and make us slaves.

Tamb. Well said, Theridamas: when holy Fates
 Shall stablish me in strong Ægyptia,
 We mean to travel to th' antarctic pole,
 Conquering the people underneath our feet,
 And be renown'd as never emperors were.—
 Zenocrate, I will not crown thee yet,
 Until with greater honours I be grac'd.

[Exeunt.]

ACT V

SCENE I

Enter the GOVERNOR OF DAMASCUS with three or four Citizens, and four Virgins with branches of laurel in their hands.

Gov. Still doth this man, or rather god of war,
 Batter our walls and beat our turrets down;
 And to resist with longer stubbornness,
 Or hope of rescue from the Soldan's power,
 Were but to bring our wilful overthrow,

And make us desperate of our threatened lives.
 We see his tents have now been altered
 With terrors to the last and cruel'st hue;
 His coal-black colours, everywhere advanc'd,
 Threaten our city with a general spoil;
 And, if we should with common rites of arms
 Offer our safeties to his clemency,
 I fear the custom proper to his sword,
 Which he observes as parcel of his fame,
 Intending so to terrify the world,
 By any innovation or remorse
 Will never be dispens'd with till our deaths.
 Therefore, for these our harmless virgins' sakes,
 Whose honours and whose lives rely on him,
 Let us have hope that their unspotted prayers,
 Their blubber'd cheeks, and hearty humble moans
 Will melt his fury into some remorse,
 And use us like a loving conqueror.

First Virg. If humble suits or imprecations
 (Utter'd with tears of wretchedness and blood
 Shed from the heads and hearts of all our sex,
 Some made your wives, and some your children,)
 Might have entreated your obdurate breasts
 To entertain some care of our securities
 Whilst only danger beat upon our walls,
 These more than dangerous warrants of our death
 Had never been erected as they be,
 Nor you depend on such weak helps as we.

Gov. Well, lovely virgins, think our country's care,
 Our love of honour, loath to be enthrall'd
 To foreign powers and rough imperious yokes,
 Would not with too much cowardice or fear,
 Before all hope of rescue were denied,
 Submit yourselves and us to servitude.
 Therefore, in that your safeties and our own,
 Your honours, liberties, and lives were weigh'd
 In equal care and balance with our own,
 Endure as we the malice of our stars,
 The wrath of Tamburlaine and power of wars;
 Or be the means the overweighing heavens
 Have kept to qualify these hot extremes,
 And bring us pardon in your cheerful looks.

Sec. Virg. Then here, before the Majesty of Heaven

And holy patrons of Ægyptia,
 With knees and hearts submissive we entreat
 Grace to our words and pity to our looks,
 That this device may prove propitious,
 And through the eyes and ears of Tamburlaine
 Convey events of mercy to his heart;
 Grant that these signs of victory we yield
 May bind the temples of his conquering head,
 To hide the folded furrows of his brows,
 And shadow his displeased countenance
 With happy looks of ruth and lenity.
 Leave us, my lord, and loving countrymen:
 What simple virgins may persuade, we will.
Gov. Farewell, sweet virgins, on whose safe return
 Depends our city, liberty, and lives.

[Exeunt all except the Virgins.]

Enter TAMBURLAINE, all in black and very melancholy, TECHELLES, THERIDAMAS, USUMCASANE, with others.

Tamb. What, are the turtles fray'd out of their nests?
 Alas, poor fools, must you be first shall feel
 The sworn destruction of Damascus?
 They knew my custom; could they not as well
 Have sent ye out when first my milk-white flags,
 Through which sweet Mercy threw her gentle beams,
 Reflexed them on their disdainful eyes,
 As now when fury and incensed hate
 Flings slaughtering terror from my coal-black tents,
 And tells for truth submission comes too late?
First Vir. Most happy king and emperor of the earth,
 Image of honour and nobility,
 For whom the powers divine have made the world,
 And on whose throne the holy Graces sit;
 In whose sweet person is compris'd the sum
 Of Nature's skill and heavenly majesty;
 Pity our plights! O, pity poor Damascus!
 Pity old age, within whose silver hairs
 Honour and reverence evermore have reign'd!
 Pity the marriage-bed, where many a lord,
 In prime and glory of his loving joy,
 Embraceth now with tears of ruth and blood
 The jealous body of his fearful wife,
 Whose cheeks and hearts, so punish'd with conceit,

To think thy puissant never-stayed arm
 Will part their bodies, and prevent their souls
 From heavens of comfort yet their age might bear,
 Now wax all pale and wither'd to the death,
 As well for grief our ruthless governor
 Hath thus refus'd the mercy of thy hand,
 (Whose sceptre angels kiss and Furies dread,)
 As for their liberties, their loves, or lives!
 O, then, for these, and such as we ourselves,
 For us, for infants, and for all our bloods,
 That never nourish'd thought against thy rule,
 Pity, O pity, sacred emperor,
 The prostrate service of this wretched town;
 And take in sign thereof this gilded wreath,
 Whereto each man of rule hath given his hand,
 And wish'd, as worthy subjects, happy means
 To be investors of thy royal brows
 Even with the true Egyptian diadem!

Tamb. Virgins, in vain you labour to prevent
 That which mine honour swears shall be perform'd.
 Behold my sword; what see you at the point?

First Vir. Nothing but fear and fatal steel, my lord.

Tamb. Your fearful minds are thick and misty, then,
 For there sits death; there sits imperious Death,
 Keeping his circuit by the slicing edge.
 But I am pleas'd you shall not see him there;
 He now is seated on my horsemen's spears,
 And on their points his fleshless body feeds.—
 Techelles, straight go charge a few of them
 To charge these dames, and shew my servant Death,
 Sitting in scarlet on their armed spears.

Virgins. O, pity us!

Tamb. Away with them, I say, and shew them Death!

[The Virgins are taken out by Techelles and others.]

I will not spare these proud Egyptians,
 Nor change my martial observations
 For all the wealth of Gihon's golden waves,
 Or for the love of Venus, would she leave
 The angry god of arms and lie with me.
 They have refus'd the offer of their lives,
 And know my customs are as peremptory
 As wrathful planets, death, or destiny.

Re-enter TECELLES.

What, have your horsemen shown the virgins Death?

Tech. They have, my lord, and on Damascus' walls
Have hoisted up their slaughtered carcasses.

Tamb. A sight as baneful to their souls, I think,
As are Thessalian drugs or mithridate:
But go, my lords, put the rest to the sword.

[Exeunt all except Tamburlaine.]

Ah, fair Zenocrate!—divine Zenocrate!

Fair is too foul an epithet for thee,—

That in thy passion for thy country's love,
And fear to see thy kingly father's harm,
With hair dishevell'd wip'st thy watery cheeks;

And, like to Flora in her morning's pride,
Shaking her silver tresses in the air,

Rain'st on the earth resolved pearl in showers,

And sprinklest sapphires on thy shining face,

Where Beauty, mother to the Muses, sits,

And comments volumes with her ivory pen,

Taking instructions from thy flowing eyes;

Eyes, when that Ebena steps to heaven,

In silence of thy solemn evening's walk,

Making the mantle of the richest night,

The moon, the planets, and the meteors, light;

There angels in their crystal armours fight

A doubtful battle with my tempted thoughts

For Egypt's freedom and the Soldan's life,

His life that so consumes Zenocrate;

Whose sorrows lay more siege unto my soul

Than all my army to Damascus' walls;

And neither Persia's sovereign nor the Turk

Troubled my senses with conceit of foil

So much by much as doth Zenocrate.

What is beauty, saith my sufferings, then?

If all the pens that ever poets held

Had fed the feeling of their masters' thoughts,

And every sweetness that inspir'd their hearts,

Their minds, and muses on admired themes;

If all the heavenly quintessence they still

From their immortal flowers of poesy,

Wherein, as in a mirror, we perceive

The highest reaches of a human wit;

If these had made one poem's period,
 And all combin'd in beauty's worthiness,
 Yet should there hover in their restless heads
 One thought, one grace, one wonder, at the least,
 Which into words no virtue can digest.
 But how unseemly is it for my sex,
 My discipline of arms and chivalry,
 My nature, and the terror of my name,
 To harbour thoughts effeminate and faint!
 Save only that in beauty's just applause,
 With whose instinct the soul of man is touched;
 And every warrior that is rapt with love
 Of fame, of valour, and of victory,
 Must needs have beauty beat on his conceits:
 I thus conceiving, and subduing both,
 That which hath stoop'd the chiefest of the gods,
 Even from the fiery-spangled veil of heaven,
 To feel the lovely warmth of shepherds' flames,
 And mask in cottages of strowed reeds,
 Shall give the world to note, for all my birth,
 That virtue solely is the sum of glory,
 And fashions men with true nobility.—
 Who's within there?

Enter Attendants.

Hath Bajazeth been fed to-day?

Attend. Ay, my lord.

Tamb. Bring him forth; and let us know if the town be ransacked. [Exeunt Attendants.]

Enter TECHELLES, THERIDAMAS, USUMCASANE, and others.

Tech. The town is ours, my lord, and fresh supply
 Of conquest and of spoil is offer'd us.

Tamb. That's well, Techelles. What's the news?

Tech. The Soldan and the Arabian king together
 March on us with such eager violence
 As if there were no way but one with us.

Tamb. No more there is not, I warrant thee, Techelles.

Attendants bring in BAJAZETH in his cage, followed by ZABINA.
Exeunt Attendants.

Ther. We know the victory is ours, my lord;
 But let us save the reverend Soldan's life
 For fair Zenocrate that so laments his state.

Tamb. That will we chiefly see unto, Theridamas,

For sweet Zenocrate, whose worthiness
 Deserves a conquest over every heart.—
 And now, my footstool, if I lose the field,
 You hope of liberty and restitution?—
 Here let him stay, my masters, from the tents,
 Till we have made us ready for the field.—
 Pray for us, Bajazeth; we are going.

[Exeunt all except Bajazeth and Zabina.]

Baj. Go, never to return with victory!

Millions of men encompass thee about,
 And gore thy body with as many wounds!
 Sharp forked arrows light upon thy horse!
 Furies from the black Cocytus' lake,
 Break up the earth, and with their fire-brands
 Enforce thee run upon the baneful pikes!
 Vollies of shot pierce through thy charmed skin,
 And every bullet dipt in poison'd drugs!
 Or roaring cannons sever all thy joints,
 Making thee mount as high as eagles soar!

Zab. Let all the swords and lances in the field
 Stick in his breast as in their proper rooms!
 At every pore let blood come dropping forth,
 That lingering pains may massacre his heart,
 And madness send his damned soul to hell!

Baj. Ah, fair Zabina! we may curse his power,
 The heavens may frown, the earth for anger quake;
 But such a star hath influence in his sword
 As rules the skies and countermands the gods
 More than Cimmerian Styx or Destiny:
 And then shall we in this detested guise,
 With shame, with hunger, and with horror stay,
 Gripping our bowels with retorqued thoughts,
 And have no hope to end our ecstasies.

Zab. Then is there left no Mahomet, no God,
 No fiend, no fortune, nor no hope of end
 To our infamous, monstrous slaveries.
 Gape, earth, and let the fiends infernal view
 A hell as hopeless and as full of fear
 As are the blasted banks of Erebus,
 Where shaking ghosts with ever-howling groans
 Hover about the ugly ferryman,
 To get a passage to Elysium!
 Why should we live?—O, wretches, beggars, slaves!—

Why live we, Bajazeth, and build up nests
 So high within the region of the air,
 By living long in this oppression,
 That all the world will see and laugh to scorn
 The former triumphs of our mightiness
 In this obscure infernal servitude?

Baj. O life, more loathsome to my vexed thoughts
 Than noisome parbreak of the Stygian snakes,
 Which fills the nooks of hell with standing air,
 Infecting all the ghosts with cureless griefs!
 O dreary engines of my loathed sight,
 That see my crown, my honour, and my name
 Thrust under yoke and thraldom of a thief,
 Why feed ye still on day's accursed beams,
 And sink not quite into my tortur'd soul?
 You see my wife, my queen, and emperess,
 Brought up and propped by the hand of Fame,
 Queen of fifteen contributory queens,
 Now thrown to rooms of black abjection,
 Smeared with blots of basest drudgery,
 And villainess to shame, disdain, and misery.
 Accursed Bajazeth, whose words of ruth,
 That would with pity cheer Zabina's heart,
 And make our souls resolve in ceaseless tears,
 Sharp hunger bites upon and gripes the root
 From whence the issue of my thoughts do break!
 O poor Zabina! O my queen, my queen!
 Fetch me some water for my burning breast,
 To cool and comfort me with longer date,
 That, in the shorten'd sequel of my life,
 I may pour forth my soul into thine arms
 With words of love, whose moaning intercourse
 Hath hitherto been stay'd with wrath and hate
 Of our expressless bann'd inflictions.

Zab. Sweet Bajazeth, I will prolong thy life
 As long as any blood or spark of breath
 Can quench or cool the torments of my grief.

[Exit.

Baj. Now, Bajazeth, abridge thy baneful days,
 And beat the brains out of thy conquer'd head,
 Since other means are all forbidden me,
 That may be ministers of my decay.
 O highest lamp of ever-living Jove,
 Accursed day, infected with my griefs,

Hide now thy stained face in endless night,
 And shut the windows of the lightsome heavens!
 Let ugly Darkness with her rusty coach,
 Engirt with tempests, wrapt in pitchy clouds,
 Smother the earth with never-fading mists,
 And let her horses from their nostrils breathe
 Rebellious winds and dreadful thunder-claps,
 That in this terror Tamburlaine may live,
 And my pin'd soul, resolv'd in liquid air,
 May still excruciate his tormented thoughts!
 Then let the stony dart of senseless cold
 Pierce through the centre of my wither'd heart,
 And make a passage for my loathed life!

[He brains himself against the cage]

Re-enter ZABINA.

Zab. What do mine eyes behold? my husband dead!
 His skull all riven in twain! his brains dash'd out,
 The brains of Bajazeth, my lord and sovereign!
 O Bajazeth, my husband and my lord!
 O Bajazeth! O Turk! O emperor!

Give him his liquor? not I. Bring milk and fire, and my blood I bring him again.—Tear me in pieces—give me
 the sword with a ball of wild-fire upon it.—Down with him!
 down with him!—Go to my child; away, away, away! ah, save that infant! save him. save him!—I, even I, speak to her.—The sun was down—streamers white, red, black.—
 Here, here, here!—Fling the meat in his face—Tambur-laine, Tamburlaine!—Let the soldiers be buried.—Hell.
 death, Tamburlaine, hell!—Make ready my coach, my chair, my jewels.—I come, I come, I come!

[She runs against the cage, and brains herself.]

Enter ZENOCRATE with ANIPPE.

Zeno. Wretched Zenocrate! that liv'st to see
 Damascus' walls dy'd with Egyptians' blood,
 Thy father's subjects and thy countrymen;
 The streets strow'd with dissever'd joints of men,
 And wounded bodies gasping yet for life;
 But most accurs'd, to see the sun-bright troop
 Of heavenly virgins and unspotted maids
 (Whose looks might make the angry god of arms
 To break his sword and mildly treat of love)

On horsemen's lances to be hoisted up,
 And guiltlessly endure a cruel death;
 For every fell and stout Tartarian steed,
 That stamp'd on others with their thundering hoofs,
 When all their riders charg'd their quivering spears,
 Began to check the ground and rein themselves,
 Gazing upon the beauty of their looks.
 Ah, Tamburlaine, wert thou the cause of this,
 That term'st Zenocrate thy dearest love?
 Whose lives were dearer to Zenocrate
 Than her own life, or aught save thine own love.
 But see, another bloody spectacle!
 Ah, wretched eyes, the enemies of my heart,
 How are ye glutted with these grievous objects,
 And tell my soul more tales of bleeding ruth!—
 See, see, Anippe, if they breathe or no.

Anip. No breath, nor sense, nor motion, in them both:
 Ah, madam, this their slavery hath enforc'd,
 And ruthless cruelty of Tamburlaine!

Zeno. Earth, cast up fountains from thy entrails,
 And wet thy cheeks for their untimely deaths;
 Shake with their weight in sign of fear and grief!
 Blush, heaven, that gave them honour at their birth,
 And let them die a death so barbarous!
 Those that are proud of fickle empery
 And place their chiefest good in earthly pomp,
 Behold the Turk and his great emperess!
 Ah, Tamburlaine my love, sweet Tamburlaine,
 That fight'st for sceptres and for slippery crowns,
 Behold the Turk and his great emperess!
 Thou that, in conduct of thy happy stars,
 Sleep'st every night with conquest on thy brows,
 And yet wouldst shun the wavering turns of war,
 In fear and feeling of the like distress,
 Behold the Turk and his great emperess!
 Ah, mighty Jove and holy Mahomet,
 Pardon my love! O, pardon his contempt
 Of earthly fortune and respect of pity;
 And let not conquest, ruthlessly pursu'd,
 Be equally against his life incens'd
 In this great Turk and hapless emperess!
 And pardon me that was not mov'd with ruth
 To see them live so long in misery!—

Ah, what may chance to thee, Zenocrate?

Amf. Madam, content yourself, and be resolv'd,
Your love hath Fortune so at his command,
That she shall stay, and turn her wheel no more,
As long as life maintains his mighty arm
That fights for honour to adorn your head.

Enter PHILEMUS.

Zeno. What other heavy news now brings Philemus?

Phil. Madam, your father, and the Arabian king,
The first affecter of your excellence,
Come now, as Turnus 'gainst Æneas did,
Armed with lance into the Ægyptian fields,
Ready for battle 'gainst my lord the king.

Zeno. Now shame and duty, love and fear present
A thousand sorrows to my martyr'd soul,
Whom should I wish the fatal victory,
When my poor pleasures are divided thus,
And rack'd by duty from my cursed heart?
My father and my first-betrothed love
Must fight against my life and present love;
Wherein the change I use condemns my faith,
And makes my deeds infamous through the world:
But, as the gods, to end the Trojans' toil,
Prevented Turnus of Lavinia,
And fatally enrich'd Æneas' love,
So, for a final issue to my griefs,
To pacify my country and my love,
Must Tamburlaine by their resistless powers,
With virtue of a gentle victory,
Conclude a league of honour to my hope;
Then, as the powers divine have pre-ordain'd,
With happy safety of my father's life
Send like defence of fair Arabia.

[They sound to the battle within; and Tamburlaine enjoys the victory: after which, the King of Arabia enters wounded.]

K. of Ar. What cursed power guides the murdering hands
Of this infamous tyrant's soldiers,
That no escape may save their enemies,
Nor fortune keep themselves from victory?
Lie down, Arabia, wounded to the death,
And let Zenocrate's fair eyes behold,

That, as for her thou bear'st these wretched arms,
 Even so for her thou diest in these arms,
 Leaving thy blood for witness of thy love.

Zeno. Too dear a witness for such love, my lord!
 Behold Zenocrate, the cursed object
 Whose fortunes never mastered her griefs;
 Behold her wounded in conceit for thee,
 As much as thy fair body is for me!

K. of Ar. Then shall I die with full contented heart,
 Having beheld divine Zenocrate,
 Whose sight with joy would take away my life
 As now it bringeth sweetness to my wound,
 If I had not been wounded as I am.
 Ah, that the deadly pangs I suffer now
 Would lend an hour's licence to my tongue,
 To make discourse of some sweet accidents
 Have chanc'd thy merits in this worthless bondage,
 And that I might be privy to the state
 Of thy deserv'd contentment and thy love!
 But, making now a virtue of thy sight,
 To drive all sorrow from my fainting soul,
 Since death denies me further cause of joy,
 Depriv'd of care, my heart with comfort dies,
 Since thy desired hand shall close mine eyes.

[Dies.

Re-enter TAMBURLAINE, leading the SOLDAN; TECHELLES,
THERIDAMAS, USUMCASANE, with others.

Tamb. Come, happy father of Zenocrate,
 A title higher than thy Soldan's name.
 Though my right hand have thus enthralled thee,
 Thy princely daughter here shall set thee free;
 She that hath calm'd the fury of my sword,
 Which had ere this been bath'd in streams of blood
 As vast and deep as Euphrates or Nile.

Zeno. O sight thrice-welcome to my joyful soul,
 To see the king, my father, issue safe
 From dangerous battle of my conquering love!

Sold. Well met, my only dear Zenocrate,
 Though with the loss of Egypt and my crown!

Tamb. 'Twas I, my lord, that gat the victory;
 And therefore grieve not at your overthrow,
 Since I shall render all into your hands,
 And add more strength to your dominions

Than ever yet confirm'd th' Egyptian crown.
 The god of war resigns his room to me,
 Meaning to make me general of the world:
 Jove, viewing me in arms, looks pale and wan,
 Fearing my power should pull him from his throne:
 Where'er I come the Fatal Sisters sweat,
 And grisly Death, by running to and fro,
 To do their ceaseless homage to my sword:
 And here in Afric, where it seldom rains,
 Since I arriv'd with my triumphant host,
 Have swelling clouds, drawn from wide-gaping wounds,
 Been oft resolv'd in bloody purple showers,
 A meteor that might terrify the earth,
 And make it quake at every drop it drinks:
 Millions of souls sit on the banks of Styx,
 Waiting the back-return of Charon's boat;
 Hell and Elysium swarm with ghosts of men
 That I have sent from sundry foughten fields
 To spread my fame through hell and up to heaven;
 And see, my lord, a sight of strange import,—
 Emperors and kings lie breathless at my feet;
 The Turk and his great empress, as it seems,
 Left to themselves while we were at the fight,
 Have desperately despatch'd their slavish lives:
 With them Arabia, too, hath left his life:
 All sights of power to grace my victory;
 And such are objects fit for Tamburlaine,
 Wherein, as in a mirror, may be seen
 His honour, that consists in shedding blood
 When men presume to manage arms with him.
Sold. Mighty hath God and Mahomet made thy hand,
 Renowned Tamburlaine, to whom all kings
 Of force must yield their crowns and emperies;
 And I am pleas'd with this my overthrow,
 If, as beseems a person of thy state,
 Thou hast with honour us'd Zenocrate.
Tamb. Her state and person want no pomp, you see
 And for all blot of foul in chastity,
 I record heaven, her heavenly self is clear:
 Then let me find no further time to grace
 Her princely temples with the Persian crown;
 But here these kings that on my fortunes wait,
 And have been crowned for proved worthiness

Even by this hand that shall establish them,
Shall now, adjoining all their hands with mine,
Invest her here the Queen of Persia.

What saith the noble Soldan, and Zenocrate?

Sold. I yield with thanks and protestations
Of endless honour to thee for her love.

Tamb. Then doubt I not but fair Zenocrate
Will soon consent to satisfy us both.

Zeno. Else should I much forget myself, my lord.

Ther. Then let us set the crown upon her head,
That long hath linger'd for so high a seat.

Tech. My hand is ready to perform the deed;
For now her marriage-time shall work us rest.

Usum. And here's the crown, my lord; help set it on.

Tamb. Then sit thou down, divine Zenocrate;
And here we crown thee Queen of Persia,
And all the kingdoms and dominions
That late the power of Tamburlaine subdu'd.
As Juno, when the giants were suppress'd,
That darted mountains at her brother Jove,
So looks my love, shadowing in her brows
Triumphs and trophies for my victories;
Or as Latona's daughter, bent to arms,
Adding more courage to my conquering mind.
To gratify the[e], sweet Zenocrate,
Egyptians, Moors, and men of Asia,
From Barbary unto the Western India,
Shall pay a yearly tribute to thy sire;
And from the bounds of Afric to the banks
Of Ganges shall his mighty arm extend.—
And now, my lords and loving followers,
That purchas'd kingdoms by your martial deeds,
Cast off your armour, put on scarlet robes,
Mount up your royal places of estate,
Environed with troops of noblemen,
And there make laws to rule your provinces:
Hang up your weapons on Alcides' post[s];
For Tamburlaine takes truce with all the world.—
Thy first-betrothed love, Arabia,
Shall we with honour, as beseems, entomb
With this great Turk and his fair emperess.
Then, after all these solemn exequies,
We will our rites of marriage solemnise.

[Exeunt.]

THE PROLOGUE

THE general welcomes Tamburlaine receiv'd,
When he arrived last upon the stage,
Have made pur poet pen his Second Part,
Where death cuts off the progress of his pomp,
And murderous Fates throw all his triumphs down.
But what became of fair Zenocrate,
And with how many cities' sacrifice
He celebrated her sad funeral,
Himself in presence shall unfold at large.

ACT I

SCENE I

Enter ORCANES king of Natolia, GAZELLUS viceroy of Byron, URIBASSA, and their train, with drums and trumpets.

Orc. Egregious viceroys of these eastern parts,
Plac'd by the issue of great Bajazeth,

- And sacred lord, the mighty Callapine,
 Who lives in Egypt prisoner to that slave
 Which kept his father in an iron cage,—
 Now have we march'd from fair Natolia
 Two hundred leagues, and on Danubius' banks
 Our warlike host, in complete armour, rest,
 Where Sigismund, the king of Hungary,
 Should meet our person to conclude a truce:
 What! shall we parle with the Christian?
 Or cross the stream, and meet him in the field?
- Gaz.* King of Natolia, let us treat of peace:
 We are all glutted with the Christians' blood,
 And have a greater foe to fight against,—
 Proud Tamburlaine, that now in Asia,
 Near Guyron's head, doth set his conquering feet,
 And means to fire Turkey as he goes:
 'Gainst him, my lord, you must address your power.
- Uri.* Besides, King Sigismund hath brought from Christendom
 More than his camp of stout Hungarians,—
 Slavonians, Almain, Rutters, Muffs, and Danes,
 That with the halberd, lance, and murdering axe,
 Will hazard that we might with surety hold.
- Orc.* Though from the shortest northern parallel,
 Vast Grantland, compass'd with the Frozen Sea,
 (Inhabited with tall and sturdy men,
 Giants as big as huge Polypheme,)
 Millions of soldiers cut the arctic line,
 Bringing the strength of Europe to these arms,
 Our Turkey blades shall glide through all their throats,
 And make this champion mead a bloody fen:
 Danubius' stream, that runs to Trebizon,
 Shall carry, wrapt within his scarlet waves,
 As martial presents to our friends at home,
 The slaughter'd bodies of these Christians:
 The Terrene main, wherein Danubius' falls,
 Shall by this battle be the bloody sea:
 The wandering sailors of proud Italy
 Shall meet those Christians, fleeting with the tide,
 Beating in heaps against their argosies,
 And make fair Europe, mounted on her bull,
 Trapp'd with the wealth and riches of the world,
 Alight, and wear a woful mourning weed.

Gaz. Yet, stout Orcanes, pro-rex of the world,
 Since Tamburlaine hath muster'd all his men,
 Marching from Cairo northward, with his camp,
 To Alexandria and the frontier towns,
 Meaning to make a conquest of our land
 'Tis requisite to parle for a peace
 With Sigismund, the king of Hungary,
 And save our forces for the hot assaults
 Proud Tamburlaine intends Natolia.

Orc. Viceroy of Byron, wisely hast thou said.
 My realm, the centre of our empery,
 Once lost, all Turkey would be overthrown;
 And for that cause the Christians shall have peace.
 Slavonians, Almains, Rutters, Muffs, and Danes,
 Fear not Orcanes, but great Tamburlaine;
 Nor he, but Fortune that hath made him great.
 We have revolted Grecians, Albanese,
 Sicilians, Jews, Arabians, Turks, and Moors,
 Natolians, Sorians, black Egyptians,
 Illyrians, Thracians, and Bithynians,
 Enough to swallow forceless Sigismund,
 Yet scarce enough t' encounter Tamburlaine.
 He brings a world of people to the field,
 From Scythia to the oriental plage
 Of India, where raging Lantchidol
 Beats on the regions with his boisterous blows,
 That never seaman yet discovered.
 All Asia is in arms with Tamburlaine,
 Even from the midst of fiery Cancer's tropic
 To Amazonia under Capricorn;
 And thence, as far as Archipelago,
 All Afric is in arms with Tamburlaine:
 Therefore, viceroy, the Christians must have peace.

Enter SIGISMUND, FREDERICK, BALDWIN, and their train, with drums and trumpets.

Sig. Orcanes, (as our legates promis'd thee,)
 We, with our peers, have cross'd Danubius' stream,
 To treat of friendly peace or deadly war.
 Take which thou wilt; for, as the Romans us'd,
 I here present thee with a naked sword:
 Wilt thou have war, then shake this blade at me;

If peace, restore it to my hands again,
And I will sheathe it, to confirm the same.

Orc. Stay, Sigismund: forgett'st thou I am he
That with the cannon shook Vienna-walls,
And made it dance upon the continent,
As when the massy substance of the earth
Quiver[s] about the axle-tree of heaven?
Forgett'st thou that I sent a shower of darts,
Mingled with powder'd shot and feather'd steel,
So thick upon the blink-ey'd burghers' heads,
That thou thyself, then County Palatine,
The King of Boheme, and the Austric Duke,
Sent heralds out, which basely on their knees,
In all your names, desir'd a truce of me?
Forgett'st thou that, to have me raise my siege,
Waggons of gold were set before my tent,
Stamp't with the princely fowl that in her wings
Carries the fearful thunderbolts of Jove?
How canst thou think of this, and offer war?

Sig. Vienna was besieg'd, and I was there
Then County Palatine, but now a king,
And what we did was in extremity.
But now, Orcanes, view my royal host,
That hides these plains, and seems as vast and wide
As doth the desert of Arabia
To those that stand on Bagdet's lofty tower,
Or as the ocean to the traveller
That rests upon the snowy Appenines;
And tell me whether I should stoop so low,
Or treat of peace with the Natolian king.

Gaz. Kings of Natolia and of Hungary,
We came from Turkey to confirm a league,
And not to dare each other to the field.
A friendly parle might become you both.

Fred. And we from Europe, to the same intent;
Which if your general refuse or scorn,
Our tents are pitch'd, our men stand in array,
Ready to charge you ere you stir your feet.

Orc. So prest are we: but yet, if Sigismund
Speak as a friend, and stand not upon terms,
Here is his sword; let peace be ratified
On these conditions specified before,
Drawn with advice of our ambassadors.

Sig. Then here I sheathe it, and give thee my hand,
Never to draw it out, or manage arms
Against thyself or thy confederates,
But, whilst I live, will be at truce with thee.

Orc. But, Sigismund, confirm it with an oath,
And swear in sight of heaven and by thy Christ.

Sig. By Him that made the world and sav'd my soul,
The Son of God and issue of a maid,
Sweet Jesus Christ, I solemnly protest
And vow to keep this peace inviolable!

Orc. By sacred Mahomet, the friend of God,
Whose holy Alcoran remains with us,
Whose glorious body, when he left the world,
Clos'd in a coffin mounted up the air,
And hung on stately Mecca's temple-roof,
I swear to keep this truce inviolable!
Of whose conditions and our solemn oaths,
Sign'd with our hands, each shall retain a scroll,
As memorable witness of our league.
Now, Sigismund, if any Christian king
Encroach upon the confines of thy realm,
Send word, Orcanes of Natolia
Confirm'd this league beyond Danubius' stream,
And they will, trembling, sound a quick retreat;
So am I fear'd among all nations.

Sig. If any heathen potentate or king
Invade Natolia, Sigismund will send
A hundred thousand horse train'd to the war,
And back'd by stout lancers of Germany,
The strength and sinews of the imperial seat.

Orc. I thank thee, Sigismund; but, when I war,
All Asia Minor, Africa, and Greece,
Follow my standard and my thundering drums.
Come, let us go and banquet in our tents:
I will despatch chief of my army hence
To fair Natolia and to Trebizon,
To stay my coming 'gainst proud Tamburlaine:
Friend Sigismund, and peers of Hungary,
Come, banquet and carouse with us a while,
And then depart we to our territories.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II

Enter CALLAPINE, and ALMEDA his keeper.

Call. Sweet Almeda, pity the ruthful plight
Of Callapine, the son of Bajazeth,
Born to be monarch of the western world,
Yet here detain'd by cruel Tamburlaine.

Alm. My lord, I pity it, and with my heart
Wish your release; but he whose wrath is death,
My sovereign lord, renowned Tamburlaine,
Forbids you further liberty than this.

Call. Ah, were I now but half so eloquent
To paint in words what I'll perform in deeds,
I know thou wouldst depart from hence with me!

Alm. Not for all Afric: therefore move me not.

Call. Yet hear me speak, my gentle Almeda.

Alm. No speech to that end, by your favour, sir.

Call. By Cairo runs—

Alm. No talk of running, I tell you, sir.

Call. A little further, gentle Almeda.

Alm. Well, sir, what of this?

Call. By Cairo runs to Alexandria-bay
Darotes' stream, wherein at anchor lies
A Turkish galley of my royal fleet,
Waiting my coming to the river-side,
Hoping by some means I shall be releas'd;
Which, when I come aboard, will hoist up sail,
And soon put forth into the Terrene sea,
Where, 'twixt the isles of Cyprus and of Crete,
We quickly may in Turkish seas arrive.
Then shalt thou see a hundred kings and more,
Upon their knees, all bid me welcome home.
Amongst so many crowns of burnish'd gold,
Choose which thou wilt, all are at thy command:
A thousand galleys, mann'd with Christian slaves,
I freely give thee, which shall cut the Straits,
And bring armadoes, from the coasts of Spain,
Fraughted with gold of rich America:
The Grecian virgins shall attend on thee,
Skilful in music and in amorous lays,
As fair as was Pygmalion's ivory girl
Or lovely Iō metamorphosed:

With naked negroes shall thy coach be drawn,
 And, as thou rid'st in triumph through the streets,
 The pavement underneath thy chariot-wheels
 With Turkey-carpets will be covered,
 And cloth of arras hung about the walls,
 Fit objects for thy princely eye to pierce:
 A hundred bassoes, cloth'd in crimson silk,
 Shall ride before thee on Barbarian steeds;
 And, when thou goest, a golden canopy
 Enchas'd with precious stones, which shine as bright
 As that fair veil that covers all the world,
 When Phœbus, leaping from his hemisphere,
 Descendeth downward to th' Antipodes:—
 And more than this, for all I cannot tell.

Alm. How far hence lies the galley, say you?

Call. Sweet Almeda, scarce half a league from hence.

Alm. But need we not be spied going aboard?

Call. Betwixt the hollow hanging of a hill,
 And crooked bending of a craggy rock,
 The sails wrapt up, the mast and tacklings down,
 She lies so close that none can find her out.

Alm. I like that well: but, tell me, my lord, if I should let you go, would you be as good as your word? shall I be made a king for my labour?

Call. As I am Callapine the emperor,
 And by the hand of Mahomet I swear,
 Thou shalt be crown'd a king, and be my mate!

Alm. Then here I swear, as I am Almeda,
 Your keeper under Tamburlaine the Great,
 (For that's the style and title I have yet,)
 Although he sent a thousand armed men
 To intercept this haughty enterprise,
 Yet would I venture to conduct your grace,
 And die before I brought you back again!

Call. Thanks, gentle Almeda: then let us haste,
 Lest time be past, and lingering let us both.

Alm. When you will, my lord: I am ready.

Call. Even straight:—and farewell, cursed Tamburlaine!

Now go I to revenge my father's death.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE III

Enter TAMBURLAINE, ZENOCRATE, and their three sons, CALYPHAS, AMYRAS, and CELEBINUS, with drums and trumpets.

Tamb. Now, bright Zenocrate, the world's fair eye,
Whose beams illuminate the lamps of heaven,
Whose cheertul looks do clear the cloudy air,
And clothe it in a crystal livery,
Now rest thee here on fair Larissa-plains,
Where Egypt and the Turkish empire part
Between thy sons, that shall be emperors,
And every one commander of a world.

Zeno. Sweet Tamburlaine, when wilt thou leave these arms,
And save thy sacred person free from scathe,
And dangerous chances of the wrathful war?

Tamb. When heaven shall cease to move on both the poles,
And when the ground, whereon my soldiers march,
Shall rise aloft and touch the horned moon;
And not before, my sweet Zenocrate.
Sit up, and rest thee like a lovely queen.
So; now she sits in pomp and majesty,
When these, my sons, more precious in mine eyes
Than all the wealthy kingdoms I subdu'd,
Plac'd by her side, look on their mother's face
But yet methinks their looks are amorous,
Not martial as the sons of Tamburlaine:
Water and air, being symbolis'd in one,
Argue their want of courage and of wit;
Their hair as white as milk, and soft as down,
(Which should be like the quills of porcupines,
As black as jet, and hard as iron or steel.)
Bewrays they are too dainty for the wars;
Their fingers made to quaver on a lute,
Their arms to hang about a lady's neck,
Their legs to dance and caper in the air,
Would make me think them bastards, not my sons,
But that I know they issu'd from thy womb,
That never look'd on man but Tamburlaine.

Zeno. My gracious lord, they have their mother's looks,
But, when they list, their conquering father's heart.
This lovely boy, the youngest of the three,

Not long ago bestrid a Scythian steed,
 Trotting the ring, and tilting at a glove,
 Which when he tainted with his slender rod,
 He rein'd him straight, and made him so curvet
 As I cried out for fear he should have faln.

Tamb. Well done, my boy! thou shalt have shield and lance,

Armour of proof, horse, helm, and curtle-axe,
 And I will teach thee how to charge thy foe,
 And harmless run among the deadly pikes.
 If thou wilt love the wars and follow me,
 Thou shalt be made a king and reign with me,
 Keeping in iron cages emperors.
 If thou exceed thy elder brothers' worth,
 And shine in complete virtue more than they,
 Thou shalt be king before them, and thy seed
 Shall issue crowned from their mother's womb.

Cel. Yes, father; you shall see me, if I live,
 Have under me as many kings as you,
 And march with such a multitude of men
 As all the world shall tremble at their view.

Tamb. These words assure me, boy, thou art my son.

When I am old and cannot manage arms,
 Be thou the scourge and terror of the world.

Amy. Why may not I, my lord, as well as he,
 Be term'd the scourge and terror of the world?

Tamb. Be all a scourge and terror to the world,
 Or else you are not sons of Tamburlaine.

Caly. But, while my brothers follow arms, my lord,
 Let me accompany my gracious mother:
 They are enough to conquer all the world,
 And you have won enough for me to keep.

Tamb. Bastardly boy, sprung from some coward's loins,
 And not the issue of great Tamburlaine!
 Of all the provinces I have subdu'd
 Thou shalt not have a foot, unless thou bear
 A mind courageous and invincible;
 For he shall wear the crown of Persia
 Whose head hath deepest scars, whose breast most wounds,
 Which, being wroth, sends lightning from his eyes,
 And in the furrows of his frowning brows
 Harbours revenge, war, death, and cruelty;

For in a field, whose superficies
Is cover'd with a liquid purple veil,
And sprinkled with the brains of slaughter'd men,
My royal chair of state shall be advanc'd;
And he that means to place himself therein,
Must armed wade up to the chin in blood.

Zeno. My lord, such speeches to our princely sons
Dismay their minds before they come to prove
The wounding troubles angry war affords.

Cel. No, madam, these are speeches fit for us;
For, if his chair were in a sea of blood,
I would prepare a ship and sail to it,
Ere I would lose the title of a king.

Amy. And I would strive to swim through pools of blood
Or make a bridge of murder'd carcasses,
Whose arches should be fram'd with bones of Turks,
Ere I would lose the title of a king.

Tamb. Well, lovely boys, ye shall be emperors both,
Stretching your conquering arms from east to west:—
And, sirrah, if you mean to wear a crown,
When we shall meet the Turkish deputy
And all his viceroys, snatch it from his head,
And cleave his pericranion with thy sword.

Caly. If any man will hold him, I will strike,
And cleave him to the channel with my sword.

Tamb. Hold him, and cleave him too, or I'll cleave thee;
For we will march against them presently.
Theridamas, Techelles, and Casane,
Promis'd to meet me on Larissa-plains,
With hosts a-piece against this Turkish crew;
For I have sworn by sacred Mahomet
To make it parcel of my empery.
The trumpets sound; Zenocrate, they come.

Enter THERIDAMAS, and his train, with drums and trumpets.

Welcome Theridamas, king of Argier.

Ther. My lord, the great and mighty Tamburlaine,
Arch-monarch of the world, I offer here
My crown, myself, and all the power I have,
In all affection at thy kingly feet.

Tamb. Thanks, good Theridamas.

Ther. Under my colours march ten thousand Greeks,
And of Argier and Afric's frontier towns

Twice twenty thousand valiant men-at-arms;
 All which have sworn to sack Natolia.
 Five hundred brigandines are under sail,
 Meet for your service on the sea, my lord,
 That, launching from Argier to Tripoly,
 Will quickly ride before Natolia,
 And batter down the castles on the shore,
Tamb. Well said, Argier! receive thy crown again.

Enter USUMCASANE and TECHELLES.

Kings of Morocco and of Fez, welcome.
Usum. Magnificent and peerless Tamburlaine,
 I and my neighbour king of Fez have brought,
 To aid thee in this Turkish expedition,
 A hundred thousand expert soldiers;
 From Azamor to Tunis near the sea
 Is Barbary unpeopled for thy sake,
 And all the men, in armour under me,
 Which with my crown, I gladly offer thee.
Tamb. Thanks, king of Morocco: take your crown again.
Tech. And, mighty Tamburlaine, our earthly god,
 Whose looks make this inferior world to quake,
 I here present thee with the crown of Fez,
 And with an host of Moors train'd to the war,
 Whose coal-black faces make their foes retire,
 And quake for fear, as if infernal Jove,
 Meaning to aid thee in these Turkish arms,
 Should pierce the black circumference of hell,
 With ugly Furies bearing fiery flags,
 And millions of his strong tormenting spirits:
 From strong Tesella unto Biledull
 All Barbary is unpeopled for thy sake.
Tamb. Thanks, king of Fez: take here thy crown again.
 Your presence, loving friends and fellow-kings,
 Makes me to surfeit in conceiving joy:
 If all the crystal gates of Jove's high court
 Were open'd wide, and I might enter in
 To see the state and majesty of heaven,
 It could not more delight me than your sight.
 Now will we banquet on these plains a while,
 And after march to Turkey with our camp,
 In number more than are the drops that fall
 When Boreas rents a thousand swelling clouds;

And proud Orcanes of Natolia
With all his viceroys shall be so afraid,
That, though the stones, as at Deucalion's flood,
Were turn'd to men, he should be overcome.
Such lavish will I make of Turkish blood,
That Jove shall send his winged messenger
To bid me sheathe my sword and leave the field;
The sun, unable to sustain the sight,
Shall hide his head in Thetis' watery lap,
And leave his steeds to fair Bœotes' charge;
For half the world shall perish in this fight.
But now, my friends, let me examine ye;
How have ye spent your absent time from me?

Usum. My lord, our men of Barbary have march'd
Four hundred miles with armour on their backs,
And lain in leaguer fifteen months and more;
For, since we left you at the Soldan's court,
We have subdu'd the southern Guallatia,
And all the land unto the coast of Spain;
We kept the narrow Strait of Jubalter,
And made Canaria call us kings and lords:
Yet never did they recreate themselves,
Or cease one day from war and hot alarms;
And therefore let them rest a while, my lord.

Tamb. They shall, Casane, and 'tis time, i'faith.

Tech. And I have march'd along the river Nile
To Machda, where the mighty Christian priest,
Call'd John the Great, sits in a milk-white robe,
Whose triple mitre I did take by force,
And made him swear obedience to my crown.
From thence unto Cazates did I march,
Where Amazonians met me in the field,
With whom, being women, I vouchsaf'd a league,
And with my power did march to Zanzibar,
The western part of Afric, where I view'd
The Ethiopian sea, rivers and lakes,
But neither man nor child in all the land:
Therefore I took my course to Manico,
Where, unresisted, I remov'd my camp;
And, by the coast of Byather, at last
I came to Cubar, where the negroes dwell,
And, conquering that, made haste to Nubia.
There, having sack'd Borno, the kingly seat,

I took the king and led him bound in chains
Unto Damascus, where I stay'd before.

Tamb. Well done, Techelles!—What saith Theridamas?

Ther. I left the confines and the bounds of Afric,
And made a voyage into Europe,
Where, by the river Tyras, I subdu'd
Stoka, Podolia, and Codemia;
Then cross'd the sea and came to Oblia,
And Nigra Silva, where the devils dance,
Which, in despite of them, I set on fire.
From thence I cross'd the gulf call'd by the name
Mare Majore of the inhabitants.
Yet shall my soldiers make no period
Until Natolia kneel before your feet.

Tamb. Then will we triumph, banquet, and carouse;
Cooks shall have pensions to provide us cates,
And glut us with the dainties of the world;
Lachryma Christi and Calabrian wines
Shall common soldiers drink in quaffing bowls,
Ay, liquid gold, when we have conquer'd him,
Mingled with coral and with orient pearl.
Come, let us banquet and carouse the whiles. [Exeunt.

ACT II

SCENE I

Enter SIGISMUND, FREDERICK, and BALDWIN, with their train.

Sig. Now say, my lords of Buda and Bohemia,
What motion is it that inflames your thoughts,
And stirs your valours to such sudden arms?

Fred. Your majesty remembers, I am sure,
What cruel slaughter of our Christian bloods
These heathenish Turks and pagans lately made
Betwixt the city Zula and Danubius;
How through the midst of Varna and Bulgaria,
And almost to the very walls of Rome,
They have, not long since, massacred our camp,
It resteth now, then, that your majesty
Take all advantages of time and power,
And work revenge upon these infidels.

Your highness knows, for Tamburlaine's repair,
That strikes a terror to all Turkish hearts,
Natolia hath dismiss'd the greatest part
Of all his army, pitch'd against our power
Betwixt Cutheia and Orminius' mount,
And sent them marching up to Belgasar,
Acantha, Antioch, and Cæsarea,
To aid the kings of Soria and Jerusalem.
Now, then, my lord, advantage take thereof,
And issue suddenly upon the rest;
That, in the fortune of their overthrow,
We may discourage all the pagan troop
That dare attempt to war with Christians.

Sig. But calls not, then, your grace to memory
The league we lately made with King Orcanes,
Confirm'd by oath and articles of peace,
And calling Christ for record of our truths?
This should be treachery and violence
Against the grace of our profession.

Bald. Nō whit, my lord; for with such infidels,
In whom no faith nor true religion rests,
We are not bound to those accomplishments
The holy laws of Christendom enjoin;
But, as the faith which they profanely plight
Is not by necessary policy
To be esteem'd assurance for ourselves,
So that we vow to them should not infringe
Our liberty of arms and victory.

Sig. Though I confess the oaths they undertake
Breed little strength to our security,
Yet those infirmities that thus defame
Their faiths, their honours, and religion,
Should not give us presumption to the like.
Our faiths are sound, and must be consummate,
Religious, righteous, and inviolate.

Fred. Assure your grace, 'tis superstition
To stand so strictly on dispensive faith;
And, should we lose the opportunity
That God hath given to venge our Christians' death,
And scourge their foul blasphemous paganism,
As fell to Saul, to Balaam, and the rest,
That would not kill and curse at God's command,
So surely will the vengeance of the Highest,

And jealous anger of his fearful arm,
 Be pour'd with rigour on our sinful heads,
 If we neglect this offer'd victory.

Sig. Then arm, my lords, and issue suddenly,
 Giving commandment to our general host,
 With expedition to assail the pagan,
 And take the victory our God hath given.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II

Enter ORCANES, GAZELLUS, and URIBASSA, with their train.

Orc. Gazellus, Uribassa, and the rest,
 Now will we march from proud Orminius' mount
 To fair Natolia, where our neighbour kings
 Expect our power and our royal presence,
 T' encounter with the cruel Tamburlaine,
 That nigh Larissa sways a mighty host,
 And with the thunder of his martial tools
 Makes earthquakes in the hearts of men and heaven.

Gaz. And now come we to make his sinews shake
 With greater power than erst his pride hath felt.
 An hundred kings, by scores, will bid him arms,
 And hundred thousand subjects to each score:
 Which, if a shower of wounding thunderbolts
 Should break out of the bowels of the clouds,
 And fall as thick as hail upon our heads,
 In partial aid of that proud Scythian,
 Yet should our courages and steeled crests,
 And numbers, more than infinite, of men,
 Be able to withstand and conquer him.

Uri. Methinks I see how glad the Christian king
 Is made for joy of our admitted truce,
 That could not but before be terrified
 With unacquainted power of our host.

Enter a Messenger.

Mess. Arm, dread sovereign, and my noble lords!
 The treacherous army of the Christians,
 Taking advantage of your slender power,
 Comes marching on us, and determines straight
 To bid us battle for our dearest lives.

Orc. Traitors, villains, damned Christians!
 Have I not here the articles of peace

And solemn covenants we have both confirm'd,
He by his Christ, and I by Mahomet?

Gaz. Hell and confusion light upon their heads,
That with such treason seek our overthrow,
And care so little for their prophet Christ!

Orc. Can there be such deceit in Christians,
Or treason in the fleshly heart of man,
Whose shape is figure of the highest God?
Then, if there be a Christ, as Christians say,
But in their deeds deny him for their Christ,
If he be son to everliving Jove,
And hath the power of his outstretched arm,
If he be jealous of his name and honour
As is our holy prophet Mahomet,
Take here these papers as our sacrifice
And witness of thy servant's perjury!

[He tears to pieces the articles of peace.]

Open, thou shining veil of Cynthia,
And make a passage from th' empyreal heaven,
That he that sits on high and never sleeps,
Nor in one place is circumscribable,
But everywhere fills every continent
With strange infusion of his sacred vigour,
May, in his endless power and purity,
Behold and venge this traitor's perjury!
Thou, Christ, that art esteem'd omnipotent,
If thou wilt prove thyself a perfect God,
Worthy the worship of all faithful hearts,
Be now reveng'd upon this traitor's soul,
And make the power I have left behind
(Too little to defend our guiltless lives)
Sufficient to discomfit and confound
The trustless force of those false Christians!—
To arms, my lords! on Christ still let us cry:
If there be Christ, we shall have victory.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE III

Alarms of battle within. Enter SIGISMUND wounded.

Sig. Discomfited is all the Christian host,
And God hath thunder'd vengeance from on high,
For my accurs'd and hateful perjury.
O just and dreadful punisher of sin,

Let the dishonour of the pains I feel
 In this my mortal well-deserved wound
 End all my penance in my sudden death!
 And let this death, wherein to sin I die,
 Conceive a second life in endless mercy!

[Dies.]

Enter ORCANES, GAZELLUS, URIBASSA, with others.

Orc. Now lie the Christians bathing in their bloods,
 And Christ or Mahomet hath been my friend.

Gaz. See, here the perjurd traitor Hungary,
 Bloody and breathless for his villany!

Orc. Now shall his barbarous body be a prey
 To beasts and fowls, and all the winds shall breathe
 Through shady leaves of every senseless tree,
 Murmurs and hisses for his heinous sin.
 Now scalds his soul in the Tartarian streams,
 And feeds upon the baneful tree of hell,
 That Zoacum, that fruit of bitterness,
 That in the midst of fire is ingraff'd,
 Yet flourisheth as Flora in her pride,
 With apples like the heads of damned fiend.
 The devils there, in chains of quenchless flame,
 Shall lead his soul, through Orcus' burning gulf,
 From pain to pain, whose change shall never end,
 What say'st thou yet, Gazellus, to his foil,
 Which we referr'd to justice of his Christ
 And to his power, which here appears as full
 As rays of Cynthia to the clearest sight?

Gaz. 'Tis but the fortune of the wars, my lord,
 Whose power is often prov'd a miracle.

Orc. Yet in my thoughts shall Christ be honoured,
 Not doing Mahomet an injury,
 Whose power had share in this our victory;
 And, since this miscreant hath disgrac'd his faith,
 And died a traitor both to heaven and earth,
 We will both watch and ward shall keep his trunk
 Amidst these plains for fowls to prey upon.
 Go, Uribassa, give it straight in charge.

Uri. I will, my lord.

[Exit.]

Orc. And now, Gazellus, let us haste and meet
 Our army, and our brothers of Jerusalem,
 Of Soria, Trebizon, and Amasia,
 And happily, with full Natolian bowls

Of Greekish wine, now let us celebrate
Our happy conquest and his angry fate.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE IV

The arras is drawn, and ZENOCRATE is discovered lying in her bed of state ; TAMBURLAINE sitting by her ; three Physicians about her bed, tempering potions ; her three sons CALYPHAS, AMYRAS, and CELEBINUS ; THERIDAMAS, TECHELLES and USUMCASANE.

Tamb. Black is the beauty of the brightest day ;
The golden ball of heaven's eternal fire,
That danc'd with glory on the silver waves,
Now wants the fuel that inflam'd his beams ;
And all with faintness, and for foul disgrace,
He binds his temples with a frowning cloud,
Ready to darken earth with endless night.
Zenocrate, that gave him light and life,
Whose eyes shot fire from their ivory brows,
And temper'd every soul with lively heat,
Now by the malice of the angry skies,
Whose jealousy admits no second mate,
Draws in the comfort of her latest breath,
All dazzled with the hellish mists of death.
Now walk the angels on the walls of heaven,
As sentinels to warn th' immortal souls
To entertain divine Zenocrate :
Apollo, Cynthia, and the ceaseless lamps
That gently look'd upon this loathsome earth,
Shine downwards now no more, but deck the heavens
To entertain divine Zenocrate :
The crystal springs, whose taste illuminates
Refined eyes with an eternal sight,
Like tried silver run through Paradise
To entertain divine Zenocrate :
The cherubins and holy seraphins,
That sing and play before the King of Kings,
Use all their voices and their instruments
To entertain divine Zenocrate ;
And, in this sweet and curious harmony,
The god that tunes this music to our souls
Holds out his hand in highest majesty
To entertain divine Zenocrate.

Then let some holy trance convey my thoughts
Up to the palace of th' empyreal heaven,
That this my life may be as short to me
As are the days of sweet Zenocrate.—

Physicians, will no physic do her good?

First Phys. My lord, your majesty shall soon perceive,
And if she pass this fit, the worst is past.

Tamb. Tell me, how fares my fair Zenocrate?

Zeno. I fare, my lord, as other empresses,
That, when this frail and transitory flesh
Hath suck'd the measure of that vital air
That feeds the body with his dated health,
Wane with enforc'd and necessary change.

Tamb. May never such a change transform my love,
In whose sweet being I repose my life!
Whose heavenly presence, beautified with health,
Gives light to Phœbus and the fixed stars;
Whose absence makes the sun and moon as dark
As when, oppos'd in one diameter,
Their spheres are mounted on the serpent's head,
Or else descended to his winding train.
Live still, my love, and so conserve my life,
Or, dying, be the author of my death.

Zeno. Live still, my lord; O, let my sovereign live!
And sooner let the fiery element
Dissolve, and make your kingdom in the sky,
Than this base earth should shroud your majesty;
For, should I but suspect your death by mine,
The comfort of my future happiness,
And hope to meet your highness in the heavens,
Turn'd to despair, would break my wretched breast,
And fury would confound my present rest.
But let me die, my love; yes, let me die;
With love and patience let your true love die:
Your grief and fury hurts my second life.
Yet let me kiss my lord before I die,
And let me die with kissing of my lord.
But, since my life is lengthen'd yet a while,
Let me take leave of these my loving sons,
And of my lords, whose true nobility
Have merited my latest memory.
Sweet sons, farewell! in death resemble me,
And in your lives your father's excellence.

Some music, and my fit will cease, my lord.

[They call for music.]

Tamb. Proud fury, and intolerable fit,
That dares torment the body of my love,
And scourge the scourge of the immortal God!
Now are those spheres, where Cupid us'd to sit,
Wounding the world with wonder and with love
Sadly supplied with pale and ghastly death,
Whose darts do pierce the centre of my soul.
Her sacred beauty hath enchanted heaven;
And, had she liv'd before the siege of Troy,
Helen, whose beauty summon'd Greece to arms,
And drew a thousand ships to Tenedos,
Had not been nam'd in Homer's Iliads,—
Her name had been in every line he wrote;
Or, had those wanton poets, for whose birth
Old Rome was proud, but gaz'd a while on her,
Nor Lesbia nor Corinna had been nam'd,—
Zenocrate had been the argument
Of every epigram or elegy.

[The music sounds—Zenocrate dies.]

What, is she dead? Techelles, draw thy sword,
And wound the earth, that it may cleave in twain.
And we descend into th' infernal vaults,
To hale the Fatal Sisters by the hair,
And throw them in the triple moat of hell,
For taking hence my fair Zenocrate.
Casane and Theridamas, to arms!
Raise cavalieros higher than the clouds,
And with the cannon break the frame of heaven;
Batter the shining palace of the sun,
And shiver all the starry firmament,
For amorous Jove hath snatch'd my love from hence,
Meaning to make her stately queen of heaven.
What god soever holds thee in his arms,
Giving thee nectar and ambrosia,
Behold me here, divine Zenocrate,
Raving, impatient, desperate, and mad,
Breaking my steeled lance, with which I burst
The rusty beams of Janus' temple-doors,
Letting out Death and tyrannising War,
To march with me under this bloody flag!
And, if thou pitiest Tamburlaine the Great,

Come down from heaven, and live with me again!

Ther. Ah, good my lord, be patient! she is dead,
And all this raging cannot make her live.
If words might serve, our voice hath rent the air;
If tears, our eyes have water'd all the earth;
If grief, our murder'd hearts have strained forth blood:
Nothing prevails, for she is dead, my lord.

Tamb. For she is dead / thy words do pierce my soul:
Ah, sweet Theridamas, say so no more!
Though she be dead, yet let me think she lives,
And feed my mind that dies for want of her.
Where'er her soul be, thou [To the body] shalt stay with me,
Embalm'd with cassia, ambergris, and myrrh,
Not lapt in lead, but in a sheet of gold,
And, till I die, thou shalt not be interr'd.
Then in as rich a tomb as Mausolus'
We both will rest, and have one epitaph
Writ in as many several languages
As I have conquer'd kingdoms with my sword.
This cursed town will I consume with fire,
Because this place bereft me of my love;
The houses, burnt, will look as if they mourn'd;
And here will I set up her stature
And march about it with my mourning camp,
Drooping and pining for Zenocrate.

[The arras is drawn.]

ACT III

SCENE I

Enter the KINGS OF TREBIZON and SORIA, one bringing a sword and the other a sceptre; next, ORCANES king of Natolia, and the KING OF JERUSALEM with the imperial crown; after, CALLAPINE; and, after him, other Lords and ALMEDA. ORCANES and the KING OF JERUSALEM crown CALLAPINE, and the others give him the sceptre.

Orc. Callapinus Cyricelibes, otherwise Cybelius, son and successive heir to the late mighty emperor Bajazeth, by the aid of God and his friend Mahomet, Emperor of Natolia, Jerusalem, Trebizon, Soria, Amasia, Thracia,

Ilyria, Carmania, and all the hundred and thirty kingdoms late contributory to his mighty father,—long live Calla-pinus, Emperor of Turkey!

Call. Thrice-worthy kings, of Natolia and the rest,
I will requite your royal gratitudes
With all the benefits my empire yields;
And, were the sinews of th' imperial seat
So knit and strengthen'd as when Bajazeth,
My royal lord and father, fill'd the throne,
Whose cursed fate hath so dismember'd it,
Then should you see this thief of Scythia,
This proud usurping king of Persia,
Do us such honour and supremacy,
Bearing the vengeance of our father's wrongs,
As all the world should blot his dignities
Out of the book of base-born infamies.
And now I doubt not but your royal cares
Have so provided for this cursed foe,
That, since the heir of mighty Bajazeth
(An'emperor so honour'd for his virtues)
Revives the spirits of all true Turkish hearts,
In grievous memory of his father's shame,
We shall not need to nourish any doubt,
But that proud Fortune, who hath follow'd long
The martial sword of mighty Tamburlaine,
Will now retain her old inconstancy,
And raise our honours to as high a pitch,
In this our strong and fortunate encounter;
For so hath heaven provided my escape
From all the cruelty my soul sustain'd,
By this my friendly keeper's happy means,
That Jove, surcharg'd with pity of our wrongs,
Will pour it down in showers on our heads,
Scourging the pride of cursed Tamburlaine.

Orc. I have a hundred thousand men in arms;
Some that, in conquest of the perjurd Christian,
Being a handful to a mighty host,
Think them in number yet sufficient
To drink the river Nile or Euphrates,
And for their power enow to win the world.

K. of Jer. And I as many from Jerusalem,
Judæa, Gaza, and Slavonia's bounds,
That on mount Sinai, with their ensigns spread,

- Look like the parti-colour'd clouds of heaven
 That show fair weather to the neighbour morn,
K. of Treb. And I as many bring from Trebizon,
 Chio, Famastro, and Amasia,
 All bordering on the Mare-Major-sea,
 Riso, Sancina, and the bordering towns
 That touch the end of famous Euphrates,
 Whose courages are kindled with the flames
 The cursed Scythian sets on all their towns,
 And vow to burn the villain's cruel heart.
- K. of Sor.* From Soria with seventy thousand strong,
 Ta'en from Aleppo, Soldino, Tripoly,
 And so unto my city of Damascus,
 I march to meet and aid my neighbour kings;
 All which will join against this Tamburlaine,
 And bring him captive to your highness' feet.
- Orc.* Our battle, then, in martial manner pitch'd,
 According to our ancient use, shall bear
 The figure of the semicircled moon,
 Whose horns shall sprinkle through the tainted air
 The poison'd brains of this proud Scythian.
- Call.* Well, then, my noble lords, for this my friend
 That freed me from the bondage of my foe,
 I think it requisite and honourable
 To keep my promise and to make him king,
 That is a gentleman, I know, at least.
- Alm.* That's no matter, sir, for being a king; for Tamburlaine came up of nothing.
- K. of Jer.* Your majesty may choose some 'pointed time,
 Performing all your promise to the full;
 'Tis naught for your majesty to give a kingdom.
- Call.* Then will I shortly keep my promise, Almada.
- Alm.* Why, I thank your majesty. [Exeunt.

SCENE II

Enter TAMBURLAINE and his three Sons, CALYPHAS, AMYRAS, and CELEBINUS; USUMCASANE; four Attendants bearing the hearse of ZENOCRATE, and the drums sounding a doleful march; the town burning.

Tamb. So burn the turrets of this cursed town,
 Flame to the highest region of the air,
 And kindle heaps of exhalations,

That, being fiery meteors, may presage
Death and destruction to the inhabitants!
Over my zenith hang a blazing star,
That may endure till heaven be dissolv'd,
Fed with the fresh supply of earthly dregs,
Threatening a dearth and famine to this land!
Flying dragons, lightning, fearful thunder-claps,
Singe these fair plains, and make them seem as black
As is the island where the Furies mask,
Compass'd with Lethe, Styx, and Phlegethon,
Because my dear Zenocrate is dead!

Caly. This pillar, plac'd in memory of her,
Where in Arabian, Hebrew, Greek, is writ,
*This town, being burnt by Tamburlaine the Great,
Forbids the world to build it up again.*

Amy. And here this mournful streamer shall be plac'd,
Wrought with the Persian and th' Egyptian arms,
To signify she was a princess born,
And wife unto the monarch of the East.

Cel. And here this table as a register
Of all her virtues and perfections.

Tamb. And here the picture of Zenocrate,
To show her beauty which the world admir'd;
Sweet picture of divine Zenocrate,
That, hanging here, will draw the gods from heaven,
And cause the stars fix'd in the southern arc
(Whose lovely faces never any view'd
That have not pass'd the centre's latitude,)
As pilgrims travel to our hemisphere,
Only to gaze upon Zenocrate.
Thou shalt not beautify Larissa-plains,
But keep within the circle of mine arms:
At every town and castle I besiege,
Thou shalt be set upon my royal tent;
And, when I meet an army in the field,
Those looks will shed such influence in my camp,
As if Bellona, goddess of the war,
Threw naked swords and sulphur-balls of fire
Upon the heads of all our enemies.—
And now, my lords, advance your spears again;
Sorrow no more, my sweet Casane, now:
Boys, leave to mourn; this town shall ever mourn,
Being burnt to cinders for your mother's death.

Caly. If I had wept a sea of tears for her,
It would not ease the sorrows I sustain.

Amy. As is that town, so is my heart consum'd
With grief and sorrow for my mother's death.

Cel. My mother's death hath mortified my mind,
And sorrow stops the passage of my speech.

Tamb. But now, my boys, leave off, and list to me,
That mean to teach you rudiments of war.
I'll have you learn to sleep upon the ground,
March in your armour thorough watery fens,
Sustain the scorching heat and freezing cold,
Hunger and thirst, right adjuncts of the war;
And, after this, to scale a castle-wall,
Besiege a fort, to undermine a town,
And make whole cities caper in the air:
Then next, the way to fortify your men;
In champion grounds what figure serves you best,
For which the quinque-angle form is meet,
Because the corners there may fall more flat
Whereas the fort may fittest be assail'd,
And sharpest where th' assault is desperate:
The ditches must be deep; the counterscarps
Narrow and steep; the walls made high and broad;
The bulwarks and the rampires large and strong,
With cavalieros and thick counterforts,
And room within to lodge six thousand men,
It must have privy ditches, countermines,
And secret issuings to defend the ditch;
It must have high argins and cover'd ways
To keep the bulwark-fronts from battery,
And parapets to hide the musketeers,
Casemates to place the great artillery,
And store of ordnance, that from every flank
May scour the outward curtains of the fort,
Dismount the cannon of the adverse part,
Murder the foe, and save the walls from breach.
When this is learn'd for service on the land,
By plain and easy demonstration
I'll teach you how to make the water mount,
That you may dry-foot march through lakes and pools,
Deep rivers, havens, creeks, and little seas,
And make a fortress in the raging waves,
Fenc'd with the concave of a monstrous rock,

Invincible by nature of the place.

When this is done, then are ye soldiers,
And worthy sons of Tamburlaine the Great.

Caly. My lord, but this is dangerous to be done;
We may be slain or wounded ere we learn.

Tamb. Villain, art thou the son of Tamburlaine,
And fear'st to die, or with a curtle-axe
To hew thy flesh, and make a gaping wound?
Hast thou beheld a peal of ordnance strike
A ring of pikes, mingled with shot and horse,
Whose shatter'd limbs, being toss'd as high as heaven,
Hang in the air as thick as sunny motes,
And canst thou, coward, stand in fear of death?
Hast thou not seen my horsemen charge the foe,
Shot through the arms, cut overthwart the hands,
Dying their lances with their streaming blood,
And yet at night carouse within my tent,
Filling their empty veins with airy wine,
That, being concocted, turns to crimson blood,
And wilt thou shun the field for fear of wounds?
View me, thy father, that hath conquer'd kings,
And, with his host, march'd round about the earth,
Quite void of scars and clear from any wound,
That by the wars lost not a drop of blood,
And see him lance his flesh to teach you all.

[He cuts his arm]

A wound is nothing, be it ne'er so deep;
Blood is the god of war's rich livery.
Now look I like a soldier, and this wound
As great a grace and majesty to me,
As if a chair of gold enamelled,
Enchas'd with diamonds, sapphires, rubies,
And fairest pearl of wealthy India,
Were mounted here under a canopy,
And I sat down, cloth'd with a massy robe
That late adorn'd the Afric potentate,
Whom I brought bound unto Damascus' walls.
Come, boys, and with your fingers search my wound,
And in my blood wash all your hands at once,
While I sit smiling to behold the sight.

Now, my boys, what think ye of a wound?

Caly. I know not what I should think of it; methinks 'tis a pitiful sight.

Cel. 'Tis nothing.—Give me a wound, father.

Amy. And me another, my lord.

Tamb. Come, sirrah, give me your arm.

Cel. Here, father, cut it bravely, as you did your own.

Tamb. It shall suffice thou dar'st abide a wound;

My boy, thou shalt not lose a drop of blood
Before we meet the army of the Turk;
But then run desperate through the thickest throngs,
Dreadless of blows, of bloody wounds, and death;
And let the burning of Larissa-walls,
My speech of war, and this my wound you see,
Teach you, my boys, to bear courageous minds,
Fit for the followers of great Tamburlaine.—
Usumcasane, now come, let us march
Towards Techelles and Theridamas,
That we have sent before to fire the towns,
The towers and cities of these hateful Turks,
And hunt that coward faint-heart runaway,
With that accursed traitor Almeda,
Till fire and sword have found them at a bay.

Usum. I long to pierce his bowels with my sword,
That hath betray'd my gracious sovereign,—
That curs'd and damned traitor Almeda.

Tamb. Then let us see if coward Callapine
Dare levy arms against our puissance,
That we may tread upon his captive neck,
And treble all his father's slaveries.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE III

Enter TECHELLES, THERIDAMAS, and their train.

Ther. Thus have we march'd northward from Tamburlaine,
Unto the frontier point of Soria;
And this is Balsera, their chiefest hold,
Wherein is all the treasure of the land.

Tech. Then let us bring our light artillery,
Minions, falc'nets, and sakers, to the trench,
Filling the ditches with the walls' wide breach,
And enter in to seize upon the hold.—
How say you, soldiers, shall we not?

Soldiers. Yes, my lord, yes; come, let's about it.

Ther. But stay a while; summon a parle, drum.
It may be they will yield it quietly,

Knowing two kings, the friends to Tamburlaine,
Stand at the walls with such a mighty power.

[*A parley sounded.—Captain appears on the walls,
with Olympia his wife, and his son.*]

Capt. What require you, my masters?

Ther. Captain, that thou yield up thy hold to us.

Capt. To you! why, do you think me weary of it?

Tech. Nay, captain, thou art weary of thy life,
If thou withstand the friends of Tamburlaine.

Ther. These pioners of Argier in Africa,
Even in the cannon's face, shall raise a hill
Of earth and faggots higher than thy fort,
And, over thy argins and cover'd ways,
Shall play upon the bulwarks of thy hold
Volleys of ordnance, till the breach be made
That with his ruin fills up all the trench;
And, when we enter in, not heaven itself
Shall ransom thee, thy wife, and family.

Tech. Captain, these Moors shall cut the leaden pipes
That bring fresh water to thy men and thee.
And lie in trench before thy castle-walls,
That no supply of victual shall come in,
Nor [any] issue forth but they shall die;
And, therefore, captain, yield it quietly.

Capt. Were you, that are the friends of Tamburlaine,
Brothers of holy Mahomet himself,
I would not yield it; therefore do your worst:
Raise mounts, batter, intrench, and undermine,
Cut off the water, all convoys that can,
Yet I am resolute: and so, farewell.

[Captain, Olympia, and son, retire from the walls.]

Ther. Pioners, away! and where I stuck the stake,
Intrench with those dimensions I prescrib'd;
Cast up the earth towards the castle-wall,
Which, till it may defend you, labour low,
And few or none shall perish by their shot.

Pioners. We will, my lord. [Exeunt Pioners.]

Tech. A hundred horse shall scout about the plains,
To spy what force comes to relieve the hold.
Both we, Theridamas, will intrench our men,
And with the Jacob's staff measure the height
And distance of the castle from the trench,

That we may know if our artillery
Will carry full point-plank unto their walls.

Ther. Then see the bringing of our ordnance
Along the trench into the battery,
Where we will have gallions of six foot broad,
To save our cannoneers from musket-shot;
Betwixt which shall our ordnance thunder forth,
And with the breach's fall, smoke, fire, and dust,
The crack, the echo, and the soldiers' cry,
Make deaf the air and dim the crystal sky.

Tech. Trumpets and drums, alarum presently!
And, soldiers, play the men; the hold is yours!

[Exeunt.]

SCENE IV

Alarms within. Enter the CAPTAIN, with OLYMPIA, and his SON

Olym. Come, good my lord, and let us haste from hence,
Along the cave that leads beyond the foe:
No hope is left to save this conquer'd hold.

Capt. A deadly bullet gliding through my side,
Lies heavy on my heart; I cannot live:
I feel my liver pierc'd, and all my veins,
That there begin and nourish every part.
Mangled and torn, and all my entrails bath'd
In blood that straineth from their orifex.
Farewell, sweet wife! sweet son, farewell! I die.

[Dies.]

Olym. Death, whither art thou gone, that both we live?
Come back again, sweet Death, and strike us both!
One minute and our days, and one sepulchre
Contain our bodies! Death, why com'st thou not?
Well, this must be the messenger for thee:

[Drawing a dagger.]

Now, ugly Death, stretch out thy sable wings,
And carry both our souls where his remains.—
Tell me, sweet boy, art thou content to die?
These barbarous Scythians, full of cruelty,
And Moors, in whom was never pity found,
Will hew us piecemeal, put us to the wheel,
Or else invent some torture worse than that;
Therefore die by thy loving mother's hand,

Who gently now will lance thy ivory throat,
And quickly rid thee both of pain and life.

Son. Mother, despatch me, or I'll kill myself;
For think you I can live and see him dead?
Give me your knife, good mother, or strike home:
The Scythians shall not tyrannise on me:
Sweet mother, strike, that I may meet my father.

[She stabs him, and he dies.]

Olym. Ah, sacred Mahomet, if this be sin,
Entreat a pardon of the God of heaven,
And purge my soul before it comes to thee!

*[She burns the bodies of her husband and son,
and then attempts to kill herself.]*

Enter THERIDAMAS, TECHELLES, and all their train.

Ther. How now, Madam! what are you doing?

Olym. Killing myself, as I have done my son,
Whose body, with his father's, I have burnt,
Lest cruel Scythians should dismember him.

Tech. 'Twas bravely done, and like a soldier's wife.
Thou shalt with us to Tamburlaine the Great,
Who, when he hears how resolute thou wert,
Will match thee with a viceroy or a king.

Olym. My lord deceas'd was dearer unto me
Than any viceroy, king, or emperor;
And for his sake here will I end my days.

Ther. But, lady, go with us to Tamburlaine,
And thou shalt see a man greater than Mahomet,
In whose high looks is much more majesty,
Than from the concave superficies
Of Jove's vast palace, the empyreal orb,
Unto the shining bower where Cynthia sits,
Like lovely Thetis, in a crystal robe;
That treadeth fortune underneath his feet,
And makes the mighty god of arms his slave;
On whom Death and the Fatal Sisters wait
With naked swords and scarlet liveries;
Before whom, mounted on a lion's back,
Rhamnusia bears a helmet full of blood,
And strows the way with brains of slaughter'd men;
By whose proud side the ugly Furies run,
Harkening when he shall bid them plague the world;
Over whose zenith, cloth'd in windy air,

And eagle's wings join'd to her feather'd breast,
 Fame hovereth, sounding of her golden trump,
 That to the adverse poles of that straight line
 Which measureth the glorious frame of heaven
 The name of mighty Tamburlaine is spread;
 And him, fair, lady, shall thy eyes behold.
 Come.

Olym. Take pity of a lady's ruthful tears,
 That humbly craves upon her knees to stay,
 And cast her body in the burning flame
 That feeds upon her son's and husband's flesh.

Tech. Madam, sooner shall fire consume us both
 Than scorch a face so beautiful as this,
 In frame of which Nature hath show'd more skill
 Than when she gave eternal chaos form,
 Drawing from it the shining lamps of heaven.

Ther. Madam, I am so far in love with you,
 That you must go with us: no remedy.

Olym. Then carry me, I care not, where you will,
 And let the end of this my fatal journey
 Be likewise end to my accursed life.

Tech. No, madam, but the beginning of your joy:
 Come willingly, therefore.

Ther. Soldiers, now let us meet the general,
 Who by this time is at Natolia,
 Ready to charge the army of the Turk.
 The gold and silver, and the pearl, ye got,
 Rifling this fort, divide in equal shares:
 This lady shall have twice so much again
 Out of the coffers of our treasury.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE V

Enter CALLAPINE, ORCANES, the KINGS OF JERUSALEM, TREBIZON, and SORIA, with their train, ALMEDA, and a Messenger.

Mess. Renowned emperor, mighty Callapine,
 God's great lieutenant over all the world,
 Here at Aleppo, with an host of men,
 Lies Tamburlaine, this king of Persia,
 (In number more than are the quivering leaves
 Of Ida's forest, where your highness' hounds
 With open cry pursue the wounded stag.)

Who means to girt Natolia's walls with siege,
Fire the town, and over-run the land.

Call. My royal army is as great as his,
That, from the bounds of Phrygia to the sea
Which washeth Cyprus with his brinish waves,
Covers the hills, the valleys, and the plains.
Viceroy and peers of Turkey, play the men;
Whet all your swords to mangle Tamburlaine,
His sons, his captains, and his followers:
By Mahomet, not one of them shall live!
The field wherein this battle shall be fought
For ever term'd the Persians' sepulchre,
In memory of this our victory.

Orc. Now he that calls himself the scourge of Jove,
The emperor of the world, and earthly god,
Shall end the warlike progress he intends,
And travel headlong to the lake of hell,
Where legions of devils (knowing he must die
Here in Natolia by your highness' hands),
All brandishing their brands of quenchless fire,
Stretching their monstrous paws, grin with their teeth,
And guard the gates to entertain his soul.

Call. Tell me, viceroys, the number of your men,
And what our army royal is esteem'd.

K. of Jer. From Palestina and Jerusalem,
Of Hebrews three score thousand fighting men
Are come, since last we show'd your majesty.

Orc. So from Arabia Desert, and the bounds
Of that sweet land whose brave metropolis
Re-edified the fair Semiramis,
Came forty thousand warlike foot and horse,
Since last we number'd to your majesty.

K. of Treb. From Trebizon in Asia the Less,
Naturalis'd Turks and stout Bithynians
Came to my bands, full fifty thousand more,
(That, fighting, know not what retreat doth mean,
Nor e'er return but with the victory.)
Since last we number'd to your majesty.

K. of Sor. Of Sorians from Halla is repair'd,
And neighbour cities of your highness' land,
Ten thousand horse, and thirty thousand foot,
Since last we number'd to your majesty;
So that the army royal is esteem'd

Six hundred thousand valiant fighting men.

Call. Then welcome, Tamburlaine, unto thy death!

Come, puissant viceroys, let us to the field

(The Persians' sepulchre), and sacrifice

Mountains of breathless men to Mahomet,

Who now, with Jove, opens the firmament

To see the slaughter of our enemies.

Enter TAMBURLAINE with his three sons, CALYPHUS, AMYRAS, and CELEBINUS; USUMCASANE, and others.

Tamb. How now, Casane! see, a knot of kings,

Sitting as if they were a-telling riddles!

Usum. My lord, your presence makes them pale and wan:

Poor souls, they look as if their deaths were near.

Tamb. Why, so he is, Casane; I am here:

But yet I'll save their lives, and make them slaves.—

Ye petty kings of Turkey, I am come,

As Hector did into the Grecian camp,

To over dare the pride of Græcia,

And set his warlike person to the view

Of fierce Achilles, rival of his fame:

I do you honour in the simile;

For, if I should, as Hector did Achilles,

(The worthiest knight that ever brandish'd sword,)

Challenge in combat any of you all,

I see how fearfully ye would refuse,

And fly my glove as from a scorpion.

Orc. Now, thou art fearful of thy army's strength,

Thou wouldst with overmatch of person fight:

But, shepherd's issue, base-born Tamburlaine,

Think of thy end; this sword shall lance thy throat,

Tamb. Villain, the shepherd's issue (at whose birth

Heaven did afford a gracious aspect,

And join'd those stars that shall be opposite

Even till the dissolution of the world,

And never meant to make a conqueror

So famous as is mighty Tamburlaine)

Shall so torment thee, and that Callapine,

That, like a roguish runaway, suborn'd

That villain there, that slave, that Turkish dog,

To false his service to his sovereign,

As ye shall curse the birth of Tamburlaine.

Call. Rail not, proud Scythian: I shall now revenge
My father's vile abuses and mine own.

K. of Jer. By Mahomet, he shall be tied in chains,
Rowing with Christians in a brigandine
About the Grecian isles to rob and spoil,
And turn him to his ancient trade again:
Methinks the slave should make a lusty thief.

Call. Nay, when the battle ends, all we will meet,
And sit in council to invent some pain
That most may vex his body and his soul.

Tamb. Sirrah Callapine, I'll hang a clog about your neck for running away again: you shall not trouble me thus to come and fetch you.—

But as for you, viceroy[s], you shall have bits,
And, harness'd like my horses, draw my coach;
And, when ye stay, be lash'd with whips of wire:
I'll have you learn to feed on provender,
And in a stable lie upon the planks.

Orc. But, Tamburlaine, first thou shalt kneel to us,
And humbly crave a pardon for thy life.

K. of Treb. The common soldiers of our mighty host
Shall bring thee bound unto the general's tent.

K. of Sor. And all have jointly sworn thy cruel death,
Or bind thee in eternal torments' wrath.

Tamb. Well, sirs, diet yourselves; you know I shall have occasion shortly to journey you.

Cel. See, father, how Almeda the jailor looks upon us!

Tamb. Villain, traitor, damned fugitive,
I'll make thee wish the earth had swallow'd thee!
See'st thou not death within my wrathful looks?
Go, villain, cast thee headlong from a rock,
Or rip thy bowels, and rent out thy heart,
T' appease my wrath; or else I'll torture thee,
Searing thy hateful flesh with burning irons
And drops of scalding lead, while all thy joints
Be rack'd and beat asunder with the wheel;
For, if thou liv'st, not any element
Shall shroud thee from the wrath of Tamburlaine.

Call. Well in despite of thee, he shall be king.—

Come, Almeda; receive this crown of me:

I here invest thee king of Ariadan,

Bordering on Mare Roso, near to Mecca,

Orc. What! take it, man.

Alm. [to Tamb.] Good my lord, let me take it.

Call. Dost thou ask him leave? here; take it.

Tamb. Go to, sirrah! take your crown, and make up the half dozen. So, sirrah, now you are a king, you must give arms.

Orc. So he shall, and wear thy head in his scutcheon.

Tamb. No; let him hang a bunch of keys on his standard, to put him in remembrance he was a jailor, that, when I take him, I may knock out his brains with them, and lock you in the stable, when you shall come sweating from my chariot.

K. of Treb. Away! let us to the field, that the villain may be slain.

Tamb. Sirrah, prepare whips, and bring my chariot to my tent; for, as soon as the battle is done, I'll ride in triumph through the camp.

Enter THERIDAMAS, TECHELLES, and their train.

How now, ye petty kings? lo, here are bugs
Will make the hair stand upright on your heads,
And cast your crowns in slavery at their feet!—
Welcome, Theridamas and Techelles, both:
See ye this rout, and know ye this same king?

Ther. Ay, my lord; he was Callapine's keeper.

Tamb. Well now ye see he is a king. Look to him, Theridamas, when we are fighting, lest he hide his crown as the foolish king of Persia did.

K. of Sor. No, Tamburlaine; he shall not be put to that exigent, I warrant thee.

Tamb. You know not, sir.—

But now, my followers and my loving friends,
Fight as you ever did, live conquerors,
The glory of this happy day is yours.
My stern aspect shall make fair Victory,
Hovering betwixt our armies, light on me,
Loaden with laurel-wreaths to crown us all.

Tech. I smile to think how, when this field is fought
And rich Natolia ours, our men shall sweat
With carrying pearl and treasure on their backs.

Tamb. You shall be princes all, immediately.—

Come, fight, ye Turks, or yield us victory.

Orc. No; we will meet thee, slavish Tamburlaine.

[Exeunt severally.]

ACT IV

SCENE I

Alarms within. AMYRAS and CELEBINUS issue from the tent where CALYPHAS sits asleep.

Amy. Now in their glories shine the golden crowns
Of these proud Turks, much like so many suns
That half dismay the majesty of heaven.
Now, brother, follow we our father's sword,
That flies with fury swifter than our thoughts,
And cuts down armies with his conquering wings.

Cel. Call forth our lazy brother from the tent,
For, if my father miss him in the field,
Wrath, kindled in the furnace of his breast,
Will send a deadly lightning to his heart.

Amy. Brother, ho! what, given so much to sleep,
You cannot leave it, when our enemies' drums
And rattling cannons thunder in our ears
Our proper ruin and our father's foil?

Caly. Away, ye fools! my father needs not me,
Nor you, in faith, but that you will be thought
More childish-valourous than manly-wise.
If half our camp should sit and sleep with me,
My father were enough to scare the foe:
You do dishonour to his majesty,
To think our helps will do him any good.

Amy. What, dar'st thou, then, be absent from the fight,
Knowing my father hates thy cowardice,
And oft hath warn'd thee to be still in field,
When he himself amidst the thickest troops
Beats down our foes, to flesh our taintless swords?

Caly. I know, sir, what it is to kill a man;
It works remorse of conscience in me.
I take no pleasure to be murderous,
Nor care for blood when wine will quench my thirst.

Cel. O cowardly boy! fie, for shame, come forth!
Thou dost dishonour manhood and thy house.

Caly. Go, go, tall stripling, fight you for us both,
And take my other toward brother here,
For person like to prove a second Mars.
'Twill please my mind as well to hear, both you

Have won a heap of honour in the field,
And left your slender carcasses behind,
As if I lay with you for company.

Amy. You will not go, then?

Caly. You say true.

Amy. Were all the lofty mounts of Zona Mundi
That fill the midst of farthest Tartary
Turn'd into pearl and proffer'd for my stay,
I would not bide the fury of my father,
When, made a victor in these haughty arms,
He comes and finds his sons have had no shares
In all the honours he propos'd for us.

Caly. Take you the honour, I will take my ease;
My wisdom shall excuse my cowardice:
I go into the field before I need!

[Alarms within. Amyras and Celebinus run out.]

The bullets fly at random where they list;
And, should I go, and kill a thousand men,
I were as soon rewarded with a shot,
And sooner far than he that never fights;
And, should I go, and do no harm not good,
I might have harm, which all the good I have,
Join'd with my father's crown, would never cure.
I'll to cards.—Perdicas!

Enter PERDICAS.

Perd. Here, my lord.

Caly. Come, thou and I will go to cards to drive away the time.

Perd. Content, my lord: but what shall we play for?

Caly. Who shall kiss the fairest of the Turks' concubines first, when my father hath conquered them.

Perd. Agreed, i'faith.

[They play.]

Caly. They say I am a coward, Perdicas, and I fear as little their taratantaras, their swords, or their cannons as I do a naked lady in a net of gold, and, for fear I should be afraid, would put it off and come to bed with me.

Perd. Such a fear, my lord, would never make ye retire.

Caly. I would my father would let me be put in the front of such a battle once, to try my valour! [Alarms within.]
What a coil they keep! I believe there will be some hurt done anon amongst them.

Enter TAMBURLAINE, THERIDAMAS, TECHELLES, USUM-CASANE; AMYRAS and CELEBINUS leading in ORCANES, and the KINGS OF JERUSALEM, TREBIZON, and SORIA; and Soldiers.

Tamb. See now, ye slaves, my children stoop your pride,
And lead your bodies sheep-like to the sword!—
Bring them, my boys, and tell me if the wars
Be not a life that may illustrate gods,
And tickle not your spirits with desire
Still to be train'd in arms and chivalry?

Amy. Shall we let go these kings again, my lord,
To gather greater numbers 'gainst our power,
That they may say, it is not chance doth this,
But matchless strength and magnanimity?

Tamb. No, no, Amyras; tempt not Fortune so:
Cherish thy valour still with fresh supplies,
And glut it not with stale and daunted foes.
But where's this coward villain, not my son,
But traitor to my name and majesty?

[He goes in and brings Calyphas out.]

Image of sloth, and picture of a slave,
The obloquy and scorn of my renown!
How may my heart, thus fired with mine eyes,
Wounded with shame and kill'd with discontent,
Shroud any thought may hold my striving hands
From martial justice on thy wretched soul?

Ther. Yet pardon him, I pray your majesty.

Tech. and Usum. Let all of us entreat your highness' pardon.

Tamb. Stand up, ye base, unworthy soldiers!

Know ye not yet the argument of arms?

Amy. Good, my lord, let him be forgiven for once,
And we will force him to the field hereafter.

Tamb. Stand up, my boys, and I will teach ye arms,
And what the jealousy of wars must do.—

O Samarcanda, where I breathed first,
And joy'd the fire of this martial flesh,
Blush, blush, fair city, at thine honour's foil,
And shame of nature, which Jaertis' stream,
Embracing thee with deepest of his love,
Can never wash from thy distained brows!—
Here, Jove, receive his fainting soul again;
A form not meet to give that subject essence

Whose matter is the flesh of Tamburlaine,
 Wherein an incorporeal spirit moves,
 Made of the mould whereof thyself consists,
 Which makes me valiant, proud, ambitious,
 Ready to levy power against thy throne,
 That I might move the turning spheres of heaven;
 For earth and all this airy region
 Cannot contain the state of Tamburlaine.

[Stabs Calyphas.

By Mahomet, thy mighty friend, I swear,
 In sending to my issue such a soul,
 Created of the massy dregs of earth,
 The scum and tartar of the elements,
 Wherein was neither courage, strength, or wit,
 But folly, sloth, and damned idleness,
 That hast procur'd a greater enemy
 Than he that darted mountains at thy head,
 Shaking the burden mighty Atlas bears,
 Whereat thou trembling hidd'st thee in the air,
 Cloth'd with a pitchy cloud for being seen.—
 And now, ye canker'd curs of Asia,
 That will not see the strength of Tamburlaine,
 Although it shine as brightly as the sun,
 Now you shall feel the strength of Tamburlaine,
 And, by the state of his supremacy,
 Approve the difference 'twixt himself and you.

Orc. Thou show'st the difference 'twixt ourselves and thee,
 In this thy barbarous damned tyranny.

K. of Jer. Thy victories are grown so violent,
 That shortly heaven, fill'd with the meteors
 Of blood and fire thy tyrannies have made,
 Will pour down blood and fire on thy head,
 Whose scalding drops will pierce thy seething brains,
 And, with our bloods, revenge our bloods on thee.

Tamb. Villains, these terrors, and these tyrannies
 (If tyrannies war's justice ye repute),
 I execute, enjoin'd me from above,
 To scourge the pride of such as Heaven abhors;
 Nor am I made arch-monarch of the world,
 Crown'd and invested by the hand of Jove,
 For deeds of bounty or nobility;
 But, since I exercise a greater name,
 The scourge of God and terror of the world,

I must apply myself to fit those terms,
 In war, in blood, in death, in cruelty,
 And plague such peasants as resist in me
 The power of Heaven's eternal majesty.—
 Theridamas, Techelles, and Casane,
 Ransack the tents and the pavilions
 Of these proud Turks, and take their concubines,
 Making them bury this effeminate brat;
 For not a common soldier shall defile
 His manly fingers with so faint a boy:
 Then bring those Turkish harlots to my tent,
 And I'll dispose them as it likes me best.—
 Meanwhile, take him in.

Soldiers. We will, my lord.

[Exeunt with the body of Calyphas.]

K. of Jer. O damned monster! nay, a fiend of hell,
 Whose cruelties are not so harsh as thine,
 Nor yet impos'd with such a bitter hate!

Orc. Revenge it, Rhadamanth and Æacus,
 And let your hates, extended in his pains,
 Excel the hate wherewith he pains our souls!

K. of Treb. May never day give virtue to his eyes,
 Whose sight, compos'd of fury and of fire,
 Doth send such stern affections to his heart!

K. of Sor. May never spirit, vein, or artier, feed
 The cursed substance of that cruel heart;
 But, wanting moisture and remorseful blood,
 Dry up with anger, and consume with heat!

Tamb. Well, bark, ye dogs: I'll bridle all your tongues,
 And bind them close with bits of burnish'd steel,
 Down to the channels of your hateful throats;
 And, with the pains my rigour shall inflict,
 I'll make ye roar, that earth may echo forth
 The far-resounding torments ye sustain;
 As when an herd of lusty Cimbrian bulls
 Run mourning round about the females' miss,
 And, stung with fury of their following,
 Fill all the air with troubles bellowing.
 I will, with engines never exercis'd,
 Conquer, sack, and utterly consume
 Your cities and your golden palaces,
 And, with the flames that beat against the clouds,
 Incense the heavens, and make the stars to melt,

As if they were the tears of Mahomet
 For hot consumption of his country's pride;
 And, till by vision or by speech I hear
 Immortal Jove say "Cease, my Tamburlaine,"
 I will persist a terror to the world,
 Making the meteors (that, like armed men,
 Are seen to march upon the towers of heaven)
 Run tilting round about the firmament,
 And break their burning lances in the air,
 For honour of my wondrous victories,—
 Come, bring them in to our pavilion.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II

Enter OLYMPIA

Olym. Distress'd Olympia, whose weeping eyes,
 Since thy arrival here, behold no sun,
 But, clos'd within the compass of a tent,
 Have stain'd thy cheeks, and made thee look like death,
 Devise some means to rid thee of thy life,
 Rather than yield to his detested suit,
 Whose drift is only to dishonour thee;
 And, since this earth, dew'd with thy brinish tears,
 Affords no herbs whose taste may poison thee,
 Nor yet this air, beat often with thy sighs,
 Contagious smells and vapours to infect thee,
 Nor thy close cave a sword to murder thee,
 Let this invention be the instrument.

Enter THERIDAMAS.

Ther. Well met, Olympia: I sought thee in my tent,
 But, when I saw the place obscure and dark,
 Which with thy beauty thou wast wont to light,
 Enrag'd, I ran about the fields for thee,
 Supposing amorous Jove had sent his son,
 The winged Hermes, to convey thee hence;
 But now I find thee, and that fear is past,
 Tell me, Olympia, wilt thou grant my suit?

Olym. My lord and husband's death, with my sweet son's,
 (With whom I buried all affections
 Save grief and sorrow, which torment my heart),
 Forbids my mind to entertain a thought

- That tends to love, and meditate on death,
 A fitter subject for a pensive soul.
- Ther.* Olympia, pity him in whom thy looks
 Have greater operation and more force
 Than Cynthia's in the watery wilderness;
 For with thy view my joys are at the full,
 And ebb again as thou depart'st from me.
- Olym.* Ah, pity me, my lord, and draw your sword,
 Making a passage for my troubled soul,
 Which beats against this prison to get out,
 And meet my husband and my loving son!
- Ther.* Nothing but still thy husband and thy son?
 Leave this, my love, and listen more to me:
 Thou shalt be stately queen of fair Argier;
 And, cloth'd in costly cloth of massy gold,
 Upon the marble turrets of my court
 Sit like to Venus in her chair of state,
 Commanding all thy princely eye desires;
 And I will cast off arms to sit with thee,
 Spending my life in sweet discourse of love.
- Olym.* No such discourse is pleasant in mine ears,
 But that where every period ends with death,
 And every line begins with death again:
 I cannot love, to be an emperess.
- Ther.* Nay, lady, then, if nothing will prevail,
 I'll use some other means to make you yield:
 Such is the sudden fury of my love,
 I must and will be pleas'd, and you shall yield:
 Come to the tent again.
- Olym.* Stay now, my lord; and, will you save my honour,
 I'll give your grace a present of such price
 As all the world can not afford the like.
- Ther.* What is it?
- Olym.* An ointment which a cunning alchymist
 Distilled from the purest balsamum
 And simplest extracts of all minerals,
 In which the essential form of marble stone,
 Temper'd by science metaphysical,
 And spells of magic from the mouths of spirits,
 With which if you but 'noint your tender skin,
 Nor pistol, sword, nor lance, can pierce your flesh.
- Ther.* Why, madam, think you to mock me thus palpably?
- Olym.* To prove it, I will 'noint my naked throat,

Which when you stab, look on your weapon's point,
And you shall see't rebated with the blow.

Ther. Why gave you not your husband some of it,
If you lov'd him, and it so precious!

Olym. My purpose was, my lord, to spend it so,
But was prevented by his sudden end;
And for a present easy proof thereof,
That I dissemble not, try it on me.

Ther. I will, Olympia, and will keep it for
The richest present of this eastern world.

[She anoints her throat.]

Olym. Now stab, my lord, and mark your weapon's point,
That will be blunted if the blow be great.

Ther. Here, then, Olympia.— [Stabs her,

What, have I slain her? Villain, stab thyself!
Cut off this arm that murdered my love,
In whom the learned Rabbis of this age
Might find as many wondrous miracles
As in the theoria of the world!
Now hell is fairer than Elysium;
A greater lamp than that bright eye of heaven,
From whence the stars do borrow all their light,
Wanders about the black circumference;
And now the damned souls are free from pain,
For every Fury gazeth on her looks;
Infernal Dis is courting of my love,
Inventing masks and stately shows for her,
Opening the doors of his rich treasury
To entertain this queen of chastity;
Whose body shall be tomb'd with all the pomp
The treasure of my kingdom may afford.

[Exit with the body.]

SCENE III

Enter TAMBURLAINE, drawn in his chariot by the KINGS OF TREBIZON and SORIA, with bits in their mouths, reins in his left hand, and in his right hand a whip with which he scourgeth them; AMYRAS, CELEBINUS, TECHELLES, THERIDAMAS, USUMCASANE; ORCANES king of Natolia, and the KING OF JERUSALEM, led by five or six common Soldiers; and other Soldiers.

Tamb. Holla, ye pamper'd jades of Asia!
What, can ye draw but twenty miles a-day,

And have so proud a chariot at your heels,
 And such a coachman as great Tamburlaine,
 But from Asphaltis, where I conquer'd you,
 To Byron here, where thus I honour you?
 The horse that guide the golden eye of heaven,
 And blow the morning from their nostrils,
 Making their fiery gait above the clouds,
 Are not so honour'd in their governor
 As you, ye slaves, in mighty Tamburlaine.
 The headstrong jades of Thrace Alcides tam'd,
 That King Ægeus fed with human flesh,
 And made so wanton that they knew their strengths,
 Were not subdu'd with valour more divine
 Than you by this unconquer'd arm of mine.
 To make you fierce, and fit my appetite,
 You shall be fed with flesh as raw as blood,
 And drink in pails the strongest muscadel:
 If you can live with it, then live, and draw
 My chariot swifter than the racking clouds;
 If not, then die like beasts, and fit for naught
 But perches for the black and fatal ravens.
 Thus am I right the scourge of highest Jove;
 And see the figure of my dignity,
 By which I hold my name and majesty!

Any. Let me have coach, my lord, that I may ride,
 And thus be drawn by these two idle kings.

Tamb. Thy youth forbids such ease, my kingly boy:
 They shall to-morrow draw my chariot,
 While these their fellow-kings may be refresh'd.

Orc. O thou that sway'st the region under earth,
 And art a king as absolute as Jove,
 Come as thou didst in fruitful Sicily,
 Surveying all the glories of the land,
 And as thou took'st the fair Proserpina,
 Joying the fruit of Ceres' garden-plot,
 For love, for honour, and to make her queen,
 So, for just hate, for shame, and to subdue
 This proud contemner of thy dreadful power,
 Come once in fury, and survey his pride,
 Haling him headlong to the lowest hell!

Ther. You majesty must get some bits for these,
 To bridle their contemptuous cursing tongues,
 That, like unruly never-broken jades,

Break through the hedges of their hateful mouths,
And pass their fixed bounds exceedingly.

Tech. Nay, we will break the hedges of their mouths,
And pull their kicking colts out of their pastures.

Usum. Your majesty already hath devis'd
A mean, as fit as may be, to restrain
These coltish coach-horse tongues from blasphemy.

Cel. How like you that, sir king? why speak you not?

K. of Jer. Ah, cruel brat, sprung from a tyrant's loins!
How like his cursed father he begins

To practice taunts and bitter tyrannies!

Tamb. Ay, Turk, I tell thee, this same boy is he
That must (advanc'd in higher pomp than this)

Rifle the kingdoms I shall leave unsack'd,

If Jove, esteeming me too good for earth,

Raise me, to match the fair Aldeboran,

Above the threefold astracism of heaven,

Before I conquer all the triple world.—

Now fetch me out the Turkish concubines:

I will prefer them for the funeral

They have bestow'd on my abortive son.

[The Concubines are brought in.]

Where are my common soldiers now, that fought

So lion-like upon Asphaltis' plains?

Soldiers. Here, my lord.

Tamb. Hold ye, tall soldiers, take ye queens a-piece,—

I mean such queens as were kings' concubines;

Take them; divide them, and their jewels too,

And let them equally serve all your turns.

Soldiers. We thank your majesty.

Tamb. Brawl not, I warn you, for your lechery;

For every man that so offends shall die.

Orc. Injurious tyrant, wilt thou so defame

The hateful fortunes of thy victory,

To exercise upon such guiltless dames

The violence of thy common soldiers' lust?

Tamb. Live continent, then, ye slaves, and meet not me

With troops of harlots at your slothful heels.

Concubines. O pity us, my lord, and save our honours!

Tamb. Are ye not gone, ye villains, with your spoils?

[The Soldiers run away with the Concubines.]

K. of Jer. O, merciless, infernal cruelty!

Tamb. Save your honours! 'twere but time indeed,

Lost long before ye knew what honour meant.

Ther. It seems they meant to conquer us, my lord,
And make us jesting pageants for their trulls.

Tamb. And now themselves shall make our pageant,
And common soliders jest with all their trulls.
Let them take pleasure soundly in their spoils,
Till we prepare our march to Babylon,
Whither we next make expedition.

Tech. Let us not be idle, then, my lord,
But presently be prest to conquer it.

Tamb. We will, Techelles.—Forward, then, ye jades!
Now crouch, ye kings of greatest Asia,
And tremble when ye hear this scourge will come
That whips down cities and controlleth crowns,
Adding their wealth and treasure to my store.
The Euxine sea, north to Natolia;
The Terrene, west; the Caspian, north north-east;
And on the south, Sinus Arabicus;
Shall all be loaden with the martial spoils
We will convey with us to Persia.
Then shall my native city Samarcanda,
And crystal waves of fresh Jaertis' stream,
The pride and beauty of her princely seat,
Be famous through the furthest continents;
For there my palace royal shall be plac'd,
Whose shining turrets shall dismay the heavens,
And cast the fame of Ilion's tower to hell:
Thorough the streets, with troops of conquer'd kings,
I'll ride in golden armour like the sun;
And in my helm a triple plume shall spring,
Spangled with diamonds, dancing in the air,
To note me emperor of the three-fold world;
Like to an almond-tree y-mounted high
Upon the lofty and celestial mount
Of ever-green Selinus, quaintly deck'd
With blooms more white than Erycina's brows,
Whose tender blossoms tremble every one
At every little breath that thorough heaven is blown.
Then in my coach, like Saturn's royal son
Mounted his shining chariot gilt with fire,
And drawn with princely eagles through the path
Pav'd with bright crystal and enchas'd with stars,
When all the gods stand gazing at his pomp,

So will I ride through Samarcanda-streets,
 Until my soul, dissever'd from this flesh,
 Shall mount the milk-white way, and meet him there.
 To Babylon, my lords, to Babylon! [Exeunt.]

ACT V

SCENE I

Enter the GOVERNOR OF BABYLON, MAXIMUS, and others, upon the walls.

Gov. What saith Maximus?

Max. My lord, the breach the enemy hath made
 Gives such assurance of our overthrow,
 That little hope is left to save our lives,
 Or hold our city from the conqueror's hands.
 Then hang out flags, my lord, of humble truce,
 And satisfy the people's general prayers,
 That Tamburlaine's intolerable wrath
 May be suppressed by our submission.

Gov. Villain, respect'st thou more thy slavish life
 Than honour of thy country or thy name?
 Is not my life and state as dear to me,
 The city and my native country's weal,
 As any thing of price with thy conceit?
 Have we not hope, for all our batter'd walls,
 To live secure and keep his forces out,
 When this our famous lake of Limnaspheitis
 Makes walls a-fresh with every thing that falls
 Into the liquid substance of his stream,
 More strong than are the gates of death or hell?
 What faintness should dismay our courages,
 When we are thus defend'd against our foe,
 And have no terror but his threatening looks?

Enter, above, a Citizen, who kneels to the GOVERNOR.

Cit. My lord, if ever you did deed of ruth,
 And now will work a refuge to our lives,
 Offer submission, hang up flags of truce,
 That Tamburlaine may pity our distress,
 And use us like a loving conqueror.
 Though this be held his last day's dreadful siege,

Wherein he spareth neither man nor child,
 Yet are there Christians of Georgia here,
 Whose state he ever pitied and reliev'd,
 Will get his pardon, if your grace would send.

Gov. How is my soul environed!
 And this eternis'd city Babylon
 Fill'd with a pack of faint-heart fugitives
 That thus entreat their shame and servitude!

Enter, above, a Second Citizen.

Sec. Cit. My lord, if ever you will win our hearts,
 Yield up the town, and save our wives and children;
 For I will cast myself from off these walls,
 Or die some death of quickest violence,
 Before I bide the wrath of Tamburlaine.

Gov. Villains, cowards, traitors to our state!
 Fall to the earth, and pierce the pit of hell,
 That legions of tormenting spirits may vex
 Your slavish bosoms with continual pains!
 I care not, nor the town will never yield
 As long as any life is in my breast.

Enter THERIDAMAS and TECHELLES, with Soldiers.

Ther. Thou desperate governor of Babylon,
 To save thy life, and us a little labour,
 Yield speedily the city to our hands,
 Or else be sure thou shalt be forc'd with pains
 More exquisite than ever traitor felt.

Gov. Tyrant, I turn the traitor in thy throat,
 And will defend it in despite of thee.—
 Call up the soldiers to defend these walls.

Tech. Yield, foolish governor; we offer more
 Than ever yet we did to such proud slaves
 As durst resist us till our third day's siege.
 Thou seest us prest to give the last assault,
 And that shall bide no more regard of parle.

Gov. Assault and spare not; we will never yield.

[Alarms : and they scale the walls.]

*Enter TAMBURLAINE, drawn in his chariot (as before) by the KINGS OF TREBIZON and SORIA; AMYRAS, CELEBINUS,
 USUMCASANE; ORCANES king of Natolia, and the King
 OF JERUSALEM, led by Soldiers; and others.*

Tamb. The stately buildings of fair Babylon,

Whose lofty pillars, higher than the clouds,
 Were wont to guide the seaman in the deep,
 Being carried thither by the cannon's force,
 Now fill the mouth of Limnasphaltis' lake,
 And make a bridge unto the batter'd walls.
 Where Belus, Ninus, and great Alexander
 Have rode in triumph, triumphs Tamburlaine,
 Whose chariot-wheels have burst th' Assyrians' bones,
 Drawn with these kings on heaps of carcasses.
 Now in the place, where fair Semiramis,
 Courtied by kings and peers of Asia,
 Hath trod the measures, do my soliders march;
 And in the streets, where brave Assyrian dames
 Have rid in pomp like rich Saturnia,
 With furious words and frowning visages
 My horsemen brandish their unruly blades.

Re-enter THERIDAMAS and TECHELLES, bringing in the GOVERNOR OF BABYLON

Who have ye there, my lords?

Ther. The sturdy governor of Babylon,
 That made us all the labour for the town,
 And us'd such slender reckoning of your majesty.

Tamb. Go, bind the villain; he shall hang in chains
 Upon the ruins of this conquer'd town.—
 Sirrah, the view of our vermilion tents
 (Which threaten'd more than if the region
 Next underneath the element of fire
 Were full of comets and of blazing stars,
 Whose flaming trains should reach down to the earth)
 Could not affright you; no, nor I myself,
 The wrathful messenger of mighty Jove,
 That with his sword hath quail'd all earthly kings,
 Could not persuade you to submission,
 But still the ports were shut: villain, I say,
 Should I but touch the rusty gates of hell,
 The triple headed Cerberus would howl,
 And make black Jove to crouch and kneel to me;
 But I have sent volleys of shot to you.

Yet could not enter till the breach was made.

Gov. Nor, if my body could have stopt the breach,
 Shouldst thou have enter'd, cruel Tamburlaine.

'Tis not thy bloody tents can make me yield,

Nor yet thyself, the anger of the Highest;
For, though thy cannon shook the city-walls,
My heart did never quake, or courage faint.

Tamb. Well, now I'll make it quake.—Go draw him up,
Hang him in chains upon the city walls,
And let my soldiers shoot the slave to death.

Gov. Vile monster, born of some infernal hag,
And sent from hell to tryannise on earth,
Do all thy worst; nor death, nor Tamburlaine,
Torture, or pain, can daunt my dreadless mind.

Tamb. Up with him, then! his body shall be scar'd.

Gov. But, Tamburlaine, in Limnasphaltis' lake
There lies more gold than Babylon is worth,
Which, when the city was besieg'd, I hid:
Save but my life, and I will give it thee.

Tamb. Then, for all your valour, you would save your life?
Whereabout lies it?

Gov. Under a hollow bank, right opposite
Against the western gate of Babylon.

Tamb. Go thither, some of you, and take his gold:—

[Exeunt some Attendants.]

The rest forward with execution.

Away with him hence, let him speak no more.—

I think I make your courage something quail.—

[Exeunt Attendants with the Governor of Babylon.]

When this is done, we'll march from Babylon,
And make our greatest haste to Persia.

These jades are broken winded and half-tir'd;

Unharness them, and let me have fresh horse.

[Attendants unharness the Kings of Trebizon and Soria.]

So; now their best is done to honour me,

Take them and hang them both up presently.

K. of Treb. Vile tyrant! barbarous bloody Tamburlaine!

Tamb. Take them away, Theridamas; see them despatch'd.

Ther. I will, my lord.

[Exit with the Kings of Trebizon and Soria.]

Tamb. Come, Asian viceroys; to your tasks a while,

And take such fortune as your fellows felt.

Orc. First let thy Scythian horse tear both our limbs,

Rather than we should draw thy chariot,

And, like base slaves, abject our princely minds

To vile and ignominious servitude.

K. of Jer. Rather lend me thy weapon, Tamburlaine.

That I may sheathe it in this breast of mine.

A thousand deaths could not torment our hearts

More than the thought of this doth vex our souls.

Amy. They will talk still, my lord, if you do not bridle them.

Tamb. Bridle them, and let me to my coach.

[Attendants bridle Orcanes king of Natolia, and the King of Jerusalem, and harness them to the chariot.—The Governor of Babylon appears hanging in chains on the walls.—Re-enter THERIDAMAS.]

Amy. See, now, my lord, how brave the captain hangs!

Tamb. 'Tis brave indeed, my boy:—well done!—

Shoot first, my lord, and then the rest shall follow.

Ther. Then have at him, to begin withal.

[Theridamas shoots at the Governor.]

Gov. Yet save my life, and let this wound appease

The mortal fury of great Tamburlaine!

Tamb. No, though Asphaltis' lake were liquid gold,

And offer'd me as ransom for thy life,

Yet shouldst thou die.—Shoot at him all at once.

[They shoot.]

So, now he hangs like Bagdet's governor,

Having as many bullets in his flesh

As there be breaches in her batter'd wall.

Go now, and bind the burghers hand and foot,

And cast them headlong in the city's lake.

Tartars and Persians shall inhabit there;

And, to command the city, I will build

A citadel, that all Africa,

Which hath been subject to the Persian king,

Shall pay me tribute for in Babylon.

Tech. What shall be done with their wives and children, my lord?

Tamb. Techelles, drown them all, man, woman, and child;

Leave not a Babylonian in the town.

Tech. I will about it straight.—Come, soldiers.

[Exit with Soldiers.]

Tamb. Now, Casane, where's the Turkish Alcoran,

And all the heaps of superstitious books

Found in the temples of that Mahomet

Whom I have thought a god? they shall be burnt.

Usum. Here thy are, my lord.

Tamb. Well said! let there be a fire presently.

[They light a fire.]

In vain, I see, men worship Mahomet:
 My sword hath sent millions of Turks to hell,
 Slew all his priests, his kinsmen, and his friends,
 And yet I live untouch'd by Mahomet.
 There is a God, full of revenging wrath,
 From whom the thunder and the lightning breaks,
 Whose scourge I am, and him will I obey.
 So, Casane; fling them in the fire.—

[They burn the books.]

Now, Mahomet, if thou have any power,
 Come down thyself and work a miracle:
 Thou art not worthy to be worshipped
 That suffer'st flames of fire to burn the writ
 Wherein the sum of thy religion rests:
 Why send'st thou not a furious whirlwind down,
 To blow thy Alcoran up to thy throne,
 Where men report thou sitt'st by God himself?
 Or vengeance on the head of Tamburlaine
 That shakes his sword against thy majesty,
 And spurns the abstracts of thy foolish laws?—
 Well, soldiers, Mahomet remains in hell;
 He cannot hear the voice of Tamburlaine:
 Seek out another godhead to adore;
 The God that sits in heaven, if any god,
 For he is God alone, and none but he.

Re-enter TECHELLES.

Tech. I have fulfill'd your highness' will, my lord:
 Thousands of men, drown'd in Asphaltis' lake,
 Have made the water swell above the banks,
 And fishes, fed by human carcasses,
 Amaz'd, swim up and down upon the waves,
 As when they swallow assafoetida,
 Which makes them fleet aloft and gape for air

Tamb. Well, then, my friendly lords, what now remains,
 But that we leave sufficient garrison,
 And presently depart to Persia,
 To triumph after all our victories?

Ther. Ay, good my lord, let us in haste to Persia;
 And let this captain be remov'd the walls
 To some high hill about the city here.

Tamb. Let it be so;—about it, soldiers;—
 But stay; I feel myself distemper'd suddenly.

Tech. What is it dares distemper Tamburlaine?

Tamb. Something, Techelles; but I know not what.—

But, forth, ye vassals! whatsoe'er it be,
Sickness or death ~~can~~ never conquer me.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II

Enter CALLAPINE, KING OF AMASIA, a Captain, and train, with drums and trumpets.

Call. King of Amasia, now our mighty host
Marcheth in Asia Major, where the streams
Of Euphrates and Tigris swiftly run;
And here may we behold great Babylon,
Circled about with Limnasphaltis' lake,
Where Tamburlaine with all his army lies,
Which being faint and weary with the siege,
We may lie ready to encounter him
Before his host be full from Babylon,
And so revenge our latest grievous loss,
If God or Mahomet send any aid.

K. of Ama. Doubt not, my lord, but we shall conquer him:
The monster that hath drunk a sea of blood,
And yet gapes still for more to quench his thirst,
Our Turkish swords shall headlong send to hell;
And that vile carcass, drawn by warlike kings,
The fowls shall eat; for never sepulchre
Shall grace this base-born tyrant Tamburlaine.

Call. When I record my parents' slavish life,
Their cruel death, mine own captivity,
My viceroys' bondage under Tamburlaine,
Methinks I could sustain a thousand deaths,
To be reveng'd of all his villany.—
Ah, sacred Mahomet, thou that hast seen
Millions of Turks perish by Tamburlaine,
Kingdoms made waste, brave cities sack'd and burnt,
And but one host is left to honour thee,
Aid thy obedient servant Callapine,
And make him, after all these overthrowes
To triumph over cursed Tamburlaine!

K. of Ama. Fear not, my lord: I see great Mahomet,
Clothed in purple clouds, and on his head
A chaplet brighter than Apollo's crown,

Marching about the air with armed men,
To join with you against this Tamburlaine.

Capt. Renowned general, mighty Callapine,
Though God himself and holy Mahomet
Should come in person to resist your power,
Yet might your mighty host encounter all,
And pull proud Tamburlaine upon his knees
To sue for mercy at your highness' feet.

Call. Captain, the force of Tamburlaine is great,
His fortune greater, and the victories
Wherewith he hath so sore dismay'd the world
Are greatest to discourage all our drifts;
Yet, when the pride of Cynthia is at full,
She wanes again; and so shall his, I hope;
For we have here the chief selected men
Of twenty several kingdoms at the least;
Nor ploughman, priest, nor merchant, stays at home;
All Turkey is in arms with Callapine;
And never will we sunder camps and arms
Before himself or his be conquered:
This is the time that must eternise me
For conquering the tyrant of the world.
Come, soldiers, let us lie in wait for him,
And, if we find him absent from his camp,
Or that it be rejoin'd again at full,
Assail it, and be sure of victory.

[Exeunt.]

SCENE III.

Enter THERIDAMAS, TECHELLES, and USUMCASANE.

Ther. Weep, heavens, and vanish into liquid tears!
Fall, stars that govern his nativity,
And summon all the shining lamps of heaven
To cast their bootless fires to the earth,
And shed their feeble influence in the air;
Muffle your beauties with eternal clouds;
For Hell and Darkness pitch their pitchy tents,
And Death, with armies of Cimmerian spirits,
Gives battle 'gainst the heart of Tamburlaine!
Now, in defiance of that wonted love
Your sacred virtues pour'd upon his throne,
And made his state an honour to the heavens,
These cowards invisibly assail his soul,

And threaten conquest on our sovereign;
 But, if he die, your glories are disgrac'd,
 Earth droops, and says that hell in heaven is plac'd!

Tech. O, then, ye powers that sway eternal seats,
 And guide this massy substance of the earth,
 If you retain desert of holiness,
 As your supreme estates instruct our thoughts,
 Be not inconstant, careless of your fame,
 Bear not the burden of your enemies' joys,
 Triumphant in his fall when you advanc'd;
 But, as his birth, life, health, and majesty
 Were strangely blest and governed by heaven,
 So honour, heaven (till heaven dissolved be,)
 His birth, his life, his health, and majesty!

Usum. Blush, heaven, to lose the honour of thy name,
 To see thy footstool set upon thy head;
 And let no baseness in thy haughty breast
 Sustain a shame of such inexcellence,
 To see the devils mount in angels' thrones,
 And angels dive into the pools of hell!
 And, though they think their painful date is out,
 And that their power is puissant as Jove's,
 Which makes them manage arms against thy state,
 Yet make them feel the strength of Tamburlaine
 (Thy instrument and note of majesty)
 Is greater far than they can thus subdue;
 For, if he die, thy glory is disgrac'd,
 Earth droops, and says that hell in heaven is plac'd!

*Enter TAMBURLAINE, drawn in his chariot (as before) by OR-
 CANES king of Natolia, and the KING OF JERUSALEM, AMYRAS, CELEBINUS, and Physicians.*

Tamb. What daring god torments my body thus,
 And seeks to conquer mighty Tamburlaine?
 Shall sickness prove me now to be a man,
 That have been term'd the terror of the world?
 Techelles and the rest, come, take your swords,
 And threaten him whose hand afflicts my soul:
 Come, let us march against the powers of heaven,
 And set black streamers in the firmament,
 To signify the slaughter of the gods.
 Ah, friends, what shall I do? I cannot stand.
 Come, carry me to war against the gods,

That thus envy the health of Tamburlaine.

Ther. Ah, good my lord, leave these impatient words,
Which add much danger to your malady!

Tamb. Why, shall I sit and languish in this pain?
No, strike the drums, and, in revenge of this,
Come, let us charge our spears, and pierce his breast
Whose shoulders bear the axis of the world,
That, if I perish, heaven and earth may fade.
Theridamas, haste to the court of Jove;
Will him to send Apollo hither straight,
To cure me, or I'll fetch him down myself.

Tech. Sit still, my gracious lord; this grief will cease,
And cannot last, it is so violent.

Tamb. Not last, Techelles! no, for I shall die.
See, where my slave, the ugly monster Death,
Shaking and quivering, pale and wan for fear,
Stands aiming at me with his murdering dart,
Who flies away at every glance I give,
And, when I look away, comes stealing on!—
Villain, away, and hie thee to the field!
I and mine army come to load thy back
With souls of thousand mangled carcasses.—
Look, where he goes! but, see, he comes again,
Because I stay! Techelles, let us march,
And weary Death with bearing souls to hell.

First Phy. Pleaseth your majesty to drink this potion,
Which will abate the fury of your fit,
And cause some milder spirits govern you.

Tamb. Tell me what think you of my sickness now?

First Phy. I view'd your urine, and the hypostasis,
Thick and obscure, doth make your danger great:
Your veins are full of accidental heat,
Whereby the moisture of your blood is dried:
The humidum and calor, which some hold
Is not a parcel of the elements,
But of a substance more divine and pure,
Is almost clean extinguished and spent;
Which, being the cause of life, imports your death:
Besides, my lord, this day is critical,
Dangerous to those whose crisis is as yours:
Your artiers, which amongst the veins convey
The lively spirits which the heart engenders,
Are parch'd and void of spirit, that the soul,

Wanting those organons by which it moves,
Cannot endure, by argument of art.

Yet, if your majesty may escape this day,
No doubt but you shall soon recover all.

Tamb. Then will I comfort all my vital parts,
And live, in spite of death, above a day.

[Alarms within.]

Enter a Messenger.

Mes. My lord, young Callapine, that lately fled from your majesty, hath now gathered a fresh army, and, hearing your absence in the field, offers to set upon us presently.

Tamb. See, my physicians, now, how Jove hath sent
A present medicine to recure my pain!
My looks shall make them fly; and, might I follow,
There should not one of all the villain's power
Live to give offer of another fight.

Usum. I joy, my lord, your highness is so strong,
That can endure so well your royal presence,
Which only will dismay the enemy.

Tamb. I know it will, Casane.—Draw, you slaves!
In spite of death, I will go show my face.

[Alarms. Exit Tamburlaine with all the rest (except the Physicians), and re-enter presently.]

Tamb. Thus are the villain cowards fled for fear,
Like summer's vapours vanish'd by the sun;
And, could I but a while pursue the field,
That Callapine should be my slave again.
But I perceive my martial strength is spent:
In vain I strive and rail against those powers
That mean t' invest me in a higher throne,
As much too high for this disdainful earth.
Give me a map; then let me see how much
Is left for me to conquer all the world.
That these, my boys, may finish all my wants.

[One brings a map.]

Here I began to march towards Persia,
Along Armenia and the Caspian Sea,
And thence unto Bithynia, where I took
The Turk and his great empress prisoners.
Then march'd I into Egypt and Arabia;
And here, not far from Alexandria,
Whereas the Terrene and the Red Sea meet,

Being distant less than full a hundred leagues,
I meant to cut a channel to them both,
That men might quickly sail to India.
From thence to Nubia near Borno-lake,
And so along the Æthiopian sea,
Cutting the tropic line of Capricorn,
I conquer'd all as far as Zanzibar.
Then, by the northern part of Africa,
I came at last to Græcia, and from thence
To Asia, where I stay against my will;
Which is from Scythia, where I first began,
Backward[s] and forwards near five thousand leagues.
Look here, my boys; see, what a world of ground
Lies westward from the midst of Cancer's line
Unto the rising of this earthly globe,
Whereas the sun, declining from our sight,
Begins the day with our Antipodes!
And shall I die, and this unconquered?
Lo, here, my sons, are all the golden mines,
Inestimable drugs and precious stones,
More worth than Asia and the world beside;
And from th'Antarctic Pole eastward behold
As much more land, which never was descried,
Wherein are rocks of pearl that shine as bright
As all the lamps that beautify the sky!
And shall I die, and this unconquered?
Here, lovely boys; what death forbids my life,
That let your lives command in spite of death.
Amy. Alas, my lord, how should our bleeding hearts,
Wounded and broken with your highness' grief,
Retain a thought of joy or spark of life?
Your soul gives essence to our wretched subjects,
Whose matter is incorporate in your flesh.
Cel. Your pains do pierce our souls; no hope survives,
For by your life we entertain our lives.
Tamb. But, sons, this subject, not of force enough
To hold the fiery spirit it contains,
Must part, imparting his impressions
By equal portions into both your breasts;
My flesh, divided in your precious shapes,
Shall still retain my spirit, though I die,
And live in all your seeds immortally.—
Then now remove me, that I may resign

My place and proper title to my son.—
 First, take my scourge and my imperial crown,
 And mount my royal chariot of estate,
 That I may see thee crown'd before I die.—
 Help me, my lords, to make my last remove.

[They assist Tamburlaine to descend from the chariot.]

Ther. A woful change, my lord, that daunts our thoughts
 More than the ruin of our proper souls!

Tamb. Sit up, my son, [and] let me see how well
 Thou wilt become thy father's majesty.

Amy. With what a flinty bosom should I joy
 The breath of life and burden of my soul,
 If not resolv'd into resolved pains,
 My body's mortified lineaments
 Should exercise the motions of my heart,
 Pierc'd with the joy of any dignity!
 O father, if the unrelenting ears
 Of Death and Hell be shut against my prayers,
 And that the spiteful influence of Heaven
 Deny my soul fruition of her joy,
 How should I step, or stir my hateful feet
 Against the inward powers of my heart,
 Leading a life that only strives to die,
 And plead in vain unpleasing sovereignty?

Tamb. Let not thy love exceed thine honour, son,
 Nor bar thy mind that magnanimity
 That nobly must admit necessity.
 Sit up, my boy, and with these silken reins
 Bridle the steeled stomachs of these jades.

Ther. My lord, you must obey his majesty,
 Since fate commands and proud necessity.

Amy. Heavens witness me with what a broken heart

[Mounting the chariot.]

And damned spirit I ascend this seat,
 And send my soul, before my father die,
 His anguish and his burning agony!

[They crown Amyras.]

Tamb. Now fetch the hearse of fair Zenocrate;
 Let it be plac'd by this my fatal chair,
 And serve as parcel of my funeral.

Usum. Then feels your majesty no sovereign ease,
 Nor may our hearts, all drown'd in tears of blood,
 Joy any hope of your recovery?

Tamb. Casane, no; the monarch of the earth,
 . And eyeless monster that torments my soul,
 Cannot behold the tears ye shed for me,
 And therefore still augments his cruelty.

Tech. Then let some god oppose his holy power
 Against the wrath and tyranny of Death,
 That his tear-thirsty and unquenched hate
 May be upon himself reverberate!

[They bring in the hearse of Zenocrate.]

Tamb. Now, eyes, enjoy your latest benefit,
 And, when my soul hath virtue of your sight,
 Pierce through the coffin and the sheet of gold,
 And glut your longings with a heaven of joy.
 So, reign, my son; scourge and control those slaves,
 Guiding thy chariot with thy father's hand.
 As precious is the charge thou undertak'st
 As that which Clymene's brain-sick son did guide,
 When wandering Phœbe's ivory cheeks were scorch'd,
 And all the earth, like Ætna, breathing fire:
 Be warn'd by him, then; learn with awful eye
 To sway a throne as dangerous as his;
 For, if thy body thrive not full of thoughts
 As pure and fiery as Phyteus' beams,
 The nature of these proud rebelling jades
 Will take occasion by the slenderest hair,
 And draw thee piecemeal, like Hippolytus,
 Through rocks more steep and sharp than Caspian cliffs:
 The nature of thy chariot will not bear
 A guide of baser temper than myself,
 More than heaven's coach the pride of Phaeton.
 Farewell, my boys! my dearest friends, farewell!
 My body feels, my soul doth weep to see
 Your sweet desires depriv'd my company,
 For Tamburlaine, the scourge of God, must die.

[Dies.]

Amy. Meet heaven and earth, and here let all things end,
 For earth hath spent the pride of all her fruit,
 And heaven consum'd his choicest living fire!
 Let earth and heaven his timeless death deplore,
 For both their worths will equal him no more!

[Exeunt.]

Chorus. Not marching now in fields of Thrasy-mene,
Where Mars did mate the Carthaginians;
Nor sporting in the dalliance of love,
In courts of kings where state is overturn'd;
Nor in the pomp of proud audacious deeds,
Intends our Muse to vaunt her heavenly verse:
Only this, gentlemen,—we must perform
The form of Faustus' fortunes, good or bad:
To patient judgments we appeal our plaud,
And speak for Faustus in his infancy.
Now is he born, his parents base of stock,
In Germany, within a town call'd Rhodes:
Of riper years, to Wertenberg he went,
Whereas his kinsmen chiefly brought him up.
So soon he profits in divinity,

The full plot of scholarism grac'd,
That he was grac'd with doctor's name,
Excellent whose sweet delight disputes
In heavenly matters of theology;
Till starv'd with cunning, of a self-conceit,
His wondrousings did mount above his reach,
And, like a devil, the heavens conspir'd his overthrow;
For, to a devilish exercise,
And to a hellish show with learning's golden gifts,
He gave his soul upon cursed necromancy;
Which more than magic is to him,
More than his chiefest bliss:
Which more than that in his study sits.

[Exit.

Faustus discovered in his study.
In his studies, Faustus, and begin
To the depth of that thou wilt profess:
Thou shalt be a divine in show,
The chiefest end of every art,
As Aristotle in Aristotle's works.
Alas, 'tis thou hast ravish'd me!
disce et finis logices. To argue
Thou shalt be, logic's chiefest end?
Thou shalt be, no greater miracle?
Thou shalt be, thou hast attain'd that end:
Thou shalt be, fitteth Faustus' wit:
Thou shalt be, farewell, and Galen come,
Incipit philosophus, ibi incipit medicus:
Thou shalt be, Faustus; heap up gold,
Thou shalt be, for some wondrous cure:
Incipit monum medicinæ sanitas,
Thou shalt be, of physic is our body's health.
Thou shalt be, hast thou not attain'd that end?
Thou shalt be, common talk found aphorisms?
Thou shalt be, thy bills hung up as monuments,
Thou shalt be, whole cities have escap'd the plague,
Thou shalt be, thousand desperate maladies been eas'd?
Thou shalt be, thou still but Faustus, and a man,
Thou shalt be, thou make men to live eternally,
Thou shalt be, dead, raise them to life.
Thou shalt be, this profession were to be Thou shalt be, farewell! Where is Too servile and illiberal for me.

Enter WAGNER.

Wagner, commend me to my dearest friends,

The German Valdes and Cornelius;

Request them earnestly to visit me.

Wag. I will, sir. [Over]

Faust. Their commendation be a greater help to

Than all my labours; [redacted] ne'er so fast.

Enter Good Angel and Evil Angel.

G. Ang. O, Faustus, lay thy damned book aside,
And gaze not on it, lest it tempt thy soul,
And heap God's heavy wrath upon thy head!
Read, read the Scriptures:—that is blasphemy.

E. Ang. Go forward, Faustus, in that famous art
Wherein all Nature's treasure is contain'd:
Be thou on earth as Jove is in the sky,
Lord and commander of these elements.

[Exeunt Angels]

Faust. How am I glutted with conceit of this!
Shall I make spirits fetch me what I please,
Resolve me of all ambiguities,
Perform what desperate enterprise I will?
I'll have them fly to India for gold,
Ransack the ocean for orient pearl,
And search all corners of the new-found world
For pleasant fruits and princely delicates;
I'll have them read me strange philosophy,
And tell the secrets of all foreign kings;
I'll have them wall all Germany with brass,
And make swift Rhine circle fair Wertenberg;
I'll have them fill the public schools with silk,
Wherewith the students shall be bravely clad;
I'll levy soldiers with the coin they bring,
And chase the Prince of Parma from our land,
And reign sole king of all the provinces;
Yea, stranger engines for the brunt of war,
Than was the fiery keel at Antwerp's bridge,
I'll make my servile spirits to invent.

Enter VALDES and CORNELIUS.

Come, German Valdes and Cornelius,
And make me blest with your sage conference.
Valdes, sweet Valdes, and Cornelius,
Know that your words have won me at the last
To practise magic and concealed arts:
Yet not your words only, but mine own fantasy,
That will receive no object; for my head
But ruminates on necromantic skill.
Philosophy is odious and obscure;
Both law and physic are for petty wits:

Divinity is basest of the three,
 Unpleasant, harsh, contemptible, and vile:
 'Tis magic, magic, that hath ravish'd me.
 Then, gentle friends, aid me in this attempt;
 And I, that have with concise syllogisms
 Gravell'd the pastors of the German church.
 And made the flowering pride of Wertenberg
 Swarm to my problems, as the infernal spirits
 On sweet Musæus when he came to hell,
 Will be as cunning as Agrippa was,
 Whose shadow made all Europe honour him.

Vald. Faustus, these books, thy wit, and our experience,
 Shall make all nations to canonise us.
 As Indian Moors obey their Spanish lords,
 So shall the spirits of every element
 Be always serviceable to us three;
 Like lions shall they guard us when we please;
 Like Almain rutters with their horsemen's staves,
 Or Lapland giants, trotting by our sides;
 Sometimes like women, or unwedded maids,
 Shadowing more beauty in their airy brows
 Than have the white breasts of the queen of love:
 From Venice shall they drag huge argosies,
 And from America the golden fleece
 That yearly stuffs old Philip's treasury;
 If learned Faustus will be resolute.

Faust. Valdes, as resolute am I in this
 As thou to live: therefore object it not.

Corn. The miracles that magic will perform
 Will make thee vow to study nothing else.
 He that is grounded in astrology,
 Enrich'd with tongues, well seen in minerals,
 Hath all the principles magic doth require:
 Then doubt not, Faustus, but to be renown'd,
 And more frequented for this mystery
 Than heretofore the Delphian oracle.
 The spirits tell me they can dry the sea,
 And fetch the treasure of all foreign wrecks,
 Ay, all the wealth that our forefathers hid
 Within the massy entrails of the earth:
 Then tell me, Faustus, what shall we three want?

Faust. Nothing, Cornelius. O, this cheers my soul!
 Come, show me some demonstrations magical,

That I may conjure in some lusty grove,
And have these joys in full possession.

Vald. Then haste thee to some solitary grove,
And bear wise Bacon's and Albertus' works,
The Hebrew Psalter, and New Testament;
And whatsoever else is requisite

We will inform thee ere our conference cease.

Corn. Valdes, first let him know the words of art;
And then, all other ceremonies learn'd,
Faustus may try his cunning by himself.

Vald. First I'll instruct thee in the rudiments,
And then wilt thou be perfecter than I.

Faust. Then come and dine with me, and, after meat,
We'll canvass every quiddity thereof;
For, ere I sleep, I'll try what I can do:
This night I'll conjure, though I die therefore.

[Exeunt.]

Enter two Scholars.

First Schol. I wonder what's become of Faustus, that was wont to make our schools ring with sic probō. Thūc I prove

Sec. Schol. That shall we know, for see, here comes his boy.

Enter WAGNER

First Schol. How now, sirrah! where's thy master?

Wag. God in heaven knows.

Sec. Schol. Why, dost not thou know?

Wag. Yes, I know; but that follows not.

First Schol. Go to, sirrah! leave your jesting, and tell us where he is.

Wag. That follows not necessary by force of argument, that you, being licentiates, should stand upon: therefore acknowledge your error, and be attentive

Sec. Schol. Why, didst thou not say thou knewest?

Wag. Have you any witness on't?

First Schol. Yes, sirrah, I heard you.

Wag. Ask my fellow if I be a thief.

Sec. Schol. Well, you will not tell us?

Wag. Yes, sir, I will tell you; yet, if you were not dunces, you would never ask me such a question, for is not he ✓ corpus naturale? and is not that mobile? then wherefore should you ask me such a question? But that I am by nature phlegmatic, slow to wrath, and prone to lechery

(to love, I would say), it were not for you to come within forty foot of the place of execution, although I do not doubt to see you both hanged the next sessions. Thus having triumphed over you, I will set my countenance like a precisian, and begin to speak thus:—Truly, my dear brethren, my master is within at dinner, with Valdes and Cornelius, as this wine, if it could speak, would inform your worships: and so, the Lord bless you, preserve you, and keep you, my dear brethren, my dear brethren!

[Exit.

First Schol. Nay, then, I fear he has fallen into that damned art for which they two are infamous through the world.

Sec. Schol. Were he a stranger, and not allied to me, yet should I grieve for him. But, come, let us go and inform the Rector, and see if he by his grave counsel can reclaim him.

First Schol. O, but I fear me nothing can reclaim him!

Sec. Schol. Yet let us try what we can do. [Exeunt.

Enter FAUSTUS to conjure.

Faust. Now that the gloomy shadow of the earth,
Longing to view Orion's drizzling look,
Leaps from th' antarctic world unto the sky,
And dims the welkin with her pitchy breath,
Faustus, begin thine incantations,
And try if devils will obey thy hest,
Seeing thou hast pray'd and sacrific'd to them,
Within this circle is Jehovah's name,
Forward and backward anagrammatis'd,
Th' abbreviated names of holy saints,
Figures of every adjunct to the heavens,
And characters of signs and erring stars, wandering
By which the spirits are enforc'd to rise:
Then fear not, Faustus, but be resolute,
And try the uttermost magic can perform.—

*Sint mihi dei Acherontis propitii! Valeat numen triplex Jehovæ! Ignei, ærii, aquatani spiritus, salvet! Orientis princeps Belzebub, inferni ardentis monarcha, et Demogorgon, propitiamus vos, ut appareat et surgat Mephistophilis, quod
tumeraris: per Jehovah, Gehennam, et consecratam aquam quam nunc spargo, signumque crucis quod nunc facio, et per vota nostra, ipse nunc surgat nobis dicatus Mephistophilis!*

Enter MEPHISTOPHILIS.

I charge thee to return, and change thy shape;
Thou art too ugly to attend on me:
Go, and return an old Franciscan friar;
That holy shape becomes a devil best.

[Exit Mephistophilis.]

I see there's virtue in my heavenly words:
Who would not be proficient in this art?
How pliant is this Mephistophilis,
Full of obedience and humility!
Such is the force of magic and my spells:
No, Faustus, thou art conjuror laureat,
That canst command great Mephistophilis:
Quin regis Mephistophilis fratris imagine.

Re-enter MEPHISTOPHILIS like a Franciscan friar.

Meph. Now, Faustus, what wouldst thou have me do?

Faust. I charge thee wait upon me whilst I live,
To do whatever Faustus shall command,
Be it to make the moon drop from her sphere,
Or the ocean to overwhelm the world.

Meph. I am a servant to great Lucifer,
And may not follow thee without his leave:
No more than he commands must we perform.

Faust. Did not he charge thee to appear to me?

Meph. No, I came hither of mine own accord.

Faust. Did not my conjuring speeches raise thee? speak.

Meph. That was the cause, but yet per accidens;
For, when we hear one rack the name of God,
Abjure the Scriptures and his Saviour Christ,
We fly, in hope, to get his glorious soul;
Nor will we come, unless he use such means
Whereby he is in danger to be damn'd.
Therefore the shortest cut for conjuring
Is stoutly to abjure the Trinity,
And pray devoutly to the prince of hell.

Faust. So Faustus hath
Already done; and holds this principle,
There is no chief but only Belzebub;
To whom Faustus doth dedicate himself.
This word "damnation" terrifies not him,
For he confounds hell in Elysium:

His ghost be with the old philosophers!
 But, leaving these vain trifles of men's souls,
 Tell me what is that Lucifer thy lord?

Meph. Arch-regent and commander of all spirits.

Faust. Was not that Lucifer an angel once?

Meph. Yes, Faustus, and most dearly lov'd of God.

Faust. How comes it, then, that he is prince of devils?

Meph. O, by aspiring pride and insolence;
 For which God threw him from the face of heaven.

Faust. And what are you that live with Lucifer?

Meph. Unhappy spirits that fell with Lucifer?

Conspir'd against our God with Lucifer,
 And are for ever damn'd with Lucifer.

Faust. Where are you damn'd?

Meph. In hell.

Faust. How comes it, then, that thou art out of hell?

Meph. Why, this is hell, nor am I out of it.

Think'st thou that I, who saw the face of God,
 And tasted the eternal joys of heaven,
 Am not tormented with ten thousand hells,
 In being depriv'd of everlasting bliss?

O, Faustus, leave these frivolous demands,
 Which strike a terror to my fainting soul!

Faust. What, is great Mephistophilis so passionate
 For being deprived of the joys of heaven?

Learn thou of Faustus manly fortitude,
 And scorn those joys thou never shalt possess.

Go hear these tidings to great Lucifer:
 Seeing Faustus hath incurr'd eternal death
 By desperate thoughts against Jove's deity,
 Say, he surrenders up to him his soul,
 So he will spare him four-and-twenty years,
 Letting him live in all voluptuousness;
 Having thee ever to attend on me,
 To give me whatsoever I shall ask,
 To tell me whatsoever I demand,
 To slay mine enemies, and aid my friends,
 And always be obedient to my will.

Go and return to mighty Lucifer,
 And meet me in my study at midnight,
 And then resolve me of thy master's mind.

Meph. I will, Faustus.

Faust. Had I as many souls as there be stars,

[Exit.

I'd give them all for Mephistophilis.
 By him I'll be great emperor of the world,
 And make a bridge thorough the moving air,
 To pass the ocean with a band of men;
 I'll join the hills that bind the Afric shore,
 And make that country continent to Spain,
 And both contributory to my crown:
 The Emperor shall not live but by my leave,
 For any potentate of Germany.
 Now that I have obtained what I desir'd,
 I'll live in speculation of this art, study
 Till Mephistophilis return again.

[Exit.]

Enter WAGNER and Clown.

Wag. Sirrah boy, come hither.

Clown. How, boy! swowns, boy! I hope you have seen many boys with such pickadevaunts as I have: boy, quotha!

Wag. Tell me, sirrah, hast thou any comings in?

Clown. Ay, and goings out too; you may see else.

Wag. Alas, poor slave! see how poverty jesteth in his nakedness! the villain is bare and out of service, and so hungry, that I know he would give his soul to the devil for a shoulder of mutton, though it were blood-raw.

Clown. How! my soul to the devil for a shoulder of mutton, though 'twere blood-raw! not so, good friend: by'r lady, I had need have it well roasted, and good sauce to it, if I pay so dear.

Wag. Well, wilt thou serve me, and I'll make thee go like Qui mihi discipulus?

Clown. How, in verse?

Wag. No, sirrah; in beaten silk and staves-acre.

Clown. How, how, knaves-acre! ay, I thought that was all the land his father left him. Do you hear? I would be sorry to rob you of your living.

Wag. Sirrah, I say in staves-acre.

Clown. Oho, oho, staves-acre! why, then, belike, if I were your man, I should be full of vermin.

Wag. So thou shalt, whether thou beest with me or no. But, sirrah, leave your jesting, and bind yourself presently unto me for seven years, or I'll turn all the lice about thee into familiars, and they shall tear thee in pieces.

Clown. Do you hear, sir? you may save that labour; they are too familiar with me already: swowns, they are as bold with my flesh as if they had paid for their meat and drink.

Wag. Well, do your hear, sirrah? hold, take these guilders.
[Gives money.]

Clown. Gridirons! what be they?

Wag. Why, French crowns.

Clown. Mass, but for the name of French crowns, a man were as good have as many English counters. And what should I do with these?

Wag. Why, now, sirrah, thou art at an hour's warning, whensoever and wheresoever the devil shall fetch thee.

Clown. No, no; here, take your gridirons again.

Wag. Truly, I'll none of them.

Clown. Truly, but you shall.

Wag. Bear witness I gave them him.

Clown. Bear witness I give them you again.

Wag. Well, I will cause two devils presently to fetch thee away.—Baliol and Belcher!

Clown. Let your Baliol and your Belcher come here, and I'll knock them, they were never so knocked since they were devils: say I should kill one of them, what would folks say? "Do ye see yonder tall fellow in the round slop? he has killed the devil." So I should be called Kill-devil all the parish over.

Enter two Devils; and the Clown runs up and down crying.

Wag. Baliol and Belcher,—spirits, away!

[Exeunt Devils.]

Clown. What, are they gone? a vengeance on them! they have vile long nails. There was a he-devil and a she-devil: I'll tell you how you shall know them; all he-devils has horns, and all she-devils has clifts and cloven feet.

Wag. Well, sirrah, follow me.

Clown. But, do you hear? if I should serve you, would you teach me to raise up Banios and Belcheos?

Wag. I will teach thee to turn thyself to anything, to a dog, or a cat, or a mouse, or a rat, or anything.

Clown. How! a Christian fellow to a dog, or a cat, a mouse, or a rat! no, no, sir; if you turn me into anything, let it be in the likeness of a little pretty frisking flea, that I may be here and there and everywhere: O, I'll tickle the pretty wenches' plackets! I'll be amongst them, i'faith.

Wag. Well, sirrah, come.

Clown. But, do you hear, Wagner?

Wag. How!—Baliol and Belcher!

Clown. O Lord! I pray, sir, let Banio and Belcher go sleep.

Wag. Villain, call me Master Wagner, and let thy left eye be diametrically fixed upon my right heel, with quasi vestigiis nostris insistere. [Exit.]

Clown. God forgive me, he speaks Dutch fustian.

Well, I'll follow him; I'll serve him, that's flat. [Exit.]

FAUSTUS discovered in his study.

Faust. Now, Faustus, must

Thou needs be damn'd, and canst thou not be sav'd:

What boots it, then, to think of God or heaven?

Away with such vain fancies, and despair;

Despair in God, and trust in Belzebub:

Now go not backward; no, Faustus, be resolute:

Why waver'st thou? O, something soundeth in mine ears,

"Abjure this magic, turn to God again!"

Ay, and Faustus will turn to God again.

To God? he loves thee not;

The god thou serv'st is thine own appetite,

Wherein is fix'd the love of Belzebub:

To him I'll build an altar and a church,

And offer lukewarm blood of new-born babes.

Enter Good Angel and Evil Angel.

Ang. Sweet Faustus, leave that execrable art.

Evil. Contrition, prayer, repentance—what of them?

O, they are means to bring thee unto heaven!

Rather illusions, fruits of lunacy,

make men foolish that do trust them most.

Sweet Faustus, think of heaven and heavenly things.

No, Faustus; think of honour and of wealth.

[Exeunt Angels.]

Of wealth!

Ay, the signiory of Embden shall be mine.

He Mephistophilis shall stand by me,

that god can hurt thee, Faustus? thou art safe:

Thou hast no more doubts.—Come, Mephistophilis,

and bring glad tidings from great Lucifer;—

Is't not midnight?—come, Mephistophilis,
Veni, veni Mephistophile!

Enter MEPHISTOPHILIS.

Now tell me what says Lucifer, thy lord?

Meph. That I shall wait on Faustus whilst he lives,
 So he will buy my service with his soul.

Faust. Already Faustus hath hazarded that for thee.

Meph. But, Faustus, thou must bequeath it solemnly,
 And write a deed of gift with thine own blood;
 For that security craves great Lucifer.
 If thou deny it, I will back to hell.

Faust. Stay, Mephistophilis, and tell me, what good will my soul do thy lord?

Meph. Enlarge his kingdom.

Faust. Is that the reason why he tempts us thus?

Meph. Solamen miseris socios habuisse doloris. Misery to

Faust. Why, have you any pain that torture others?

Meph. As great as have the human souls of men.

But, tell me, Faustus, shall I have thy soul?

And I will be thy slave, and wait on thee,

And give thee more than thou hast wit to ask.

Faust. Ay, Mephistophilis, I give it thee.

Meph. Then, Faustus, stab thy arm courageously,
 And bind thy soul, that at some certain day
 Great Lucifer may claim it as his own;
 And then be thou as great as Lucifer.

Faust. [Stabbing his arm] Lo, Mephistophilis, for love of thee,

I cut mine arm, and with my proper blood

Assure my soul to be great Lucifer's,

Chief lord and regent of perpetual night!

View here the blood that trickles from mine arm,
 And let it be propitious for my wish.

Meph. But, Faustus, thou must

Write it in manner of a deed of gift.

Faust. Ay, so I will [Writes]. But, Mephistophilis,
 My blood congeals, and I can write no more.

Meph. I'll fetch thee fire to dissolve it straight.

Faust. Why might the staying of my blood portend?
 Is it unwilling I should write this bill?

Why streams it not, that I may write afresh?

Faustus gives to thee his soul: ah, there it stay'd!

Why shouldst thou not? is not thy soul thine own?
Then write again, Faustus gives to thee his soul.

Re-enter MEPHISTOPHILIS with a chafar of coals.

Meph. Here's fire; come, Faustus, set it on.

Faust. So, now the blood begins to clear again;

Now will I make an end immediately. [Writes.]

Meph. O, what will not I do to obtain his soul! [Aside.]

Faust. Consummatum est; this bill is ended, It is finished

And Faustus hath bequeathed his soul to Lucifer.

But what is this inscription on mine arm?

Homo, fuge: whither should I fly?

If unto God, he'll throw me down to hell.

My senses are deceiv'd; here's nothing writ:—

I see it plain; here in this place is writ,

Homo, fuge: yet shall not Faustus fly.

Meph. I'll fetch him somewhat to delight his mind.

[Aside, and then exit.]

Re-enter MEPHISTOPHILIS with Devils, who give crowns and rich apparel to FAUSTUS, dance, and then depart.

Faust. Speak, Mephistophilis, what means this show?

Meph. Nothing, Faustus, but to delight thy mind withal,

And to show thee what magic can perform.

Faust. But may I raise up spirits when I please?

Meph. Ay, Faustus, and do greater things than these.

Faust. Then there's enough for a thousand souls.

Here, Mephistophilis, receive this scroll,

A deed of gift of body and of soul:

But yet conditionally that thou perform

All articles prescrib'd between us both.

Meph. Faustus, I swear by hell and Lucifer

To effect all promises between us made!

Faust. Then hear me read them. [Reads] On these conditions following. First that Faustus may be a spirit in form and substance. Secondly, that Mephistophilis shall be his servant, and at his command. Thirdly, that Mephistophilis shall do for him, and bring him whatsoever he desires. Fourthly, that he shall be in his chamber or house invisible. Lastly, that he shall appear to the said John Faustus, at all times, in what form or shape soever he please. I, John Faustus, of Wertenberg, Doctor, by these presents, do give both body and soul to Lucifer prince of the east, and his minister Mephistophilis ; and furthermore grant unto them, that, twenty-four years being expired, the articles above-written inviolate, full power to fetch or carry the said John Faustus, body and soul, flesh, blood, or goods, into their habitation wheresoever. By me, John Faustus.

Meph. Speak, Faustus, do you deliver this as your deed?

Faust. Ay, take it, and the devil give thee good on't!

Meph. Now, Faustus, ask what thou wilt.

Faust. First will I question with thee about hell.

Tell me, where is the place that men call hell?

Meph. Under the heavens.

Faust. Ay, but whereabout?

Meph. Within the bowels of these elements,

Where we are tortur'd and remain for ever:

✓ Hell hath no limits, nor is circumscrib'd

In one self place; for where we are is hell,

And where hell is, there must we ever be:

And, to conclude, when all the world dissolves,

And every creature shall be purified,

All places shall be hell that are not heaven.

Faust. Come, I think hell's a fable.

Meph. Ay, think so still, till experience change thy mind.

Faust. Why, think'st thou, then, that Faustus shall be damn'd?

Meph. Ay, of necessity, for here's the scroll

Wherein thou hast given thy soul to Lucifer.

Faust. Ay, and body too: but what of that?

Think'st thou that Faustus is so fond to imagine

That, after this life, there is any pain?

Tush, these are trifles and mere old wives' tales.

Meph. But, Faustus, I am an instance to prove the contrary,

For I am damn'd, and am now in hell.

Faust. How! now in hell!

Nay, an this be hell, I'll willingly be damn'd here:

What! walking, disputing, etc.

But, leaving off this, let me have a wife,

The fairest maid in Germany;

For I am wanton and lascivious,

And cannot live without a wife.

Meph. How! a wife!

I prithee, Faustus, talk not of a wife.

Faust. Nay, sweet Mephistophilis, fetch me one, for I will have one.

Meph. Well, thou wilt have one? Sit there till I come: I'll fetch thee a wife in the devil's name. [Exit.]

Re-enter MEPHISTOPHILIS with a Devil drest like a Woman, with fireworks.

Meph. Tell me, Faustus, how dost thou like thy wife?

Faust. A plague on her for a hot whore!

Meph. Tut, Faustus,

Marriage is but a ceremonial toy;

If thou lovest me, think no more of it.

I'll cull thee out the fairest courtesans,

And bring them every morning to thy bed:

She whom thine eye shall like, thy heart shall have,

Be she as chaste as was Penelope,

As wise as Saba, or as beautiful

As was bright Lucifer before his fall.

Hold, take this book, peruse it thoroughly:

[Gives book.]

The iterating of these lines brings gold;

The-framing of this circle on the ground

Brings whirlwinds, tempests, thunder, and lightning;

Pronounce this thrice devoutly to thyself,

And men in armour shall appear to thee,

Ready to execute what thou desir'st.

Faust. Thanks, Mephistophilis: yet fain would I have a book wherein I might behold all spells and incantations, that I might raise up spirits when I please.

Meph. Here they are in this book. [Turns to them.]

Faust. Now would I have a book where I might see all characters and planets of the heavens, that I might know their motions and dispositions.

Meph. Here they are too. [Turns to them.]

Faust. Nay, let me have one book more,—and then I have done,—wherein I might see all plants, herbs, and trees, that grow upon the earth.

Meph. Here they be.

Faust. O, thou art deceived.

Meph. Tut, I warrant thee. [Turns to them.]

Faust. When I behold the heavens, then I repent,

And curse thee, wicked Mephistophilis,

Because thou hast depriv'd me of those joys.

Meph. Why, Faustus,

Thinkest thou heaven is such a glorious thing?

I tell thee, 'tis not half so fair as thou,
Or any man that breathes on earth.

Faust. How prov'st thou that?

Meph. 'Twas made for man, therefore is man more excellent.

Faust. If it were made for man, 'twas made for me:

I will renounce this magic and repent.

Enter Good Angel and Evil Angel.

G. Ang. Faustus, repent; yet God will pity thee.

E. Ang. Thou art a spirit; God cannot pity thee.

Faust. Who buzzeth in mine ears I am a spirit?

Be I a devil, yet God may pity me;

Ay, God will pity me, if I repent.

E. Ang. Ay, but Faustus never shall repent.

[Exeunt Angels.]

Faust. My heart's so harden'd, I cannot repent:

Scarce can I name salvation, faith, or heaven,

But fearful echoes thunder in mine ears,

"Faustus, thou art damn'd!" then swords, and knives,

Poison, guns, halters, and envenom'd steel

Are laid before me to despatch myself;

And long ere this I should have slain myself,

Had not sweet pleasure conquer'd deep despair.

Have not I made blind Homer sing to me

Of Alexander's love and Cænon's death? A

And hath not he, that built the walls of Thebes

With ravishing sound of his melodious harp,

Made music with my Mephistophilis?

Why should I die, then, or basely despair!

I am resolv'd; Faustus shall ne'er repent.—

Come, Mephistophilis, let us dispute again,

And argue of divine astrology.

Tell me, are there many heavens above the moon?

Are all celestial bodies but one globe,

As is the substance of this centric earth?

Meph. As are the elements, such are the spheres,

Mutually folded in each other's orb,

And, Faustus,

All jointly move upon one axletree,

Whose terminus is term'd the world's wide pole;

Nor are the names of Saturn, Mars, or Jupiter

Feign'd, but are erring stars.

Faust. But, tell me, have they all one motion, both situ et tempore? in direction and in time

Meph. All jointly move from east to west in twenty-four hours upon the poles of the world; but differ in their motion upon the poles of the zodiac.

Faust. Tush,

These slender trifles Wagner can decide:

Hath Mephistophilis no greater skill?

Who knows not the double motion of the planets?

The first is finish'd in a natural day;

The second thus; as Saturn in thirty years; Jupiter in twelve; Mars in four; the Sun, Venus, and Mercury in a year; the Moon in twenty-eight days. Tush, these are freshmen's suppositions. But, tell me, hath every sphere a dominion or intelligentia?

Meph. Ay.

Faust. How many heavens or spheres are there?

Meph. Nine; the seven planets, the firmament, and the empyreal heaven.

Faust. Well resolve me in this question; why have we not conjunctions, oppositions, aspects, eclipses, all at one time, but in some years we have more, in some less?

Meph. Per inæqualem motum respectu totius.

Faust. Well, I am answered. Tell me who made the world?

Meph. I will not.

Faust. Sweet Mephistophilis, tell me.

Meph. Move me not, for I will not tell thee.

Faust. Villain, have I not bound thee to tell me anything?

Meph. Ay, that is not against our kingdom; but this is.

Think thou on hell, Faustus, for thou art damned.

Faust. Think, Faustus, upon God that made the world.

Meph. Remember this. [Exit.]

Faust. Ay, go, accursed spirit, to ugly hell!

'Tis thou hast damn'd distressed Faustus' soul

Is't not too late?

Re-enter Good Angel and Evil Angel.

E. Ang. Too late.

G. Ang. Never too late, if Faustus can repent,

E. Ang. If thou repent, devils shall tear thee in pieces.

G. Ang. Repent, and they shall never raze thy skin.

[Exeunt Angels.]

Faust. Ah, Christ, my Saviour,
Seek to save distressed Faustus' soul!

Enter LUCIFER, BELZEBUB, and MEPHISTOPHILIS.

Luc. Christ cannot save thy soul, for he is just:
There's none but I have interest in the same.

Faust. O, who art thou that look'st so terrible?

Luc. I am Lucifer,

And this is my companion-prince in hell.

Faust. O, Faustus, they are come to fetch away thy soul!

Luc. We come to tell thee thou dost injure us;

Thou talk'st of Christ, contrary to thy promise:

Thou shouldst not think of God: think of the devil,

And of his dam too.

Faust. Nor will I henceforth: pardon me in this,

And Faustus vows never to look to heaven,

Never to name God, or to pray to Him,

To burn his Scriptures, slay his ministers,

And make my spirits pull his churches down.

Luc. Do so, and we will highly gratify thee.

Faustus, we are come from hell to show thee some pastime:
sit down, and thou shalt see all the Seven Deadly Sins appear in their proper shapes.

Faust. That sight will be as pleasing unto me,

As Paradise was to Adam, the first day

Of his creation.

Luc. Talk not of Paradise nor creation; but mark this show:
talk of the devil, and nothing else.—Come away!

Enter the Seven Deadly Sins.

Now, Faustus, examine them of their several names and dispositions.

Faust. What art thou, the first?

Pride. I am Pride. I disdain to have any parents. I am like to Ovid's flea; I can creep into every corner of a wench; sometimes, like a periwig, I sit upon her brow;
or, like a fan of feathers, I kiss her lips; indeed, I do—what do I not? But, fie, what a scent is here! I'll not speak another word, except the ground were perfumed,
and covered with cloth of arras.

Faust. What art thou, the second?

Covet. I am Covetousness, begotten of an old churl, in an old leathern bag: and, might I have my wish, I would desire that this house and all the people in it were turned to gold, that I might lock you up in my good chest: O, my sweet gold!

Faust. What art thou, the third?

Wrath. I am Wrath. I had neither father nor mother: I leapt out of a lion's mouth when I was scarce half an hour old; and ever since I have run up and down the world with this case of rapiers, wounding myself when I had nobody to fight withal. I was born in hell; and look to it, for some of you shall be my father.

Faust. What art thou, the fourth?

Envy. I am Envy, begotten of a chimney-sweeper and an oyster-wife. I cannot read, and therefore wish all books were burnt. I am lean with seeing others eat. O, that there would come a famine through all the world, that all might die, and I live alone! then thou shouldst see how fat I would be. But must thou sit, and I stand? come down, with a vengeance!

Faust. Away, envious rascal!—What art thou, the fifth?

Glut. Who I, sir? I am Gluttony. My parents are all dead, and the devil a penny they have left me, but a bare pension, and that is thirty meals a day, and ten ^{refreshments} bevers,—a small trifle to suffice nature. O, I come of a royal parentage! my grandfather was a Gammon of Bacon, my grandmother a Hogshead of Claret-wine; my godfathers were these, Peter Pickle-herring and Martin Martlemas-beef; O, but my godmother, she was a jolly gentlewoman, and well-beloved in every good town and city; her name was Mistress Margery March-beer. Now, Faustus, thou hast heard all my progeny; wilt thou bid me to supper?

Faust. No, I'll see thee hanged: thou wilt eat up all my victuals.

Glut. Then the devil choke thee!

Faust. Choke thyself, glutton!—What art thou, the sixth?

Sloth. I am Sloth. I was begotten on a sunny bank, where I have lain ever since; and you have done me great injury to bring me from thence: let me be carried thither again by Gluttony and Lechery. I'll not speak another word for a king's ransom.

Faust. What are you, Mistress Minx, the seventh and last?

Lechery. Who I, sir? I am one that loves an inch of raw mutton better than an ell of fried stock-fish; and the first letter of my name begins with L.

Faust. Away, to hell, to hell! [Exeunt the Sins.]

Luc. Now, Faustus, how dost thou like this?

Faust. O, this feeds my soul!

Luc. Tut, Faustus, in hell is all manner of delight.

Faust. O, might I see hell, and return again,
How happy were I then!

Luc. Thou shalt; I will send for thee at midnight.

In meantime take this book; peruse it thoroughly,
And thou shalt turn thyself into what shape thou wilt.

Faust. Great thanks, mighty Lucifer!

This will I keep as chary as my life.

Luc. Farewell, Faustus, and think on the devil.

Faust. Farewell, great Lucifer.

[Exeunt Lucifer and Belzebub.]

Come, Mephistophilis. [Exeunt.]

Enter Chorus.

Chor. Learned Faustus,

To know the secrets of astronomy
Graven in the book of Jove's high firmament,
Did mount himself to scale Olympus' top,
Being seated in a chariot burning bright,
Drawn by the strength of yoky dragons' necks
He now is gone to prove cosmography,
And, as I guess, will first arrive in Rome,
To see the Pope and manner of his court,
And take some part of holy Peter's feast,
That to this day is highly solemniz'd.

[Exit.]

Enter FAUSTUS and MEPHISTOPHILIS.

Faust. Having now, my good Mephistophilis,
Pass'd with delight the stately town of Trier,
Environ'd round with airy mountain-tops,
With walls of flint, and deep-entrenched lakes,
Not to be won by any conquering prince;
From Paris next, coasting the realm of France,
We saw the river Maine fall into Rhine,
Whose banks are set with groves of fruitful vines;
Then up to Naples, rich Campania,
Whose buildings fair and gorgeous to the eye,
The streets straight forth, and pav'd with finest brick.
Quarter the town in four equivalents:
There saw we learned Maro's golden tomb.

The way he cut, an English mile in length,
 Thorough a rock of stone, in one night's space;
 From thence to Venice, Padua, and the rest,
 In one of which a sumptuous temple stands,
 That threatens the stars with her aspiring top.
 Thus hitherto hath Faustus spent his time:
 But tell me now what resting-place is this?
 Hast thou, as erst I did command,
 Conducted me within the walls of Rome?

Meph. Faustus, I have; and, because we will not be unprovided, I have taken up his Holiness' privy-chamber for our use.

Faust. I hope his Holiness will bid us welcome.

Meph. Tut, 'tis no matter, man; we'll be bold with his good cheer.

And now, my Faustus, that thou mayst perceive
 What Rome containeth to delight thee with,
 Know that this city stands upon seven hills
 That underprop the groundwork of the same:
 Just through the midst runs flowing Tiber's stream
 With winding banks that cut it in two parts;
 Over the which four stately bridges lean,
 That make safe passage to each part of Rome:
 Upon the bridge call'd Ponte Angelo
 Erected is a castle passing strong,
 Within whose walls such store of ordnance are,
 And double cannons fram'd of carved brass,
 As match the days within one complete year;
 Besides the gates, and high pyramides,
 Which Julius Cæsar brought from Africa.

Faust. Now, by the kingdoms of infernal rule,
 Of Styx, of Acheron, and the fiery lake
 Of ever-burning Phlegethon, I swear
 That I do long to see the monuments
 And situation of bright-splendent Rome:
 Come, therefore, let's away.

Meph. Nay, Faustus, stay: I know you'd fain see the Pope
 And take some part of holy Peter's feast,
 Where thou shalt see a troop of bald-pate friars,
 Whose summum bonum is in belly-cheer.

Faust. Well, I'm content to compass then some sport,
 And by their folly make us merriment.
 Then charm me, that I

May be invisible, to do what I please,
Unseen of any whilst I stay in Rome.

[Mephistophilis charms him

Meph. So, Faustus; now

Do what thou wilt, thou shalt not be discern'd.

Sound a Sonnet. Enter the POPE and the CARDINAL OF LORRAIN to the banquet, with Friars attending.

Pope. My lord of Lorraine, will't please you draw near?

Faust. Fall to, and the devil choke you, an you spare!

Pope. How now! who's that which spake?—Friars, look about.

First Friar. Here's nobody, if it like your Holiness.

Pope. My lord, here is a dainty dish was sent me from the Bishop of Milan.

Faust. I thank you, sir.

[Snatches the dish.

Pope. How now! who's that which snatched the meat from me? will no man look?—My lord, this dish was sent me from the Cardinal of Florence.

Faust. You say true; I'll ha't.

[Snatches the dish.

Pope. What, again!—My lord, I'll drink to your grace.

Faust. I'll pledge your grace.

[Snatches the cup.

C. of Lor. My lord, it may be some ghost, newly crept out of Purgatory, come to beg a pardon of your Holiness.

Pope. It may be so.—Friars, prepare a dirge to lay the fury of this ghost.—Once again, my lord, fall to.

[The Pope crosses himself.

Faust. What, are you crossing of yourself?

Well, use that trick no more, I would advise you.

[The Pope crosses himself again.

Well, there's the second time. Aware the third;

I give you fair warning.

[The Pope crosses himself again, and Faustus hits him a box of the ear; and they all run away.

Come on, Mephistophilis; what shall we do?

Meph. Nay, I know not: we shall be cursed with bell, book, and candle.

Faust. How! bell, book, and candle,—candle, book, and bell,—Forward and backward, to curse Faustus to hell!

Anon you shall hear a hog grunt, a calf bleat, and an ass bray,

Because it is Saint Peter's holiday.

Re-enter all the Friars to sing the Dirge.

First Friar. Come, brethren, let's about our business with good devotion.

They sing.

Cursed be he that stole away his Holiness' meat from the table !
maledicat Dominus ! Play the Lord curse h.

Cursed be he that struck his Holiness a blow on the face !
maledicat Dominus !

Cursed be he that took Friar Sandelo a blow on the pate !
maledicat Dominus !

Cursed be he that disturbeth our holy dirge ! maledicat Dominus !

Cursed be he that took away his Holiness' wine ! maledicat Dominus !

Et omnes Sancti ! Amen !

[Mephistophilis and Faustus beat the Friars, and fling fireworks among them ; and so exeunt.]

Enter Chorus.

Chor. When Faustus had with pleasure ta'en the view
Of rarest things, and royal courts of kings,
He stay'd his course, and so returned home ;
Where such as bear his absēce but with grief,
I mean his friends and near'st companions,
Did gratulate his safety with kind words,
And in their conference of what befell,
Touching his journey through the world and air,
They put forth questions of astrology,
Which Faustus answer'd with such learned skill
As they admir'd and wonder'd at his wit.
Now is his fame spread forth in every land :
Amongst the rest the Emperor is one,
Carolus the Fifth, at whose palace now
Faustus is feasted 'mongst his noblemen.
What there he did, in trial of his art,
I leave untold ; your eyes shall see[t] perform'd. [Exit.]

Enter ROBIN the Ostler, with a book in his hand.

Robin. O, this is admirable ! here I ha' stolen one of Doctor Faustus' conjuring books, and, i'faith, I mean to search some circles for my own use. Now will I make all the maidens in our parish dance at my pleasure, stark naked, before me; and so by that means I shall see more than e'er I felt or saw yet.

Enter RALPH, calling ROBIN.

Ralph. Robin, prithee, come away; there's a gentleman tarries to have his horse, and he would have his things rubbed and made clean: he keeps such a chafing with my mistress about it; and she has set me to look thee out; prithee, come away.

Robin. Keep out, keep out, or else you are blown up, you are dismembered, Ralph: keep out, for I am about a roaring piece of work.

Ralph. Come, what doest thou with that same book? thou canst not read?

Robin. Yes, my master and mistress shall find that I can read, he for his forehead, she for her private study; she's born to bear with me, or else my art fails.

Ralph. Why, Robin, what book is that?

Robin. What book! why, the most intolerable book for conjuring that e'er was invented by any brimstone'devil.

Ralph. Canst thou conjure with it?

Robin. I can do all these things easily with it; first, I can make thee drunk with ippocras at any tavern in Europe for nothing; that's one of my conjuring works.

Ralph. Our Master Parson says that's nothing.

Robin. True, Ralph: and more, Ralph, if thou hast any mind to Nan Spit, our kitchen-maid, then turn her and wind her to thy own use, as often as thou wilt, and at midnight.

Ralph. O, brave, Robin! shall I have Nan Spit, and to mine own use? On that condition I'll feed thy devil with horse-bread as long as he lives, of free cost.

Robin. No more, sweet Ralph: let's go and make clean our boots, which lie foul upon our hands, and then to our conjuring in the devil's name. [Exeunt.]

Enter ROBIN and RALPH with a silver goblet.

Robin. Come, Ralph: did not I tell thee, we were for ever made by this Doctor Faustus' book? ecce, signum! here's a simple purchase for horse-keepers: our horses shall eat no hay as long as this lasts. Behold a Sign

Ralph. But, Robin, here comes the Vintner.

Robin. Hush! I'll gull him supernaturally.

Enter Vintner.

Drawer, I hope all is paid; God be with you!—Come, Ralph.

Vint. Soft, sir; a word with you. I must yet have a goblet paid from you, ere you go.

Robin. I a goblet, Ralph, I a goblet!—I scorn you; and you are but a, etc. I a goblet! search me.

Vint. I mean so, sir, with your favour. [Searches Robin.]

Robin. How say you now?

Vint. I must say somewhat to your fellow.—You, sir!

Robin. Me, sir! me, sir! search your fill. [Vintner searches him.] Now sir, you may be ashamed to burden honest men with a matter of truth.

Vint. Well, one of you hath this goblet about you.

Robin. You lie, drawer, 'tis afore me [Aside].—Sirrah you, I'll teach you to impeach honest men;—stand by;—I'll scour you for a goblet;—stand aside you had best, I charge you in the name of Belzebub.—Look to the goblet, Ralph [Aside to Ralph].

Vint. What mean you, sirrah?

Robin. I'll tell you what I mean. [Reads from a book] Sanctobulorum Periphrasticon—nay, I'll tickle you, Vintner.—Look to the goblet, Ralph [Aside to Ralph].—[Reads] Polypragmos Belseborams framanto pacostiphos tostu, Mephistophilis, etc.

Enter MEPHISTOPHILIS, sets squibs at their backs, and then exit. They run about.

Vint. ^{In the name of the Lord} O, nomine Domini! what meanest thou, Robin? thou hast no goblet.

Ralph. Peccatum peccatorum!—Here's thy goblet, good Vintner. [Gives the goblet to Vintner, who exit.]

Robin. Misericordia pro nobis! what shall I do? Good devil, forgive me now, and I'll never rob thy library more.

Re-enter MEPHISTOPHILIS.

Meph. Monarch of hell, under whose black survey
Great potentates do kneel with awful fear,
Upon whose altars thousand souls do lie,
How am I vexed with these villains' charms?
From Constantinople am I hither come,
Only for pleasure of these damned slaves.

Robin. How, from Constantinople! you have had a great journey: will you take sixpence in your purse to pay for your supper, and be gone?

Meph. Well, villains, for your presumption, I transform thee into an ape, and thee into a dog; and so be gone!

[Exit.

Robin. How, into an ape! that's brave: I'll have fine sport with the boys; I'll get nuts and apples enow.

Ralph. And I must be a dog.

Robin. I'faith, thy head will never be out of the pottage-pot.
[Exeunt.

Enter EMPEROR, FAUSTUS, and a Knight, with Attendants.

Emp. Master Doctor Faustus, I have heard strange report of thy knowledge in the black art, how that none in my empire nor in the whole world can compare with thee for the rare effects of magic: they say thou hast a familiar spirit, by whom thou canst accomplish what thou list. This, therefore, is my request, that thou let me see some proof of thy skill, that mine eyes may be witnesses to confirm what mine ears have heard reported: and here I swear to thee, by the honour of mine imperial crown, that, whatever thou doest, thou shalt be no ways prejudiced or endamaged.

Knight. I'faith, he looks much like a conjurer. [Aside.

Faust. My gracious sovereign, though I must confess myself far inferior to the report men have published, and nothing answerable to the honour of your imperial majesty, yet, for that love and duty binds me thereunto, I am content to do whatsoever your majesty shall command me.

Emp. Then, Doctor Faustus, mark what I shall say.

As I was sometime solitary set
Within my closet, sundry thoughts arose
About the honour of mine ancestors,
How they had won by prowess such exploits,
Got such riches, subdu'd so many kingdoms,
As we that do succeed, or they that shall Hereafter possess our throne, shall
(I fear me) ne'er attain to that degree
Of high renown and great authority:
Amongst which kings is Alexander the Great,
Chief spectacle of the world's pre-eminence,
The bright shining of whose glorious acts

Lightens the world with his reflecting beams,
 As when I hear but motion made of him,
 It grieves my soul I never saw the man:
 If, therefore, thou, by cunning of thine art,
 Canst raise this man from hollow vaults below,
 Where lies entomb'd this famous conqueror,
 And bring with him his beauteous paramour,
 Both in their right shapes, gesture, and attire
 They us'd to wear during their time of life,
 Thou shalt both satisfy my just desire,
 And give me cause to praise thee whilst I live.

Faust. My gracious lord, I am ready to accomplish your request, so far forth as by art and power of my spirit I am able to perform.

Knight. I'faith, that's just nothing at all. [Aside.

Faust. But, if it like your grace, it is not in my ability to present before your eyes the true substantial bodies of those two deceased princes, which long since are consumed to dust.

Knight. Ay, marry, Master Doctor, now there's a sign of grace in you, when you will confess the truth. [Aside.

Faust. But such spirits as can lively resemble Alexander and his paramour shall appear before your grace, in that manner that they both lived in, in their most flourishing estate; which I doubt not shall sufficiently content your imperial majesty.

Emp. Go to, Master Doctor; let me see them presently.

Knight. Do you hear, Master Doctor? you bring Alexander and his paramour before the Emperor!

Faust. How then, sir?

Knight. I'faith, that's as true as Diana turned me to a stag.

Faust. No, sir; but, when Actæon died, he left the horns for you.—Mephistophilis, be gone. [Exit Mephistophilis.

Knight. Nay, an you go to conjuring, I'll be gone. [Exit.

Faust. I'll meet with you anon for interrupting me so.—
 Here they are, my gracious lord.

Re-enter MEPHISTOPHILIS with Spirits in the shapes of ALEXANDER and his Paramour.

Emp. Master Doctor, I heard this lady, while she lived, had a wart or mole in her neck: how shall I know whether it be so or no?

Faust. Your highness may boldly go and see.

Emp. Sure, these are no spirits, but the true substantial bodies of those two deceased princes. [Exeunt Spirits.]

Faust. Wilt please your highness now to send for the knight that was so pleasant with me here of late?

Emp. One of you call him forth. [Exit Attendant.]

/ Re-enter the Knight with a pair of horns on his head.

(How now, sir knight! why, I had thought thou hadst been a bachelor, but now I see thou hast a wife, that not only gives thee horns, but makes thee wear them. Feel on thy head.)

Knight. Thou damned wretch and execrable dog,
Bred in the concave of some monstrous rock,
How dar'st thou thus abuse a gentleman?
Villain, I say, undo what thou hast done!

Faust. O, not so fast, sir! there's no haste: but, good, are you remembered how you crossed me in my conference with the Emperor? I think I have met with you for it.

Emp. Good Master Doctor, at my entreaty release him: he hath done penance sufficient.

Faust. My gracious lord, not so much for the injury he offered me here in your presence, as to delight you with some mirth, hath Faustus worthily requited this injurious knight; which being all I desire, I am content to release him of his horns:—and, sir knight, hereafter speak well of scholars.—Mephistophilis, transform him straight. [Mephistophilis removes the horns.].—Now, my good lord, having done my duty, I humbly take my leave.

Emp. Farewell, Master Doctor: yet, ere you go, Expect from me a bounteous reward.

[Exeunt Emperor, Knight, and attendants.]

Faust. Now, Mephistophilis, the restless course
That time doth run with calm and silent foot,
Shortening my days and thread of vital life,
Calls for the payment of my latest years:
Therefore, sweet Mephistophilis, let us
Make haste to Wertenberg,

Meph. What, will you go on horse-back or on foot?

Faust. Nay, till I'm past this fair and pleasant green,
I'll walk on foot.

Enter a Horse-courser.

Horse-c. I have been all this day seeking one Master Fustian: mass, see where he is!—God save you Master Doctor!

Faust. What, horse-courser! you are well met.

Horse-c. Do you hear, sir? I have brought you forty dollars for your horse.

Faust. I cannot sell him so: if thou likest him for fifty, take him.

Horse-c. Alas, sir, I have no more!—I pray you, speak for me.

Meph. I pray you, let him have him: he is an honest fellow, and he has a great charge, neither wife nor child.

Faust. Well, come, give me your money [Horse-courser gives Faustus the money]: my boy will deliver him to you. But I must tell you one thing before you have him; ride him not into the water, at any hand.

Horse-c. Why, sir, will he not drink of all waters?

Faust. O, yes, he will drink of all waters; but ride him not into the water; ride him over hedge or ditch, or where thou wilt, but not into the water.

Horse-c. Well, sir.—Now am I made man for ever: I'll not leave my horse for forty: if he had but the quality of hey-ding-ding, hey-ding-ding, I'd make a brave living on him: he has a buttock as slick as an eel [Aside].—Well, God b'wi'ye, sir: your boy will deliver him me: but, hark you, sir; if my horse be sick or ill at ease if I bring his water to you, you'll tell me what it is?

Faust. Away, you villain! what, dost think I am a horse-doctor? [Exit Horse-courser.]

What art thou, Faustus, but a man condemn'd to die?

Thy fatal time doth draw to final end;

Despair doth drive distrust into my thoughts:

Confound these passions with a quiet sleep:

Tush, Christ did call the thief upon the Cross;

Then rest thee, Faustus, quiet in conceit.

[Sleeps in his chair.]

Re-enter Horse-courser, all wet, crying.

Horse-c. Alas, alas! Doctor Fustian, quotha? mass, Doctor Lopus was never such a doctor: has given me a purgation, has purged me of forty dollars; I shall never see them more. But yet, like an ass as I was, I would not be ruled by him, for he bade me I should ride him into no water: now I, thinking my horse had had some rare quality that he would not have had me know of, I, like a venturesome youth, rid him into the deep pond at the town's end. I was no sooner in the middle of the pond, but my horse vanished away, and I sat upon a bottle of hay, never so near drowning in my life. But I'll seek out my doctor, and have my forty dollars again, or I'll make it the dearest horse!—O, yonder is his snipper-snapper. Do you hear? you, hey-pass, where's your master?

Meph. Why, sir, what would you? you cannot speak with him.

Horse-c. But I will speak with him.

Meph. Why, he's fast asleep: come some other time.

Horse-c. I'll speak with him now, or I'll break his glass-windows about his ears.

Meph. I tell thee, he has not slept this eight nights.

Horse-c. An he have not slept this eight weeks, I'll speak with him.

Meph. See, where he is, fast asleep.

Horse-c. Ay, this is he.—God save you, Master Doctor, Master Doctor, Master Doctor Fustian! forty dollars, forty dollars for a bottle of hay!

Meph. Why, thou seest he hears thee not.

Horse-c. So-ho, ho! so-ho, ho! [Hollows in his ear.] No, will you not wake? I'll make you wake ere I go. [Pulls Faustus by the leg, and pulls it away.] Alas, I am undone! what shall I do?

Faust. O, my leg, my leg!—Help, Mephistophilis! call the officers.—My leg, my leg!

Meph. Come, villain, to the constable.

Horse-c. O Lord, sir, let me go, and I'll give you forty dollars more!

Meph. Where be they?

Horse-c. I have none about me: come to my ⁱⁿⁿosty, and I'll give them you.

Meph. Be gone quickly. [Horse-courser runs away.]

Faust. What, is he gone? farewell he! Faustus has his leg again, and the Horse-courser, I take it, a bottle of hay for his labour: well, this trick shall cost him forty dollars more.

Enter WAGNER.

How now, Wagner! what's the news with thee?

Wag. Sir, the Duke of Vanholt doth earnestly entreat your company.

Faust. The Duke of Vanholt! an honourable gentleman, to whom I must be no niggard of my cunning.—Come, Mephistophilis, let's away to him. [Exeunt.]

*Enter the DUKE OF VANHOLT, the DUCHESS,
and FAUSTUS.*

Duke. Believe me, Master Doctor, this merriment hath much pleased me.

Faust. My gracious lord, I am glad it contents you so well.—But it may be, madam, you take no delight in this. I have heard that great-bellied women do long for some dainties or other: what is it, madam? tell me, and you shall have it.

Duchess. Thanks, good Master Doctor: and, for I see your courteous intent to pleasure me, I will not hide from you the thing my heart desires; and, were it now summer, as it is January and the dead time of the winter, I would desire no better meat than a dish of ripe grapes.

Faust. Alas, madam, that's nothing!—Mephistophilis, be gone. [Exit Mephistophilis.] Were it a greater thing than this, so it would content you, you should have it.

Re-enter MEPHISTOPHILIS with grapes.

Here they be, madam: wilt please you taste on them?

Duke. Believe me, Master Doctor, this makes me wonder above the rest, that being in the dead time of winter and in the month of January, how you should come by these grapes.

Faust. If it like your grace, the year is divided into two circles over the whole world, that, when it is here winter with us, in the contrary circle it is summer with them, as in India, Saba, and farther countries in the east; and by means of a swift spirit that I have, I had them brought hither, as you see.—How do you like them, madam? be they good?

Duchess. Believe me, Master Doctor, they be the best grapes that e'er I tasted in my life before.

Faust. I am glad they content you so, madam.

Duke. Come, madam, let us in, where you must well reward this learned man for the great kindness he hath showed to you.

Duchess. And so I will, my lord; and, whilst I live, rest beholding for this courtesy.

Faust. I humbly thank your grace.

Duke. Come, Master Doctor, follow us, and receive your reward. [Exeunt.]

Enter WAGNER.

Wag. I think my master means to die shortly,
For he hath given to me all his goods:
And yet, methinks, if that death were near,
He would not banquet, and carouse, and swill
Amongst the students, as even now he doth,
Who are at supper with such belly-cheer
As Wagner ne'er beheld in all his life.
See, where they come! belike the feast is ended. [Exit.]

Enter FAUSTUS with two or three Scholars, and MEPHISTOPHILIS.

First Schol. Master Doctor Faustus, since our conference about fair ladies, which was the beautifullest in all the world, we have determined with ourselves that Helen of Greece was the admirablest lady that ever lived: therefore, Master Doctor, if you will do us that favour, as to let us see that peerless dame of Greece, whom all the world admires for majesty, we should think ourselves much beholding unto you.

Faust. Gentlemen,
For that I know your friendship is unfeign'd,
And Faustus' custom is not to deny
The just requests of those that wish him well
You shall behold that peerless dame of Greece,
No otherways for pomp and majesty
Than when Sir Paris cross'd the seas with her,
And brought the spoils to rich Dardania.
Be silent, then, for danger is in words.

[Music sounds, and Helen passeth over the stage.]

Sec. Schol. Too simple is my wit to tell her praise,
Whom all the world admires for majesty.

Third Schol. No marvel though the angry Greeks pursu'd
With ten years' war the rape of such a queen,
Whose heavenly beauty passeth all compare.

First Schol. Since we have seen the pride of Nature's works,

And only paragon of excellence,
Let us depart; and for this glorious deed
Happy and blest be Faustus evermore!

Faust. Gentlemen, farewell: the same I wish to you.

[Exeunt Scholars.]

Enter an Old Man.

Old Man. Ah, Doctor Faustus, that I might prevail
To guide thy steps unto the way of life,
By which sweet path thou mayst attain the goal
That shall conduct thee to celestial rest!
Break heart, drop blood, and mingle it with tears,
Tears falling from repentant heaviness
Of thy most vile and loathsome filthiness,
The stench whereof corrupts the inward soul
With such flagitious crimes of heinous sin
As no commiseration may expel,
But mercy, Faustus, of thy Saviour sweet,
Whose blood alone must wash away thy guilt.

Faust. Where art thou, Faustus? wretch, what hast thou done?

Damn'd art thou, Faustus, damn'd; despair and die!
Hell calls for right, and with a roaring voice
Says, "Faustus, come; thine hour is almost come;"
And Faustus now will come to do thee right.

[Mephistophilis gives him a dagger.]

Old Man. Ah, stay, good Faustus, stay thy desperate steps!
I see an angel hovers o'er thy head,
And, with a vial full of precious grace,
Offers to pour the same into thy soul:
Then call for mercy, and avoid despair.

Faust. Ah, my sweet friend, I feel
Thy words to comfort my distressed soul!
Leave me a while to ponder on my sins.

Old Man. I go, sweet Faustus; but with heavy cheer,
Fearing the ruin of thy hopeless soul. [Exit.]

Faust. Accursed Faustus, where is mercy now?
I do repent; and yet I do despair:
Hell strives with grace for conquest in my breast:
What shall I do to shun the snares of death?

Meph. Thou traitor, Faustus, I arrest thy soul
For disobedience to my sovereign lord:
Revolt, or I'll in piece-meal tear thy flesh.

Faust. Sweet Mephistophilis, entreat thy lord
To pardon my unjust presumption,
And with my blood again I will confirm
My former vow I made to Lucifer.

Meph. Do it, then, quickly, with unfeigned heart,
Lest greater danger do attend thy drift.

Faust. Torment, sweet friend, that base and crooked age,
That durst dissuade me from thy Lucifer,
With greatest torments that our hell affords.

Meph. His faith is great; I cannot touch his soul;
But what I may afflict his body with
I will attempt, which is but little worth.

Faust. One thing, good servant, let me crave of thee,
To glut the longing of my heart's desire,—
That I might have unto my paramour
That heavenly Helen which I saw of late,
Whose sweet embracings may extinguish clean
Those thoughts that do dissuade me from my vow,
And keep mine oath I made to Lucifer.

Meph. Faustus, this, or what else thou shalt desire,
Shall be perform'd in twinkling of an eye.

Re-enter HELEN.

Faust. Was this the face that launch'd a thousand ships,
And burnt the topless towers of Ilium?—
Sweet Helen, make me immortal with a kiss.—

[Kisses her.

Her lips suck forth my soul: see, where it flies!—

Come, Helen, come, give me my soul again.

Here will I dwell, for heaven is in these lips,

And all is dross that is not Helena.

I will be Paris, and for love of thee,

Instead of Troy, shall Wertenberg be sack'd;

And I will combat with weak Menelaus,

And wear thy colours on my plumed crest;

Yes, I will wound Achilles in the heel,

And then return to Helen for a kiss.

O, thou art fairer than the evening air

Clad in the beauty of a thousand stars

(Brighter art thou than flaming Jupiter

When he appear'd to hapless Semele;

More lovely than the monarch of the sky

In wanton Arethusa's azur'd arms;
And none but thou shalt be my paramour!) [Exeunt.

Enter the Old Man.

Old Man. Accursed Faustus, miserable man,
That from thy soul exclud'st the grace of heaven,
And fly'st the throne of his tribunal-seat!

Enter Devils.

Satan begins to sift me with his pride:
As in this furnace God shall try my faith,
My faith, vile hell, shall triumph over thee,
Ambitious fiends, see how the heavens smile
At your repulse, and laugh your state to scorn!
Hence, hell! for hence I fly unto my God.

[Exeunt—on one side, Devils, on the other, Old Man.]

Enter FAUSTUS, with Scholars.

Faust. Ah, gentlemen!

First Schol. What ails Faustus?

Faust. Ah, my sweet chamber-fellow, had I lived with thee, then had I lived still! but now I die eternally. Look,
comes he not? comes he not?

Sec. Schol. What means Faustus?

Third Schol. Belike he is grown into some sickness by being over-solitary.

First Schol. If it be so, we'll have physicians to cure him.—
'Tis but a surfeit; never fear, man.

Faust. A surfeit of deadly sin, that hath damned both body and soul.

Sec. Schol. Yet, Faustus, look up to heaven; remember
God's mercies are infinite.

Faust. But Faustus' offence can ne'er be pardoned: the serpent that tempted Eve may be saved, but not Faustus.
Ah, gentlemen, hear me with patience, and tremble not at my speeches! Though my heart pants and quivers to remember that I have been a student here these thirty years, O, would I had never seen Wertenberg, never read book! and what wonders I have done, all Germany can witness, yea, all the world; for which Faustus hath lost
both Germany and the world, yea, heaven itself, heaven, the seat of God, the throne of the blessed, the kingdom of joy; and must remain in hell for ever, hell, ah, hell, for ever! Sweet friends, what shall become of Faustus, being in hell for ever?

Third Schol. Yet, Faustus, call on God.

Faust. On God, whom Faustus hath abjured! on God, whom Faustus hath blasphemed! Ah, my God, I would weep! but the devil draws in my tears. Gush forth blood, instead of tears! yea, life and soul! O, he stays my tongue! I would lift up my hands; but see, they hold them, they hold them!

All. Who, Faustus?

Faust. Lucifer and Mephistophilis. Ah, gentlemen, I gave them my soul for my cunning!

All. God forbid!

Faust. God forbade it, indeed; but Faustus hath done it: for vain pleasure of twenty-four years hath Faustus lost eternal joy and felicity. I writ them a bill with mine own blood: the date is expired; the time will come, and he will fetch me.

First Schol. Why did not Faustus tell us of this before, that divines might have prayed for thee?

Faust. Oft have I thought to have done so; but the devil threatened to tear me in pieces, if I named God, to fetch both body and soul, if I once gave ear to divinity: and now 'tis too late. Gentlemen, away, lest you perish with me.

Sec. Schol. O, what shall we do to save Faustus?

Faust. Talk not of me, but save yourselves, and depart.

Third Schol. God will strengthen me; I will stay with Faustus.

First Schol. Tempt not God, sweet friend; but let us into the next room, and there pray for him.

Faust. Ay, pray for me, pray for me; and what noise soever ye hear, come not unto me, for nothing can rescue me.

Sec. Schol. Pray thou, and we will pray that God may have mercy upon thee.

Faust. Gentlemen, farewell: if I live till morning, I'll visit you; if not, Faustus is gone to hell.

All. Faustus, farewell.

[Exeunt Scholars.—The clock strikes eleven.]

Faust. Ah, Faustus.

(Now hast thou but one bare hour to live,
And then thou must be damn'd perpetually!

(Stand still, you ever-moving spheres of heaven,
That time may cease, and midnight never come;

the sun

Fair Nature's eye, rise, rise again, and make

Perpetual day; or let this hour be but

A year, a month, a week, a natural day,

That Faustus may repent and save his soul!

O lente, lente currite, noctis equi! Run softly, softly horses

The stars move still, time runs, the clock will strike,

The devil will come, and Faustus must be damn'd.

O, I'll leap up to my God!—Who pulls me down?—

See, see, where Christ's blood streams in the firmament!

One drop would save my soul, half a drop: ah, my

Christ!—

Ah, rend not my heart for naming of my Christ!

Yet will I call on him: O, spare me, Lucifer!—

Where is it now? 'tis gone: and see, where God

Stretcheth out his arm, and bends his ireful brows!

Mountains and hills, come, come, and fall on me,

And hide me from the heavy wrath of God!

No, no!

Then will I headlong run into the earth:

Earth, gape! O, no, it will not harbour me!

You stars that reign'd at my nativity,

Whose influence hath allotted death and hell

Now draw up Faustus, like a foggy mist,

Into the entrails of yon labouring clouds,

That, when you vomit forth into the air,

My limbs may issue from your smoky mouths,

So that my soul may but ascend to heaven!

[The clock strikes the half-hour]

Ah, half the hour is past! 'twill all be past anon.

O God,

If thou wilt not have mercy on my soul,

Yet for Christ's sake, whose blood hath ransom'd me,

Impose some end to my incessant pain;

Let Faustus live in hell a thousand years,

A hundred thousand, and at last be sav'd

O, no end is limited to damned souls!

Why wert thou not a creature wanting soul?

Or why is this immortal that thou hast?

(Ah, Pythagoras' metempsychosis, were that true,

This soul should fly from me, and I be chang'd

Unto some brutish beast! all beasts are happy,

For, when they die,

Their souls are soon dissolv'd in elements;

But mine must live still to be plagu'd in hell.
 Curs'd be the parents that engender'd me!
 No, Faustus, curse thyself, curse Lucifer
 That hath depriv'd thee of the joys of heaven

[The clock strikes twelve.]

O, it strikes, it strikes! Now, body, turn to air,
 Or Lucifer will bear thee quick to hell!

[Thunder and lightning.]

O soul, be chang'd into little water-drops,
 And fall into the ocean, ne'er be found!

Enter Devils.

My God, my God, look not so fierce on me!
 Adders and serpents, let me breathe a while!
 Ugly hell, gape not! come not, Lucifer!
 I'll burn my books!—Ah, Mephistophilis!

[Exeunt Devils with Faustus.]

Enter Chorus.

Chor. Cut is the branch that might have grown full 'straight,
 And burned is Apollo's laurel-bough,
 That sometime grew within this learned man;
 Faustus is gone: regard his hellish fall,
 Whose fiendful fortune may exhort the wise,
 Only to wonder at unlawful things,
 Whose deepness doth entice such forward wits
 To practise more than heavenly power permits.

[Exit.]

Terminat hora diem ; terminat auctor opus.

THE JEW OF MALTA

TO MY WORTHY FRIEND, MASTER THOMAS
HAMMON, OF GRAY'S INN, ETC.

THIS play, composed by so worthy an author as Master Marlowe, and the part of the Jew presented by so unimitable an actor as Master Alleyn, being in this later age commended to the stage; as I ushered it unto the court, and presented it to the Cock-pit, with these Prologues and Epilogues here inserted, so now being newly brought to the press, I was loath it should be published without the ornament of an Epistle; making choice of you unto whom to devote it; than whom (of all those gentlemen and acquaintance within the compass of my long knowledge) there is none more able to tax ignorance, or attribute right to merit. Sir, you have been pleased to grace some of mine own works with your courteous patronage: I hope this will not be the worse accepted, because commended by me; over whom none can claim more power or privilege than yourself. I had no better a new year's gift to present you with; receive it therefore as a continuance of that inviolable obligation, by which he rests still engaged, who, as he ever hath, shall always remain,

Tuissimus,

THO. HEYWOOD.

THE PROLOGUE SPOKEN AT COURT

GRACIOUS and great, that we so boldly dare (Mongst other plays that now in fashion are
To present this, writ many years ago,
And in that age thought second unto none,
We humbly crave your pardon. We pursue
The story of a rich and famous Jew

Who liv'd in Malta: you shall find him still,
 In all his projects, a sound Machiavill;
 And that's his character. He that hath past
 So many censures is now come at last
 To have your princely ears: grace you him; then
 You crown the action, and renown the pen.

EPILOGUE SPOKEN AT COURT

It is our fear, dread sovereign, we have bin
 Too tedious; neither can't be less than sin
 To wrong your princely patience: if we have,
 Thus low dejected, we your pardon crave;
 And, if aught here offend your ear or sight,
 We only act and speak what others write.

THE PROLOGUE TO THE STAGE

AT THE COCK-PIT

WE know not how our play may pass this stage
 But by the best of poets in that age
The Malta-Jew had being and was made;
 And he then by the best of actors play'd:
 In Hero and Leander one did gain
 A lasting memory; in Tamburlaine,
 This Jew, with others many, th' other wan
 The tribute of peerless, being a man
 Whom we may rank with (doing no one wrong)
 Proteus for shapes, and Roscius for a tongue,—
 So could he speak, so vary; nor is't hate
 To merit in him who doth personate
 Our Jew this day; nor is it his ambition
 To exceed or equal, being of condition
 More modest: this is all that he intends,
 (And that too at the urgency of some friends,)
 To prove his best, and, if none here gainsay it,
 The part he hath studied, and intends to play it.

EPILOGUE TO THE STAGE

AT THE COCK-PIT

IN graving with Pygmalion to contend,
Or painting with Apelles, doubtless the end
Must be disgrace: our actor did not so,—
He only aim'd to go, but not out-go.
Nor think that this day any prize was play'd;
Here were no bets at all, no wagers laid:
All the ambition that his mind doth swell,
Is but to hear from you (by me) 'twas well.

DRAMATIS PERSONÆ

FERNEZE, governor of Malta.	THREE JEWS.
LODOWICK, his son.	KNIGHTS, BASSOES, OFFICERS,
SELIM CALYMATH, son to the	GUARD, SLAVES, MESSENGER,
GRAND SEIGNIOR	and CARPENTERS.
MARTIN DEL BOSCO, vice-admiral
of Spain.	KATHARINE, mother to MATHIAS.
MATHIAS, a gentleman.	ABIGAIL, daughter to BARABAS.
JACOMO, {	BELLAMIRA, a courtesan.
BARNARDINE, { friars.	ABBESS.
BARABAS, a wealthy Jew.	NUN.
ITHAMORE, a slave.
PILIA-BORZA, a bully, attendant to	MACHIAVEL as Prologue-speaker.
BELLAMIRA.
TWO MERCHANTS.	Scene, Malta.

Enter MACHIAVEL.

✓ Mach. Albeit the world think Machiavel is dead,
Yet was his soul but flown beyond the Alps;
And, now the Guise is dead, is come from France,
To view this land, and frolic with his friends.
To some perhaps my name is odious;
But such as love me, guard me from their tongues,
And let them know that I am Machiavel,
And weigh not men, and therefore not men's words.
Admir'd I am of those that hate me most:
Though some speak openly against my books,
Yet will they read me, and thereby attain
To Peter's chair; and, when they cast me off,
Are poison'd by my climbing followers.

I count religion but a childish toy,
 And hold there is no sin but ignorance.
 Birds of the air will tell of murders past!
 I am asham'd to hear such fooleries.
 Many will talk of title to a crown:
 What right had Cæsar to the empery?
 Might first made kings, and laws were then most sure
 When, like the Draco's, they were writ in blood.
 Hence comes it that a strong built citadel
 Commands much more than letters can import:
 Which maxim had Phalaris observ'd,
 H'ad never bellow'd, in a brazen bull,
 Of great ones' envy: o' the poor petty wights
 Let me be envied and not pitied.
 But whither am I bound! I come not, I,
 To read a lecture here in Britain,
 But to present the tragedy of a Jew,
 Who smiles to see how full his bags are cramm'd;
 Which money was not got without my means.
 I crave but this,—grace him as he deserves,
 And let him not be entertain'd the worse
 Because he favours me. [Exit.]

ACT I

BARABAS discovered in his counting house, with heaps of gold before him.

Bara. So that of thus much that return was made;
 And of the third part of the Persian ships
 There was the venture summ'd and satisfied.
 As for those Samnites, and the men of Uz,
 That brought my Spanish oils and wines of Greece,
 Here have I purs'd their paltry silverlings.
 Fie, what a trouble 'tis to count this trash!
 Well fare the Arabians, who so richly pay
 The things they traffic for with wedge of gold,
 Whereof a man may easily in a day
 Tell that which may maintain him all his life.
 The needy groom, that never finger'd groat, = 4d.
 Would make a miracle of thus much coin;
 But he whose steel-barr'd coffers are cramm'd full,

And all his life-time hath been tired,
 Wearying his fingers' ends with telling it,
 Would in his age he loath to labour so,
 And for a pound to sweat himself to death.
 Give me the merchants of the Indian mines,
 That trade in metal of the purest mould;
 The wealthy Moor, that in the eastern rocks
 Without control can pick his riches up,
 And in his house heap pearl like pebble stones,
 Receive them free, and sell them by the weight!
 Bags of fiery opals, sapphires, amethysts,
 Jacinths, hard topaz, grass-green emeralds,
 Beauteous rubies, sparkling diamonds,
 And seld-seen costly stones of so great price,
 As one of them, indifferently rated,
 And of a carat of this quantity,
 May serve, in peril of calamity,
 To ransom great kings from captivity.
 This is the ware wherein consists my wealth;
 And thus methinks should men of judgment frame
 Their means of traffic from the vulgar trade,
 And, as their wealth increaseth, so inclose
 Infinite riches in a little room.
 But now how stands the wind?
 Into what corner peers my halcyon's bill?
 Ha! to the east? yes. See how stand the vanes—
 East and by south: why, then, I hope my ships
 I sent for Egypt and the bordering isles
 Are gotten up by Nilus' winding banks;
 Mine argosy from Alexandria,
 Loaden with spice and silks, now under sail,
 Are smoothly gliding down by Candy-shore
 To Malta, through our Mediterranean sea.—
 But who comes here?

Enter a Merchant.

How now!

Merch. Barabas, thy ships are safe,
 Riding in Malta-road; and all the merchants
 With other merchandise are safe arriv'd,
 And have sent me to know whether yourself
 Will come and custom them.
Bara. The ships are safe thou say'st, and richly fraught?

Merch. They are.

Bara. Why, then, go bid them come ashore,
And bring with them their bills of entry:
I hope our credit in the custom-house
Will serve as well as I were present there.
Go send 'em threescore camels, thirty mules,
And twenty waggons, to bring up the ware.
But art thou master in a ship of mine,
And is thy credit not enough for that?

Merch. The very custom barely comes to more
Than many merchants of the town are worth,
And therefore far exceeds my credit, sir.

Bara. Go tell 'em the Jew of Malta sent thee, man:
Tush, who amongst 'em knows not Barabas?

Merch. I go.

Bara. So, then, there's somewhat come.—
Sirrah, which of my ships art thou master of?

Merch. Of the Speranza, sir.

Bara. And saw'st thou not
Mine argosy at Alexandria?
Thou couldst not come from Egypt, or by Caire,
But at the entry there into the sea,
Where Nilus pays his tribute to the main,
Thou needs must sail by Alexandria.

Merch. I neither saw them, nor inquir'd of them:
But this we heard some of our seamen say,
They wonder'd how you durst with so much wealth
Trust such a crazed vessel, and so far.

Bara. Tush, they are wise! I know her and her strength.
But go, go thou thy ways, discharge thy ship,
And bid my factor bring his loading in.

[Exit Merchant.]

And yet I wonder at this argosy.

Enter a Second Merchant.

Sec. Merch. Thine argosy from Alexandria,
Know, Barabas, doth ride in Malta road,
Laden with riches, and exceeding store
Of Persian silks, of gold, and orient pearl.

Bara. How chance you came not with those other ships
That sail'd by Egypt?

Sec. Merch. Sir, we saw 'em not.

Bara. Belike they coasted round by Candy-shore

About their oils or other businesses.

But 'twas ill done of you to come so far
Without the aid or conduct of their ships.

Sec. Merch. Sir, we were wafted by a Spanish fleet,
That never left us till within a league,
That had the galleys of the Turk in chase.

Bara. O, they were going up to Sicily.

Well, go,

And bid the merchants and my men despatch,
And come ashore, and see the fraught discharg'd.

Sec. Merch. I go.

[Exit.]

Bara. Thus trolls our fortune in by land and sea,
And thus are we on every side enrich'd:
These are the blessings promis'd to the Jews,
And herein was old Abraham's happiness:
What more may heaven do for earthly man
Than thus to pour out plenty in their laps,
Ripping the bowels of the earth for them,
Making the sea[s] their servants, and the winds
To drive their substance with successful blasts?
Who hateth me but for my happiness?
Or who is honour'd now but for his wealth?
Rather had I, a Jew, be hated thus,
Than pitied in a Christian poverty;
For I can see no fruits in all their faith,
But malice, falsehood, and excessive pride,
Which methinks fits not their profession.
Haply some hapless man hath conscience,
And for his conscience lives in beggary.
They say we are a scatter'd nation:
I cannot tell; but we have scrambled up
More wealth by far than those that brag of faith:
There's Kirriah Jairim, the great Jew of Greece.
Obed in Bairseth, Nones in Portugal,
Myself in Malta, some in Italy,
Many in France, and wealthy every one;
Ay, wealthier far than any Christian.
I must confess we come not to be kings:
That's not our fault: alas, our number's few!
And crowns come either by succession,
Or urg'd by force; and nothing violent,
Oft have I heard tell, can be permanent.
Give us a peaceful rule; make Christians kings,

That thirst so much for principality.
 I have no charge, nor many children,
 But one sole daughter, whom I hold as dear
 As Agamemnon did his Iphigen;
 And all I have is hers.—But who comes here?

Enter three Jews.

First Jew. Tush, tell not me; 'twas done of policy.

Sec. Jew. Come, therefore, let us go to Barabas;
 For he can counsel best in these affairs:
 And here he comes.

Bara. Why, how now, countrymen!
 Why flock you thus to me in multitudes?
 What accident's betided to the Jews?

First Jew. A fleet of warlike galleys, Barabas,
 Are come from Turkey, and lie in our road:
 And they this day sit in the council-house
 To entertain them and their embassy.

Bara. Why, let 'em come, so they come not to war;
 Or let 'em war, so we be conquerors.—
 Nay, let 'em combat, conquer, and kill all.
 So they spare me, my daughter, and my wealth. [Aside.]

First Jew. Were it for confirmation of a league,
 They would not come in warlike manner thus.

Sec. Jew. I fear their coming will afflict us all.

Bara. Fond men, what dream you of their multitudes
 What need they treat of peace that are in league?
 The Turks and those of Malta are in league:
 Tut, tut, there is some other matter in't.

First Jew. Why, Barabas, they come for peace or war.

Bara. Haply for neither, but to pass along,
 Towards Venice, by the Adriatic sea,
 With whom they have attempted many times,
 But never could effect their stratagem.

Third Jew. And very wisely said; it may be so.

Sec. Jew. But there's a meeting in the senate-house,
 And all the Jews in Malta must be there.

Bara. Hum,—all the Jews in Malta must be there!
 Ay, like enough: why, then, let every man
 Provide him, and be there for fashion-sake.
 If anything shall there concern our state,
 Assure yourselves I'll look—unto myself. [Aside.]

First Jew. I know you will.—Well, brethren, let us go.

Sec. Jew. Let's take our leaves.—Farewell, good Barabas.

Bara. Farewell, Zaareth; farewell, Temainte. [Exeunt Jews.]

And, Barabas, now search this secret out;
 Summon thy senses, call thy wits together:
 These silly men mistake the matter clean,
 Long to the Turk did Malta contribute;
 Which tribute all in policy, I fear,
 The Turk has let increase to such a sum
 As all the wealth of Malta cannot pay;
 And now by that advantage thinks, belike,
 To seize upon the town; ay, that he seeks.
 Howe'er the world go, I'll make sure for one,
 And seek in time to intercept the worst,
 Warily guarding that which I ha' got:

Ego mihimet sum semper proximus :

Why, let 'em enter, let 'em take the town. [Exit.]

Enter FERNEZE governor of Malta, Knights, and Officers; met by CALYMATH, and Bassoes of the Turk.

Fern. Now, bassoes, what demand you at our hands?

First Bas. Know, knights of Malta, that we came from Rhodes,

From Cyprus, Candy, and those other isles
 That lie betwixt the Mediterranean seas.

Fern. What's Cyprus, Candy, and those other isles
 To us or Malta? what at our hands demand ye?

Cal. The ten years' tribute that remains unpaid.

Fern. Alas, my lord, the sum is over-great!

I hope your highness will consider us.

Cal. I wish, grave governor, 'twere in my power

To favour you; but 'tis my father's cause.

Wherein I may not, nay, I dare not dally.

Fern. Then give us leave, great Selim Calymath.

Cal. Stand all aside, and let the knights determine;

And send to keep our galleys under sail,

For happily we shall not tarry here.—

Now, governor, how are you resolv'd?

Fern. Thus; since your hard conditions are such

That you will needs have ten years' tribute past,

We may have time to make collection

Amongst the inhabitants of Malta for't.

First Bas. That's more than is in our commission.

Cal. What, Callapine! a little courtesy:

Let's know their time; perhaps it is not long;
 And 'tis more kingly to obtain by peace
 Than to enforce conditions by constraint.—
 What respite ask you, governor?

Fern. But a month.

Cal. We grant a month; but see you keep your promise.

Now launch our galleys back again to sea,
 Where we'll attend the respite you have ta'en,
 And for the money send our messenger.

Farewell, great governor, and brave knights of Malta.

Fern. And all good fortune wait on Calymath!

[Exeunt Calymath and Bassoes.]

Go one and call those Jews of Malta hither:

Were they not summon'd to appear to-day?

First Off. They were, my lord; and here they come.

Enter BARABAS and three Jews.

First Knight. Have you determin'd what to say to them?

Fern. Yes; give me leave:—and, Hebrews, now come near.

From the Emperor of Turkey is arriv'd
 Great Selim Calymath, his highness' son,
 To levy of us ten years' tribute past:

Now, then, here know that it concerneth us.

Bara. Then, good my lord, to keep your quiet still,

Your lordship shall do well to let them have it.

Fern. Soft, Barabas! there's more 'longs to't than so.

To what this ten years' tribute will amount,
 That we have cast, but cannot compass it
 By reason of the wars, that robb'd our store;
 And therefore are we to request your aid.

Bara. Alas, my lord, we are no soldiers!

And what's our aid against so great a prince?

First Knight. Tut, Jew, we know thou art no soldier:

That art a merchant and a money'd man,
 And 'tis thy money, Barabas, we seek.

Bara. How, my lord! my money!

Fern. Thine and the rest;

For, to be short, amongst you't must be had.

First Jew. Alas, my lord, the most of us are poor!

Fern. Then let the rich increase your portions.

Bara. Are strangers with your tribute to be tax'd?

Sec. Knight. Have strangers leave with us to get their wealth?

Then let them with us contribute.

Bara. How! equally?

Fern. No, Jew, like infidels;

For through our sufferance of your hateful lives,

Who stand accursed in the sight of heaven,

These taxes and afflictions are befall'n,

And therefore thus we are determined.—

Read there the articles of our decrees.

Officer. [reads] First, the tribute-money of the Turks shall all be levied amongst the Jews, and each of them to pay one half of his estate.

Bara. How! half his estate!—I hope you mean not mine.

[Aside.]

Fern. Read on.

Officer. [reads] Secondly, he that denies to pay, shall straight become a Christian.

Bara. How! a Christian!—Hum,—what's here to do?

[Aside.]

Officer. [reads] Lastly, he that denies this, shall absolutely lose all he has.

Three Jews. O my lord, we will give half!

Bara. O earth-mettled villains, and no Hebrews born!

And will you basely thus submit yourselves

To leave your goods to their arbitrement?

Fern. Why, Barabas, wilt thou be christened?

Bara. No, governor, I will be no convertite.

Fern. Then pay thy half.

Bara. Why, know you what you did by this device?

Half of my substance is a city's wealth.

Governor, it was not got so easily;

Nor will I part so slightly therewithal.

Fern. Sir, half is the penalty of our decree;

Either pay that, or we will seize on all.

Bara. Corpo di Dio! stay: you shall have half;

Let me be us'd but as my brethren are.

Fern. No, Jew, thou hast denied the articles,

And now it cannot be recall'd.

[Exeunt Officers, on a sign from Fernese.]

Bara. Will you, then, steal my goods?

Is theft the ground of your religion?

Fern. No, Jew; we take particularly thine,

To save the ruin of a multitude:

And better one want for a common good,

Than many perish for a private man:
 Yet, Barabas, we will not banish thee,
 But here in Malta, where thou gott'st thy wealth,
 Live still; and, if thou canst, get more.

Bara. Christians, what or how can I multiply?
 Of naught is nothing made.

First Knight. From naught at first thou cam'st to little wealth,

From little unto more, from more to most:
 If your first curse fall heavy on thy head,
 And make thee poor and scorn'd of all the world,
 'Tis not our fault, but thy inherent sin.

Bara. What, bring you Scripture to confirm your wrongs?
 Preach me not out of my possessions.

Some Jews are wicked, as all Christians are;
 But say the tribe that I descended of
 Were all in general cast away for sin,
 Shall I be tried for their transgressions?
 The man that dealeth righteously shall live;
 And which of you can charge me otherwise?

Fern. Out, wretched Barabas!

Sham'st thou not thus to justify thyself,
 As if we knew not thy profession?
 If thou rely upon thy righteousness,
 Be patient, and thy riches will increase.
 Excess of wealth is cause of covetousness;
 And covetousness, O, 'tis a monstrous sin!

Bara. Ay, but theft is worse: tush! take not from me, then,
 For that is theft; and, if you rob me thus,
 I must be forc'd to steal, and compass more.

First Knight. Grave governor, list not to his exclaims:
 Convert his mansion to a nunnery;

His house will harbour many holy nuns.

Fern. It shall be so.

Re-enter Officers.

Now, officers, have you done?

First Off. Ay, my lord, we have seiz'd upon the goods
 And wares of Barabas, which, being valu'd,
 Amount to more than all the wealth in Malta:
 And of the other we have seiz'd half.

Fern. Then we'll take order for the residue.

Bara. Well, then, my lord, say, are you satisfied?

You have my goods, my money, and my wealth,
My ships, my store, and all that I enjoy'd;
And, having all, you can request no more,
Unless your unrelenting flinty hearts
Suppress all pity in your stony breasts,
And now shall move you to bereave my life.

Fern. No, Barabas; to stain our hands with blood
Is far from us and our profession.

Bara. Why, I esteem the injury far less,
To take the lives of miserable men
Than be the causers of their misery.
You have my wealth, the labour of my life,
The comfort of mine age, my children's hope;
And therefore ne'er distinguish of the wrong.

Fern. Content thee, Barabas; thou hast naught but right.

Bara. Your extreme right does me exceeding wrong:
But take it to you, i' the devil's name!

Fern. Come, let us in, and gather of these goods
The money for this tribute of the Turk.

First Knight. 'Tis necessary that be look'd unto;
For, if we break our day, we break the league,
And that will prove but simple policy.

[Exeunt all except Barabas and the three Jews.]

Bara. Ay, policy! that's their profession,
And not simplicity, as they suggest.—
The plagues of Egypt, and the curse of heaven,
Earth's barrenness, and all men's hatred,
Inflict upon them, thou great Primus Motor!
And here upon my knees, striking the earth,
I ban their souls to everlasting pains,
And extreme tortures of the fiery deep,
That thus have dealt with me in my distress!

First Jew. O, yet be patient, gentle Barabas!

Bara. O silly brethren, born to see this day,
Why stand you thus unmov'd with my laments?
Why weep you not to think upon my wrongs?
Why pine not I, and die in this distress?

First Jew. Why, Barabas, as hardly can we brook
The cruel handling of ourselves in this:
Thou seest they have taken half our goods.

Bara. Why did you yield to their extortion?
You were a multitude, and I but one;
And of me only have they taken all.

First Jew. Yet, brother Barabas, remember Job.

Bara. What tell you me of Job? I wot his wealth
Was written thus; he had seven thousand sheep,
Three thousand camels, and two hundred yoke
Of labouring oxen, and five hundred
She asses: but for every one of those,
Had they been valu'd at indifferent rate,
I had at home, and in mine argosy,
And other ships that came from Egypt last,
As much as would have bought his beasts and him,
And yet have kept enough to live upon;
So that not he, but I, may curse the day,
Thy fatal birthday, forlorn Barabas;
And henceforth wish for an eternal night,
That clouds of darkness may inclose my flesh,
And hide these extreme sorrows from mine eyes;
For only I have toil'd to inherit here
The months of vanity, and loss of time,
And painful nights, have been appointed me.

Sec. Jew. Good Barabas, be patient.

Bara. Ay, I pray, leave me in my patience. You, that
Were ne'er possess'd of wealth, are pleas'd with want;
But give him liberty at least to mourn,
That in a field, amidst his enemies,
Doth see his soldiers slain, himself disarm'd,
And know no means of his recovery:
Ay, let me sorrow for this sudden chance;
'Tis in the trouble of my spirit I speak:
Great injuries are not so soon forgot.

First Jew. Come, let us leave him; in his ireful mood
Our words will but increase his ecstasy.

Sec. Jew. On, then: but, trust me, 'tis a misery
To see a man in such affliction.—
Farewell, Barabas.

Bara. Ay, fare you well. [Exeunt three Jews.]
See the simplicity of these base slaves,
Who, for the villains have no wit themselves,
Think me to be a senseless lump of clay,
That will with every water wash to dirt!
No, Barabas is born to better chance,
And fram'd of finer mould than common men,
That measure naught but by the present time.
A reaching thought will search his deepest wits,

And casts with cunning for the time to come;
For evils are apt to happen every day.

Enter ABIGAIL.

But whither wends my beauteous Abigail?
O, what has made my lovely daughter sad?
What, woman! moan not for a little loss;
Thy father has enough in store for thee.

Abig. Not for myself, but aged Barabas,
Father, for thee lamenteth Abigail:
But I will learn to leave these fruitless tears;
And, urg'd thereto with my afflictions,
With fierce exclams run to the senate-house,
And in the senate reprehend them all,
And rent their hearts with tearing of my hair,
Till they reduce the wrongs done to my father.

Bara. No, Abigail; things past recovery
Are hardly cur'd with exclamations:
Be silent, daughter; sufferance breeds ease,
And time may yield us an occasion,
Which on the sudden cannot serve the turn.
Besides, my girl, think me not all so fond
As negligently to forego so much
Without provision for thyself and me:
Ten thousand portagues, besides great pearls,
Rich costly jewels, and stones infinite,
Fearing the worst of this before it fell,
I closely hid.

Abig. Where, father?

Bara. In my house, my girl.

Abig. Then shall they ne'er be seen of Barabas;
For they have seiz'd upon thy house and wares.

Bara. But they will give me leave once more, I trow,
To go into my house.

Abig. That may they not;
For there I left the governor placing nuns,
Displacing me; and of thy house they mean
To make a nunnery, where none but their own sect
Must enter in; men generally barr'd.

Bara. My gold, my gold, and all my wealth is gone!—
You partial heavens, have I deserv'd this plague?
What, will you thus oppose me, luckless stars,
To make me desperate in my poverty?

And, knowing me impatient in distress,
 Think me so mad as I will hang myself,
 That I may vanish o'er the earth in air,
 And leave no memory that e'er I was?
 No, I will live; nor loathe I this my life:
 And, since you leave me in the ocean thus
 To sink or swim, and put me to my shifts,
 I'll rouse my senses, and awake myself.—
 Daughter, I have it: thou perceiv'st the plight
 Wherein these Christians have oppressed me:
 Be rul'd by me, for in extremity
 We ought to make bar of no policy.

Abig. Father, whate'er it be, to injure them
 That have so manifestly wronged us,
 What will not Abigail attempt?

Bara. Why, so.

Then thus: thou told'st me they have turn'd my house
 Into a nunnery, and some nuns are there?

Abig. I did.

Bara. Then, Abigail, there must my girl
 Entreat the abbess to be entertain'd.

Abig. How! as a nun?

Bara. Ay, daughter; for religion
 Hides many mischiefs from suspicion.

Abig. Ay, but, father, they will suspect me there.

Bara. Let 'em suspect; but be thou so precise
 As they may think it done of holiness:
 Entreat 'em fair, and give them friendly speech,
 And seem to them as if thy sins were great,
 Till thou hast gotten to be entertain'd.

Abig. Thus, father, shall I much dissemble.

Bara. Tush!

As good dissemble that thou never mean'st
 As first mean truth and then dissemble it:
 A counterfeit profession is better
 Than unseen hypocrisy.

Abig. Well, father, say I be entertain'd,
 What then shall follow?

Bara. This shall follow then.

There have I hid, close underneath the plank
 That runs along the upper-chamber floor,
 The gold and jewels which I kept for thee:—
 But here they come: be cunning, Abigail.

Abig. Then, father, go with me.

Bara. No, Abigail, in this

It is not necessary I be seen;

For I will seem offended with thee for't:

Be close, my girl, for this must fetch my gold.

[They retire.]

Enter FRIAR JACOMO, FRIAR BARNARDINE,
Abbess, and a Nun.

Friar Jac. Sisters,

We now are almost at the new-made nunnery.

Abb. The better; for we love not to be seen:

'Tis thirty winters long since some of us

Did stray so far amongst the multitude.

Friar Jac. But, madam, this house

And waters of this new-made nunnery

Will much delight you.

Abb. It may be so.—But who comes here?

[Abigail comes forward.]

Abig. Grave abbess, and you happy virgins' guide,

Pity the state of a distressed maid!

Abb. What art thou, daughter?

Abig. The hopeless daughter of a hapless Jew,

The Jew of Malta, wretched Barabas,

Sometimes the owner of a goodly house,

Which they have now turn'd to a nunnery.

Abb. Well, daughter, say, what is thy suit with us?

Abig. Fearing the afflictions which my father feels

Proceed from sin or want of faith in us,

I'd pass away my life in penitence,

And be a novice in your nunnery,

To make atonement for my labouring soul.

Friar Jac. No doubt, brother, but this proceedeth of the spirit.

Friar Barn. Ay, and of a moving spirit too, brother: but come,

Let us entreat she may be entertain'd.

Abb. Well, daughter, we admit you for a nun.

Abig. First let me as a novice learn to frame

My solitary life to your strait laws,

And let me lodge where I was wont to lie:

I do not doubt, by your divine precepts

And mine own industry, but to profit much.

Bara. As much, I hope, as all I hid is worth. [Aside.]

Abb. Come, daughter, follow us.

Bara. [coming forward] Why, how now, Abigail!

What mak'st thou 'mongst these hateful Christians?

Friar Jac. Hinder her not, thou man of little faith,

For she has mortified herself.

Bara. How! mortified!

Friar Jac. And is admitted to the sisterhood.

Bara. Child of perdition, and thy father's shame!

What wilt thou do among these hateful fiends?

I charge thee on my blessing that thou leave

These devils and their damned heresy!

Abig. Father, forgive me—

Bara. Nay, back, Abigail.

And think upon the jewels and the gold;

The board is marked thus that covers it.—

[Aside to Abigail in a whisper.]

Away, accursed, from thy father's sight!

Friar Jac. Barabas, although thou art in misbelief,

And wilt not see thine own afflictions,

Yet let thy daughter be no longer blind.

Bara. Blind friar, I reckon not thy persuasions,—

The board is marked thus that covers it—

[Aside to Abigail in a whisper.]

For I had rather die than see her thus.—

Wilt thou forsake me too in my distress,

Seduced daughter?—Go, forget not.—

[Aside to her in a whisper.]

Becomes it Jews to be so credulous?—

To-morrow early I'll be at the door.—

[Aside to her in a whisper.]

No, come not at me; if thou wilt be damn'd,

Forget me, see me not; and so, be gone!—

Farewell; remember to-morrow morning.—

[Aside to her in a whisper.]

Out, out, thou wretch!

[Exit, on one side, Barabas. Exeunt, on the other side, Friars, Abbess, Nun, and Abigail: and, as they are going out,]

Enter MATHIAS.

Math. Who's this? fair Abigail, the rich Jew's daughter,
Become a nun! her father's sudden fall

Has humbled her, and brought her down to this:
 Tut, she were fitter for a tale of love,
 Than to be tired out with orisons;
 And better would she far become a bed,
 Embraced in a friendly lover's arms,
 Than rise at midnight to a solemn mass.

Enter LODOWICK.

Lod. Why, how now, Don Mathias! in a dump?

Math. Believe me, noble Lodowick, I have seen
 The strangest sight, in my opinion,
 That ever I beheld.

Lod. What was't, I prithee?

Math. A fair young maid, scarce fourteen years of age,
 The sweetest flower in Cytherea's field,
 Cropt from the pleasures of the fruitful earth,
 And strangely metamorphos'd [to a] nun.

Lod. But say, what was she?

Math. Why, the rich Jew's daughter.

Lod. What, Barabas, whose goods were lately seiz'd?
 Is she so fair?

Math. And matchless beautiful.

As, had you seen her, 'twould have mov'd your heart,
 Though countermin'd with walls of brass, to love,
 Or, at the least, to pity.

Lod. An if she be so fair as you report,
 'Twere time well spent to go and visit her:
 How say you? shall we?

Math. I must and will, sir; there's no remedy.

Lod. And so will I too, or it shall go hard.

Farewell, Mathias.

Math. Farewell, Lodowick.

[Exeunt severally.]

ACT II

Enter BARABAS, with a light.

Bara. Thus, like the sad presaging raven, that tolls
 The sick man's passport in her hollow beak,
 And in the shadow of the silent night
 Doth shake contagion from her sable wings,
 Vex'd and tormented runs poor Barabas

With fatal curses towards these Christians.
 The incertain pleasures of swift-footed time
 Have ta'en their flight, and left me in despair;
 And of my former riches rests no more
 But bare remembrance; like a soldier's scar,
 That has no further comfort for his maim.—
 O Thou, that with a fiery pillar ledd'st
 The sons of Israel through the dismal shades,
 Light Abraham's offspring; and direct the hand
 Of Abigail this night! or let the day
 Turn to eternal darkness after this!—
 No sleep can fasten on my watchful eyes,
 Nor quiet enter my distemper'd thoughts,
 Till I have answer of my Abigail.

Enter ABIGAIL above.

- Abig.* Now have I happily espied a time
 To search the plank my father did appoint;
 And here, behold, unseen, where I have found
 The gold, the pearls, and jewels, which he hid.
- Bara.* Now I remember those old women's words,
 Who in my wealth would tell me winter's tales,
 And speak of spirits and ghosts that glide by night
 About the place where treasure hath been hid:
 And now methinks that I am one of those;
 For, whilst I live, here lives my soul's sole hope,
 And, when I die, here shall my spirit walk.
- Abig.* Now that my father's fortune were so good
 As but to be about this happy place!
 'Tis not so happy: yet, when we parted last,
 He said he would attend me in the morn.
 Then, gentle Sleep, where'er his body rests,
 Give charge to Morpheus that he may dream
 A golden dream, and of the sudden wake,
 Come and receive the treasure I have found.
- Bara.* Bueno para todos mi ganado no era:
 As good go on, as sit so sadly thus.—
 But stay: what star shines yonder in the east?
 The loadstar of my life, if Abigail.—
 Who's there?
- Abig.* Who's that?
- Bara.* Peace, Abigail! 'tis I.
- Abig.* Then, father, here receive thy happiness.

Bara. Hast thou't?

Abig. Here. [Throws down bags] Hast thou't?
There's more, and more, and more.

Bara. O my girl,
My gold, my fortune, my felicity,
Strength to my soul, death to mine enemy;
Welcome the first beginner of my bliss!
O Abigail, Abigail, that I had thee here too!
Then my desires were fully satisfied:
But I will practise thy enlargement thence:
O girl! O gold! O beauty! O my bliss!

[Hugs the bags]

Abig. Father, it draweth towards midnight now,
And 'bout this time the nuns begin to wake;
To shun suspicion, therefore, let us part.

Bara. Farewell, my joy, and by my fingers take
A kiss from him that sends it from his soul.

[Exit Abigail above.]

Now, Phoebus, ope the eye-lids of the day,
And, for the raven, wake the morning lark,
That I may hover with her in the air,
Singing o'er these, as she does o'er her young.
Hermoso placer de los dineros.

[Exit.]

Enter FERNEZE, MARTIN DEL BOSCO, Knights, and Officers.

Fern. Now, captain, tell us whither thou art bound?
Whence is thy ship that anchors in our road?
And why thou cam'st ashore without our leave?

Bosco. Governor of Malta, hither am I bound;
My ship, the Flying Dragon, is of Spain,
And so am I; Del Bosco is my name,
Vice-admiral unto the Catholic King.

First Knight. 'Tis true, my lord; therefore entreat him well.

Bosco. Our freight is Grecians, Turks, and Afric Moors;
For late upon the coast of Corsica,
Because we vail'd not to the Turkish fleet,
Their creeping galleys had us in the chase:
But suddenly the wind began to rise,
And then we luff'd and tack'd, and fought at ease:
Some have we fir'd, and many have we sunk;
But one amongst the rest became our prize:

The captain's slain; the rest remain our slaves,
Of whom we would make sale in Malta here.

Fern. Martin del Bosco, I have heard of thee:

Welcome to Malta, and to all of us!

But to admit a sale of these thy Turks,

We may not, nay, we dare not give consent,

By reason of a tributary league.

First Knight. Del Bosco, as thou lov'st and honour'st us,

Persuade our governor against the Turk:

This truce we have is but in hope of gold,

And with that sum he craves might we wage war.

Bosco. Will knights of Malta be in league with Turks,

And buy it basely too for sums of gold?

My lord, remember that, to Europe's shame,

The Christian Isle of Rhodes, from whence you came,

Was lately lost, and you were stated here

To be at deadly enmity with Turks.

Fern. Captain, we know it; but our force is small.

Bosco. What is the sum that Calymath requires?

Fern. A hundred thousand crowns.

Bosco. My lord and king hath title to this isle,

And he means quickly to expel you hence;

Therefore be rul'd by me, and keep the gold:

I'll write unto his majesty for aid,

And not depart until I see you free.

Fern. On this condition shall thy Turks be sold.—

Go, officers, and set them straight in show.—

[Exeunt Officers.]

Bosco, thou shalt be Malta's general;

We and our warlike knights will follow thee

Against these barbarous misbelieving Turks.

Bosco. So shall you imitate those you succeed;

For, when their hideous force environ'd Rhodes,

Small though the number was that kept the town,

They fought it out, and not a man surviv'd

To bring the hapless news to Christendom.

Fern. So will we fight it out; come, let's away.

Proud daring Calymath, instead of gold,

We'll send thee bullets wrapt in smoke and fire:

Claim tribute where thou wilt, we are resolv'd—

Honour is bought with blood, and not with gold.

[Exeunt.]

Enter Officers, with ITHAMORE and other Slaves.

First Off. This is the market-place; here let 'em stand:

Fear not their sale, for they'll be quickly bought.

Sec. Off. Every one's price is written on his back,

And so much must they yield, or not be sold.

First Off. Here comes the Jew: had not his goods been seiz'd,

He'd give us present money for them all.

Enter BARABAS.

Bara. In spite of these swine-eating Christians, (Unchosen nation, never circumcis'd,
 Poor villains, such as were ne'er thought upon
 Till Titus and Vespasian conquer'd us,)
 Am I become as wealthy as I was.
 They hop'd my daughter would ha' been a nun;
 But she's at home, and I have bought a house
 As great and fair as is the governor's:
 And there, in spite of Malta, will I dwell,
 Having Ferneze's hand; whose heart I'll have,
 Ay, and his son's too, or it shall go hard.
 I am not of the tribe of Levi, I,
 That can so soon forget an injury.
 We Jews can fawn like spaniels when we please;
 And when we grin we bite; yet are our looks
 As innocent and harmless as a lamb's.
 I learn'd in Florence how to kiss my hand,
 Heave up my shoulders when they call me dog,
 And duck as low as any bare-foot friar;
 Hoping to see them starve upon a stall,
 Or else be gather'd for in our synagogue,
 That, when the offering-basin comes to me,
 Even for charity I may spit into't.—
 Here comes Don Lodowick, the governor's son,
 One that I love for his good father's sake.

Enter LODOWICK

Lod. I hear the wealthy Jew walked this way:

I'll seek him out, and so insinuate,
 That I may have a sight of Abigail,
 For Don Mathias tells me she is fair.

Bara. Now will I show myself to have more of the serpent than the dove; that is, more knave than fool. [Aside.]

Lod. Yond' walks the Jew: now for fair Abigail.

Bara. Ay, ay, no doubt but she's at your command.

[Aside.

Lod. Barabas, thou know'st I am the governor's son.

Bara. I would you were his father too, sir! that's all the harm I wish you.—The slave looks like a hog's cheek new singed.

[Aside

Lod. Whither walk'st thou, Barabas?

Bara. No further: 'tis a custom held with us,
That when we speak with Gentiles like to you,
We turn into the air to purge ourselves;
For unto us the promise doth belong.

Lod. Well, Barabas, canst help me to a diamond?

Bara. O, sir, your father had my diamonds:

Yet I have one left that will serve your turn.—
I mean my daughter; but, ere he shall have her,
I'll sacrifice her on a pile of wood:
I ha' the poison of the city for him,
And the white leprosy.

[Aside.

Lod. What sparkle does it give without a foil?

Bara. The diamond that I talk of ne'er was foil'd:—
But, when he touches it, it will be foil'd.—

[Aside.

Lord Lodowick, it sparkles bright and fair.

Lod. Is it square or pointed? pray, let me know.

Bara. Pointed it is, good sir,—but not for you.

[Aside.

Lod. I like it much the better.

Bara. So do I too.

Lod. How shows it by night?

Bara. Outshines Cynthia's rays:—

You'll like it better far o' nights than days.

[Aside.

Lod. And what's the price?

Bara. Your life, an if you have it [Aside].—O my lord,
We will not jar about the price: come to my house,
And I will give't your honour—with a vengeance.

[Aside.

Lod. No, Barabas, I will deserve it first.

Bara. Good sir,

Your father has deserv'd it at my hands,
Who, of mere charity and Christian ruth,
To bring me to religious purity,
And, as it were, in catechising sort,
To make me mindful of my mortal sins,

Against my will, and whether I would or no,
Seiz'd all I had, and thrust me out of doors,
And made my house a place for nuns most chaste.

Lod. No doubt your soul shall reap the fruit of it.

Bara. Ay, but, my lord, the harvest is far off:
And yet I know the prayers of those nuns
And holy friars, having money for their pains,
Are wondrous;—and indeed do no man good;— [Aside.
And, seeing they are not idle, but still doing,
'Tis likely they in time may reap some fruit,
I mean, in fullness of perfection.

Lod. Good Barabas, glance not at our holy nuns.

Bara. No, but I do it through a burning zeal,—
Hoping ere long to set the house a-fire;
For, though they do a while increase and multiply,
I'll have a saying to that nunnery.— [Aside.
As for the diamond, sir, I told you of,
Come home, and there's no price shall make us part,
Even for your honourable father's sake,—
It shall go hard but I will see your death.— [Aside.
But now I must be gone to buy a slave.

Lod. And, Barabas, I'll bear thee company.

Bara. Come, then; here's the market place.—
What's the price of this slave? two hundred crowns! do
the Turks weigh so much?

First Off. Sir, that's his price.

Bara. What, can he steal, that you demand so much?
Belike he has some new trick for a purse;
An if he has, he is worth three hundred plates,
So that, being bought, the town seal might be got
To keep him for his life-time from the gallows:
The sessions-day is critical to thieves,
And few or none escape but by being purg'd.

Lod. Rat'st thou this Moor but at two hundred plates?

First Off. No more, my lord.

Bara. Why should this Turk be dearer than that Moor?

First Off. Because he is young, and has more qualities.

Bara. What, hast the philosopher's stone? an thou hast, break my head with it, I'll forgive thee.

Slave. No, sir; I can cut and shave.

Bara. Let me see, sirrah; are you not an old shaver?

Slave. Alas, sir, I am a very youth!

Bara. A youth! I'll buy you, and marry you to Lady Vanity,
if you do well.

Slave. I will serve you, sir.

Bara. Some wicked trick or other: it may be, under colour of shaving, thou'lt cut my throat for my goods. Tell me, hast thou thy health well?

Slave. Ay, passing well.

Bara. So much the worse: I must have one that's sickly, an't be but for sparing victuals: 'tis not a stone of beef a day will maintain you in these chops.—Let me see one that's somewhat leaner.

First Off. Here's a leaner; how like you him?

Bara. Where wast thou born?

Itha. In Thrace; brought up in Arabia.

Bara. So much the better; thou art for my turn.

An hundred crowns? I'll have him; there's the coin.

[Gives money.]

First Off. Then mark him, sir, and take him hence.

Bara. Ay, mark him, you were best; for this is he

That by my help shall do much villany.— [Aside.

My lord, farewell.—Come, sirrah; you are mine.—

As for the diamond, it shall be yours:

I pray, sir, be no stranger at my house;

All that I have shall be at your command.

Enter MATHIAS and KATHARINE.

Math. What make the Jew and Lodowick so private?

I fear me 'tis about fair Abigail. [Aside.

Bara. [to Lod.] Yonder comes Don Mathias; let us stay:

He loves my daughter, and she holds him dear;

But I have sworn to frustrate both their hopes,

And be reveng'd upon the—governor. [Aside.

[Exit Lodowick.]

Kath. This Moor is comeliest, is he not? speak, son.

Math. No, this is the better, mother, view this well.

Bara. Seem not to know me here before your mother,

Lest she mistrust the match that is in hand:

When you have brought her home, come to my house;

Think of me as thy father; son, farewell.

Math. But wherefore talk'd Don Lodowick with you?

Bara. Tush, man! we talk'd of diamonds, not of Abigail.

Kath. Tell me, Mathias, is not that the Jew?

Bara. As for the comment on the Maccabees,

I have it, sir, and 'tis at your command.

Math. Yes, madam, and my talk with him was
About the borrowing of a book or two.

Kath. Converse not with him; he is cast off from heaven.—
Thou hast thy crowns, fellow.—Come, let's away.

Math. Sirrah Jew, remember the book.

Bara. Marry, will I, sir.

[Exeunt Katharine and Mathias.]

First Off. Come, I have made a reasonable market; let's away. [Exeunt Officers with Slaves.]

Bara. Now let me know thy name, and therewithal
Thy birth, condition, and profession.

Itha. Faith, sir, my birth is but mean; my name's
Ithamore; my profession what you please.

Bara. Hast thou no trade? then listen to my words,
And I will teach [thee] that shall stick by thee:
First, be thou void of these affections,
Compassoin, love, vain hope, and heartless fear;
Be mov'd at nothing, see thou pity none,
But to thyself smile when the Christians moan.

Itha. O, brave, master! I worship your nose for this.

Bara. As for myself, I walk abroad o' nights,
And kill sick people groaning under walls:
Sometimes I go about and poison wells;
And now and then, to cherish Christian thieves,
I am content to lose some of my crowns,
That I may, walking in my gallery,
See 'em go pinion'd along by my door.
To practise first upon the Italian;
There I enrich'd the priests with burials,
And always kept the sexton's arms in ure
With digging graves and ringing dead men's knells:
And, after that, was I an engineer,
And in the wars 'twixt France and Germany,
Under pretence of helping Charles the Fifth,
Slew friend and enemy with my stratagems:
Then, after that, was I an usurer,
And with extorting, cozening, forfeiting,
And tricks belonging unto brokery,
I fill'd the gaols with bankrupts in a year,
And with young orphans planted hospitals;
And every moon made some or other mad.
And now and then one hang himself for grief,
Pinning upon his breast a long great scroll

How I with interest tormented him.
 But mark how I am blest for plaguing them;—
 I have as much coin as will buy the town.
 But tell me now, how hast thou spent thy time?

Itha. Faith, master.

In setting Christian villages on fire,
 Chaining of eunuchs, binding galley slaves.
 One time I was an hostler at an inn,
 And in the night time secretly would I steal
 To travellers' chambers, and there cut their throats.
 Once at Jerusalem, where the pilgrims kneel'd,
 I strewed powder on the marble stones,
 And therewithal their knees would rankle so,
 That I have laugh'd a-good to see the cripples
 Go limping home to Christendom on stilts.

Bara. Why, this is something: make account of me
 As of thy fellow; we are villains both;
 Both circumcised; we hate Christians both:
 Be true and secret; thou shalt want no gold.
 But stand aside; here comes Don Lodowick.

Enter LODOWICK

Lod. O, Barabas, well met;
 Where is the diamond you told me of?

Bara. I have it for you, sir: please you walk in with me.—
 What, ho, Abigail! open the door, I say!

Enter ABIGAIL, with letters.

Abig. In good time, father; here are letters come
 From Ormus, and the post stays here within.

Bara. Give me the letters.—Daughter, do you hear?
 Entertain Lodowick, the governor's son,
 With all the courtesy you can afford,
 Provided that you keep your maidenhead:
 Use him as if he were a Philistine;
 Dissemble, swear, protest, vow love to him:
 He is not of the seed of Abraham.— [Aside to her.
 I am a little busy, sir; pray, pardon me.—
 Abigail, bid him welcome for my sake.

Abig. For your sake and his own he's welcome hither.

Bara. Daughter, a word more: kiss him, speak him fair,
 And like a cunning Jew so cast about,

That ye be both made sure ere you come out.

[Aside to her.]

Abig. O father, Don Mathias is my love!

Bara. I know it: yet, I say, make love to him;

Do, it is requisite it should be so.— [Aside to her.]

Nay, on my life, it is my factor's hand;

But go you in, I'll think upon the account.

[Excunt Abigail and Lodowick into the house.]

The account is made, for Lodovico dies.

My factor sends me word that a merchant's fled

That owes me for a hundred tun of wine:

I weigh it thus much [snapping his fingers]! I have wealth enough;

For now by this has he kiss'd Abigail,

And she vows love to him, and he to her.

As sure as heaven rain'd manna for the Jews,

So sure shall he and Don Mathias die:

His father was my chiefest enemy.

Enter MATHIAS.

Whither goes Don Mathias? stay a while.

Math. Whither, but to my fair love Abigail?

Bara. Thou know'st, and heaven can witness it is true,
That I intend my daughter shall be thine.

Math. Ay, Barabas, or else thou wrong'st me much.

Bara. O, heaven forbid I should have such a thought!

Pardon me though I weep: the governor's son

Will, whether I will or no, have Abigail;

He sends her letters, bracelets, jewels, rings.

Math. Does she receive them?

Bara. She! no, Mathias, no, but sends them back;

And, when he comes, she locks herself up fast;

Yet through the key-hole will he talk to her,

While she runs to the window looking out

When you should come and hale him from the door.

Math. O treacherous Lodowick!

Bara. Even now, as I came home, he slipt me in,

And I am sure he is with Abigail.

Math. I'll rouse him thence.

Bara. Not for all Malta; therefore sheathe your sword;

If you love me, no quarrels in my house;

But steal you in, and seem to see him not:

I'll give him such a warning ere he goes,

As he shall have small hopes of Abigail.
 Away, for here they come.

Re-enter LODOWICK and ABIGAIL.

Math. What, hand in hand! I cannot suffer this.

Bara. Mathias, as thou lov'st me, not a word.

Math. Well, let it pass; another time shall serve.

[Exit into the house.]

Lod. Barabas, is not that the widow's son?

Bara. Ay, and take heed, for he hath sworn your death.

Lod. My death! what, is the base-born peasant mad?

Bara. No, no; but happily he stands in fear

Of that which you, I think, ne'er dream upon,—

My daughter here, a paltry silly girl.

Lod. Why, loves she Don Mathias?

Bara. Doth she not with her smiling answer you?

Abig. He has my heart; I smile against my will. [Aside.]

Lod. Barabas, thou know'st I have lov'd thy daughter long.

Bara. And so has she done you, even from a child.

Lod. And now I can no longer hold my mind.

Bara. Nor I the affection that I bear to you.

Lod. This is thy diamond; tell me, shall I have it?

Bara. Win it, and wear it; it is yet unsoil'd.

O, that I know your lordship would disdain

To marry with the daughter of a Jew:

And yet I'll give her many a golden cross,

With Christian posies round about the ring.

Lod. 'Tis not thy wealth, but her that I esteem;

Yet crave I thy consent.

Bara. And mine you have; yet let me talk to her.—

This offspring of Cain, this Jebusite,

That never tasted of the Passover,

Nor e'er shall see the land of Canaan,

Nor our Messiah that is yet to come;

This gentle maggot, Lodowick, I mean,

Must be deluded: let him have thy hand,

But keep thy heart till Don Mathias comes.

[Aside to her.]

Abig. What, shall I be betroth'd to Lodowick?

Bara. It's no sin to deceive a Christian;

For they themselves hold it a principle,

Faith is not to be held with heretics:

But all are heretics that are not Jews;

This follows well, and therefore, daughter, fear not.

[Aside to her.]

I have entreated her, and she will grant.

Lod. Then, gentle Abigail, plight thy faith to me.

Abig. I cannot choose, seeing my father bids:

Nothing but death shall part my love and me.

Lod. Now have I that for which my soul hath long'd.

Bara. So have not I; but yet I hope I shall.

[Aside.]

Abig. O wretched Abigail, what hast thou done?

[Aside.]

Lod. Why on the sudden is your colour chang'd?

Abig. I know not: but farewell; I must be gone.

Bara. Stay her, but let her not speak one word more.

Lod. Mute o' the sudden! here's a sudden change.

Bara. O, muse not at it; 'tis the Hebrews' guise,
That maidens new-betrothed should weep a while:

Trouble her not; sweet Lodowick, depart:

She is thy wife, and thou shalt be mine heir.

Lod. O, is't the custom? then I am resolv'd:

But rather let the brightsome heavens be dim,
And nature's beauty choke with stifling clouds,
Than my fair Abigail should frown on me.—
There comes the villain; now I'll be reveng'd.

Re-enter MATHIAS.

Bara. Be quiet, Lodowick; it is enough

That I have made thee sure to Abigail.

Lod. Well, let him go.

[Exit.]

Bara. Well, but for me, as you went in at doors

You had been stabb'd: but not a word on't now;

Here must no speeches pass, nor swords be drawn.

Math. Suffer me, Barabas, but to follow him.

Bara. No; so shall I, if any hurt be done,

Be made an accessory of your deeds:

Revenge it on him when you meet him next.

Math. For this I'll have his heart.

Bara. Do so. Lo, here I give thee Abigail!

Math. What greater gift can poor Mathias have?

Shall Lodowick rob me of so fair a love?

My life is not so dear as Abigail.

Bara. My heart misgives me, that, to cross your love,

He's with your mother; therefore after him.

Math. What, is he gone unto my mother?

Bara. Nay, if you will, stay till she comes herself.

Math. I cannot stay; for, if my mother come,
She'll die with grief.

[Exit.

Abig. I cannot take my leave of him for tears.

Father, why have you thus incens'd them both?

Bara. What's that to thee?

Abig. I'll make 'em friends again.

Bara. You'll make 'em friends! are there not Jews enow in Malta,

But thou must dote upon a Christian?

Abig. I will have Don Mathias; he is my love.

Bara. Yes, you shall have him.—Go, put her in.

Itha. Ay, I'll put her in. [Puts in Abigail.

Bara. Now tell me, Ithamore, how lik'st thou this?

Itha. Faith, master, I think by this

You purchase both their lives: is it not so?

Bara. True; and it shall be cunningly perform'd.

Itha. O, master, that I might have a hand in this!

Bara. Ay, so thou shalt; 'tis thou must do the deed:

Take this, and bear it to Mathias straight.

[Giving a letter.

And tell him that it comes from Lodowick.

Itha. 'Tis poison'd, is it not?

Bara. No, no; and yet it might be done that way:

It is a challenge feign'd from Lodowick.

Itha. Fear not; I will so set his heart a-fire,

That he shall verily think it comes from him.

Bara. I cannot choose but like thy readiness:

Yet be not rash, but do it cunningly.

Itha. As I behave myself in this, employ me hereafter.

Bara. Away, then!

[Exit Ithamore.

So; now will I go in to Lodowick,

And, like a cunning spirit, feign some lie,

Till I have set 'em both at enmity.

[Exit.

ACT III

Enter BELLAMIRA.

Bell. Since this town was besieg'd, my gain grows cold:

The time has been, that but for one bare night

A hundred ducats have been freely given;

But now against my will I must be chaste:

And yet I know my beauty doth not fail.
 From Venice merchants, and from Padua
 Were wont to come rare-witted gentlemen,
 Scholars I mean, learned and liberal;
 And now, save Pilia-Borza, comes there none,
 And he is very seldom from my house;
 And here he comes.

Enter PILIA-BORZA.

Pilia. Hold thee, wench, there's something for thee to spend.
 [Showing a bag of silver.]

Bell. 'Tis silver; I disdain it.

Pilia. Ay, but the Jew has gold,
 And I will have it, or it shall go hard.

Bell. Tell me, how cam'st thou by this?

Pilia. Faith, walking the back-lanes, through the gardens,
 I chanced to cast mine eye up to the Jew's counting-house, where I saw some bags of money, and in the night I clambered up with my hooks; and, as I was taking my choice, I heard a rumbling in the house; so I took only this, and run my way.—But here's the Jew's man.

Bell. Hide the bag.

Enter ITHAMORE.

Pilia. Look not towards him, let's away. Zoons, what a looking thou keepest! thou'lt betray's anon.

[Exeunt Bellamira and Pilia-Borza.]

Itha. O, the sweetest face that ever I beheld! I know she is a courtesan by her attire: now would I give a hundred of the Jew's crowns that I had such a concubine.

Well, I have deliver'd the challenge in such sort,
 As meet they will, and fighting die,—brave sport!

[Exit.]

Enter MATHIAS.

Math. This is the place: now Abigail shall see
 Whether Mathias holds her dear or no.

Enter LODOWICK.

What, dares the villain write in such base terms?

[Looking at a letter.]

Lod. I did it; and revenge it, if thou dar'st! [They fight.]

Enter BARABAS above.

Bara. O, bravely fought! and yet they thrust not home.

Now, Lodovico! now, Mathias!—So; [Both fall.

So, now they have show'd themselves to be tall fellows.

[Cries within] Part 'em, part 'em!

Bara. Ay, part 'em now they are dead. Farewell, farewell!
[Exit above.

Enter FERNEZE, KATHARINE, and Attendants.

Fern. What sight is this? my Lodovico slain!

These arms of mine shall be thy sepulchre.

Kath. Who is this? my son Mathias slain!

Fern. O Lodowick, hadst thou perish'd by the Turk,

Wretched Ferneze might have veng'd thy death!

Kath. Thy son slew mine, and I'll revenge his death.

Fern. Look, Katharine, look! thy son gave mine these wounds.

Kath. O, leave to grieve me! I am griev'd enough.

Fern. O, that my sighs could turn to lively breath,

And these my tears to blood, that he might live!

Kath. Who made them enemies?

Fern. I know not; and that grieves me most of all.

Kath. My son lov'd thine.

Fern. And so did Lodowick him.

Kath. Lend me that weapon that did kill my son,

And it shall murder me.

Fern. Nay, madam, stay; that weapon was my son's,

And on that rather should Ferneze die.

Kath. Hold; let's inquire the causers of their deaths,

That we may venge their blood upon their heads.

Fern. Then take them up, and let them be interr'd

Within one sacred monument of stone;

Upon which altar I will offer up

My daily sacrifice of sighs and tears,

And with my prayers pierce impartial heavens,

Till they [reveal] the causers of our smarts,

Which forc'd their hands divide united hearts.

Come, Katharine; our losses equal are;

Then of true grief let us take equal share.

[Exeunt with the bodies.]

Enter ITHAMORE.

Itha. Why, was there ever seen such villany.
So neatly plotted, and so well perform'd?
Both held in hand, and flatly both beguil'd?

Enter ABIGAIL.

Abig. Why, how now, Ithamore! why laugh'st thou so?

Itha. O mistress! ha, ha, ha!

Abig. Why, what ail'st thou?

Itha. O, my master!

Abig. Ha!

Itha. O mistress, I have the bravest, gravest, secret, subtle, bottle-nosed knave to my master, that ever gentleman had!

Abig. Say, knave, why rail'st upon my father thus?

Itha. O, my master has the bravest policy!

Abig. Wherein?

Itha. Why, know you not?

Abig. Why, no.

Itha. Know you not of Mathia[s'] and Don Lodowick['s] disaster?

Abig. No: what was it?

Itha. Why, the devil invented a challenge, my master writ it, and I carried it, first to Lodowick, and imprimis to Mathia[s];

And then they met, [and,] as the story says,

In doleful wise they ended both their days.

Abig. And was my father furtherer of their deaths?

Itha. Am I Ithamore?

Abig. Yes.

Itha. So sure did your father write, and I carry the challenge.

Abig. Well, Ithamore, let me request thee this:

Go to the new-made nunnery, and inquire

For any of the friars of Saint Jaques,

And say, I pray them come and speak with me.

Itha. I pray, mistress, will you answer me to one question?

Abig. Well, sirrah, what is't?

Itha. A very feeling one: have not the nuns fine sport with the friars now and then?

Abig. Go to, Sirrah Sauce! is this your question? get ye gone,

Itha. I will, forsooth, mistress.

[Exit.

Abig. Hard-hearted father, unkind Barabas!
 Was this the pursuit of thy policy,
 To make me show them favour severally,
 That by my favour they should both be slain?
 Admit thou lov'dst not Lodowick for his sire,
 Yet Don Mathias ne'er offended thee:
 But thou wert set upon extreme revenge,
 Because the prior dispossess'd thee once,
 And couldst not venge it but upon his son;
 Nor on his son but by Mathias' means;
 Nor on Mathias but by murdering me:
 But I perceive there is no love on earth,
 Pity in Jews, nor piety in Turks.—
 But here comes cursed Ithamore with the friar.

Re-enter ITHAMORE with FRIAR JACOMO.

Friar Jac. Virgo, salve.

Itha. When duck you?

Abig. Welcome, grave friar.—Ithamore, be gone.

[Exit Ithamore.]

Know, holy sir, I am bold to solicit thee.

Friar Jac. Wherein?

Abig. To get me be admitted for a nun.

Friar Jac. Why, Abigail, it is not yet long since

That I did labour thy admission,

And then thou didst not like that holy life.

Abig. Then were my thoughts so frail and unconfirm'd

As I was chain'd to follies of the world:

But now experience, purchased with grief,

Has made me see the difference of things.

My sinful soul, alas, hath pac'd too long

The fatal labyrinth of misbelief,

Far from the sun that gives eternal life!

Friar Jac. Who taught thee this?

Abig. The abbess of the house,

Whose zealous admonition I embrace:

O, therefore, Jacomo, let me be one,

Although unworthy, of that sisterhood!

Friar Jac. Abigail, I will: but see thou change no more,

For that will be most heavy to thy soul.

Abig. That was my father's fault.

Friar Jac. Thy father's! how?

Abig. Nay, you shall pardon me.—O Barabas,

Though thou deservest hardly at my hands,
Yet never shall these lips bewray thy life!

[Aside.]

Friar Jac. Come, shall we go?

Abig. My duty waits on you.

[Exeunt.]

Enter BARABAS, reading a letter.

Bara. What, Abigail become a nun again!

False and unkind! what, hast thou lost thy father?

And, all unknown and unconstrain'd of me,

Art thou again got to the nunnery?

Now here she writes, and wills me to repent:

Repentance! Spurca! what pretendeth this?

I fear she knows—'tis so—of my device

In Don Mathias' and Lodovico's deaths:

If so, 'tis time that it be seen into;

For she that varies from me in belief,

Gives great presumption that she loves me not,

Or, loving, doth dislike of something done.—

But who comes here?

Enter ITHAMORE.

O Ithamore, come near;

Come near, my love; come near, thy master's life,

My trusty servant, nay, my second self;

For I have now no hope but even in thee,

And on that hope my happiness is built.

When saw'st thou Abigail?

Itha. To-day.

Bara. With whom?

Itha. A friar.

Bara. A friar! false villain, he hath done the deed.

Itha. How, sir!

Bara. Why, made mine Abigail a nun.

Itha. That's no lie; for she sent me for him.

Bara. O unhappy day!

False, credulous, inconstant Abigail!

But let 'em go: and, Ithamore, from hence

Ne'er shall she grieve me more with her disgrace;

Ne'er shall she live to inherit aught of mine,

Be bless'd of me, nor come within my gates,

But perish underneath my bitter curse,

Like Cain by Adam for his brother's death.

Itha. O master—

Bara. Ithamore, entreat not for her; I am mov'd,
 And she is hateful to my soul and me:
 And, 'less thou yield to this that I entreat,
 I cannot think but that thou hat'st my life.

Itha. Who, I, master? why, I'll run to some rock,
 And throw myself headlong into the sea;
 Why, I'll do anything for your sweet sake.

Bara. O trusty Ithamore! no servant, but my friend!
 I here adopt thee for mine only heir:
 All that I have is thine when I am dead;
 And, whilst I live, use half; spend as myself;
 Here, take my keys,—I'll give 'em thee anon;
 Go buy thee garments; but thou shalt not want:
 Only know this, that thus thou art to do—
 But first go fetch me in the pot of rice
 That for our supper stands upon the fire.

Itha. I hold my head, my master's hungry [Aside].—
 I go, sir.

[Exit.

Bara. Thus every villain ambles after wealth,
 Although he ne'er be richer than in hope.—
 But, husht!

Re-enter ITHAMORE with the pot.

Itha. Here 'tis, master.

Bara. Well said, Ithamore! What, hast thou brought
 The ladle with thee too?

Itha. Yes, sir; the proverb says, he that eats with the devil had need of a long spoon; I have brought you a ladle.

Bara. Very well, Ithamore; then now be secret;
 And, for thy sake, whom I so dearly love,
 Now shalt thou see the death of Abigail,
 That thou mayst freely live to be my heir.

Itha. Why, master, will you poison her with a mess of riceporridge? that will preserve life, make her round and plump, and batten more than you are aware.

Bara. Ay, but, Ithamore, seest thou this?
 It is a precious powder that I bought
 Of an Italian, in Ancona, once,
 Whose operation is to bind, infect,
 And poison deeply, yet not appear
 In forty hours after it is ta'en.

Itha. How, master?

Bara. Thus, Ithamore:

. This even they use in Malta here,—'tis call'd
Saint Jaques' Even,—and then, I say, they use
To send their alms unto the nunneries:
Amongst the rest, bear this, and set it there:
There's a dark entry where they take it in,
Where they must neither see the messenger,
Nor make inquiry who hath sent it them.

Itha. How so?

Bara. Belike there is some ceremony in't.

There, Ithamore, must thou go place this pot:
Stay; let me spice it first.

Itha. Pray, do, and let me help you, master.

Pray, let me taste first.

Bara. Prithee, do. [Ithamore tastes.] What say'st thou now?

Itha. Troth, master, I'm loath such a pot of pottage should be spoiled.

Bara. Peace, Ithamore! 'tis better so than spar'd.

[Puts the powder into the pot.]

Assure thyself thou shalt have broth by the eye:

My purse, my coffer, and myself is thine.

Itha. Well, master, I go.

Bara. Stay; first let me stir it, Ithamore.

As fatal be it to her as the draught
Of which great Alexander drunk, and died;
And with her let it work like Borgia's wine,
Whereof his sire the Pope was poisoned!
In few, the blood of Hydra, Lerna's bane,
The juice of hebon, and Cocytus' breath,
And all the poisons of the Stygian pool,
Break from the fiery kingdom, and in this
Vomit your venom, and envenom her
That, like a fiend, hath left her father thus!

Itha. What a blessing has he given't! was ever pot of rice-porridge so sauced? [Aside.]—What shall I do with it?

Bara. O my sweet Ithamore, go set it down;

And come again as soon as thou hast done,

For I have other business for thee.

Itha. Here's a drench to poison a whole stable of Flanders mares: I'll carry't to the nuns with a powder.

Bara. And the horse-pestilence to boot: away!

Itha. I am gone:

Pay me my wages, for my work is done.

[Exit with the pot.]

Bara. I'll pay thee with a vengeance, Ithamore! [Exit.]

Enter FERNEZE, MARTIN DEL BOSCO, Knights, and Basso.

Fern. Welcome, great basso: how fares Calymath?

What wind drives you thus into Malta-road?

Bas. The wind that bloweth all the world besides,
Desire of gold.

Fern. Desire of gold, great sir!

That's to be gotten in the Western Inde:

In Malta are no golden minerals.

Bas. To you of Malta thus saith Calymath:

The time you took for respite is at hand

For the performance of your promise pass'd;

And for the tribute money I am sent.

Fern. Basso, in brief, shalt have no tribute here,

Nor shall the heathens live upon our spoil:

First will we raze the city-walls ourselves,

Lay waste the island, hew the temples down,

And, shipping off our goods to Sicily,

Open an entrance for the wasteful sea,

Whose billows, beating the resistless banks,

Shall overflow it with their refluence.

Bas. Well, governor, since thou hast broke the league

By flat denial of the promis'd tribute,

Talk not of razing down your city-walls;

You shall not need trouble yourselves so far,

For Selim Calymath shall come himself,

And with brass bullets batter down your towers,

And turn proud Malta to a wilderness,

For these intolerable wrongs of yours:

And so farewell.

Fern. Farewell.

[Exit Basso.]

And now, you men of Malta, look about,

And let's provide to welcome Calymath:

Close your port-cullis, charge your basilisks,

And, as you profitably take up arms,

So now courageously encounter them,

For by this answer broken is the league,

And naught is to be look'd for now but wars,

And naught to us more welcome is than wars. [Excunt.]

Enter FRIAR JACOMO and FRIAR BARNARDINE.

Friar Jac. O brother, brother, all the nuns are sick,
And physic will not help them! they must die.

Friar Barn. The abbess sent for me to be confess'd:
O, what a sad confession will there be!

Friar Jac. And so did fair Maria send for me:
I'll to her lodging; hereabouts she lies.

[Exit.]

Enter ABIGAIL.

Friar Barn. What, all dead, save only Abigail!

Abig. And I shall die too, for I feel death coming.
Where is the friar that convers'd with me?

Friar Barn. O, he is gone to see the other nuns.

Abig. I sent for him; but, seeing you are come,
Be you my ghostly father: and first know,
That in this house I liv'd religiously,
Chaste, and devout, much sorrowing for my sins;
But, ere I came—

Friar Barn. What then?

Abig. I did offend high heaven so grievously
As I am almost desperate for my sins;
And one offence torments me more than all.
You knew Mathias and Don Lodowick?

Friar Barn. Yes; what of them?

Abig. My father did contract me to 'em both;
First to Don Lodowick: him I never lov'd;
Mathias was the man that I held dear,
And for his sake did I become a nun.

Friar Barn. So: say how was their end?

Abig. Both, jealous of my love, envied each other;
And by my father's practice, which is there

[Gives writing.]

Set down at large, the gallants were both slain.

Friar Barn. O, monstrous villany!

Abig. To work my peace, this I confess to thee:
Reveal it not; for then my father dies.

Friar Barn. Know that confession must not be reveal'd;
The canon-law forbids it, and the priest
That makes it known, being degraded first,
Shall be condemn'd, and then sent to the fire.

Abig. So I have heard; pray, therefore, keep it close.
Death seizeth on my heart: ah, gentle friar,

Convert my father that he may be sav'd,
And witness that I die a Christian!

[Dies.

Friar Barn. Ay, and a virgin too; that grieves me most.
But I must to the Jew, and exclaim on him,
And make him stand in fear of me.

Re-enter FRIAR JACOMO.

Friar Jac. O brother, all the nuns are dead! let's bury them.

Friar Barn. First help to bury this; then go with me,
And help me to exclaim against the Jew.

Friar Jac. Why, what has he done?

Friar Barn. A thing that makes me tremble to unfold.

Friar Jac. What, has he crucified a child?

Friar Barn. No, but a worse thing: 'twas told me in shrift;
Thou know'st 'tis death, an if it be reveal'd.
Come, let's away.

[Exeunt.

ACT IV

Enter BARABAS and ITHAMORE. Bells within.

Bara. There is no music to a Christian's knell:
How sweet the bells ring, now the nuns are dead,
That sound at other times like tinkers' pans!
I was afraid the poison had not wrought,
Or, though it wrought, it would have done no good,
For every year they swell, and yet they live:
Now all are dead, not one remains alive.

Itha. That's brave, master: but think you it will not be known?

Bara. How can it, if we two be secret?

Itha. For my part, fear you not.

Bara. I'd cut thy throat, if I did.

Itha. And reason too.

But here's a royal monastery hard by;
Good master, let me poison all the monks.

Bara. Thou shalt not need; for, now the nuns are dead,
They'll die with grief.

Itha. Do you not sorrow for your daughter's death?

Bara. No, but I grieve because she liv'd so long,
An Hebrew born, and would become a Christian:
Cazzo, diabolò!

Itha. Look, look, master; here comes two religious caterpillars.

Enter FRIAR JACOMO and FRIAR BARNARDINE.

Bara. I smelt 'em ere they came.

Itha. God-a-mercy, nose! Come, let's begone.

Friar Barn. Stay, wicked Jew; repent, I say, and stay.

Friar Jac. Thou hast offended, therefore must be damn'd.

Bara. I fear they know we sent the poison'd broth.

Itha. And so do I, master; therefore speak 'em fair.

Friar Barn. Barabas, thou hast——

Friar Jac. Ay, that thou hast——

Bara. True, I have money; what though I have?

Friar Barn. Thou art a——

Friar Jac. Ay, that thou art, a——

Bara. What needs all this? I know I am a Jew.

Friar Barn. Thy daughter——

Friar Jac. Ay, thy daughter——

Bara. O, speak not of her! then I die with grief.

Friar Barn. Remember that——

Friar Jac. Ay, remember that——

Bara. I must needs say that I have been a great usurer.

Friar Barn. Thou hast committed——

Bara. Fornication: but that was in another country;
And besides the wench is dead.

Friar Barn. Ay, but, Barabas,
Remember Mathias and Don Lodowick.

Bara. Why, what of them?

Friar Barn. I will not say that by a forged challenge they met.

Bara. She has confess'd, and we are both undone,
My bosom inmate! but I must dissemble.—

[Aside to Ithamore.

O holy friars, the burden of my sins
Lie heavy on my soul! then, pray you, tell me,
Is't not too late now to turn Christian?
I have been zealous in the Jewish faith,
Hard-hearted to the poor, a covetous wretch,
That would for lucre's sake have sold my soul;
A hundred for a hundred I have ta'en;
And now for store of wealth may I compare
With all the Jews in Malta: but what is wealth?
I am a Jew, and therefore am I lost.

Would penance serve [to atone] for this my sin,
I could afford to whip myself to death,—

Itha. And so could I; but penance will not serve.

Bara. To fast, to pray, and wear a shirt of hair,
And on my knees creep to Jerusalem.
Cellars of wine, and sollars full of wheat,
Warehouses stuff'd with spices and with drugs,
Whole chests of gold in bullion and in coin,
Besides, I know not how much weight in pearl,
Orient and round, have I within my house;
At Alexandria merchandise untold;
But yesterday two ships went from this town,
Their voyage will be worth ten thousand crowns;
In Florence, Venice, Antwerp, London, Seville,
Frankfort, Lubeck, Moscow, and where not,
Have I debts owing; and, in most of these,
Great sums of money lying in the banco;
All this I'll give to some religious house,
So I may be baptiz'd, and live therein.

Friar Jac. O good Barabas, come to our house

Friar Barn. O, no, good Barabas, come to our house!
And Barabas, you know——

Bara. I know that I have highly sinn'd:

You shall convert me, you shall have all my wealth.

Friar Jac. O Barabas, their laws are strict!

Bara. I know they are; and I will be with you.

Friar Barn. They wear no shirts, and they go barefoot too.

Bara. Then 'tis not for me; and I am resolv'd

You shall confess me, and have all my goods.

Friar Jac. Good Barabas, come to me.

Bara. You see I answer him, and yet he stays;

Rid him away, and go you home with me.

Friar Jac. I'll be with you to-night.

Bara. Come to my house at one o'clock this night.

Friar Jac. You hear your answer, and you may be gone.

Friar Barn. Why, go, get you away.

Friar Jac. I will not go for thee.

Friar Barn. Not! then I'll make thee go.

Friar Jac. How! dost call me rogue? [They fight.]

Itha. Part 'em, master, part 'em.

Bara. This is mere frailty: brethren, be content.—

Friar Barnardine, go you with Ithamore:

You know my mind; let me alone with him.

Friar Jac. Why does he go to thy house? let him be gone.

Bara. I'll give him something, and so stop his mouth.

[Exit Ithamore with Friar Barnardine

I never heard of any man but he
Malign'd the order of the Jacobins;
But do you think that I believe his words?
Why, brother, you converted Abigail;
And I am bound in charity to requite it,
And so I will. O Jacomo, fail not, but come.

Friar Jac. But, Barabas, who shall be your godfathers?

For presently you shall be shriv'd.

Bara. Marry, the Turk shall be one of my godfathers,

But not a word to any of your convent.

Friar Jac. I warrant thee, Barabas.

[Exit.

Bara. So, now the fear is past, and I am safe;

For he that shriv'd her is within my house:

What, if I murder'd him ere Jacomo comes?

Now I have such a plot for both their lives,

As never Jew nor Christian knew the like:

One turn'd my daughter, therefore he shall die;

The other knows enough to have my life,

Therefore 'tis not requisite he should live.

But are not both these wise men, to suppose

That I will leave my house, my goods, and all,

To fast and be well whipt? I'll none of that.

Now, Friar Barnardine, I come to you:

I'll feast you, lodge you, give you fair words,

And, after that, I and my trusty Turk—

No more, but so: it must and shall be done.

Enter ITHAMORE.

Ithamore, tell me, is the friar asleep?

Itha. Yes; and I know not what the reason is,

Do what I can, he will not strip himself,

Nor go to bed, but sleeps in his own clothes:

I fear me he mistrusts what we intend.

Bara. No; 'tis an order which the friars use:

Yet, if he knew our meanings, could he scape?

Itha. No, none can hear him, cry he ne'er so loud.

Bara. Why, true; therefore did I place him there:

The other chambers open towards the street.

Itha. You loiter, master; wherefore stay we thus?

O, how I long to see him shake his heels!

Bara. Come on, sirrah:

Off with your girdle; make a handsome noose.—

[Ithamore takes off his girdle, and ties a noose on it.]

Friar, awake! [They put the noose round the Friar's neck.]

Friar Barn. What, do you mean to strangle me?

Itha. Yes, 'cause you use to confess.

Bara. Blame not us, but the proverb,—Confess and be hanged.—Pull hard.

Friar Barn. What, will you have my life?

Bara. Pull hard, I say.—You would have had my goods.

Itha. Ay, and our lives too:—therefore pull amain.

[They strangle the Friar.]

'Tis neatly done, sir; here's no print at all.

Bara. Then is it as it should be. Take him up.

Itha. Nay, master, be ruled by me a little. [Takes the body, sets it upright against the wall, and puts a staff in its hand.]

So, let him lean upon his staff; excellent! he stands as if he were begging of bacon.

Bara. Who would not think but that this friar liv'd?

What time o' night is't now, sweet Ithamore?

Itha. Towards one.

Bara. Then will not Jacomo be long from hence. [Exeunt.]

Enter FRIAR JACOMO.

Friar Jac. This is the hour wherein I shall proceed;

O happy hour, wherein I shall convert

An infidel, and bring his gold into our treasury!

But soft! is not this Barnardine? it is;

And, understanding I should come this way,

Stands here o' purpose, meaning me some wrong,

And intercept my going to the Jew.—

Barnardine!

Wilt thou not speak? thou think'st I see thee not;

Away, I'd wish thee, and let me go by:

No, wilt thou not? nay, then, I'll force my way;

And, see, a staff stands ready for the purpose.

As thou lik'st that, stop me another time!

[Takes the staff, and strikes down the body.]

Enter BARABAS and ITHAMORE.

Bara. Why, how now, Jacomo! what hast thou done?

Friar Jac. Why, stricken him that would have struck at me.

Bara. Who is it? Barnardine! now, out, alas, he is slain!

Itha. Ay, master, he's slain; look how his brains drop out on's nose.

Friar Jac. Good sirs, I have done't: but nobody knows it but you two; I may escape.

Bara. So might my man and I hang with you for company.

Itha. No; let us bear him to the magistrates.

Friar Jac. Good Barabas, let me go.

Bara. No, pardon me; the law must have his course:

I must be forc'd to give in evidence,
That, being importun'd by this Barnardine
To be a Christian, I shut him out,
And there he sate: now I, to keep my word,
And give my goods and substance to your house,
Was up thus early, with intent to go
Unto your friary, because you stay'd.

Itha. Fie upon 'em! master, will you turn Christian, when holy friars turn devils and murder one another?

Bara. No; for this example I'll remain a Jew:

Heaven bless me! what, a friar a murderer!

Where shall you see a Jew commit the like?

Itha. Why, a Turk could ha' done no more.

Bara. To-morrow is the sessions; you shall to it.—

Come, Ithamore, let's help to take him hence.

Friar Jac. Villains, I am a sacred person; touch me not.

Bara. The law shall touch you; we'll but lead you, we:

'Las, I could weep at your calamity!—

Take in the staff too, for that must be shown:

Law wills that each particular be known.

[Exeunt.]

Enter BELLAMIRA and PILIA-BORZA.

Bell. Pilia-Borza, didst thou meet with Ithamore?

Pilia. I did.

Bell. And didst thou deliver my letter?

Pilia. I did.

Bell. And what thinkest thou? will he come?

Pilia. I think so: and yet I cannot tell; for, at the reading of the letter, he looked like a man of another world.

Bell. Why so?

Pilia. That such a base slave as he should be saluted by such a tall man as I am, from such a beautiful dame as you.

Bell. And what said he?

Pilia. Not a wise word; only gave me a nod, as who should say, "Is it even so?" and so I left him, being driven to a non-plus at the critical aspect of my terrible countenance.

Bell. And where didst meet him?

Pilia. Upon mine own free-hold, within forty foot of the gallows, conning his neck-verse, I take it, looking of a friar's execution; whom I saluted with an old hempen proverb, Hodie tibi, cras mihi, and so I left him to the mercy of the hangman: but, the exercise being done, see where he comes.

Enter ITHAMORE.

Itha. I never knew a man take his death so patiently as this friar; he was ready to leap off ere the halter was about his neck; and, when the hangman had put on his hempen tippet, he made such haste to his prayers, as if he had had another cure to serve. Well, go whither he will, I'll be none of his followers in haste: and, now I think on't, going to the execution, a fellow met me with a muschatoes like a raven's wing, and a dagger with a hilt like a warming pan; and he gave me a letter from one Madam Bellamira, saluting me in such sort as if he had meant to make clean my boots with his lips; the effect was, that I should come to her house: I wonder what the reason is; it may be she sees more in me than I can find in myself; for she writes further, that she loves me ever since she saw me; and who would not requite such love? Here's her house; and here she comes; and now would I were gone! I am not worthy to look upon her.

Pilia. This is the gentleman you writ to.

Itha. Gentleman! he flouts me: what gentry can be in a poor Turk of tenpence? I'll be gone. [Aside.]

Bell. Is't not a sweet-faced youth, Pilia?

Itha. Again, sweet youth! [Aside—Did not you, sir, bring the sweet youth a letter?

Pilia. I did, sir, and from this gentlewoman, who, as myself and the rest of the family, stand or fall at your service.

Bell. Though woman's modesty should hale me back, I can withhold no longer: welcome, sweet love.

Itha. Now am I clean, or rather foully, out of the way.

[Aside.]

Bell. Whither so soon?

Itha. I'll go steal some money from my master to make me handsome [Aside].—Pray, pardon me; I must go see a ship discharged.

Bell. Canst thou be so unkind to leave me thus?

Pilia. An ye did but know how she loves you, sir!

Itha. Nay, I care not how much she loves me.—

Sweet Bellamira, would I had my master's wealth for thy sake!

Pilia. And you can have it, sir, an if you please.

Itha. If 'twere above ground, I could, and would have it; but he hides and buries it up, as partridges do their eggs, under the earth.

Pilia. And is't not possible to find it out?

Itha. By no means possible.

Bell. What shall we do with this base villain, then?

[Aside to Pilia-Borza.

Pilia. Let me alone; do but you speak him fair.—

[Aside to her.

But you know some secrets of the Jew,

Which, if they were reveal'd, would do him harm.

Itha. Ay, and such as—go to, no more! I'll make him send me half he has, and glad he scapes so too: I'll write unto him; we'll have money straight.

Pilia. Send for a hundred crowns at least.

Itha. Ten hundred thousand crowns.—[writing] Master Barabas,—

Pilia. Write not so submissively, but threatening him.

Itha. [writing] Sirrah Barabas, send me a hundred crowns.

Pilia. Put in two hundred at least.

Itha. [writing] I charge thee send me three hundred by this bearer, and this shall be your warrant: if you do not—no more, but so.

Pilia. Tell him you will confess.

Itha. [writing] Otherwise I'll confess all.—Vanish, and return in a twinkling.

Pilia. Let me alone; I'll use him in his kind.

Itha. Hang him, Jew! [Exit Pilia-Borza with the letter.

Bell. Now, gentle Ithamore, lie in my lap.—

Where are my maids? provide a cunning banquet;

Send to the merchant, bid him bring me silks;

Shall Ithamore, my love, go in such rags?

Itha. And bid the jeweller come hither too.

Bell. I have no husband; sweet, I'll marry thee.

Itha. Content: but we will leave this paltry land,

And sail from hence to Greece, to lovely Greece;—
 I'll be thy Jason, thou my golden fleece;—
 Where painted carpets o'er the meads are hurl'd,
 And Bacchus' vineyards overspread the world;
 Where woods and forests go in goodly green;—
 I'll be Adonis, thou shalt be Love's Queen;—
 The meads, the orchards, and the primrose-lanes,
 Instead of sedge and reed, bear sugar-canes:
 Thou in those groves, by Dis above,
 Shalt live with me, and be my love.

Bell. Whither will I not go with gentle Ithamore?

Re-enter PILIA-BORZA.

Itha. How now! hast thou the gold?

Pilia. Yes.

Itha. But came it freely? did the cow give down her milk freely?

Pilia. At reading of the letter, he stared and stamped, and turned aside: I took him by the beard, and looked upon him thus; told him he were best to send it: then he hugged and embraced me.

Itha. Rather for fear than love.

Pilia. Then, like a Jew, he laughed and jeered, and told me he loved me for your sake, and said what a faithful servant you had been.

Itha. The more villain he to keep me thus: here's goodly 'parel, is there not?

Pilia. To conclude, he gave me ten crowns.

[Delivers the money to Ithamore.]

Itha. But ten? I'll not leave him worth a grey goat. Give me a ream of paper: we'll have a kingdom of gold for't.

Pilia. Write for five hundred crowns.

Itha. [writing] Sirrah Jew, as you love your life, send me five hundred crowns, and give the bearer a hundred.—Tell him I must have't.

Pilia. I warrant, your worship shall have't.

Itha. And, if he ask why I demand so much, tell him I scorn to write a line under a hundred crowns.

Pilia. You'd make a rich poet, sir. I am gone.

[Exit with the letter.]

Itha. Take thou the money; spend it for my sake.

Bell. 'Tis not thy money, but thyself I weigh:

Thus Bellamira esteems of gold; [Throws it aside]

But thus of thee.

[Kisses him.

Itha. That kiss again!—She runs division of my lips.

What an eye she casts on me! it twinkles like a star.

[Aside.

Bell. Come, my dear love, let's in and sleep together.

Itha. O, that ten thousand nights were put in one, that we might sleep seven years together afore we wake!

Bell. Come, amorous wag, first banquet, and then sleep.

[Exeunt.

Enter BARABAS, reading a letter.

Bara. Barabas, send me three hundred crowns;—

Plain Bara'as! O, that wicked courtesan!

He was not wont to call me Barabas;—

*Or else I will confess;—*ay, there it goes:

But, if I get him, coupe de gorge for that.

He sent a shaggy, tatter'd, staring slave,

That, when he speaks, draws out his grisly beard,

And winds it twice or thrice about his ear;

Whose face has been a grind-stone for men's swords;

His hands are hack'd, some fingers cut quite off,

Who, when he speaks, grunts like a hog, and looks

Like one that is employ'd in catzery

And cross-biting; such a rogue

As is the husband to a hundred whores;

And I by him must send three hundred crowns.

Well, my hope is, he will not stay there still;

And, when he comes—O, that he were but here!

Enter PILIA-BORZA.

Pilia. Jew, I must ha' more gold.

Bara. Why, want'st thou any of thy tale?

Pilia. No; but three hundred will not serve his turn.

Bara. Not serve his turn, sir!

Pilia. No, sir; and therefore I must have five hundred more.

Bara. I'll rather—

Pilia. O, good words, sir, and send it you were best! see, there's his letter.

[Gives letter.

Bara. Might he not as well come as send? pray, bid him come and fetch it: what he writes for you, ye shall have straight.

Pilia. Ay, and the rest too, or else—

Bara. I must make this villain away [Aside].—Please you dine with me, sir — and you shall be most heartily poisoned. [Aside.]

Pilia. No, God-a-mercy. Shall I have these crowns?

Bara. I cannot do it; I have lost my keys.

Pilia. O, if that be all, I can pick ope your locks.

Bara. Or climb up to my counting-house window: you know my meaning.

Pilia. I know enough, and therefore talk not to me of your counting-house. The gold! or know, Jew, it is in my power to hang thee.

Bara. I am betray'd.— [Aside.]

'Tis not five hundred crowns that I esteem;
I am not mov'd at that: this angers me,
That he, who knows I love him as myself,
Should write in this imperious vein. Why, sir,
You know I have no child, and unto whom
Should I leave all, but unto Ithamore?

Pilia. Here's many words, but no crowns: the crowns!

Bara. Commend me to him, sir, most humbly,
And unto your good mistress as unknown.

Pilia. Speak, shall I have 'em, sir?

Bara. Sir, here they are.— [Gives money.]

O, that I should part with so much gold! — [Aside.]

Here, take 'em, fellow, with as good a will——

As I would see thee hang'd [Aside]. O, love stops my breath!

Never lov'd man servant as I do Ithamore.

Pilia. I know it, sir.

Bara. Pray, when, sir, shall I see you at my house?

Pilia. Soon enough to your cost, sir. Fare you well.

[Exit.]

Bara. Nay, to thine own cost, villain, if thou com'st!

Was ever Jew tormented as I am?

To have a shag-rag knave to come [and force from me]

Three hundred crowns, and then five hundred crowns!

Well; I must seek a means to rid 'em all,

And presently; for in his villany

He will tell all he knows, and I shall die for't.

I have it:

I will in some disguise go see the slave,

And how the villain revels with my gold.

[Exit.]

The Jew of Malta

211

Enter BELLAMIRA, ITHAMORE, and PILIA-BORZA.

Bell. I'll pledge thee, love, and therefore drink it off.

Itha. Say'st thou me so? have at it! and do you hear?

[Whispers to her.]

Bell. Go to, it shall be so.

Itha. Of that condition I will drink it up:

Here's to thee.

Bell. Nay, I'll have all or none.

Itha. There, if thou lov'st me, do not leave a drop.

Bell. Love thee! fill me three glasses.

Itha. Three and fifty dozen: I'll pledge thee.

Pilia. Knavely spoke, and like a knight-at-arms.

Itha. Hey, Rivo Castiliano! a man's a man.

Bell. Now to the Jew.

Itha. Ha! to the Jew; and send me money he were best.

Pilia. What wouldst thou do, if he should send thee none?

Itha. Do nothing: but I know what I know; he's a murderer.

Bell. I had not thought he had been so brave a man.

Itha. You knew Mathias and the governor's son; he and I killed 'em both, and yet never touched 'em.

Pilia. O, bravely done!

Itha. I carried the broth that poisoned the nuns; and he and I, snicle hand too fast, strangled a friar.

Bell. You two alone?

Itha. We two; and 'twas never known, nor never shall be for me.

Pilia. This shall with me unto the governor.

[Aside to Bellamira.]

Bell. And fit it should: but first let's ha' more gold.—

[Aside to Pilia-Borza.]

Come, gentle Ithamore, lie in my lap.

Itha. Love me little, love me long: let music rumble,
Whilst I in thy incony lap do tumble.

Enter BARABAS, disguised as a French musician, with a lute, and a nosegay in his hat.

Bell. A French musician!—Come, let's hear your skill.

Bara. Must tuna my lute for sound, twang, twang, first.

Itha. Wilt drink, Frenchman? here's to thee with a—Pox on this drunken hiccup!

Bara. Gramercy, monsieur.

Bell. Prithee, Pilia-Borza, bid the fiddler give me the posy in his hat there.

Pilia. Sirrah, you must give my mistress your posy.

Bara. A votre commandement, madame. [Giving nosegay.]

Bell. How sweet, my Ithamore, the flowers smell!

Itha. Like thy breath, sweetheart; no violet like 'em.

Pilia. Foh! methinks they stink like a hollyhock.

Bara. So, now I am reveng'd upon 'em all:

The scent thereof was death; I poison'd it. [Aside.]

Itha. Play, fiddler, or I'll cut your cat's guts into chitterlings.

Bara. Pardonnez moi, be no in tune yet: so, now, now all be in.

Itha. Give him a crown, and fill me out more wine.

Pilia. There's two crowns for thee: play. [Giving money.]

Bara. How liberally the villain gives me mine own gold!

[Aside, and then plays.]

Pilia. Methinks he fingers very well.

Bara. So did you when you stole my gold. [Aside.]

Pilia. How swift he runs!

Bara. You run swifter when you threw my gold out of my window. [Aside.]

Bell. Musician, hast been in Malta long?

Bara. Two, three, four month, madam.

Itha. Dost not know a Jew, one Barabas?

Bara. Very mush: monsieur, you no be his man?

Pilia. His man!

Itha. I scorn the peasant: tell him so.

Bara. He knows it already. [Aside.]

Itha. 'Tis a strange thing of that Jew, he lives upon pickled grasshoppers and sauced mushrooms.

Bara. What a slave's this! the governor feeds not as I do.

[Aside.]

Itha. He never put on clean shirt since he was circumcised.

Bara. O rascal! I change myself twice a-day. [Aside.]

Itha. The hat he wears, Judas left under the elder when he hanged himself.

Bara. 'Twas sent me for a present from the Great Cham.

[Aside.]

Pilia. A nasty slave he is.—Whither now, fiddler?

Bara. Pardonnez moi, monsieur; me be no well.

Pilia. Farewell, fiddler [Exit Barabas]. One letter more to the Jew.

Bell. Prithee, sweet love, one more, and write it sharp.

Itha. No, I'll send by word of mouth now.—Bid him deliver thee a thousand crowns, by the same token that the nuns loved rice, that Friar Barnardine slept in his own clothes; any of 'em will do it.

Pilia. Let me alone to urge it, now I know the meaning.

Itha. The meaning has a meaning. Come, let's in:

To undo a Jew is charity, and not sin. [Exeunt.]

ACT V

Enter FERNEZE, Knights, MARTIN DEL BOSCO, and Officers.

Fern. Now, gentlemen, betake you to your arms,
And see that Malta be well fortified;
And it behoves you to be resolute;
For Calymath, having hover'd here so long,
Will win the town, or die before the walls.
First Knight. And die he shall: for we will never yield.

Enter BELLAMIRA and PILIA-BORZA.

Bell. O, bring us to the governor!

Fern. Away with her! she is a courtesan.

Bell. Whate'er I am, yet, governor, hear me speak:
I bring thee news by whom thy son was slain:
Mathias did it not; it was the Jew.

Pilia. Who, besides the slaughter of these gentlemen,
Poison'd his own daughter and the nuns,
Strangled a friar, and I know not what Mischief beside.

Fern. Had we but proof of this——

Bell. Strong proof, my lord: his man's now at my lodging.
That was his agent; he'll confess it all.

Fern. Go fetch him straight [Exeunt Officers]. I always fear'd that Jew.

Re-enter Officers with BARABAS and ITHAMORE.

Bara. I'll go alone; dogs, do not hale me thus.

Itha. Nor me either; I cannot out-run you, constable.—O, my belly!

Bara. One dram of powder more had made all sure:

What a damn'd slave was I!

[Aside.

Fern. Make fires, heat irons, let the rack be fetched.

First Knight. Nay, stay, my lord; 't may be he will confess.

Bara. Confess! what mean you, lords? who should confess?

Fern. Thou and thy Turk; 'twas you that slew my son.

Itha. Guilty, my lord, I confess. Your son and Mathias were both contracted unto Abigail: [he] forged a counterfeit challenge.

Bara. Who carried that challenge?

Itha. I carried it, I confess; but who writ it? marry, even he that strangled Barnardine, poisoned the nuns and his own daughter.

Fern. Away with him! his sight is death to me.

Bara. For what, you men of Malta? hear me speak.

She is a courtesan, and he a thief.

And he my bondman: let me have law;

For none of this can prejudice my life.

Fern. Once more, away with him!—You shall have law.

Bara. Devils, do your worst!—I['ll] live in spite of you.—

[Aside.

As these have spoke, so be it to their souls!—

I hope the poison'd flowers will work anon.

[Aside.

[*Exeunt Officers with Barabas and Ithamore;
Bellamira, and Pilia-Borza.*

Enter KATHARINE.

Kath. Was my Mathias murder'd by the Jew?

Ferneze, 'twas thy son that murder'd him.

Fern. Be patient, gentle madam; it was he;

He forg'd the daring challenge made them fight.

Kath. Where is the Jew? where is that murderer?

Fern. In prison, till the law has pass'd on him.

Re-enter First Officer.

First Off. My lord, the courtesan and her man are dead;
So is the Turk and Barabas the Jew.

Fern. Dead?

First Off. Dead, my lord, and here they bring his body.

Bosco. This sudden death of his is very strange.

Re-enter Officers, carrying BARABAS as dead.

Fern. Wonder not at it, sir; the heavens are just;

Their deaths were like their lives; then think not of 'em.—
 Since they are dead, let them be buried:
 For the Jew's body, throw that o'er the walls,
 To be a prey for vultures and wild beasts.—
 So, now away and fortify the town.

[Exeunt all, leaving Barabas on the floor.]

Bara. [rising] What, all alone! well fare, sleepy drink!
 I'll be reveng'd on this accursed town;
 For by my means Calymath shall enter in:
 I'll help to slay their children and their wives,
 To fire the churches, pull their houses down,
 Take my goods too, and seize upon my lands.
 I hope to see the governor a slave,
 And, rowing in a galley, whipt to death.

Enter CALYMATH, Bassoes, and Turks.

Caly. Whom have we there? a spy?

Bara. Yes, my good lord, one that can spy a place

Where you may enter, and surprise the town:

My name is Barabas; I am a Jew.

Caly. Art thou that Jew whose goods we heard were sold
 For tribute money?

Bara. The very same, my lord:

And since that time they have hir'd a slave, my man,

To accuse me of a thousand villanies:

I was imprisoned, but scap'd their hands

Caly. Didst break prison?

Bara. No, no:

I drank of poppy and cold mandrake juice;

And being asleep, belike they thought me dead,

And threw me o'er the walls: so, or how else,

The Jew is here, and rests at your command.

Caly. 'Twas bravely done: but tell me, Barabas,

Canst thou, as thou report'st, make Malta ours?

Bara. Fear not, my lord; for here, against the trench,

The rock is hollow, and of purpose digg'd,

To make a passage for the running streams

And common channels of the city.

Now, whilst you give assault unto the walls,

I'll lead five hundred soldiers through the vault,

And rise with them i' the middle of the town,

Open the gates for you to enter in;

And by this means the city is your own.

Marlowe's Plays

Caly. If this be true, I'll make thee governor.

Bara. And, if it be not true, then let me die.

Caly. Thou'st doom'd thyself.—Assault it presently.

[Exeunt

Alarums within. Enter CALYMATH, Bassoos, Turks, and BARABAS; with FERNEZE and Knights prisoners.

Caly. Now vail your pride, you captive Christians,
And kneel for mercy to your conquering foe:
Now where's the hope you had of haughty Spain?
Ferneze, speak; had it not been much better
To kept thy promise than be thus surpris'd?

Fern. What should I say? we are captives, and must yield.

Caly. Ay, villains, you must yield, and under Turkish yokes
Shall groaning bear the burden of our ire:—
And, Barabas, as erst we promis'd thee,
For thy desert we make thee governor;
Use them at thy discretion.

Bara. Thanks, my lord.

Fern. O fatal day, to fall into the hands
Of such a traitor and unhallow'd Jew!
What greater misery could heaven inflict?

Caly. 'Tis our command:—and, Barabas, we give,
To guard thy person, these our Janizaries:
Entreat them well, as we have used thee,—
And now, brave bassoos, come; we'll walk about
The ruin'd town, and see the wreck we made.—
Farewell, brave Jew, farewell, great Barabas!

Bara. May all good fortune follow Calymath!

[Exeunt Calymath and Bassoos.

And now, as entrance to our safety,
To prison with the governor and these
Captains, his consorts and confederates.

Fern. O villain! heaven will be reveng'd on thee.

Bara. Away! no more; let him not trouble me.

[Exeunt Turks with Ferneze and Knights.

Thus hast thou gotten, by thy policy,
No simple place, no small authority:
I now am governor of Malta; true,—
But Malta hates me, and, in hating me,
My life's in danger; and what boots it thee,
Poor Barabas, to be the governor,
Whenas thy life shall be at their command?

No, Barabas, this must be look'd into;
 And, since by wrong thou gott'st authority,
 Maintain it bravely by firm policy;
 At least, unprofitably lose it not;
 For he that liveth in authority,
 And neither gets him friends nor fills his bags,
 Lives like the ass that Æsop speaketh of,
 That labours with a load of bread and wine,
 And leaves it off to snap on thistle tops:
 But Barabas will be more circumspect.
 Begin betimes; Occasion's bald behind:
 Slip not thine opportunity, for fear too late
 Thou seek'st for much, but canst not compass it.—
 Within here!

Enter FERNEZE, with a Guard.

Fern. My lord?

Bara. Ay, lord; thus slaves will learn.

Now, governor,—stand by there, wait within,—

[Exeunt Guard.]

This is the reason that I sent for thee:
 Thou seest thy life and Malta's happiness
 Are at my arbitrement; and Barabas
 At his discretion may dispose of both:
 Now tell me, governor, and plainly too,
 What think'st thou shall become of it and thee?

Fern. This, Barabas; since things are in thy power,
 I see no reason but of Malta's wreck,
 Nor hope of thee but extreme cruelty:
 Nor fear I death, nor will I flatter thee.

Bara. Governor, good words; be not so furious.
 'Tis not thy life which can avail me aught;
 Yet you do live, and live for me you shall:
 And as for Malta's ruin, think you not
 'Twas slender policy for Barabas
 To dispossess himself of such a place?
 For sith, as once you said, within this isle,
 In Malta here, that I have got my goods,
 And in this city still have had success,
 And now at length am grown your governor,
 Yourselves shall see it shall not be forgot;
 For, as a friend not known but in distress,
 I'll rear up Malta, now remediless.

Fern. Will Barabas recover Malta's loss?

Will Barabas be good to Christians?

Bara. What wilt thou give me, governor, to procure

A dissolution of the slavish bands

Wherein the Turk hath yok'd your land and you?

What will you give me if I render you

The life of Calymath, surprise his men,

And in an out-house of the city shut

His soldiers, till I have consum'd 'em all with fire?

What will you give him that procureth this?

Fern. Do but bring this to pass which thou pretendest,

Deal truly with us as thou intimatest,

And I will send amongst the citizens,

And by my letters privately procure

Great sums of money for thy recompense:

Nay, more, do this, and live thou governor still.

Bara. Nay, do thou this, Ferneze, and be free:

Governor, I enlarge thee; live with me;

Go walk about the city, see thy friends:

Tush, send not letters to 'em; go thyself,

And let me see what money thou canst make:

Here is my hand that I'll set Malta free;

And thus we cast it: to a solemn feast

I will invite young Selim Calymath,

Where be thou present, only to perform

One stratagem that I'll impart to thee,

Wherein no danger shall betide thy life,

And I will warrant Malta free for ever.

Fern. Here is my hand; believe me, Barabas,

I will be there, and do as thou desirest.

When is the time?

Bara. Governor, presently;

For Calymath, when he hath view'd the town,

Will take his leave, and sail toward Ottoman.

Fern. Then will I, Barabas, about this coin,

And bring it with me to thee in the evening.

Bara. Do so; but fail not: now farewell, Ferneze:—

[Exit Ferneze.]

And thus far roundly goes the business:

Thus, loving neither, will I live with both,

Making a profit of my policy;

And he from whom my most advantage comes,

Shall be my friend.

This is the life we Jews are us'd to lead;
 And reason too, for Christians do the like.
 Well, now about effecting this device;
 First, to surprise great Selim's soldiers,
 And then to make provision for the feast,
 That at one instant all things may be done:
 My policy detests prevention.
 To what event my secret purpose drives,
 I know; and they shall witness with their lives. [Exeunt.]

Enter CALYMATH and Bassoes.

Caly. Thus have we view'd the city, seen the sack,
 And caus'd the ruins to be new-repair'd,
 Which with our bombards' shot and basilisk[s]
 We rent in sunder at our entry:
 And, now I see the situation,
 And how secure this conquer'd island stands,
 Environ'd with the Mediterranean sea,
 Strong countermin'd with other petty isles,
 And, toward Calabria, back'd by Sicily
 (Where Syracusian Dionysius reign'd),
 Two lofty turrets that command the town,
 I wonder how it could be conquered thus.

Enter a Messenger.

Mess. From Barabas, Malta's governor, I bring
 A message unto mighty Calymath:
 Hearing his sovereign was bound for sea,
 To sail to Turkey, to great Ottoman,
 He humbly would entreat your majesty
 To come and see his homely citadel,
 And banquet with him ere thou leav'st the isle.

Caly. To banquet with him in his citadell
 I fear me, messenger, to feast my train
 Within a town of war so lately pillag'd
 Will be too costly and too troublesome:
 Yet would I gladly visit Barabas,
 For well has Barabas deserv'd of us.

Mess. Selim, for that, thus saith the governor,—
 That he hath in [his] store a pearl so big,
 So precious, and withal so orient,
 As, be it valu'd but indifferently,
 The price thereof will serve to entertain

Selim and all his soldiers for a month;
Therefore he humbly would entreat your highness
Not to depart till he has feasted you.

Caly. I cannot feast my men in Malta-walls,
Except he place his tables in the streets.

Mess. Know, Selim, that there is a monastery
Which standeth as an out-house to the town;
There will he banquet them; but thee at home,
With all thy bassoes and brave followers.

Caly. Well, tell the governor we grant his suit;
We'll in this summer-evening feast with him.

Mess. I shall, my lord.

[Exit.

Caly. And now, bold bassoes, let us to our tents,
And meditate how we may grace us best,
To solemnise our governor's great feast.

[Exeunt.

Enter FERNEZE, Knights, and MARTIN DEL BOSCO.

Fern. In this, my countrymen, be rul'd by me:
Have special care that no man sally forth
Till you shall hear a culverin discharg'd
By him that bears the linstock, kindled thus;
Then issue out and come to rescue me,
For happily I shall be in distress,
Or you released of this servitude.

First Knight. Rather than thus to live as Turkish thralls,
What will we not adventure?

Fern. On, then; be gone.

Knights. Farewell, grave governor.

[*Exeunt, on one side, Knights and Martin Del Bosco ;
on the other, Ferneze.*

*Enter, above, BARABAS, with a hammer, very busy ;
and Carpenters.*

Bara. How stand the cords? how hang these hinges? fast?
Are all the cranes and pulleys sure?

First Carp. All fast.

Bara. Leave nothing loose, all leuell'd to my mind.

Why, now I see that you have art, indeed:

There, carpenters, divide that gold amongst you;

[Giving money.

Go, swill in bowls of sack and muscadine;
Down to the cellar, taste of all my wines.

First Carp. We shall, my lord, and thank you.

[Exeunt Carpenters.]

Bara. And, if you like them, drink your fill and die;

For, so I live, perish may all the world!

Now, Selim Calymath, return me word

That thou wilt come, and I am satisfied.

Enter Messenger.

Now, sirrah; what, will he come?

Mess. He will; and has commanded all his men

To come ashore, and march through Malta-streets,

That thou mayst feast them in thy citadel.

Bara. Then now are all things as my wish would have 'em;

There wanteth nothing but the governor's pelf;

And see, he brings it.

Enter FERNEZE.

Now governor, the sum?

Fern. With free consent, a hundred thousand pounds.

Bara. Pounds say'st thou, governor? well, since it is no more,

I'll satisfy myself with that; nay, keep it still,

For, if I keep not promise, trust not me:

And, governor, now partake my policy,

First, for his army, they are sent before,

Enter'd the monastery, and underneath

In several places are field-pieces pitch'd,

Bombards, whole barrels full of gunpowder,

That on the sudden shall dissever it,

And batter all the stones about their ears,

Whence none can possibly escape alive:

Now, as for Calymath and his consorts,

Here have I made a dainty gallery,

The floor whereof, this cable being cut,

Doth fall asunder, so that it doth sink

Into a deep pit past recovery.

Here, hold that knife; and, when thou seest he comes,

[Throws down a knife.]

And with his bassoes shall be blithely set,

A warning-piece shall be shot off from the tower,

To give thee knowledge when to cut the cord,

And fire the house. Say, will not this be brave?

Fern. O, excellent! here, hold thee, Barabas;
I trust thy word; take what I promis'd thee.

Bara. No, governor; I'll satisfy thee first;
Thou shalt not live in doubt of anything.

Stand close, for here they come. [Ferneze retires.]

Why, is not this

A kingly kind of trade, to purchase towns
By treachery, and sell 'em by deceit?
Now tell me, worldlings, underneath the sun
If greater falsehood ever has been done?

Enter CALYMATH and Bassoes.

Caly. Come, my companion-bassoes: see, I pray,
How busy Barabas is there above
To entertain us in his gallery:
Let us salute him.—Save thee, Barabas!

Bara. Welcome, great Calymath!

Fern. How the slave jeers at him! [Aside.]

Bara. Will't please thee, mighty Selim Calymath,
To ascend our homely stairs?

Caly. Ay, Barabas.—

Come, bassoes, ascend.

Fern. [coming forward] Stay, Calymath;
For I will show thee greater courtesy
Than Barabas would have afforded thee.

Knight. [within] Sound a charge there!

[A charge sounded within: Fernese cuts the cord; the floor of the gallery gives way, and Barabas falls into a cauldron placed in a pit.]

Enter Knights and MARTIN DEL BOSCO.

Caly. How now! what means this?

Bara. Help, help me, Christians, help!

Fern. See, Calymath! this was devis'd for thee.

Caly. Treason, treason! bassoes, fly!

Fern. No, Selim, do not fly:

See his end first, and fly then if thou canst.

Bara. O, help me, Selim! help me, Christians!

Governor, why stand you all so pitiless?

Fern. Should I in pity of thy plaints or thee,
Accursed Barabas, base Jew, relent?

No, thus I'll see thy treachery repaid,
But wish thou hadst behav'd thee otherwise.

Bara. You will not help me, then?

Fern. No, villain, no.

Bara. And, villains, know you cannot help me now.—

Then, Barabas, breathe forth thy latest fate,
And in the fury of thy torments strive
To end thy life with resolution.—

Know, governor, 'twas I that slew thy son,—
I fram'd the challenge that did make them meet:

Know, Calymath, I aim'd thy overthrow:

And, had I but escap'd this stratagem,

I would have brought confusion on you all.

Damn'd Christian dogs, and Turkish infidels!

But now begins the extremity of heat

To pinch me with intolerable pangs:

Die, life! fly, soul! tongue, curse thy fill, and die!

[Dies.]

Caly. Tell me, you Christians, what doth this portend?

Fern. This train he laid to have entrapp'd thy life;

Now, Selim, note the unhallow'd deeds of Jews;

Thus he determin'd to have handled thee,

But I have rather chose to save thy life.

Caly. Was this the banquet he prepar'd for us?

Let's hence, lest further mischief be pretended.

Fern. Nay, Selim, stay; for, since we have thee here,

We will not let thee part so suddenly:

Besides, if we should let thee go, all's one,

For with thy galleys couldst thou not get hence,

Without fresh men to rig and furnish them.

Caly. Tush, governor, take thou no care for that;

My men are all aboard,

And do attend my coming there by this.

Fern. Why, heard'st thou not the trumpet sound a charge?

Caly. Yes, what of that?

Fern. Why, then the house was fir'd,

Blown up, and all thy soldiers massacred.

Caly. O, monstrous treason!

Fern. A Jew's courtesy;

For he that did by treason work our fall,

By treason hath deliver'd thee to us:

Know, therefore, till thy father hath made good

The ruins done to Malta and to us,

Thou canst not part; for Malta shall be freed,
Or Selim ne'er return to Ottoman.

Caly. Nay, rather, Christians, let me go to Turkey,
In person there to mediate your peace:
To keep me here will naught advantage you.

Fern. Content thee, Calymath, here thou must stay,
And live in Malta prisoner; for come all the world
To rescue thee, so will we guard us now,
As sooner shall they drink the ocean dry,
Than conquer Malta, or endanger us.
So, march away; and let due praise begin
Neither to Fate nor Fortune, but to Heaven. [Exeunt.

Gav. My father is deceas'd. Come, Gaveston,
 And share the kingdom with thy dearest friend.
 Ah, words that make me surfeit with delight!
 What greater bliss can hap to Gaveston
 Than live and be the favourite of a king!
 Sweet prince, I come! these, these thy amorous lines
 Might have enforc'd me to have swum from France,
 And, like Leander, gasp'd upon the sand,
 So thou wouldst smile, and take me in thine arms.
 The sight of London to my exil'd eyes
 Is as Elysium to a new-come soul:
 Not that I love the city or the men,
 But that it harbours him I hold so dear,—
 The king, upon whose bosom let me lie,
 And with the world be still at enmity.

What need the arctic people love star-light,
 To whom the sun shines both by day and night?
 Farewell base stooping to the lordly peers!
 My knee shall bow to none but to the king.
 As for the multitude, that are but sparks,
 Rak'd up in embers of their poverty,—
Tanti,—I'll fawn first on the wind,
 That glanceth at my lips, and flieth away.

Enter three Poor Men.

But how now! what are these?

Poor Men. Such as desire your worship's service.

Gav. What canst thou do?

First P. Man. I can ride.

Gav. But I have no horse.—What art thou?

Sec. P. Man. A traveller.

Gav. Let me see; thou wouldst do well

To wait at my trencher, and tell me lies at dinner-time;

And, as I like your discoursing, I'll have you.—

And what art thou?

Third P. Man. A soldier, that hath serv'd against the Scot.

Gav. Why, there are hospitals for such as you:

I have no war; and therefore, sir, be gone.

Third P. Man. Farewell, and perish by a soldier's hand,

That wouldst reward them with an hospital!

Gav. Ay, ay, these words of his move me as much

As if a goose should play the porcupine,

And dart her plumes, thinking to pierce my breast.

But yet it is no pain to speak men fair;

I'll flatter these, and make them live in hope.— [Aside.]

You know that I came lately out of France,

And yet I have not view'd my lord the king:

If I speed well, I'll entertain you all.

All. We thank your worship.

Gav. I have some business: leave me to myself.

All. We will wait here about the court.

Gav. Do.

[Exeunt Poor Men.]

These are not men for me;

I must have wanton poets, pleasant wits,

Musicians, that with touching of a string

May draw the pliant king which way I please:

Music and poetry is his delight;

Therefore I'll have Italian masks by night,

Sweet speeches, comedies, and pleasing shows;
 And in the day, when he shall walk abroad,
 Like sylvan nymphs my pages shall be clad;
 My men, like satyrs grazing on the lawns,
 Shall with their goat-feet dance the antic hay;
 Sometime a lovely boy in Dian's shape,
 With hair that gilds the water as it glides
 Crowns of pearl about his naked arms,
 And in his sportful hands an olive-tree,
 To hide those parts which men delight to see,
 Shall bathe him in a spring; and there, hard by,
 One like Actæon, peeping through the grove,
 Shall by the angry goddess be transform'd,
 And running in the likeness of an hart,
 By yelping hounds pull'd down, shall seem to die:
 Such things as these best please his majesty.—
 Here comes my lord the king, and the nobles,
 From the parliament. I'll stand aside. [Retires.]

Enter KING EDWARD, KENT, LANCASTER, the elder MORTIMER, the younger MORTIMER, WARWICK, PEMBROKE, and Attendants.

K. Edw. Lancaster!

Lan. My lord?

Gav. That Earl of Lancaster do I abhor. [Aside.]

K. Edw. Will you not grant me this?—In spite of them
 I'll have my will; and these two Mortimers,
 That cross me thus, shall know I am displeased. [Aside.]

E. Mor. If you love us, my lord, hate Gaveston.

Gav. That villain Mortimer! I'll be his death. [Aside.]

Y. Mor. Mine uncle here, this earl, and I myself,
 Were sworn to your father at his death,
 That he should ne'er return into the realm:
 And now, my lord, ere I will break my oath,
 This sword of mine, that should offend your foes,
 Shall sleep within the scabbard at thy need,
 And underneath thy banners march who will,
 For Mortimer will hang his armour up.

Gav. Mort dieu! [Aside.]

K. Edw. Well, Mortimer, I'll make thee rue these words:

Beseems it thee to contradict thy king?

Frown'st thou thereat, aspiring Lancaster?

The sword shall plane the furrows of thy brows,

And hew these knees that now are grown so stiff.
I will have Gaveston; and you shall know
What danger 'tis to stand against your king.

Gav. Well done, Ned!

[Aside

Lan. My lord, why do you thus incense your peers,
That naturally would love and honour you,
But for that base and obscure Gaveston?
Four earldoms have I, besides Lancaster,—
Derby, Salisbury, Lincoln, Leicester;
These will I sell, to give my soldiers pay,
Ere Gaveston shall stay within the realm:
Therefore, if he be come, expel him straight.

Kent. Barons and earls, your pride hath made me mute;
But now I'll speak, and to the proof, I hope.
I do remember, in my father's days,
Lord Percy of the North, being highly mov'd,
Brav'd Mowbray in presence of the king;
For which, had not his highness lov'd him well,
He should have lost his head; but with his look
Th' undaunted spirit of Percy was appeas'd,
And Mowbray and he were reconcil'd:
Yet dare you brave the king unto his face.—
Brother, revenge it, and let these their heads
Preach upon poles, for trespass of their tongues.

War. O, our heads!

K. Edw. Ay, yours; and therefore I would wish you grant.

War. Bridle thy anger, gentle Mortimer.

Y. Mor. I cannot, nor I will not; I must speak.—
Cousin, our hands I hope shall fence our heads,
And strike off his that makes you threaten us.—
Come, uncle, let us leave the brain-sick king,
And henceforth parley with our naked swords.

E. Mor. Wiltshire hath men enough to save our heads.

War. All Warwickshire will leave him for my sake.

Lan. And northward Lancaster hath many friends.—
Adieu, my lord; and either change your mind,
Or look to see the throne, where you should sit,
To float in blood, and at thy wanton head
The glozing head of thy base minion thrown.

[*Exeunt all except King Edward, Kent, Gaveston,
and attendants.*

K. Edw. I cannot brook these haughty menaces:
Am I a king, and must be over-rul'd!—

Brother, display my ensigns in the field:
I'll bandy with the barons and the earls,
And either die or live with Gaveston.
Gav. I can no longer keep me from my lord.

[Comes forward.]

K. Edw. What, Gaveston! welcome! Kiss not my hand:
Embrace me, Gaveston, as I do thee.
Why shouldst thou kneel? know'st thou not who I am?
Thy friend, thyself, another Gaveston:
Not Hylas was more mourned for of Hercules
Than thou hast been of me since thy exile.

Gav. And, since I went from hence, no soul in hell
Hath felt more torment than poor Gaveston.

K. Edw. I know it.—Brother, welcome home my friend.—
Now let the treacherous Mortimers conspire,
And that high-minded Earl of Lancaster:
I have my wish, in that I joy thy sight;
And sooner shall the sea o'erwhelm my land
Than bear the ship that shall transport thee hence.
I here create thee Lord High-chamberlain,
Chief Secretary to the state and me,
Earl of Cornwall, King and Lord of Man.

Gav. My lord, these titles far exceed my worth.

Kent. Brother, the least of these may well suffice
For one of greater birth than Gaveston.

K. Edw. Cease, brother, for I cannot brook these words.—
Thy worth, sweet friend, is far above my gifts:
Therefore, to equal it, receive my heart.
If for these dignities thou be envied,
I'll give thee more; for, but to honour thee,
Is Edward pleas'd with kingly regiment.
Fear'st thou thy person? thou shalt have a guard:
Wantest thou gold? go to my treasury:
Wouldst thou be lov'd and fear'd? receive my seal,
Save or condemn, and in our name command
What so thy mind affects, or fancy likes.

Gav. It shall suffice me to enjoy your love;
Which whiles I have, I think myself as great
As Cæsar riding in the Roman street,
With captive kings at his triumphant car.

Enter the BISHOP OF COVENTRY.

K. Edw. Whither goes my Lord of Coventry so fast?

Bish. of Cov. To celebrate your father's exequies.

But is that wicked Gaveston return'd?

K. Edw. Ay, priest, and lives to be reveng'd on thee,
That wert the only cause of his exile.

Gav. 'Tis true; and, but for reverence of these robes,
Thou shouldst not plod one foot beyond this place.

Bish. of Cov. I did no more than I was bound to do:

And, Gaveston, unless thou be reclaim'd,

As then I did incense the parliament,

So will I now, and thou shalt back to France.

Gav. Saving your reverence, you must pardon me.

K. Edw. Throw off his golden mitre, rend his stole,

And in the channel christen him anew.

Kent. Ah, brother, lay not violent hands on him!

For he'll complain unto the see of Rome.

Gav. Let him complain unto the see of hell:

I'll be reveng'd on him for my exile.

K. Edw. No, spare his life, but seize upon his goods:

Be thou lord bishop, and receive his rents,

And make him serve thee as thy chaplain:

I give him thee; here, use him as thou wilt.

Gav. He shall to prison, and there die in bolts.

K. Edw. Ay, to the Tower, the Fleet, or where thou wilt.

Bish. of Cov. For this offence be thou accurs'd of God!

K. Edw. Who's there? Convey this priest to the Tower.

Bish. of Cov. True, true.

K. Edw. But, in the meantime, Gaveston, away,

And take possession of his house and goods.

Come, follow me, and thou shalt have my guard

To see it done, and bring thee safe again.

Gav. What should a priest do with so fair a house?

A prison may beseem his holiness.

[Exeunt.]

*Enter, on one side, the elder MORTIMER, and the younger
MORTIMER; on the other, WARWICK, and LANCASTER.*

War. 'Tis true, the bishop is in the Tower,

And goods and body given to Gaveston.

Lan. What, will they tyrannise upon the church?

Ah, wicked king! accurs'd Gaveston!

This ground, which is corrupted with their steps,

Shall be their timeless sepulchre or mine.

Y. Mor. Well, let that peevish Frenchman guard him sure;

Unless his breast be sword-proof, he shall die.

E. Mor. How now! why droops the Earl of Lancaster?

Y. Mor. Wherefore is Guy of Warwick discontent?

Lan. That villain Gaveston is made an earl.

E. Mor. An earl!

War. Ay, and besides Lord-chamberlain of the realm,
And Secretary too, and Lord of Man.

E. Mor. We may not nor we will not suffer this.

Y. Mor. Why post we not from hence to levy men?

Lan. "My Lord of Cornwall" now at every word;
And happy is the man whom he vouchsafes,
For vailing of his bonnet, one good look.
Thus, arm in arm, the king and he doth march:
Nay, more, the guard upon his lordship waits,
And all the court begins to flatter him.

War. Thus leaning on the shoulder of the king,
He nods, and scorns, and smiles at those that pass.

E. Mor. Doth no man take exceptions at the slave?

Lan. All stomach him, but none dare speak a word.

Y. Mor. Ah, that bewrays their baseness, Lancaster!
Were all the earls and barons of my mind,
We'd hale him from the bosom of the king,
And at the court-gate hang the peasant up,
Who, swoln with venom of ambitious pride,
Will be the ruin of the realm and us.

War. Here comes my Lord of Canterbury's grace.

Lan. His countenance bewrays he is displeas'd.

Enter the ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY, and an Attendant.

Archb. of Cant. First, were his sacred garments rent and torn;

Then laid they violent hands upon him; next,
Himself imprison'd, and his goods ass seiz'd:
This certify the Pope: away, take horse.

[Exit Attendant.]

Lan. My lord, will you take arms against the king?

Archb. of Cant. What need I? God himself is up in arms
When violence is offer'd to the church.

Y. Mor. Then will you join with us, that be his peers,
To banish or behead that Gaveston?

Archb. of Cant. What else, my lords? for it concerns me near;

The bishoprick of Coventry is his.

Enter QUEEN ISABELLA.

Y. Mor. Madam, whither walks your majesty so fast?

Q. Isab. Unto the forest, gentle Mortimer,
To live in grief and baleful discontent;
For now my lord the king regards me not,
But dotes upon the love of Gaveston:
He claps his cheeks, and hangs about his neck,
Smiles in his face, and whispers in his ears;
And, when I come, he frowns, as who should say,
"Go whither thou wilt, seeing I have Gaveston."

E. Mor. Is it not strange that he is thus bewitch'd?

Y. Mor. Madam, return unto the court again:
That sly inveigling Frenchman we'll exile,
Or lose our lives; and yet, ere that day come,
The king shall lose his crown; for we have power,
And courage too, to be reveng'd at full.

Archb. of Cant. But yet lift not your swords against the king.

Lan. No; but we will lift Gaveston from hence.

War. And war must be the means, or he'll stay still.

Q. Isab. Then let him stay; for, rather than my lord
Shall be oppress'd with civil mutinies,
I will endure a melancholy life,
And let him frolic with his minion.

Archb. of Cant. My lords, to ease all this, but hear me speak:

We and the rest, that are his counsellors,
Will meet, and with a general consent
Confirm his banishment with our hands and seals.

Lan. What we confirm the king will frustrate.

Y. Mor. Then may we lawfully revolt from him.

War. But say, my lord, where shall this meeting be?

Archb. of Cant. At the New Temple.

Y. Mor. Content.

Archb. of Cant. And, in the meantime, I'll entreat you all
To cross to Lambeth, and there stay with me.

Lan. Come, then, let's away.

Y. Mor. Madam, farewell.

Q. Isab. Farewell, sweet Mortimer, and, for my sake,
Forbear to levy arms against the king.

Y. Mor. Ay, if words will serve; if not, I must. [Exeunt.]

Enter GAVESTON and KENT.

Gav. Edmund, the mighty prince of Lancaster,
That hath more earldoms than an ass can bear,
And both the Mortimers, two goodly men,
With Guy of Warwick, that redoubted knight,
Are gone towards Lambeth: there let them remain.

[Exeunt.]

*Enter LANCASTER, WARWICK, PEMBROKE, the elder
MORTIMER, the younger MORTIMER, the ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY, and Attendants.*

Lan. Here is the form of Gaveston's exile;
May it please your lordship to subscribe your name.
Archb. of Cant. Give me the paper.

[He subscribes, as the others do after him.]

Lan. Quick, quick, my lord; I long to write my name.

War. But I long more to see him banish'd hence.

Y. Mor. The name of Mortimer shall fright the king,
Unless he be declin'd from that base peasant.

Enter KING EDWARD, GAVESTON, and KENT.

K. Edw. What, are you mov'd that Gaveston sits here?
It is our pleasure; we will have it so.

Lan. Your grace doth well to place him by your side,
For nowhere else the new earl is so safe.

E. Mor. What man of noble birth can brook this sight?
Quam male conveniunt!—

See, what a scornful look the peasant casts!

Pem. Can kingly lions fawn on creeping ants?

War. Ignoble vassal, that, like Phaeton,
Aspir'st unto the guidance of the sun!

Y. Mor. Their downfall is at hand, their forces down:
We will not thus be fac'd and over-peer'd.

K. Edw. Lay hands on that traitor Mortimer!

E. Mor. Lay hands on that traitor Gaveston!

Kent. Is this the duty that you owe your king?

War. We know our duties; let him know his peers.

K. Edw. Whither will you bear him? stay, or ye shall die

E. Mor. We are no traitors; therefore threaten not.

Gav. No, threaten not, my lord, but pay them home.

Were I a king—

Y. Mor. Thou, villain! wherefore talk'st thou of a king,

- That hardly art a gentleman by birth?
- K. Edw. Were he a peasant, being my minion,
I'll make the proudest of you stoop to him.
- Lan. My lord—you may not thus disparage us.—
Away, I say, with hateful Gaveston!
- E. Mor. And with the Earl of Kent that favours him.
[Attendants remove Gaveston and Kent.]
- K. Edw. Nay, then, lay violent hands upon your king:
Here, Mortimer, sit thou in Edward's throne;
Warwick and Lancaster, wear you my crown.
Was ever king thus over-rul'd as I?
- Lan. Learn, then, to rule us better, and the realm.
- Y. Mor. What we have done, our heart-blood shall maintain.
- War. Think you that we can brook this upstart['s] pride?
- K. Edw. Anger and wrathful fury stops my speech.
- Archb. of Cant. Why are you not mov'd? be patient, my lord,
And see what we your counsellors have done.
- Y. Mor. My lords, now let us all be resolute,
And either have our wills, or lose our lives.
- K. Edw. Meet you for this, proud over-daring peers!
Ere my sweet Gaveston shall part from me,
This isle shall fleet upon the ocean,
And wander to the unfrequented Inde.
- Archb. of Cant. You know that I am legate to the Pope:
On your allegiance to the see of Rome,
Subscribe, as we have done, to his exile.
- Y. Mor. Curse him, if he refuse; and then may we Depose him, and elect another king.
- K. Edw. Ay, there it goes! but yet I will not yield:
Curse me, depose me, do the worst you can.
- Lan. Then linger not, my lord, but do it straight.
- Archb. of Cant. Remember how the bishop was abus'd:
Either banish him that was the cause thereof,
Or I will presently discharge these lords
Of duty and allegiance due to thee.
- K. Edw. It boots me not to threat; I must speak fair:
The legate of the Pope will be obey'd.— [Aside.
My lord, you shall be Chancellor of the realm;
Thou, Lancaster, High-Admiral of our fleet;
Young Mortimer and his uncle shall be earls;
And you, Lord Warwick, President of the North;

And thou of Wales. If this content you not,
Make several kingdoms of this monarchy,
And share it equally amongst you all,
So I may have some nook or corner left,
To frolic with my dearest Gaveston.

Archb. of Cant. Nothing shall alter us; we are resolv'd.

Lan. Come, come, subscribe.

Y. Mor. Why should you love him whom the world
hates so?

K. Edw. Because he loves me more than all the world.

Ah, none but rude and savage-minded men

Would seek the ruin of my Gaveston!

You that be noble-born should pity him.

War. You that are princely-born should shake him off:

For shame, subscribe, and let the lown depart.

E. Mor. Urge him, my lord.

Archb. of Cant. Are you content to banish him the realm?

K. Edw. I see I must, and therefore am content:

Instead of ink, I'll write it with my tears. [Subscribes.]

Y. Mor. 'The king is love-sick for his minion.

K. Edw. 'Tis done: and now, accursed hand, fall off!

Lan. Give it me: I'll have it publish'd in the streets.

Y. Mor. I'll see him presently despatch'd away.

Archb. of Cant. Now is my heart at ease.

War. And so is mine.

Pem. This will be good news to the common sort.

E. Mor. Be it or no, he shall not linger here.

[Exeunt all except King Edward.]

K. Edw. How fast they run to banish him I love!

They would not stir, were it to do me good.

Why should a king be subject to a priest?

Proud Rome, that hatchest such imperial grooms,

With these thy superstitious taper-lights,

Wherewith thy antichristian churches blaze,

I'll fire thy crazed buildings, and enforce

The papal towers to kiss the lowly ground,

With slaughter'd priests make Tiber's channel swell,

And banks rais'd higher with their sepulchres!

As for the peers, that back the clergy thus,

If I be king, not one of them shall live.

Re-enter GAVESTON.

Gav. My lord, I hear it whisper'd everywhere,

That I am banish'd and must fly the land.

K. Edw. 'Tis true, sweet Gaveston: O, were it false!

The legate of the Pope will have it so,

And thou must hence, or I shall be depos'd.

But I will reign to be reveng'd of them;

And therefore, sweet friend, take it patiently.

Live where thou wilt, I'll send thee gold enough;

And long thou shalt not stay; or, if thou dost,

I'll come to thee; my love shall ne'er decline.

Gav. Is all my hope turn'd to this hell of grief?

K. Edw. Rend not my heart with thy too-piercing words:

Thou from this land, I from myself am banish'd.

Gav. To go from hence grieves not poor Gaveston;

But to forsake you, in whose gracious looks

The blessedness of Gaveston remains;

For nowhere else seeks he felicity.

K. Edw. And only this torments my wretched soul,

That, whether I will or no, thou must depart.

Be governor of Ireland in my stead,

And there abide till fortune call thee home.

Here, take my picture, and let me wear thine:

[They exchange pictures.]

O, might I keep thee here, as I do this,

Happy were I! but now most miserable.

Gav. 'Tis something to be pitied of a king.

K. Edw. Thou shalt not hence; I'll hide thee, Gaveston.

Gav. I shall be found, and then 'twill grieve me more.

K. Edw. Kind words and mutual talk makes our grief greater:

Therefore, with dumb embracement, let us part.

Stay, Gaveston; I cannot leave thee thus.

Gav. For every look, my love drops down a tear:

Seeing I must go, do not renew my sorrow.

K. Edw. The time is little that thou hast to stay,

And, therefore, give me leave to look my fill.

But, come, sweet friend; I'll bear thee on thy way.

Gav. The peers will frown.

K. Edw. I pass not for their anger. Come, let's go:

O, that we might as well return as go!

Enter QUEEN ISABELLA.

Q. Isab. Whither goes my lord?

K. Edw. Fawn not on me, French strumpet; get thee gone!

Q. Isab. On whom but on my husband should I fawn?

Gav. On Mortimer; with whom, ungentle queen,—

I say no more—judge you the rest, my lord.

Q. Isab. In saying this, thou wrong'st me, Gaveston:

Is't not enough that thou corrupt'st my lord,

And art a bawd to his affections,

But thou must call mine honour thus in question?

Gav. I mean not so; your grace must pardon me.

K. Edw. Thou art too familiar with that Mortimer,

And by thy means is Gaveston exil'd:

But I would wish thee reconcile the lords,

Or thou shalt ne'er be reconcil'd to me.

Q. Isab. Your highness knows, it lies not in my power.

K. Edw. Away, then! touch me not.—Come, Gaveston.

Q. Isab. Villain, 'tis thou that robb'st me of my lord.

Gav. Madam, 'tis you that rob me of my lord.

K. Edw. Speak not unto her: let her droop and pine.

Q. Isab. Wherein, my lord, have I deserv'd these words?

Witness the tears that Isabella sheds,

Witness this heart, that, sighing for thee, breaks,

How dear my lord is to poor Isabel!

K. Edw. And witness heaven how dear thou art to me:

There weep; for, till my Gaveston be repeal'd,

Assure thyself thou com'st not in my sight.

[Exeunt King Edward and Gaveston.]

Q. Isab. O miserable and distressed queen!

Would, when I left sweet France, and was embarked,

That charming Circe, walking on the waves,

Had chang'd my shape! or at the marriage-day

The cup of Hymen had been full of poison!

Or with those arms, that twin'd about my neck,

I had been stifled, and not liv'd to see

The king my lord thus to abandon me!

Like frantic Juno, will I fill the earth

With ghastly murmur of my sighs and cries;

For never doted Jove on Ganymede

So much as he on curs'd Gaveston:

But that will more exasperate his wrath;

I must entreat him, I must speak him fair,

And be a means to call home Gaveston:

And yet he'll ever dote on Gaveston;

And so am I for ever miserable.

*Re-enter LANCASTER, WARWICK, PEMBROKE, the elder
MORTIMER, and the younger MORTIMER.*

Lan. Look, where the sister of the king of France
Sits wringing of her hands and beats her breast!

War. The king, I fear, hath ill-treated her.

Pem. Hard is the heart that injures such a saint.

Y. Mor. I know 'tis 'long of Gaveston she weeps.

E. Mor. Why, he is gone.

Y. Mor. Madam, how fares your grace?

Q. Isab. Ah, Mortimer, now breaks the king's hate forth,
And he confesseth that he loves me not!

Y. Mor. Cry quittance, madam, then, and love not him.

Q. Isab. No, rather will I die a thousand deaths:
And yet I love in vain; he'll ne'er love me.

Lan. Fear ye not, madam; now his minion's gone,
His wanton humour will be quickly left.

Q. Isab. O, never, Lancaster! I am enjoin'd
To sue unto you all for his repeal:
This wills my lord, and this must I perform,
Or else be banish'd from his highness' presence.

Lan. For his repeal, madam! he comes not back,
Unless the sea cast up his shipwreck'd body.

War. And to behold so sweet a sight as that,
There's none here but would run his horse to death.

Y. Mor. But, madam, would you have us call him home?

Q. Isab. Ay, Mortimer, for, till he be restor'd,
The angry king hath banish'd me the court;
And, therefore, as thou lov'st and tender'st me,
Be thou my advocate unto these peers.

Y. Mor. What, would you have me plead for Gaveston?

E. Mor. Plead for him that will, I am resolv'd.

Lan. And so am I, my lord: dissuade the queen.

Q. Isab. O, Lancaster, let him dissuade the king!
For 'tis against my will he should return.

War. Then speak not for him; let the peasant go.

Q. Isab. 'Tis for myself I speak, and not for him.

Pem. No speaking will prevail; and therefore cease.

Y. Mor. Fair queen, forbear to angle for the fish
Which, being caught, strikes him that takes it dead;
I mean that vile torpedo, Gaveston,
That now, I hope, floats on the Irish seas.

Q. Isab. Sweet Mortimer, sit down by me a while,

- And I will tell thee reasons of such weight
As thou wilt soon subscribe to his repeal.
Y. Mor. It is impossible: but speak your mind.
Q. Isab. Then thus;—but none shall hear it but ourselves.
[Talks to Y. Mor. apart.]
Lan. My lords, albeit the queen win Mortimer,
Will you be resolute and hold with me?
E. Mor. Not I, against my nephew.
Pem. Fear not; the queen's words cannot alter him.
War. No? do but mark how earnestly she pleads!
Lan. And see how coldly his looks make denial!
War. She smiles: now, for my life, his mind is chang'd!
Lan. I'll rather lose his friendship, I, than grant.
Y. Mor. Well, of necessity it must be so.—
My lords, that I abhor base Gaveston
I hope your honours make no question,
And therefore, though I plead for his repeal,
'Tis not for his sake, but for our avail;
Nay, for the realm's behoof, and for the king's.
Lan. Fiè, Mortimer, dishonour not thyself!
Can this be true, 'twas good to banish him?
And is this true, to call him home again?
Such reasons make white black, and dark night day.
Y. Mor. My lord of Lancaster, mark the respect.
Lan. In no respect can contraries be true.
Q. Isab. Yet, good my lord, hear what he can allege.
War. All that he speaks is nothing; we are resolv'd.
Y. Mor. Do you not wish that Gaveston were dead?
Pem. I would he were!
Y. Mor. Why, then, my lord, give me but leave to speak.
E. Mor. But, nephew, do not play the sophister.
Y. Mor. This which I urge is of a burning zeal
To mend the king and do our country good.
Know you not Gaveston hath store of gold,
Which may in Ireland purchase him such friends
As he will front the mightiest of us all?
And whereas he shall live and be belov'd,
'Tis hard for us to work his overthrow.
War. Mark you but that, my lord of Lancaster.
Y. Mor. But, were he here, detested as he is,
How easily might some base slave be suborn'd
To greet his lordship with a poniard,
And none so much as blame the murderer,

But rather praise him for that brave attempt,
And in the chronicle enrol his name
For purging of the realm of such a plague!

Pem. He saith true.

Lan. Ay, but how chance this was not done before?

Y. Mor. Because, my lords, it was not thought upon.

Nay, more, when he shall know it lies in us
To banish him, and then to call him home,
'Twill make him vail the top flag of his pride,
And fear to offend the meanest nobleman.

E. Mor. But how if he do not, nephew?

Y. Mor. Then may we with some colour rise in arms;

For, howsoever we have borne it out,
'Tis treason to be up against the king;
So shall we have the people of our side,
Which, for his father's sake, lean to the king,
But cannot brook a night-grown mushroom,
Such a one as my Lord of Cornwall is,
Should bear us down of the nobility:
And, when the commons and the nobles join,
'Tis not the king can buckler Gaveston;
We'll pull him from the strongest hold he hath.
My lords, if to perform this I be slack,
Think me as base a groom as Gaveston.

Lan. On that condition Lancaster will grant.

War. And so will Pembroke and I.

E. Mor. And I.

Y. Mor. In this I count me highly gratified,
And Mortimer will rest at your command.

Q. Isab. And when this favour Isabel forgets,
Then let her live abandon'd and forlorn.—
But see, in happy time, my lord the king,
Having brought the Earl of Cornwall on his way,
Is new return'd. This news will glad him much:
Yet not so much as me; I love him more
Than he can Gaveston: would he lov'd me
But half so much! then were I treble-blest.

Re-enter KING EDWARD, mourning.

K. Edw. He's gone, and for his absence thus I mourn:

Did never sorrow go so near my heart
As doth the want of my sweet Gaveston;
And, could my crown's revenue bring him back,

I would freely give it to his enemies,
And think I gain'd, having bought so dear a friend.

Q. Isab. Hark, how he harps upon his minion!

K. Edw. My heart is as an anvil unto sorrow,
Which beats upon it like the Cyclops' hammers,
And with the noise turns up my giddy brain,
And makes me frantic for my Gaveston.
Ah, had some bloodless Fury rose from hell,
And with my kingly sceptre struck me dead,
When I was forc'd to leave my Gaveston!

Lan. Diablo, what passions call you these?

Q. Isab. My gracious lord, I come to bring you news.

K. Edw. That you have parled with your Mortimer?

Q. Isab. That Gaveston, my lord, shall be repeal'd.

K. Edw. Repeal'd! the news is too sweet to be true.

Q. Isab. But will you love me, if you find it so?

K. Edw. If it be so, what will not Edward do?

Q. Isab. For Gaveston, but not for Isabel.

K. Edw. For thee, fair queen, if thou lov'st Gaveston;
I'll hang a golden tongue about thy neck,
Seeing thou hast pleaded with so good success.

Q. Isab. No other jewels hang about my neck
Than these, my lord; nor let me have more wealth
Than I may fetch from this rich treasury.
O, how a kiss revives poor Isabel!

K. Edw. Once more receive my hand; and let this be
A second marriage 'twixt thyself and me.

Q. Isab. And may it prove more happy than the first!
My gentle lord, bespeak these nobles fair,
That wait attendance for a gracious look,
And on their knees salute your majesty.

K. Edw. Courageous Lancaster, embrace thy king;
And, as gross vapours perish by the sun,
Even so let hatred with thy sovereign's smile:
Live thou with me as my companion.

Lan. This salutation overjoys my heart.

K. Edw. Warwick shall be my chiefest counsellor:
These silver hairs will more adorn my court
Than gaudy silks or rich embroidery.
Chide me, sweet Warwick, if I go astray.

War. Slay me, my lord, when I offend your grace.

K. Edw. In solemn triumphs and in public shows
Pembroke shall bear the sword before the king.

Pem. And with this sword Pembroke will fight for you.

K. Edw. But wherefore walks young Mortimer aside?

Be thou commander of our royal fleet;

Or, if that lofty office like thee not,

I make thee here Lord Marshal of the realm.

Y. Mor. My lord, I'll marshal so your enemies,

As England shall be quiet, and you safe.

K. Edw. And as for you, Lord Mortimer of Chirke,

Whose great achievements in our foreign war

Deserve no common place nor mean reward,

Be you the general of the levied troops

That now are ready to assail the Scots.

E. Mor. In this your grace hath highly honour'd me,

For with my nature war doth best agree.

Q. Isab. Now is the king of England rich and strong,

Having the love of his renowned peers.

K. Edw. Ay, Isabel, ne'er was my heart so light.—

Clerk of the crown, direct our warrant forth,

For Gaveston, to Ireland!

Enter BEAUMONT with warrant.

Beaumont, fly

As fast as Iris or Jove's Mercury.

Beau. It shall be done, my gracious lord.

[Exit.

K. Edw. Lord Mortimer, we leave you to your charge.

Now let us in, and feast it royally.

Against our friend the Earl of Cornwall comes

We'll have a general tilt and tournament;

And then his marriage shall be solemnis'd;

For wot you not that I have made him sure

Unto our cousin, the Earl of Gloucester's heir?

Lan. Such news we hear, my lord.

K. Edw. That day, if not for him, yet for my sake,

Who in the triumph will be challenger,

Spare for no cost; we will requite your love.

War. In this or aught your highness shall command us.

K. Edw. Thanks, gentle Warwick. Come, let's in and revel.

[Exeunt all except the elder Mortimer and the younger Mortimer.

E. Mor. Nephew, I must to Scotland; thou stay'st here.

Leave now to oppose thyself against the king:

Thou seest by nature he is mild and calm;

And, seeing his mind so dotes on Gaveston,

Let him without controlment have his will.
 The mightiest kings have had their minions;
 Great Alexander lov'd Hephæstion,
 The conquering Hercules for Hylas wept,
 And for Patroclus stern Achilles droop'd
 And not kings only, but the wisest men;
 The Roman Tully lov'd Octavius,
 Grave Socrates wild Alcibiades.

Then let his grace, whose youth is flexible,
 And promiseth as much as we can wish,
 Freely enjoy that vain light-headed earl;
 For riper years will wean him from such toys.

Y. Mor. Uncle, his wanton humour grieves not me;
 But this I scorn, that one so basely-born
 Should by his sovereign's favour grow so pert,
 And riot it with the treasure of the realm,
 While soldiers mutiny for want of pay.
 He wears a lord's revenue on his back,
 And, Midas-like, he jets it in the court,
 With base outlandish cullions at his heels,
 Whose proud fantastic liveries make such show
 As if that Proteus, god of shapes, appear'd.
 I have not seen a dapper Jack so brisk:
 He wears a short Italian hooded cloak,
 Larded with pearl, and in his Tuscan cap
 A jewel of more value than the crown.
 While others walk below, the king and he,
 From out a window, laugh at such as we,
 And flout our train, and jest at our attire.
 Uncle, 'tis this that makes me impatient.

E. Mor. But, nephew, now you see the king is chang'd.

Y. Mor. Then so am I, and live to do him service:

But, whiles I have a sword, a hand, a heart,
 I will not yield to any such upstart.

You know my mind: come, uncle, let's away, [Exeunt.]

Enter the younger SPENSER and BALDOCK.

Bald. Spenser,

Seeing that our lord the Earl of Gloucester's dead,
 Which of the nobles dost thou mean to serve?

Y. Spen. Not Mortimer, nor any of his side,
 Because the king and he are enemies.

Baldock, learn this of me: a factious lord

Shall hardly do himself good, much less us;
 But he that hath the favour of a king
 May with one word advance us while we live.
 The liberal Earl of Cornwall is the man
 On whose good fortune Spenser's hope depends.

Bald. What, mean you, then, to be his follower?

Y. Spen. No, his companion; for he loves me well,
 And would have once preferr'd me to the king.

Bald. But he is banish'd; there's small hope of him.

Y. Spen. Ay, for a while; but, Baldock, mark the end
 A friend of mine told me in secrecy
 That he's repeal'd and sent for back again;
 And even now a post came from the court
 With letters to our lady from the king;
 And, as she read, she smil'd; which makes me think
 It is about her lover Gaveston.

Bald. 'Tis like enough; for, since he was exil'd,
 She neither walks abroad nor comes in sight.
 But I had thought the match had been broke off,
 And that his banishment had chang'd her mind.

Y. Spen. Our lady's first love is not wavering;
 My life for thine, she will have Gaveston.

Bald. Then hope I by her means to be preferr'd,
 Having read unto her since she was a child.

Y. Spen. Then, Baldock, you must cast the scholar off,
 And learn to court it like a gentleman.
 'Tis not a black coat and a little band,
 A velvet-cap'd cloak, fac'd before with serge,
 And smelling to a nosegay all the day,
 Or holding of a napkin in your hand,
 Or saying a long grace at a table's end,
 Or making low legs to a nobleman,
 Or looking downward, with your eye-lids close,
 And saying, "Truly, an't may please your honour,"
 Can get you any favour with great men:
 You must be proud, bold, pleasant, resolute,
 And now and then stab, as occasion serves.

Bald. Spenser, thou know'st I hate such formal toys,
 And use them but of mere hypocrisy.
 Mine old lord, whiles he liv'd, was so precise,
 That he would take exceptions at my buttons,
 And, being like pins' heads, blame me for the bigness;
 Which made me curate-like in mine attire,

Though inwardly licentious enough,
 And apt for any kind of villany.
 I am none of these common pedants, I,
 That cannot speak without propterea quod.
Y. Spen. But one of those that saith quando-quidem
 And hath a special gift to form a verb.
Bald. Leave off this jesting; here my lady comes.

Enter KING EDWARD'S Niece.

Niece. The grief for his exile was not so much
 As is the joy of his returning home.
 This letter came from my sweet Gaveston:
 What need'st thou, love, thus to excuse thyself?
 I know thou couldst not come and visit me. [Reads.
I will not long be from thee, though I die ;—
 This argues the entire love of my lord;— [Reads.
When I forsake thee, death seize on my heart !—
 But stay thy here where Gaveston shall sleep.
 [Puts the letter into her bosom.

Now to the letter of my lord the king:
 He wills me to repair unto the court,
 And meet my Gaveston: why do I stay,
 Seeing that he talks thus of my marriage day?—
 Who's there? Baldock!
 See that my coach be ready; I must hence.

Bald. It shall be done, madam.

Niece. And meet me at the park-pale presently [Exit Baldock.

Spenser, stay you, and bear me company,
 For I have joyful news to tell thee of;
 My lord of Cornwall is a-coming over,
 And will be at the court as soon as we.

Y. Spen. I knew the king would have him home again.

Niece. If all things sort out, as I hope they will,
 Thy service, Spenser, shall be thought upon.

Y. Spen. I humbly thank your ladyship.

Niece. Come, lead the way: I long till I am there. [Exeunt.

Enter KING EDWARD, QUEEN ISABELLA, KENT, LANCASTER, the younger MORTIMER, WARWICK, PEMBROKE, and Attendants.

K. Edw. The wind is good; I wonder why he stays:
 I fear me he is wreck'd upon the sea.

Q. Isab. Look, Lancaster, how passionate he is,
And still his mind runs on his minion!

Lan. My lord,—

K. Edw. How now! what news? is Gaveston arriv'd?

Y. Mor. Nothing but Gaveston! what means your grace?
You have matters of more weight to think upon:
The King of France sets foot in Normandy.

K. Edw. A trifle! we'll expel him when we please.
But tell me, Mortimer, what's thy device
Against the stately triumph we decreed?

Y. Mor. A homely one, my lord, not worth the telling.

K. Edw. Pray thee, let me know it.

Y. Mor. But, seeing you are so desirous, thus it is;
A lofty cedar tree, fair flourishing,
On whose top branches kingly eagles perch,
And by the bark a canker creeps me up,
And gets unto the highest bough of all;
The motto, Æque tandem.

K. Edw. And what is yours, my Lord of Lancaster?

Lan. My lord, mine's more obscure than Mortimer's.
Pliny reports, there is a flying-fish
Which all the other fishes deadly hate,
And therefore, being pursu'd, it takes the air:
No sooner is it up, but there's a fowl
That seizeth it: this fish, my lord, I bear;
The motto this, Undique mors est.

Kent. Proud Mortimer! ungentle Lancaster!
Is this the love you bear your sovereign?
Is this the fruit your reconciliation bears?
Can you in words make show of amity,
And in your shields display your rancorous minds?
What call you this but private libelling
Against the Earl of Cornwall and my brother?

Q. Isab. Sweet husband, be content; they all love you.

K. Edw. They love me not that hate my Gaveston.

I am that cedar; shake me not too much;
And you the eagles; soar ye ne'er so high,
I have the jesses that will pull you down;
And Æque tandem shall that canker cry
Unto the proudest peer of Britainy.
Thou that compar'st him to a flying-fish,
And threaten'st death whether he rise or fall,
'Tis not the hugest monster of the sea.

Nor foulest harpy, that shall swallow him.
Y. Mor. If in his absence thus he favours him,
 What will he do whenas he shall be present?
Lan. That shall we see: look, where his lordship comes!

Enter GAVESTON

K. Edw. My Gaveston!

Welcome to Tynmouth! welcome to thy friend!
 Thy absence made me droop and pine away;
 For, as the lovers of fair Danaë,
 When she was lock'd up in a brazen tower,
 Desir'd her more, and wax'd outrageous,
 So did it fare with me: and now thy sight
 Is sweeter far than was thy parting hence
 Bitter and irksome to my sobbing heart.
Gav. Sweet lord and king, your speech preventeth mine;
 Yet have I words left to express my joy:
 The shepherd, nipt with biting winter's rage,
 Frolics not more to see the painted spring
 Than I do to behold your majesty.

K. Edw. Will none of you salute my Gaveston?

Lan. Salute him! yes.—Welcome, Lord Chamberlain!

Y. Mor. Welcome is the good Earl of Cornwall!

War. Welcome, Lord Governor of the Isle of Man!

Pem. Welcome, Master Secretary!

Kent. Brother, do you hear them?

K. Edw. Still will these earls and barons use me thus?

Gav. My lord, I cannot brook these injuries.

Q. Isab. Ay me, poor soul, when these begin to jar! [Aside.]

K. Edw. Return it to their throats; I'll be thy warrant.

Gav. Base, leaden earls, that glory in your birth,
 Go sit at home, and eat your tenants' beef;
 And come not here to scoff at Gaveston,
 Whose mounting thoughts did never creep so low
 As to bestow a look on such as you.

Lan. Yet I disdain not to do this for you.

[Draws his sword, and offers to stab Gaveston.]

K. Edw. Treason! treason! where's the traitor?

Pem. Here, here!

K. Edw. Convey hence Gaveston; they'll murder him.

Gav. The life of thee shall salve this foul disgrace.

Y. Mor. Villain, thy life! unless I miss mine aim.

[Wounds Gaveston.]

Q. Isab. Ah, furious Mortimer, what hast thou done.

Y. Mor. No more than I would answer, were he slain.

[Exit Gaveston with Attendants.]

K. Edw. Yes, more than thou canst answer, though he live:

Dear shall you both abide this riotous deed:

Out of my presence! come not near the court.

Y. Mor. I'll not be barr'd the court for Gaveston.

Lan. We'll hale him by the ears unto the block.

K. Edw. Look to your own heads; his is sure enough.

War. Look to your own crown, if you back him thus.

Kent. Warwick, these words do ill beseem thy years.

K. Edw. Nay, all of them conspire to cross me thus:

But, if I live, I'll tread upon their heads

That think with high looks thus to tread me down.

Come, Edmund, let's away, and levy men:

'Tis war that must abate these barons' pride.

[Exeunt King Edward, Queen Isabella, and Kent.]

War. Let's to our castles, for the king is mov'd.

Y. Mor. Mov'd may he be, and perish in his wrath!

Lan. Cousin, it is no dealing with him now;

He means to make us stoop by force of arms:

And therefore let us jointly here protest

To prosecute that Gaveston to the death.

Y. Mor. By heaven, the abject villain shall not live!

War. I'll have his blood, or die in seeking it.

Pem. The like oath Pembroke takes.

Lan. And so doth Lancaster.

Now send our heralds to defy the king;

And make the people swear to put him down.

Enter a Messenger.

Y. Mor. Letters! from whence?

Mes. From Scotland, my lord. [Giving letters to Mortimer.]

Lan. Why, how now, cousin! how fare all our friends?

Y. Mor. My uncle's taken prisoner by the Scots.

Lan. We'll have him ransom'd, man: be of good cheer.

Y. Mor. They rate his ransom at five thousand pound.

Who should defray the money but the king,

Seeing he is taken prisoner in his wars?

I'll to the king.

Lan. Do, cousin, and I'll bear thee company.

War. Meantime my Lord of Pembroke and myself

Will to Newcastle here, and gather head.

Y. Mor. About it, then, and we will follow you.

Lan. Be resolute and full of secrecy.

War. I warrant you. [Exit with Pembroke.]

Y. Mor. Cousin, an if he will not ransom him,

I'll thunder such a peal into his ears

As never subject did unto his king.

Lan. Content; I'll bear my part.—Hollo! who's there?

Enter Guard.

Y. Mor. Ay, marry, such a guard as this doth well.

Lan. Lead on the way.

Guard. Whither will your lordships?

Y. Mor. Whither else but to the king?

Guard. His highness is dispos'd to be alone.

Lan. Why, so he may; but we will speak to him.

Guard. You may not in, my lord.

Y. Mor. May we not?

Enter KING EDWARD and KENT.

K. Edw. How now!

What noise is this? who have we there? is't you? [Going.]

Y. Mor. Nay, stay, my lord; I come to bring you news;

Mine uncle's taken prisoner by the Scots.

K. Edw. Then ransom him.

Lan. 'Twas in your wars; you should ransom him.

Y. Mor. And you shall ransom him, or else—

Kent. What, Mortimer, you will not threaten him?

K. Edw. Quiet yourself; you shall have the broad seal,
To gather for him th[o]roughout the realm.

Lan. Your minion Gaveston hath taught you this.

Y. Mor. My lord, the family of the Mortimers

Are not so poor, but, would they sell their land,

'Twould levy men enough to anger you.

We never beg, but use such prayers as these.

K. Edw. Shall I still be haunted thus?

Y. Mor. Nay, now you are here alone, I'll speak my mind.

Lan. And so will I; and then, my lord, farewell.

Y. Mor. The idle triumphs, masks, lascivious shows,

And prodigal gifts bestow'd on Gaveston,

Have drawn thy treasury dry, and made thee weak;

The murmuring commons, overstretch'd, break.

Lan. Look for rebellion, look to be depos'd:

Thy garrisons are beaten out of France,

And, lame and poor, lie groaning at the gates;
 The wild Oneil, with swarms of Irish kerns,
 Lives uncontroll'd within the English pale;
 Unto the walls of York the Scots make road,
 And, unresisted, drive away rich spoils.

Y. Mor. The haughty Dane commands the narrow seas,
 While in the harbour ride thy ships unrigg'd.

Lan. What foreign prince sends thee ambassadors?

Y. Mor. Who loves thee, but a sort of flatterers?

Lan. Thy gentle queen, sole sister to Valois,
 Complains that thou hast left her all forlorn.

Y. Mor. Thy court is naked, being bereft of those
 That make a king seem glorious to the world,
 I mean the peers, whom thou shouldst dearly love;
 Libels are cast again thee in the street;
 Ballads and rhymes made of thy overthrow.

Lan. The northern borderers, seeing their houses burnt,
 Their wives and children slain, run up and down,
 Cursing the name of thee and Gaveston.

Y. Mor. When wert thou in the field with banner spread,
 But once? and then thy soldiers march'd like players,
 With garish robes, not armour; and thyself,
 Bedaub'd with gold, rode laughing at the rest,
 Nodding and shaking of thy spangled crest,
 Where women's favours hung like labels down.

Lan. And thereof came it that the fleeing Scots,
 To England's high disgrace, have made this jig;
Maids of England, sore may you mourn,
For your lemans you have lost at Bannocksbourn,—
With a heave and a ho!
What weeneth the king of England
So soon to have won Scotland!—
With a rombelow!

Y. Mor. Wigmore shall fly, to set my uncle free.

Lan. And, when 'tis gone, our swords shall purchase more.
 If you be mov'd, revenge it as you can:
 Look next to see us with our ensigns spread.

[Exit with Y. Mortimer.

K. Edw. My swelling heart for very anger breaks:

How oft have I been baited by these peers,
 And dare not be reveng'd, for their power is great!
 Yet, shall the crowing of these cockerels
 Affright a lion? Edward, unfold thy paws,

And let their lives'-blood slake thy fury's hunger.
 If I be cruel and grow tyrannous,
 Now let them thank themselves, and rue too late.

Kent. My lord, I see your love to Gaveston
 Will be the ruin of the realm and you,
 For now the wrathful nobles threaten wars;
 And therefore, brother, banish him for ever.

K. Edw. Art thou an enemy to my Gaveston?

Kent. Ay; and it grieves me that I favour'd him.

K. Edw. Traitor, be gone! whine thou with Mortimer.

Kent. So will I, rather than with Gaveston.

K. Edw. Out of my sight, and trouble me no more!

Kent. No marvel! though thou scorn thy noble peers,
 When I thy brother am rejected thus.

K. Edw. Away! [Exit Kent]

Poor Gaveston, thou hast no friend but me!
 Do what they can, we'll live in Tynmouth here;
 And, so I walk with him about the walls,
 What care I though the earls begirt us round?
 Here comes she that is cause of all these jars.

Enter QUEEN ISABELLA, with EDWARD's Niece, two Ladies, GAVESTON, BALDOCK, and the younger SPENSER.

Q. Isab. My lord, 'tis thought the earls are up in arms.

K. Edw. Ay, and 'tis likewise thought you favour 'em.

Q. Isab. Thus do you still suspect me without cause.

Niece. Sweet uncle, speak more kindly to the queen.

Gav. My lord, dissemble with her; speak her fair.

K. Edw. Pardon me, sweet; I forgot myself.

Q. Isab. Your pardon is quickly got of Isabel.

K. Edw. The younger Mortimer is grown so brave,
 That to my face he threatens civil wars.

Gav. Why do you not commit him to the Tower?

K. Edw. I dare not, for the people love him well.

Gav. Why, then, we'll have him privily made away.

K. Edw. Would Lancaster and he had both carous'd
 A bowl of poison to each other's health!

But let them go, and tell me what are these.

Niece. Two of my father's servants whilst he liv'd:

May't please your grace to entertain them now.

K. Edw. Tell me, where wast thou born? what is thine arms?

Bald. My name is Baldock, and my gentry

I fetch from Oxford, not from heraldry.

K. Edw. The fitter art thou, Baldock, for my turn.

Wait on me, and I'll see thou shalt not want.

Bald. I humbly thank your majesty.

K. Edw. Knowest thou him, Gaveston.

Gav. Ay, my lord;

His name is Spenser; he is well allied:

For my sake let him wait upon your grace;

Scarce shall you find a man of more desert.

K. Edw. Then, Spenser, wait upon me for his sake:

I'll grace thee with a higher style ere long.

Y. Spen. No greater titles happen unto me

Than to be favour'd of your majesty!

K. Edw. Cousin, this day shall be your marriage feast:—

And, Gaveston, think that I love thee well,

To wed thee to our niece, the only heir

Unto the Earl of Gloucester late deceas'd.

Gav. I know, my lord, many will stomach me;

But I respect neither their love nor hate.

K. Edw. The headstrong barons shall not limit me;

He that I list to favour shall be great.

Come, let's away; and, when the marriage ends,

Have at the rebels and their complices! [Exeunt.]

Enter KENT, LANCASTER, the younger MORTIMER, WARWICK, PEMBROKE, and others.

Kent. My lords, of love to this our native land,

I come to join with you, and leave the king;

And in your quarrel, and the realm's behoof,

Will be the first that shall adventure life.

Lan. I fear me, you are sent of policy,

To undermine us with a show of love.

War. He is your brother; therefore have we cause

To cast the worst, and doubt of your revolt.

Kent. Mine honour shall be hostage of my truth:

If that will not suffice, farewell, my lords.

Y. Mor. Stay, Edmund: never was Plantagenet

False of his word; and therefore trust we thee.

Pem. But what's the reason you should leave him now?

Kent. I have inform'd the Earl of Lancaster.

Lan. And it sufficeth. Now, my lords, know this,

That Gaveston is secretly arriv'd,

And here in Tynmouth frolics with the king.

Let us with these our followers scale the walls,
And suddenly surprise them unawares.

V. Mor. I'll give the onset.

War. And I'll follow thee.

V. Mor. This tatter'd ensign of my ancestors,
Which swept the desert shore of that Dead Sea
Whereof we got the name of Mortimer,
Will I advance upon this castle [']s walls—
Drums, strike alarum, raise them from their sport,
And ring aloud the knell of Gaveston!

Lan. None be so hardy as to touch the king;
But neither spare you Gaveston nor his friends.

[Excunt.]

Enter, severally, KING EDWARD and the younger SPENSER.

K. Edw. O, tell me, Spenser, where is Gaveston?

Y. Spen. I fear me he is slain, my gracious lord.

K. Edw. No, here he comes; now let them spoil and kill.

Enter QUEEN ISABELLA, KING EDWARD's Niece, GAVESTON, and Nobles.

Fly, fly, my lords; the earls have got the hold;
Take shipping, and away to Scarborough:
Spenser and I will post away by land.

Gav. O, stay, my lord! they will not injure you.

K. Edw. I will not trust them. Gaveston, away!

Gav. Farewell, my lord.

K. Edw. Lady, farewell.

Niece. Farewell, sweet uncle, till we meet again.

K. Edw. Farewell, sweet Gaveston; and farewell, niece.

Q. Isab. No farewell to poor Isabel thy queen?

K. Edw. Yes, yes, for Mortimer your lover's sake.

Q. Isab. Heavens can witness, I love none but you.

[Excunt all except Queen Isabella.]

From my embracements thus he breaks away.

O, that mine arms could close this isle about,

That I might pull him to me where I would!

Or that these tears, that drizzle from mine eyes,

Had power to mollify his stony heart,

That, when I had him, we might never part!

Enter LANCASTER, WARWICK, the younger MORTIMER, and others. Alarums within.

Lan. I wonder how he scap'd.

Y. Mor. Who's this? the queen!

Q. Isab. Ay, Mortimer, the miserable queen,
Whose pining heart her inward sighs have blasted,
And body with continual mourning wasted:
These hands are tir'd with haling of my lord
From Gaveston, from wicked Gaveston;
And all in vain; for, when I speak him fair,
He turns away, and smiles upon his minion.

Y. Mor. Cease to lament, and tell us where's the king?

Q. Isab. What would you with the king? is't him you seek?

Lan. No, madam, but that cursed Gaveston:

Far be it from the thought of Lancaster
To offer violence to his sovereign!
We would but rid the realm of Gaveston:
Tell us where he remains, and he shall die.

Q. Isab. He's gone by water unto Scarborough:
Pursue him quickly, and he cannot scape;
The king hath left him, and his train is small.

War. Forslow no time, sweet Lancaster; let's march.

Y. Mor. How comes it that the king and he is parted?

Q. Isab. That thus your army, going several ways,
Might be of lesser force, and with the power
That he intendeth presently to raise,
Be easily suppress'd: therefore be gone.

Y. Mor. Here in the river rides a Flemish hoy:
Let's all aboard, and follow him amain.

Lan. The wind that bears him hence will fill our sails:
Come, come, aboard! 'tis but an hour's sailing.

Y. Mor. Madam, stay you within this castle here.

Q. Isab. No, Mortimer; I'll to my lord the king.

Y. Mor. Nay, rather sail with us to Scarborough.

Q. Isab. You know the king is so suspicious
As, if he hear I have but talk'd with you,
Mine honour will be call'd in question;
And therefore, gentle Mortimer, be gone.

Y. Mor. Madam, I cannot stay to answer you:
But think of Mortimer as he deserves.

[Exeunt all except Queen Isabella.]

Q. Isab. So well hast thou deserv'd, sweet Mortimer,

As Isabel could live with thee for ever.
 In vain I look for love at Edward's hand,
 Whose eyes are fix'd on none but Gaveston.
 Yet once more I'll importune him with prayer:
 If he be strange, and not regard my words,
 My son and I will over into France,
 And to the king my brother there complain
 How Gaveston hath robb'd me of his love:
 But yet, I hope, my sorrows will have end,
 And Gaveston this blessed day be slain.

[Exit.

Enter GAVESTON, pursued.

Gav. Yet, lusty lords, I have escap'd your hands,
 Your threats, your 'larums, and your hot pursuits;
 And, though divorced from King Edward's eyes,
 Yet liveth Pierce of Gaveston unsurpris'd,
 Breathing in hope (malgrado all your beards,
 That muster rebels thus against your king)
 To see his royal sovereign once again.

*Enter WARWICK, LANCASTER, PEMBROKE, the younger
 MORTIMER, Soldiers, JAMES and other Attendants of PEMBROKE.*

War. Upon him, soldiers! take away his weapons!

Y. Mor. Thou proud disturber of thy country's peace,
 Corrupter of thy king, cause of these broils,
 Base flatterer, yield! and, were it not for shame,
 Shame and dishonour to a soldier's name,
 Upon my weapon's point here shouldst thou fall,
 And welter in thy gore.

Lan. Monster of men,
 That, like the Greekish strumpet, train'd to arms
 And bloody wars so many valiant knights,
 Look for no other fortune, wretch, than death!
 King Edward is not here to buckler thee.

War. Lancaster, why talk'st thou to the slave?—
 Go, soldiers, take him hence; for, by my sword,
 His head shall off.—Gaveston, short warning
 Shall serve thy turn: it is our country's cause
 That here severely we will execute
 Upon thy person.—Hang him at a bough.

Gav. My lord,—

War. Soldiers, have him away.—

But, for thou wert the favourite of a king,
Thou shalt have so much honour at our hands.

Gav. I thank you all, my lords: then I perceive
That heading is one, and hanging is the other,
And death is all.

Enter ARUNDEL.

Lan. How now, my Lord of Arundel!

Arun. My lords, King Edward greets you all by me.

War. Arundel, say your message.

Arun. His majesty, hearing that you had taken Gaveston,
Entreateth you by me, yet but he may
See him before he dies; for why, he says,
And sends you word, he knows that die he shall;
And, if you gratify his grace so far,
He will be mindful of the courtesy.

War. How now!

Gav. Renowned Edward, how thy name
Revives poor Gaveston!

War. No, it needeth not:
Arundel, we will gratify the king
In other matters; he must pardon us in this.—
Soldiers, away with him!

Gav. Why, my Lord of Warwick,
Will now these short delays beget my hopes?
I know it, lords, it is life you aim at,
Yet grant King Edward this.

Y. Mor. Shalt thou appoint
What we shall grant?—Soldiers, away with him!—
Thus we'll gratify the king;
We'll send his head by thee; let him bestow
His tears on that, for that is all he gets
Of Gaveston, or else his senseless trunk.

Lan. Not so, my lord, lest he bestow more cost
In burying him than he hath ever earn'd.

Arun. My lords, it is his majesty's request,
And in the honour of a king he swears,
He will but talk with him, and send him back.

War. When, can you tell? Arundel, no; we wot,
He that the care of his realm remits,
And drives his nobles to these exigents
For Gaveston, will, if he seize him once,
Violate any promise to possess him.

Arun. Then, if you will not trust his grace in keep,
My lords, I will be pledge for his return.

Y. Mor. 'Tis honourable in thee to offer this;
But, for we know thou art a noble gentleman,
We will not wrong thee so,
To make away a true man for a thief.

Gav. How mean'st thou, Mortimer? that is over-base.

Y. Mor. Away, base groom, robber of king's renown!
Question with thy companions and mates.

Pem. My Lord Mortimer, and you, my lords, each one,
To gratify the king's request therein,
Touching the sending of this Gaveston,
Because his majesty so earnestly
Desires to see the man before his death,
I will upon mine honour undertake
To carry him, and bring him back again;
Provided this, that you, my Lord of Arundel,
Will join with me.

War. Pembroke, what wilt thou do?
Cause yet more bloodshed? is it not enough
That we have taken him, but must we now
Leave him on "Had I wist," and let him go?

Pem. My lords, I will not over-woo your honours:
But, if you dare trust Pembroke with the prisoner,
Upon mine oath, I will return him back.

Arun. My Lord of Lancaster, what say you in this?

Lan. Why, I say, let him go on Pembroke's word.

Pem. And you, Lord Mortimer?

Y. Mor. How say you, my Lord of Warwick?

War. Nay, do your pleasures: I know how 'twill prove.

Pem. Then give him me.

Gav. Sweet sovereign, yet I come
To see thee ere I die!

War. Yet not perhaps,
If Warwick's wit and policy prevail. [Aside.]

Y. Mor. My Lord of Pembroke, we deliver him you:
Return him on your honour.—Sound, away!

[Exeunt all except Pembroke, Arundel, Gaveston, James and other attendants of Pembroke.]

Pem. My lord, you shall go with me:
My house is not far hence; out of the way
A little; but our men shall go along.
We that have pretty wenches to our wives,

Sir, must not come so near to balk their lips.

Arun. 'Tis very kindly spoke, my Lord of Pembroke:

Your honour hath an adamant of power

To draw a prince.

Pem. So, my lord.—Come, hither, James:

I do commit this Gaveston to thee;

Be thou this night his keeper; in the morning

We will discharge thee of thy charge: be gone.

Gav. Unhappy Gaveston, whither go'st thou now?

[Exit with James and other Attendants of Pembroke.]

Horse-boy. My lord, we'll quickly be at Cobham. [Exeunt.]

Enter GAVESTON mourning, JAMES and other Attendants of PEMBROKE.

Gav. O treacherous Warwick, thus to wrong thy friend!

James. I see it is your life these arms pursue.

Gav. Weaponless must I fall, and die in bands?

O, must this day be period of my life,

Centre of all my bliss? And ye be men,

Speed to the king.

Enter WARWICK and Soldiers.

War. My Lord of Pembroke's men,

Strive you no longer: I will have that Gaveston.

James. Your lordship doth dishonour to yourself,

And wrong our lord, your honourable friend.

War. No, James, it is my country's cause I follow.—

Go, take the villain: soldiers, come away;

We'll make quick work.—Commend me to your master,

My friend, and tell him that I watch'd it well.—

Come, let thy shadow parley with King Edward.

Gav. Treacherous earl, shall not I see the king?

War. The king of heaven perhaps, no other king.—

Away! [Exeunt Warwick and Soldiers with Gaveston.]

James. Come, fellows: it booteth not for us to strive:

We will in haste go certify our lord. [Exeunt.]

Enter KING EDWARD, the younger SPENSER, BALDOCK, Noblemen of the king's side, and Soldiers with drums and fifes.

K. Edw. I long to hear an answer from the barons

Touching my friend, my dearest Gaveston.

Ah, Spenser, not the riches of my realm
Can ransom him! ah, he is mark'd to die!
I know the malice of the younger Mortimer;
Warwick I know is rough, and Lancaster
Inexorable; and I shall never see
My lovely Pierce of Gaveston again:
The barons overbear me with their pride.

Y. Spen. Were I King Edward, England's sovereign,
Son to the lovely Eleanor of Spain,
Great Edward Longshanks' issue, would I bear
These braves, this rage, and suffer uncontroll'd
These barons thus to beard me in my land,
In mine own realm? My lord, pardon my speech:
Did you retain your father's magnanimity,
Did you regard the honour of your name,
You would not suffer thus your majesty
Be counterbuff'd of your nobility.
Strike off their heads, and let them preach on poles:
No doubt, such lessons they will teach the rest,
As by their preachments they will profit much,
And learn obedience to their lawful king.

K. Edw. Yes, gentle Spenser, we have been too mild,
Too kind to them; but now have drawn our sword,
And, if they send me not my Gaveston,
We'll steel it on their crest[s], and poll their tops.

Bald. This haught resolve becomes your majesty,
Not to be tied to their affection,
As though your highness were a school-boy still,
And must be aw'd and govern'd like a child.

Enter the elder SPENSER with his truncheon, and Soldiers.

E. Spen. Long live my sovereign, the noble Edward,
In peace triumphant, fortunate in wars!

K. Edw. Welcome, old man: com'st thou in Edward's aid?
Then tell thy prince of whence and what thou art.

E. Spen. Low, with a band of bow-men and of pikes,
Brown bills and targeteers, four hundred strong,
Sworn to defend King Edward's royal right,
I come in person to your majesty,
Spenser, the father of Hugh Spenser there,
Bound to your highness everlastingly
For favour done, in him, unto us all.

K. Edw. Thy father, Spenser?

Y. Spen. True, an it like your grace,
That pours, in lieu of all your goodness shown,
His life, my lord, before your princely feet.

K. Edw. Welcome ten thousand times, old man, again!
Spenser, this love, this kindness to thy king,
Argues thy noble mind and disposition.
Spenser, I here create thee Earl of Wiltshire,
And daily will enrich thee with our favour,
That, as the sunshine, shall reflect o'er thee.
Beside, the more to manifest our love,
Because we hear Lord Bruce doth sell his land,
And that the Mortimers are in hand withal,
Thou shalt have crowns of us t'outbid the barons;
And, Spenser, spare them not, lay it on.—
Soldiers, a largess, and thrice-welcome all!

Y. Spen. My lord, here comes the queen.

Enter QUEEN ISABELLA, PRINCE EDWARD, and LEVUNE.

K. Edw. Madam, what news?

Q. Isab. News of dishonour, lord, and discontent.
Our friend Levune, faithful and full of trust,
Informeth us, by letters and by words,
That Lord Valois our brother, King of France,
Because your highness hath been slack in homage,
Hath seized Normandy into his hands:
These be the letters, this the messenger.

K. Edw. Welcome, Levune.—Tush, Sib, if this be all,
Valois and I will soon be friends again.—
But to my Gaveston: shall I never see,
Never behold thee now!—Madam, in this matter
We will employ you and your little son;
You shall go parley with the King of France.—
Boy, see you bear you bravely to the king,
And do your message with a majesty.

P. Edw. Commit not to my youth things of more weight
Than fits a prince so young as I to bear;
And fear not, lord and father,—heaven's great beams
On Atlas' shoulder shall not lie more safe
Than shall your charge committed to my trust.

Q. Isab. Ah, boy, this towardness makes thy mother fear
Thou are not mark'd to many days on earth!

K. Edw. Madam, we will that you with speed be shipp'd,
And this our son; Levune shall follow you
With all the haste we can despatch him hence.

Choose of our lords to bear you company;
And go in peace; leave us in wars at home.

Q. Isab. Unnatural wars, where subjects brave their king:
God end them once!—My lord, I take my leave,
To make my preparation for France.

[Exit with Prince Edward.]

Enter ARUNDEL.

K. Edw. What, Lord Arundel, dost thou come alone?

Arun. Yea, my good lord, for Gaveston is dead.

K. Edw. Ah, traitors, have they put my friend to death?

Tell me, Arundel, died he ere thou cam'st,
Or didst thou see my friend to take his death?

Arun. Neither, my lord; for, as he was surpris'd,

Begirt with weapons and with enemies round,

I did your highness' message to them all,

Demanding him of them, entreating rather,

And said, upon the honour of my name,

That I would undertake to carry him

Unto your highness, and to bring him back.

K. Edw. And, tell me, would the rebels deny me that?

Y. Spen. Proud recreants!

K. Edw. Yea, Spenser, traitors all!

Arun. I found them at the first inexorable;

The Earl of Warwick would not bide the hearing,

Mortimer hardly; Pembroke and Lancaster

Spake least; and when they flatly had denied,

Refusing to receive me pledge for him,

The Earl of Pembroke mildly thus bespake;

"My lords, because our sovereign sends for him,

And promiseth he shall be safe return'd,

I will this undertake, to have him hence,

And see him re-deliver'd to your hands."

K. Edw. Well, and how fortunes [it] that he came not?

Y. Spen. Some treason or some villany was cause.

Arun. The Earl of Warwick seiz'd him on his way;

For, being deliver'd unto Pembroke's men,

Their lord rode home, thinking his prisoner safe;

But, ere he came, Warwick in ambush lay,

And bare him to his death; and in a trench

Strake off his head, and march'd unto the camp.

Y. Spem. A bloody part, flatly 'gainst law of arms!

K. Edw. O, shall I speak, or shall I sigh and die!

Y. Spem. My lord, refer your vengeance to the sword

Upon these barons; hearten up your men;

Let them not unreveng'd murder your friends:

Advance your standard, Edward, in the field,

And march to fire them from their starting-holes.

K. Edw. [kneeling.] By earth, the common mother of us all,

By heaven, and all the moving orbs thereof,

By this right hand, and by my father's sword,

And all the honours 'longing to my crown,

I will have heads and lives for him as many

As I have manors, castles, towns, and towers!— [Rises.

Treacherous Warwick! traitorous Mortimer!

If I be England's king, in lakes of gore

Your headless trunks, your bodies will I trail,

That you may drink your fill, and quaff in blood,

And stain my royal standard with the same,

That so my bloody colours may suggest

Remembrance of revenge immortally

On your accursed traitorous progeny,

You villains that have slain my Gaveston!—

And in this place of honour and of trust,

Spenser, sweet Spenser, I adopt thee here;

And merely of our love we do create thee

Earl of Gloucester and Lord Chamberlain,

Despite of times, despite of enemies.

Y. Spem. My lord, here's a messenger from the barons

Desires access unto your majesty.

K. Edw. Admit him near.

Enter Herald with his coat of arms.

Her. Long live King Edward, England's lawful lord!

K. Edw. So wish not they, I wis, that sent thee hither:

Thou com'st from Mortimer and his complices:

A ranker rout of rebels never was.

Well, say thy message.

Her. The barons, up in arms, by me salute

Your highness with long life and happiness;

And bid me say, as plainer to your grace,

That if without effusion of blood

You will this grief have ease and remedy,

That from your princely person you remove
This Spenser, as a putrifying branch
That deads the royal vine, whose golden leaves
Empale your princely head, your diadem;
Whose brightness such pernicious upstarts dim,
Say they, and lovingly advise your grace
To cherish virtue and nobility,
And have old servitors in high esteem,
And shake off smooth dissembling flatterers:
This granted, they, their honours, and their lives,
Are to your highness vow'd and consecrate.

Y. Spen. Ah, traitors, will they still display their pride?

K. Edw. Away! tarry no answer, but be gone!—

Rebels, will they appoint their sovereign
His sports, his pleasures, and his company?—
Yet, ere thou go, see how I do divorce

[Embraces young Spenser.]

Spenser from me. Now get thee to thy lords,
And tell them I will come to chastise them
For murdering Gaveston: hie thee, get thee gone!
Edward, with fire and sword, follows at thy heels.

[Exit Herald.]

My lord[s], perceive you how these rebels swell?—
Soldiers, good hearts! defend your sovereign's right,
For, now, even now, we march to make them stoop.
Away!

[Exeunt. Alarums, excursions, a great fight, and a retreat sounded, within.]

Re-enter KING EDWARD, the elder SPENSER, the younger SPENSER, BALDOCK, and Noblemen of the king's side.

K. Edw. Why do we sound retreat? upon them, lords!

This day I shall your vengeance with my sword
On those proud rebels that are up in arms,
And do confront and countermand their king.

Y. Spen. I doubt it not, my lord; right will prevail.

E. Spen. 'Tis not amiss, my liege, for either part
To breathe a while; our men, with sweat and dust
All chok'd well near, begin to faint for heat;
And this retire refresheth horse and man.

Y. Spen. Here come the rebels.

*Enter the younger MORTIMER, LANCASTER, WARWICK,
PEMBROKE, and others.*

Y. Mor. Look, Lancaster, yonder is Edward
Among his flatterers.

Lan. And there let him be,
Till he pay dearly for their company.

War. And shall, or Warwick's sword shall smite in vain.

K. Edw. What, rebels, do you shrink and sound retreat?

Y. Mor. No, Edward, no; thy flatterers faint and fly.

Lan. They'd best betimes forsake thee and their trains,
For they'll betray thee, traitors as they are.

Y. Spen. Traitor on thy face, rebellious Lancaster!

Pem. Away, base upstart! brav'st thou nobles thus?

E. Spen. A noble attempt and honourable deed,
Is it not, trow ye, to assemble aid
And levy arms against your lawful king?

K. Edw. For which, ere long, their heads shall satisfy
T' appease the wrath of their offended king.

Y. Mor. Then, Edward, thou wilt fight it to the last,
And rather bathe thy sword in subjects' blood
Than banish that pernicious company?

K. Edw. Ay, traitors all, rather than thus be brav'd,
Make England's civil towns huge heaps of stones,
And ploughs to go about our palace-gates.

War. A desperate and unnatural resolution!—
Alarum to the fight!

Saint George for England, and the barons' right!

K. Edw. Saint George for England, and King Edward's right! [Alarums. Exeunt the two parties severally.]

Enter KING EDWARD and his followers, with the Barons and KENT captive.

K. Edw. Now, lusty lords, now not by chance of war,
But justice of the quarrel and the cause,
Vail'd is your pride: methinks you hang the heads
But we'll advance them, traitors: now 'tis time
To be aveng'd on you for all your braves,
And for the murder of my dearest friend,
To whom right well you knew our soul was knit,
Good Pierce of Gaveston, my sweet favourite:
Ah, rebels, recreants, you made him away!

Kent. Brother, in regard of thee and of thy land,
. Did they remove that flatterer from thy throne.

K. Edw. So, sir, you have spoke: away, avoid our presence!
[Exit Kent.]

Accursed wretches, was't in regard of us,
When we had sent our messenger to request
He might be spar'd to come to speak with us,
And Pembroke undertook for his return,
That thou, proud Warwick, watch'd the prisoner,
Poor Pierce, and headed him 'gainst law of arms?
For which thy head shall overlook the rest
As much as thou in rage outwent'st the rest.

War. Tyrant, I scorn thy threats and menaces;
It is but temporal that thou canst inflict.

Lan. The worst is death; and better die to live
Than live in infamy under such a king.

K. Edw. Away with them, my lord of Winchester!
These lusty leaders, Warwick and Lancaster,
I charge you roundly, off with both their heads!
Away!

War. Farewell, vain world!

Lan. Sweet Mortimer, farewell!

Y. Mor. England, unkind to thy nobility,
Groan for this grief! behold how thou art maim'd!

K. Edw. Go, take that haughty Mortimer to the Tower;
There see him safe bestow'd; and, for the rest,
Do speedy execution on them all.
Be gone!

Y. Mor. What, Mortimer, can ragged stony walls
Immure thy virtue that aspires to heaven?
No, Edward, England's scourge, it may not be;
Mortimer's hope surmounts his fortune far.

[The captive Barons are led off.]

K. Edw. Sound, drums and trumpets! March with me, my friends.

Edward this day hath crown'd him king anew.

[*Exeunt all except the younger Spenser,
Levune, and Baldock.*]

Y. Spen. Levune, the trust that we repose in thee
Begets the quiet of King Edward's land:
Therefore be gone in haste, and with advice
Bestow that treasure on the lords of France,
That, therewith all enchanted, like the guard

That suffer'd Jove to pass in showers of gold
 To Danaë, all aid may be denied
 To Isabel the queen, that now in France
 Makes friends, to cross the seas with her young son,
 And step into his father's regiment.

Levune. That's it these barons and the subtle queen
 Long levell'd at.

Bal. Yea, but, Levune, thou seest,
 These barons lay their heads on blocks together:
 What they intend, the hangman frustrates clean.

Levune. Have you no doubt, my lords, I'll clap so close
 Among the lords of France with England's gold,
 That Isabel shall make her complaints in vain,
 And France shall be obdurate with her tears.

Y. Spen. Then make for France amain; Levune, away!
 Proclaim King Edward's wars and victories. [Exeunt.]

Enter KENT.

Kent. Fair blows the wind for France: blow, gentle gale,
 Till Edmund be arriv'd for England's good!
 Nature, yield to my country's cause in this!
 A brother? no, a butcher of thy friends!
 Proud Edward, dost thou banish me thy presence?
 But I'll to France, and cheer the wronged queen,
 And certify what Edward's looseness is.
 Unnatural king, to slaughter nobleman
 And cherish flatterers! Mortimer, I stay
 Thy sweet escape. Stand gracious, gloomy night,
 To his device!

Enter the younger MORTIMER disguised.

Y. Mor. Holla! who walketh there?
 Is't you, my lord?

Kent. Mortimer, 'tis I.

But hath thy portion wrought so happily?

Y. Mor. It hath, my lord: the warders all asleep,
 I thank them, gave me leave to pass in peace.

But hath your grace got shipping unto France?

Kent. Fear it not. [Exeunt.]

Enter QUEEN ISABELLA and PRINCE EDWARD.

Q. Isab. Ah, boy, our friends do fail us all in France!
 The lords are cruel, and the king unkind.

What shall we do?

P. Edw. Madam, return to England,
And please my father well; and then a fig
For all my uncle's friendship here in France!
I warrant you, I'll win his highness quickly;
'A loves me better than a thousand Spensers.

Q. Isab. Ah, boy, thou art deceiv'd, at least in this,
To think that we can yet be tun'd together!
No, no, we jar too far.—Unkind Valois!
Unhappy Isabel, when France rejects,
Whither, O, whither dost thou bend thy steps?

Enter SIR JOHN OF HAINAULT.

Sir J. Madam, what cheer?

Q. Isab. Ah, good Sir John of Hainault,
Never so cheerless nor so far distrest!

Sir J. I hear, sweet lady, of the king's unkindness:
But droop not, madam; noble minds contemn
Despair. Will your grace with me to Hainault,
And there stay time's advantage with your son?—
How say you, my lord! will you go with your friends,
And shake off all our fortunes equally?

P. Edw. So pleaseth the queen my mother, me it likes:
The king of England, not the court of France,
Shall have me from my gracious mother's side,
Till I be strong enough to break a staff;
And then have at the proudest Spenser's head!

Sir J. Well said, my lord!

Q. Isab. O my sweet heart, how do I moan thy wrongs,
Yet triumph in the hope of thee, my joy!—
Ah, sweet Sir John, even to the utmost verge
Of Europe, on the shore of Tanais,
Will we with thee to Hainault—so we will:
The marquis is a noble gentleman;
His grace, I dare presume, will welcome me.—
But who are these?

Enter KENT and the younger MORTIMER.

Kent. Madam, long may you live
Much happier than your friends in England do!

Q. Isab. Lord Edmund and Lord Mortimer alive!
Welcome to France! the news was here, my lord,
That you were dead, or very near your death.

Y. Mor. Lady, the last was truest of the twain:

But Mortimer, reserv'd for better hap,
Hath shaken off the thralldom of the Tower,
And lives t' advance your standard, good my lord.

P. Edw. How mean you, and the king my father lives?

No, my Lord Mortimer, not I, I trow.

Q. Isab. Not, son! why not? I would it were no worse!—

But, gentle lords, friendless we are in France.

Y. Mor. Monsieur Le Grand, a noble friend of yours,

Told us, at our arrival, all the news,—
How hard the nobles, how unkind the king
Hath show'd himself: but, madam, right makes room
Where weapons want; and, though a many friends
Are made away, as Warwick, Lancaster,
And others of our part and faction,
Yet have we friends, assure your grace, in England,
Would cast up caps, and clap their hands for joy,
To see us there, appointed for our foes.

Kent. Would all were well, and Edward well reclaim'd,

For England's honour, peace, and quietness!

Y. Mor. But by the sword, my lord, 't must be deserv'd:

The king will ne'er forsake his flatterers.

Sir J. My lords of England, sith th' ungente king

Of France refuseth to give aid of arms

To this distressed queen, his sister, here,

Go you with her to Hainault: doubt ye not

We will find comfort, money, men, and friends,

Ere long to bid the English king a base.—

How say'st, young prince, what think you of the match?

P. Edw. I think King Edward will outrun us all.

Q. Isab. Nay, son, not so; and you must not discourage

Your friends that are so forward in your aid.

Kent. Sir John of Hainault, pardon us, I pray:

These comforts that you give our woful queen

Bind us in kindness all at your command.

Q. Isab. Yea, gentle brother:—and the God of heaven

Prosper your happy motion, good Sir John!

Y. Mor. This noble gentleman, forward in arms,

Was born, I see, to be our anchor-hold.—

Sir John of Hainault, be it thy renown,

That England's queen and nobles in distress

Have been by thee restor'd and comforted.

Sir J. Madam, along; and you, my lord[s], with me,

That England's peers may Hainault's welcome see.

[Exeunt.]

Enter KING EDWARD, ARUNDEL, the elder SPENSER, the younger SPENSER, and others.

K. Edw. Thus, after many threats of wrathful war,
Triumpheth England's Edward with his friends,
And triumph Edward with his friends uncontroll'd!—
My Lord of Gloucester, do you hear the news?

Y. Spen. What news, my lord?

K. Edw. Why, man, they say there is great execution
Done through the realm.—My Lord of Arundel,
You have the note, have you not?

Arun. From the Lieutenant of the Tower, my lord.

K. Edw. I pray, let us see it. [Takes the note from Arundel.]
—What have we there?—

Read it, Spenser.

[Gives the note to young Spenser, who reads their names.]

Why, so: they bark'd apace a month ago;
Now, on my life, they'll neither bark nor bite.
Now, sirs, the news from France? Gloucester, I trow,
The lords of France love England's gold so well
As Isabella gets no aid from thence.

What now remains? have you proclaim'd, my lord,
Reward for them can bring in Mortimer?

Y. Spen. My lord, we have; and, if he be in England,
'A will be had ere long, I doubt it not.

K. Edw. If, dost thou say? Spenser, as true as death,
He is in England's ground: our port-masters
Are not so careless of their king's command.

Enter a Messenger.

How now! what news with thee? from whence come these?

Mess. Letters, my lord, and tidings forth of France:
To you, my Lord of Gloucester, from Levune.

[Gives letters to young Spenser.]

K. Edw. Read.

Y. Spen. [reading.] My duty to your honour promised, etc., I have, according to instructions in that behalf, dealt with the King of France and his lords, and effected that the queen, all discontented and discomforted, is gone: whither, if you ask, with Sir John of Hainault, brother to the marquis, into Flanders. With them are gone Lord Edmund and the Lord Mortimer, having in their company divers of your nation, and others; and, as constant report goeth, they intend to give King Edward battle in England, sooner than he can look for them. This is all the news of import.

Your honour's in all service, Levune.

K. Edw. Ah, villains, hath that Mortimer escap'd?

With him is Edmund gone associate?

And will Sir John of Hainault lead the round?

Welcome, o' God's name, madam, and your son!

England shall welcome you and all your rout.

Gallop apace, bright Phœbus, through the sky;

And, dusky Night, in rusty iron car,

Between you both shorten the time, I pray,

That I may see that most desired day,

When we may meet these traitors in the field!

Ah, nothing grieves me, but my little boy

Is thus misled to countenance their ills!

Come, friends, to Bristow, there to make us strong:

And, winds, as equal be to bring them in,

As you injurious were to bear them forth! [Exeunt.]

Enter QUEEN ISABELLA, PRINCE EDWARD, KENT, the younger MORTIMER, and SIR JOHN OF HAINAULT.

Q. Isab. Now, lords, our loving friends and countrymen,

Welcome to England all, with prosperous winds!

Our kindest friends in Belgia have we left,

To cope with friends at home; a heavy case

When force to force is knit, and sword and glaive

In civil broils make kin and countrymen

Slaughter themselves in others, and their sides

With their own weapons gor'd! But what's the help?

Misgovern'd kings are cause of all this wreck;

And, Edward, thou art one among them all,

Whose looseness hath betray'd thy land to spoil,

Who made the channel overflow with blood

Of thine own people: patron shouldst thou be;

But thou—

Y. Mor. Nay, madam, if you be a warrior,

You must not grow so passionate in speeches.—

Lords, sith that we are, by sufferance of heaven,

Arriv'd and armed in this prince's right,

Here for our country's cause swear we to him
All homage, fealty, and forwardness;
And for the open wrongs and injuries
Edward hath done to us, his queen, and land,
We come in arms to wreck it with the sword;
That England's queen in peace may repossess
Her dignities and honours; and withal
We may remove these flatterers from the king
That havock England's wealth and treasury.

Sir J. Sound trumpets, my lord, and forward let us march.
Edward will think we come to flatter him.

Kent. I would he never had been flatter'd more! [Exeunt.]

Enter KING EDWARD, BALDOCK, and the younger SPENSER.

Y. Spen. Fly, fly, my lord! the queen is overstrong;
Her friends do multiply, and yours do fail.
Shape we our course to Ireland, there to breathe.

K. Edw. What, was I born to fly and run away,
And leave the Mortimers conquerors behind?
Give me my horse, and let's reinforce our troops.
And in this bed of honour die with fame.

Bald. O, no, my lord! this princely resolution
Fits not the time: away! we are pursu'd. [Exeunt.]

Enter KENT, with a sword and target.

Kent. This way he fled; but I am come too late.
Edward, alas, my heart relents for thee!
Proud traitor, Mortimer, why dost thou chase
Thy lawful king, thy sovereign, with thy sword?
Vile wretch, and why hast thou, of all unkind,
Borne arms against thy brother and thy king?
Rain showers of vengeance on my cursed head,
Thou God, to whom in justice it belongs
To punish this unnatural revolt!
Edward, this Mortimer aims at thy life:
O, fly him, then! But, Edmund, calm this rage;
Dissemble, or thou diest; for Mortimer
And Isabel do kiss, while they conspire:
And yet she bears a face of love, forsooth:
Fie on that love that hatcheth death and hate!
Edmund, away! Bristow to Longshanks' blood
Is false; be not found single for suspect:
Proud Mortimer pries near into thy walks.

Enter QUEEN ISABELLA, PRINCE EDWARD, the younger
MORTIMER, and SIR JOHN OF HAINAULT.

Q. Isab. Successful battle gives the God of kings
To them that fight in right, and fear his wrath.
Since, then, successfully we have prevail'd,
Thanked be heaven's great architect, and you!
Ere farther we proceed, my noble lords,
We here create our well-beloved son,
Of love and care unto his royal person,
Lord Warden of the realm; and, sith the Fates
Have made his father so infortunate,
Deal you, my lords, in this, my loving lords,
As to your wisdoms fittest seems in all.

Kent. Madam, without offence if I may ask
How will you deal with Edward in his fall?

P. Edw. Tell me, good uncle, what Edward do you mean?

Kent. Nephew, your father; I dare not call him king.

Y. Mor. My Lord of Kent, what needs these questions?

'Tis not in her controlment nor in ours;
But as the realm and parliament shall please,
So shall your brother be disposed of.—
I like not this relenting mood in Edmund:
Madam, 'tis good to look to him betimes.

[Aside to the Queen.]

Q. Isab. My lord, the Mayor of Bristow knows our mind.

Y. Mor. Yea, madam; and they scape not easily
That fled the field.

Q. Isab. Baldock is with the king:

A goodly chancellor, is he not, my lord?

Sir J. So are the Spensers, the father and the son.

Y. Mor. This Edward is the ruin of the realm.

Enter RICE AP HOWEL with the elder SPENSER prisoner,
and Attendants.

Rice. God save Queen Isabel and her princely son!
Madam, the Mayor and citizens of Bristow,
In sign of love and duty to this presence,
Present by me this traitor to the state,
Spenser, the father to that wanton Spenser,
That, like the lawless Catiline of Rome,
Revell'd in England's wealth and treasury.

Isab. We thank you all.

Y. Mor. Your loving care in this

Deserveth princely favours and rewards.

But where's the king and the other Spenser fled?

Rice. Spenser the son, created Earl of Glocester,

Is with that smooth-tongu'd scholar Baldock gone,

And shipp'd but late for Ireland with the king.

Y. Mor. Some whirlwind fetch them back, or sink them all!—

[Aside.

They shall be started thence, I doubt it not.

P. Edw. Shall I not see the king my father yet?

Kent. Unhappy Edward, chas'd from England's bounds!

[Aside.

Sir J. Madam, what resteth? why stand you in a muse?

Q. Isab. I rue my lord's ill-fortune: but, alas,

Care of my country call'd me to this war!

Y. Mor. Madam, have done with care and sad complaint:

Your king hath wrong'd your country and himself,

And we must seek to right it as we may.—

Meanwhile have hence this rebel to the block.

E. Spen. Rebel is he that fights against the prince:

So fought not they that fought in Edward's right.

Y. Mor. Take him away; he prates.

[Exeunt Attendants with the elder Spenser.

You, Rice ap Howel,

Shall do good service to her majesty,

Being of countenance in your country here,

To follow these rebellious runagates.—

We in mean while, madam, must take advice.

How Baldock, Spenser, and their complices,

May in their fall be follow'd to their end.

[Exeunt.

Enter the Abbot, Monks, KING EDWARD, the younger

SPENSER, and BALDOCK (the three latter disguised).

Abbot. Have you no doubt, my lord; have you no fear:

As silent and as careful we will be

To keep your royal person safe with us,

Free from suspect, and fell invasion

Of such as have your majesty in chase,

Yourself, and those your chosen company,

As danger of this stormy time requires.

K. Edw. Father, thy face should harbour no deceit.

O, hadst thou ever been a king, thy heart,

Pierc'd deeply with sense of my distress,

Could not but take compassion of my state!
 Stately and proud in riches and in train,
 Whilom I was, powerful and full of pomp:
 But what is he whom rule and empery
 Have not in life or death made miserable?—
 Come, Spenser,—come, Baldock,—come, sit down by me;
 Make trial now of that philosophy
 That in our famous nurseries of arts
 Thou suck'dst from Plato and from Aristotle.—
 Father, this life contemplative is heaven:
 O, that I might this life in quiet lead!
 But we, alas, are chas'd!—and you, my friends,
 Your lives and my dishonour they pursue.—
 Yet, gentle monks, for treasure, gold, nor fee,
 Do you betray us and our company.

First Monk. Your grace may sit secure, if none but we Do wot of your abode.

Y. Spen. Not one alive: but shrewdly I suspect
 A gloomy fellow in a mead below;
 'A gave a long look after us, my lord;
 And all the land, I know, is up in arms,
 Arms that pursue our lives with deadly hate.

Bald. We were embark'd for Ireland; wretched we,
 With awkward winds and with sore tempests driven,
 To fall on shore, and here to pine in fear
 Of Mortimer and his confederates!

K. Edw. Mortimer! who talks of Mortimer?
 Who wounds me with the name of Mortimer,
 That bloody man?—Good father, on thy lap
 Lay I this head, laden with mickle care.
 O, might I never ope these eyes again,
 Never again lift up this drooping head,
 O, never more lift up this dying heart!

Y. Spen. Look up, my lord.—Baldock, this drowsiness
 Betides no good; here even we are betray'd.

Enter, with Welsh hooks, RICE AP HOWEL, a Mower, and LEICESTER.

Mow. Upon my life, these be the men ye seek.

Rice. Fellow, enough.—My lord, I pray, be short;
 A fair commission warrants what we do.

Leices. The queen's commission, urg'd by Mortimer:
 What cannot gallant Mortimer with the queen?—

Alas, see where he sits, and hopes unseen
T'escape their hands that seek to reave his life!
Too true it is, Quem dies vidit veniens superbum,
Hunc dies vidit fugiens jacentem.

But, Leicester, leave to grow so passionate.—
Spenser and Baldock, by no other names,
I arrest you of high treason here.

Stand not on titles, but obey th' arrest:

'Tis in the name of Isabel the queen.—

My lord, why droop you thus?

K. Edw. O day, the last of all my bliss on earth!

Centre of all misfortune! O my stars,

Why do you lour unkindly on a king?

Comes Leicester, then, in Isabella's name,

To take my life, my company from me?

Here, man, rip up this panting breast of mine,

And take my heart in rescue of my friends.

Rice. Away with them!

Y. Spen. It may become thee yet

To let us take our farewell of his grace.

Abbot. My heart with pity earns to see this sight;

A king to bear these words and proud commands! [Aside.]

K. Edw. Spenser, ah, sweet Spenser, thus, then, must we part?

Y. Spen. We must, my lord; so will the angry heavens.

K. Edw. Nay, so will hell and cruel Mortimer:

The gentle heavens have not to do in this.

Bald. My lord, it is in vain to grieve or storm.

Here humbly of your grace we take our leaves:

Our lots are cast; I fear me, so is thine.

K. Edw. In heaven we may, in earth ne'er shall we meet:—

And, Leicester, say, what shall become of us?

Leices. Your majesty must go to Killingworth.

K. Edw. Must! it is somewhat hard when kings must go.

Leices. Here is a litter ready for your grace,

That waits your pleasure, and the day grows old.

Rice. As good be gone, as stay and be benighted.

K. Edw. A litter hast thou? lay me in a hearse,

And to the gates of hell convey me hence;

Let Pluto's bells ring out my fatal knell,

And hags howl for my death at Charon's shore;

For friends hath Edward none but these,

And these must die under a tyrant's sword.

Rice. My lord, be going: care not for these;

For we shall see them shorter by the heads.

K. Edw. Well, that shall be: part we must;

Sweet Spenser, gentle Baldock, part we must.—

Hence, feigned weeds! unfeigned are my woes.—

[Throwing off his disguise.]

Father, farewell.—Leicester, thou stay'st for me;

And go I must.—Life, farewell, with my friends!

[Exeunt King Edward and Leicester.]

Y. Spen. O, is he gone? is noble Edward gone?

Parted from hence, never to see us more!

Rend, sphere of heaven! and, fire, forsake thy orb!

Earth, melt to air! gone is my sovereign,

Gone, gone, alas, never to make return!

Bald. Spenser, I see our souls are fleeting hence;

We are depriv'd the sunshine of our life.

Make for a new life, man; throw up thy eyes

And heart and hand to heaven's immortal throne;

Pay nature's debt with cheerful countenance;

Reduce we all our lessons unto this,—

To die, sweet Spenser, therefore live we all;

Spenser, all live to die, and rise to fall.

Rice. Come, come, keep these preachments till you come to the place appointed. You, and such as you are, have made wise work in England. Will your lordships away?

Mow. Your lordship I trust will remember me?

Rice. Remember thee, fellow! what else? Follow me to the town. [Exeunt.]

Enter KING EDWARD, LEICESTER, the BISHOP OF WINCHESTER, and TRUSSEL.

Leices. Be patient, good my lord, cease to lament;

Imagine Killingworth Castle were your court,

And that you lay for pleasure here a space,

Not of compulsion or necessity.

K. Edw. Leicester, if gentle words might comfort me,

Thy speeches long ago had eas'd my sorrows,

For kind and loving hast thou always been.

The griefs of private men are soon allay'd;

But not of kings. The forest deer, being struck,

Runs to an herb that closeth up the wounds:

But when the imperial lion's flesh is gor'd,

He rends and tears it with his wrathful paw,
 [And], highly scorning that the lowly earth
 Should drink his blood, mounts up to the air:
 And so it fares with me, whose dauntless mind
 Th' ambitious Mortimer would seek to curb,
 And that unnatural queen, false Isabel,
 That thus hath pent and mew'd me in a prison
 For such outrageous passions cloy my soul,
 As with the wings of rancour and disdain
 Full oft[ten] am I soaring up to heaven,
 To plain me to the gods against them both.
 But when I call to mind I am a king,
 Methinks I should revenge me of my wrongs,
 That Mortimer and Isabel have done.
 But what are kings, when regiment is gone,
 But perfect shadows in a sunshine day?
 My nobles rule; I bear the name of king;
 I wear the crown; but am controll'd by them,
 By Mortimer, and my unconstant queen,
 Who spots my nuptial bed with infamy;
 Whilst I am lodg'd within this cave of care,
 Where sorrow at my elbow still attends,
 To company my heart with sad laments,
 That bleeds within me for this strange exchange.
 But tell me, must I now resign my crown,
 To make usurping Mortimer a king?

Bish. of Win. Your grace mistakes; it is for England's good,
 And princely Edward's right, we crave the crown.

K. Edw. No, 'tis for Mortimer, not Edward's head
 For he's a lamb, encompassed by wolves,
 Which in a moment will abridge his life.
 But, if proud Mortimer do wear this crown,
 Heavens turn it to a blaze of quenchless fire!
 Or, like the snaky wreath of Tisiphon,
 Engirt the temples of his hateful head!
 So shall not England's vine be perished,
 But Edward's name survive, though Edward dies.

Leices. My lord, why waste you thus the time away?
 They stay your answer: will you yield your crown?

K. Edw. Ah, Leicester, weigh how hardly I can brook
 To lose my crown and kingdom without cause;
 To give ambitious Mortimer my right,
 That, like a mountain, overwhelms my bliss;

In which extreme my mind here murder'd is!
 But that the heavens appoint I must obey.—
 Here, take my crown; the life of Edward too:

[Taking off the crown.]

Two kings in England cannot reign at once.
 But stay a while: let me be king till night,
 That I may gaze upon this glittering crown;
 So shall my eyes receive their last content,
 My head, the latest honour due to it,
 And jointly both yield up their wished right.
 Continue ever, thou celestial sun;
 Let never silent night possess this clime;
 Stand still, you watches of the element;
 All times and seasons, rest you at a stay,
 That Edward may be still fair England's king!
 But day's bright beams doth vanish fast away,
 And needs I must resign my wished crown.
 Inhuman creatures, nurs'd with tiger's milk,
 Why gape you for your sovereign's overthrow?
 My diadem, I mean, and guiltless life.
 See, monsters, see! I'll wear my crown again.

[Putting on the crown.]

What, fear you not the fury of your king?—
 But, hapless Edward, thou art fondly led;
 They pass not for thy frowns as late they did,
 But seek to make a new-elected king;
 Which fills my mind with strange despairing thoughts,
 Which thoughts are martyred with endless torments;
 And in this torment comfort find I none,
 But that I feel the crown upon my head;
 And therefore let me wear it yet a while.

Trus. My lord, the parliament must have present news;
 And therefore say, will you resign or no?

[The King rageth.]

K. Edw. I'll not resign, but, whilst I live, [be king].

Traitors, be gone, and join you with Mortimer.

Elect, conspire, install, do what you will:

Their blood and yours shall seal these treacheries.

Bish. of Win. This answer we'll return; and so, farewell.

[Going with Trussel.]

Leices. Call them again, my lord, and speak them fair;

For, if they go, the prince shall lose his right.

K. Edw. Call thou them back; I have no power to speak.

Leices. My lord, the king is willing to resign.

Bish. of Win. If he be not, let him choose.

K. Edw. O, would I might! but heavens and earth conspire
To make me miserable. Here, receive my crown.
Receive it? no, these innocent hands of mine
Shall not be guilty of so foul a crime;
He of you all that most desires my blood,
And will be call'd the murderer of a king,
Take it. What, are you mov'd? pity you me?
Then send for unrelenting Mortimer,
And Isabel, whose eyes being turn'd to steel
Will sooner sparkle fire than shed a tear.
Yet stay; for, rather than I'll look on them,
Here, here! [Gives the crown.—Now, sweet God of heaven,
Make me despise this transitory pomp,
And sit for aye enthronised in heaven!
Come, death, and with thy fingers close my eyes,
Or, if I live, let me forget myself!

Bish. of Win. My lord,—

K. Edw. Call me not lord; away, out of my sight!

Ah, pardon me! grief makes me lunatic.

Let not that Mortimer protect my son;

More safety there is in a tiger's jaws

Than his embracements. Bear this to the queen,

Wet with my tears, and dried again with sighs:

[Gives a handkerchief.]

If with the sight thereof she be not mov'd,

Return it back, and dip it in my blood.

Commend me to my son, and bid him rule

Better than I: yet how have I transgress'd,

Unless it be with too much clemency?

Trus. And thus, most humbly do we take our leave.

K. Edw. Farewell.

[Exeunt the Bishop of Winchester and Trussel with the crown.]

I know the next news that they bring

Will be my death; and welcome shall it be:

To wretched men death is felicity.

Leices. Another post! what news brings he?

Enter BERKELEY, who gives a paper to LEICESTER.

K. Edw. Such news as I expect.—Come, Berkeley, come,
And tell thy message to my naked breast.

Berk. My lord, think not a thought so villanous
Can harbour in a man of noble birth.
To do your highness service and devoir,
And save you from your foes, Berkeley would die.

Leices. My lord, the council of the queen command
That I resign my charge.

K. Edw. And who must keep me now? Must you, my lord?

Berk. Ay, my most gracious lord; so 'tis decreed.

K. Edw. [Taking the paper.] By Mortimer, whose name is written here!

Well may I rent his name that rends my heart. [Tears it.

This poor revenge hath something eas'd my mind:

So may his limbs be torn as is this paper!

Hear me, immortal Jove, and grant it too!

Berk. Your grace must hence with me to Berkeley straight.

K. Edw. Whither you will: all places are alike,

And every earth is fit for burial.

Leices. Favour him, my lord, as much as lieth in you.

Berk. Even so betide my soul as I use him!

K. Edw. Mine enemy hath pitied my estate,

And that's the cause that I am now remov'd.

Berk. And thinks your grace that Berkeley will be cruel?

K. Edw. I know not; but of this am I assur'd,

That death ends all, and I can die but once.—

Leicester, farewell.

Leices. Not yet, my lord; I'll bear you on your way.

[Exeunt.

Enter QUEEN ISABELLA and the younger MORTIMER.

Y. Mor. Fair Isabel, now have we our desire;
The proud corrupters of the light-brain'd king
Have done their homage to the lofty gallows,
And he himself lies in captivity.
Be rul'd by me, and we will rule the realm:
In any case take heed of childish fear,
For now we hold an old wolf by the ears,
That, if he slip, will seize upon us both,
And gripe the sorer, being grip'd himself.
Think therefore, madam, that imports us much
To erect your son with all the speed we may,
And that I be protector over him:
For our behoof, 'twill bear the greater sway
Whenas a king's name shall be under-writ.

Q. Isab. Sweet Mortimer, the life of Isabel,
Be thou persuaded that I love thee well;
And therefore, so the prince my son be safe,
Whom I esteem as dear as these mine eyes,
Conclude against his father what thou wilt,
And I myself will willingly subscribe.

Y. Mor. First would I hear news he were depos'd,
And then let me alone to handle him.

Enter Messenger.

Letters! from whence?

Mess. From Killingworth, my lord.

Q. Isab. How fares my lord the king?

Mess. In health, madam, but full of pensiveness.

Q. Isab. Alas, poor soul, would I could ease his grief!

Enter the BISHOP OF WINCHESTER with the crown.

Thanks, gentle Winchester.—

Sirrah, be gone. [Exit Messenger.]

Bish. of Win. The king hath willingly resign'd his crown.

Q. Isab. O, happy news! send for the prince my son.

Bish. of Win. Further, or this letter was seal'd, Lord
Berkeley came,

So that he now is gone from Killingworth;
And we have heard that Edmund laid a plot
To set his brother free; nor more but so.
The Lord of Berkeley is so pitiful
As Leicester that had charge of him before.

Q. Isab. Then let some other be his guardian.

Y. Mor. Let me alone; here is the privy-seal,—

[Exit the Bish. of Win.]

Who's there? Call hither, Gurney and Matrevis.—

[To Attendants within.]

To dash the heavy-headed Edmund's drift,
Berkeley shall be discharg'd, the king remov'd,
And none but we shall know where he lieth.

Q. Isab. But, Mortimer, as long as he survives,
What safety rests for us or for my son?

Y. Mor. Speak, shall he presently be despatch'd and die?

Q. Isab. I would he were, so 'twere not by my means!

Enter MATREVIS and GURNEY.

Y. Mor. Enough.—Matrevis, write a letter presently

Unto the Lord of Berkeley from ourself,
That he resign the king to thee and Gurney;
And, when 'tis done, we will subscribe our name.

Mat. It shall be done, my lord. [Writes.]

Y. Mor. Gurney,—

Gur. My lord?

Y. Mor. As thou intend'st to rise by Mortimer,
Who now makes Fortune's wheel turn as he please,
Seek all the means thou canst to make him droop,
And neither give him kind word nor good look.

Gur. I warrant you, my lord.

Y. Mor. And this above the rest: because we hear
That Edmund casts to work his liberty,
Remove him still from place to place by night,
Till at the last he come to Killingworth,
And then from thence to Berkeley back again;
And by the way, to make him fret the more,
Speak curstly to him; and in any case
Let no man comfort him, if he chance to weep,
But amplify his grief with bitter words.

Mat. Fear not, my lord; we'll do as you command.

Y. Mor. So, now away! post thitherwards amain.

Q. Isab. Whither goes this letter? to my lord the king?

Commend me humbly to his majesty,

And tell him that I labour all in vain

To ease his grief and work his liberty;

And bear him this as witness of my love. [Gives ring.]

Mat. I will, madam. [Exit with Gurney.]

Y. Mor. Finely dissembled! do so still, sweet queen.

Here comes the young prince with the Earl of Kent.

Q. Isab. Something he whispers in his childish ears.

Y. Mor. If he have such access unto the prince,

Our plots and stratagems will soon be dash'd.

Q. Isab. Use Edmund friendly, as if all were well.

Enter PRINCE EDWARD, and KENT talking with him.

Y. Mor. How fares my honourable Lord of Kent?

Kent. In health, sweet Mortimer.—How fares your grace?

Q. Isab. Well, if my lord your brother were enlarg'd.

Kent. I hear of late he hath depos'd himself.

Q. Isab. The more my grief.

Y. Mor. And mine.

Kent. Ah, they do dissemble!

[Aside.]

Q. Isab. Sweet son, come hither; I must talk with thee.

Y. Mor. You, being his uncle and the next of blood,
Do look to be protector o'er the prince.

Kent. Not I, my lord: who should protect the son,
But she that gave him life? I mean the queen.

P. Edw. Mother, persuade me not to wear the crown:
Let him be king; I am too young to reign.

Q. Isab. But be content, seeing 'tis his highness' pleasure.

P. Edw. Let me but see him first, and then I will.

Kent. Ay, do, sweet nephew.

Q. Isab. Brother, you know it is impossible.

P. Edw. Why, is he dead?

Q. Isab. No, God forbid!

Kent. I would those words proceeded from your heart!

Y. Mor. Inconstant Edmund, dost thou favour him,
That wast a cause of his imprisonment?

Kent. The more cause now have I to make amends.

Y. Mor. [aside to Q. ISAB.] I tell thee, 'tis not meet that one so false

Should come about the person of a prince.—

My lord, he hath betray'd the king his brother,

And therefore trust him not.

P. Edw. But he repents, and sorrows for it now.

Q. Isab. Come, son, and go with this gentle lord and me.

P. Edw. With you I will, but not with Mortimer.

Y. Mor. Why, youngling, 'sdain'st thou so of Mortimer?
Then I will carry thee by force away.

P. Edw. Help, uncle Kent! Mortimer will wrong me.

Q. Isab. Brother Edmund, strive not; we are his friends;
Isabel is nearer than the Earl of Kent.

Kent. Sister, Edward is my charge; redeem him.

Q. Isab. Edward is my son, and I will keep him.

Kent. Mortimer shall know that he hath wronged me.

Hence will I haste to Killingworth Castle,

And rescue aged Edward from his foes,

To be reveng'd on Mortimer and thee.

[Aside.

[*Exeunt, on one side, Queen Isabella, Prince Edward,
and the younger Mortimer; on the other, Kent.*

Enter MATREVIS, GURNEY, and Soldiers, with KING EDWARD.

Mat. My lord, be not pensive; we are your friends:

Men are ordain'd to live in misery;

Therefore, come; dalliance dangereth our lives.

K. Edw. Friends, whither must unhappy Edward go?

Will hateful Mortimer appoint no rest?

Must I be vexed like the nightly bird,

Whose sight is loathsome to all winged fowls?

When will the fury of his mind assuage?

When will his heart be satisfied with blood?

If mine will serve, unbowel straight this breast,

And give my heart to Isabel and him:

It is the chiefest mark they level at.

Gur. Not so, my liege: the queen hath given this charge,
To keep your grace in safety:

Your passions make your dolours to increase.

K. Edw. This usage makes my misery increase.

But can my air of life continue long,

When all my senses are annoy'd with stench?

Within a dungeon England's king is kept,

Where I am starv'd for want of sustenance;

My daily diet is heart-breaking sobs,

That almost rent the closet of my heart:

Thus lives old Edward not reliev'd by any,

And so must die, though pitied by many.

O, water, gentle friends, to cool my thirst,

And clear my body from foul excrements!

Mat. Here's channel-water, as our charge is given:

Sit down, for we'll be barbers to your grace.

K. Edw. Traitors, away! what, will you murder me,

Or choke your sovereign with puddle-water?

Gur. No, but wash your face, and shave away your beard,

Lest you be known, and so be rescued.

Mat. Why strive you thus? your labour is in vain.

K. Edw. The wren may strive against the lion's strength,

But all in vain: so vainly do I strive

To seek for mercy at a tyrant's hand.

[They wash him with puddle-water, and shave his beard away.]

Immortal powers, that know the painful cares

That wait upon my poor distressed soul,

O, level all your looks upon these daring men

That wrong their liege and sovereign, England's king!

O Gaveston, it is for thee that I am wrong'd!

For me both thou and both the Spencers died;

And for your sakes a thousand wrongs I'll take.

The Spensers' ghosts, wherever they remain,
Wish well to mine; then, tush, for them I'll die.

Mat. 'Twixt theirs and yours shall be no enmity.

Come, come, away! Now put the torches out:

We'll enter in by darkness to Killingworth.

Gur. How now! who comes there?

Enter KENT.

Mat. Guard the king sure: it is the Earl of Kent.

K. Edw. O gentle brother, help to rescue me!

Mat. Keep them asunder; thrust in the king.

Kent. Soldiers, let me but talk to him one word.

Gur. Lay hands upon the earl for his assault.

Kent. Lay down your weapons, traitors! yield the king!

Mat. Edmund, yield thou thyself, or thou shalt die.

Kent. Base villains, wherefore do you gripe me thus?

Gur. Bind him, and so convey him to the court.

Kent. Where is the court but here? here is the king

And I will visit him: why stay you me?

Mat. The court is where Lord Mortimer remains:

Thither shall your honour go; and so, farewell.

[Exeunt Matrevis and Gurney with King Edward.]

Kent. O, miserable is that common-weal,

Where lords keep courts, and kings are lock'd in prison!

First Sold. Wherefore stay we? on, sirs, to the court!

Kent. Ay, lead me whither you will, even to my death,

Seeing that my brother cannot be releas'd. [Exeunt.]

Enter the younger MORTIMER.

Y. Mor. The king must die, or Mortimer goes down;

The commons now begin to pity him:

Yet he that is the cause of Edward's death,

Is sure to pay for it when his son's of age;

And therefore will I do it cunningly.

This letter, written by a friend of ours,

Contains his death, yet bids them save his life;

[Reads.]

Edwardum occidere nolite timere, bonum est,

Fear not to kill the king, 'tis good he die:

But read it thus, and that's another sense;

Edwardum occidere nolite, timere bonum est,

Kill not the king, 'tis good to fear the worst.

Unpointed as it is, thus shall it go.

That, being dead, if it chance to be found,
 Matrevis and the rest may bear the blame,
 And we be quit that caus'd it to be done.
 Within this room is lock'd the messenger
 That shall convey it, and perform the rest;
 And, by a secret token that he bears,
 Shall he be murder'd when the deed is done.—
 Lightborn, come forth!

Enter LIGHTBORN.

Art thou so resolute as thou wast?

Light. What else, my lord? and far more resolute.

Y. Mor. And hast thou cast how to accomplish it?

Light. Ay, ay; and none shall know which way he died.

Y. Mor. But at his looks, Lightborn, thou wilt relent.

Light. Relent! ha, ha! I use much to relent.

Y. Mor. Well, do it bravely, and be secret.

Light. You shall not need to give instructions;

'Tis not the first time I have kill'd a man:

I learn'd in Naples how to poison flowers;

To strangle with a lawn thrust down the throat;

To pierce the wind pipe with a needle's point;

Or, whilst one is asleep, to take a quill,

And blow a little powder in his ears;

Or open his mouth, and pour quick-silver down.

But yet I have a braver way than these.

Y. Mor. What's that?

Light. Nay, you shall pardon me; none shall know my tricks.

Y. Mor. I care not how it is, so it be not spied.

Deliver this to Gurney and Matrevis: [Gives letter.]

At every ten-mile end thou hast a horse:

Take this [Gives money]: away, and never see me more!

Light. No?

Y. Mor. No; unless thou bring me news of Edward's death.

Light. That will I quickly do. Farewell, my lord. [Exit.]

Y. Mor. The prince I rule, the queen do I command,

And with a lowly congé to the ground

The proudest lords salute me as I pass;

I seal, I cancel, I do what I will.

Fear'd am I more than lov'd;—let me be fear'd,

And, when I frown, make all the court look pale.

I view the prince with Aristarchus' eyes,

Whose looks were as a breeching to a boy.
 They thrust upon me the protectorship,
 And sue to me for that that I desire;
 While at the council-table, grave enough,
 And not unlike a bashful puritan,
 First I complain of imbecility,
 Saying it is onus quam gravissimum;
 Till, being interrupted by my friends,
Suscepi that provinciam, as they term it;
 And, to conclude, I am Protector now.
 Now is all sure: the queen and Mortimer
 Shall rule the realm, the king; and none rule us.
 Mine enemies will I plague, my friends advance;
 And what I list command who dare control?
Major sum quàm cui possit fortuna nocere :
 And that this be the coronation-day,
 It pleaseth me and Isabel the queen. [Trumpets within.
 The trumpets sound; I must go take my place.

Enter KING EDWARD THE THIRD, QUEEN ISABELLA, the ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY, Champion, and Nobles.

Archb. of Cant. Long live King Edward, by the grace of God
 King of England and Lord of Ireland!

Cham. If any Christian, Heathen, Turk, or Jew,
 Dares but affirm that Edward's not true king,
 And will avouch his saying with the sword,
 I am the Champion that will combat him.

Y. Mor. None comes: sound, trumpets! [Trumpets.

K. Edw. Third. Champion, here's to thee. [Gives purse.

Q. Isab. Lord Mortimer, now take him to your charge.

Enter Soldiers with KENT prisoner.

Y. Mor. What traitor have we there with blades and bills?

First Sold. Edmund the Earl of Kent.

K. Edw. Third. What hath he done?

First Sold. 'A would have taken the king away perforce,
 As we were bringing him to Killingworth.

Y. Mor. Did you attempt his rescue, Edmund? speak.

Kent. Mortimer, I did: he is our king,

And thou compell'st this prince to wear the crown.

Y. Mor. Strike off his head: he shall have martial law.

Kent. Strike off my head! base traitor, I defy thee!

K. Edw. Third. My lord, he is my uncle, and shall live.

Y. Mor. My lord, he is your enemy, and shall die.

Kent. Stay, villains!

K. Edw. Third. Sweet mother, if I cannot pardon him,
Entreat my Lord Protector for his life.

Q. Isab. Son, be content: I dare not speak a word.

K. Edw. Third. Nor I; and yet methinks I should command:
But, seeing I cannot, I'll entreat for him.—
My lord, if you will let my uncle live,
I will requite it when I come to age.

Y. Mor. 'Tis for your highness' good and for the realm's.—
How often shall I bid you bear him hence?

Kent. Art thou king? must I die at thy command?

Y. Mor. At our command.—Once more, away with him!

Kent. Let me but stay and speak; I will not go:

Either my brother or his son is king,
And none of both them thirst for Edmund's blood:
And therefore, soldiers, whither will you hale me?

[Soldiers hale Kent away, and carry him to be beheaded.]

K. Edw. Third. What safety may I look for at his hands,
If that my uncle shall be murder'd thus?

Q. Isab. Fear not, sweet boy; I'll guard thee from thy foes:
Had Edmund liv'd, he would have sought thy death.
Come, son, we'll ride a-hunting in the park.

K. Edw. Third. And shall my uncle Edmund ride with us?

Q. Isab. He is a traitor; think not on him: come. [Exeunt.]

Enter MATREVIS and GURNEY.

Mat. Gurney, I wonder the king dies not,
Being in a vault up to the knees in water,
To which the channels of the castle run,
From whence a damp continually ariseth,
That were enough to poison any man,
Much more a king, brought up so tenderly.

Gur. And so do I, Matrevis: yesternight
I open'd but the door to throw him meat,
And I was almost stifled with the savour.

Mat. He hath a body able to endure
More than we can inflict: and therefore now
Let us assail his mind another while.

Gur. Send for him out thence, and I will anger him.

Mat. But stay; who's this?

Enter LIGHTBORN.

Light. My Lord Protector greets you. [Gives letter.]

Gur. What's here? I know not how to construe it.

Mat. Gurney, it was left unpainted for the nonce;

Edwardum occidere nolite timere,

That's his meaning.

Light. Know you this token? I must have the king.

[Gives token.]

Mat. Ay, stay a while; thou shalt have answer straight.—

This villain's sent to make away the king.

Gur. I thought as much.

Mat. And, when the murder's done,

See how he must be handled for his labour,—

Pereat iste! Let him have the king;

What else?—Here is the keys, this is the lake:

Do as you are commanded by my lord.

Light. I know what I must do. Get you away:

Yet be not far off; I shall need your help:

See that in the next room I have a fire,

And get me a spit, and let it be red-hot.

Mat. Very well.

Gur. Need you anything besides?

Light. What else? a table and a feather-bed.

Gur. That's all?

Light. Ay, ay: so, when I call you, bring it in.

Mat. Fear not thou that.

Gur. Here's a light to go into the dungeon.

[Gives light to Lightborn, and then exit with Matrevis]

Light. So, now

Must I about this gear: ne'er was there any

So finely handled as this king shall be.—

Foh, here's a place indeed with all my heart!

K. Edw. Who's there? what light is that? wherefore com'st thou?

Light. To comfort you, and bring you joyful news.

K. Edw. Small comfort finds poor Edward in thy looks:

Villain, I know thou com'st to murder me.

Light. To murder you, my most gracious lord?

Far is it from my heart to do you harm.

The queen sent me to see how you were us'd,

For she relents at this your misery:

And what eye can refrain from shedding tears,

To see a king in this most piteous state?

K. Edw. Weep'st thou already? list a while to me,
And then thy heart, were it as Gurney's is,
Or as Matrevis', hewn from the Caucasus,
Yet will it melt ere I have done my tale.
This dungeon where they keep me is the sink
Wherein the filth of all the castle falls.

Light. O villains!

K. Edw. And there, in mire and puddle, have I stood
This ten days' space; and, lest that I should sleep,
One plays continually upon a drum;
They give me bread and water, being a king;
So that, for want of sleep and sustenance,
My mind's distemper'd, and my body's numb'd,
And whether I have limbs or no I know not.
O, would my blood dropp'd out from every vein,
As doth this water from my tatter'd robes!
Tell Isabel the queen, I look'd not thus,
When for her sake I ran at tilt in France,
And there unhors'd the Duke of Cleremont.

Light. O, speak no more, my lord! this breaks my heart.
Lie on this bed, and rest yourself a while.

K. Edw. These looks of thine can harbour naught but death;

I see my tragedy written in thy brows.
Yet stay a while; forbear thy bloody hand,
And let me see the stroke before it comes,
That even then when I shall lose my life,
My mind may be more steadfast on my God.

Light. What means your highness to mistrust me thus?

K. Edw. What mean'st thou to dissemble with me thus?

Light. These hands were never stain'd with innocent blood,
Nor shall they now be tainted with a king's.

K. Edw. Forgive my thought for having such a thought.

One jewel have I left; receive thou this: [Giving jewel.]

Still fear I, and I know not what's the cause,
But every joint shakes as I give it thee.

O, if thou harbour'st murder in thy heart,
Let this gift change thy mind, and save thy soul!

Know that I am a king: O, at that name

I feel a hell of grief! where is my crown?

Gone, gone! and do I [still] remain alive?

Light. You're overwatch'd, my lord: lie down and rest.

K. Edw. But that grief keeps me waking, I should sleep;

For not these ten days have these eye-lids clos'd.

Now, as I speak, they fall; and yet with fear

Open again. O, wherefore sitt'st thou here?

Light. If you mistrust me, I'll be gone, my lord.

K. Edw. No, no; for, if thou mean'st to murder me,

Thou wilt return again; and therefore stay. [Sleeps.]

Light. He sleeps.

K. Edw. [waking] O, let me not die yet! O, stay a while!

Light. How now, my lord!

K. Edw. Something still buzzeth in mine ears,

And tells me, if I sleep, I never wake:

This fear is that which makes me tremble thus;

And therefore tell me, wherefore art thou come?

Light. To rid thee of thy life.—Matrevis, come!

Enter MATREVIS and GURNEY.

K. Edw. I am too weak and feeble to resist.—

Assist me, sweet God, and receive my soul!

Light. Ran for the table.

K. Edw. O, spare me, or despatch me in a trice!

[Matrevis brings in a table. King Edward is murdered by holding him down on the bed with the table, and stamping on it.]

Light. So, lay the table down, and stamp on it,

But not too hard, lest that you bruise his body.

Mat. I fear me that this cry will raise the town,

And therefore let us take horse and away.

Light. Tell me, sirs, was it not bravely done?

Gur. Excellent well: take this for thy reward.

[Stabs Lightborn, who dies.]

Come, let us cast the body in the moat,

And bear the king's to Mortimer our lord:

Away!

[Exeunt with the bodies.]

Enter the younger MORTIMER and MATREVIS.

Y. Mor. Is't done, Matrevis, and the murderer dead?

Mat. Ay, my good lord: I would it were undone!

Y. Mor. Matrevis, if thou now grow'st penitent,

I'll be thy ghostly father; therefore choose,

Whether thou wilt be secret in this,

Or else die by the hand of Mortimer.

Mat. Gurney, my lord, is fled, and will, I fear,

Betray us both; therefore let me fly.

Y. Mor. Fly to the savages!

Mat. I humbly thank your honour.

[Exit.

Y. Mor. As for myself, I stand as Jove's huge tree,
And others are but shrubs compar'd to me:
All tremble at my name, and I fear none:
Let's see who dare impeach me for his death!

Enter QUEEN ISABELLA.

Q. Isab. Ah, Mortimer, the king my son hath news,
His father's dead, and we have murder'd him!

Y. Mor. What if he have? the king is yet a child.

Q. Isab. Ay, but he tears his hair, and wrings his hands,
And vows to be reveng'd upon us both.
Into the council-chamber he is gone,
To crave the aid and succour of his peers.
Ay me, see where he comes, and they with him!
Now, Mortimer, begins our tragedy.

Enter KING EDWARD THE THIRD, Lords, and Attendants.

First Lord. Fear not, my lord; know that you are a king.

K. Edw. Third. Villain!—

Y. Mor. Ho, now, my lord!

K. Edw. Third. Think not that I am frighted with thy words:

My father's murder'd through thy treachery;
And thou shalt die, and on his mournful hearse
Thy hateful and accursed head shall lie,
To witness to the world that by thy means
His kingly body was too soon interr'd.

Q. Isab. Weep not, sweet son.

K. Edw. Third. Forbid not me to weep; he was my father;
And had you lov'd him half so well as I,
You could not bear his death thus patiently:
But you, I fear, conspir'd with Mortimer.

First Lord. Why speak you not unto my lord the king?

Y. Mor. Because I think scorn to be accus'd.

Who is the man dares say I murder'd him?

K. Edw. Third. Traitor, in me my loving father speaks,
And plainly saith, 'twas thou that murder'dst him.

Y. Mor. But hath your grace no other proof than this?

K. Edw. Third. Yes, if this be the hand of Mortimer.

[Showing letter.

Y. Mor. False Gurney hath betray'd me and himself.

[Aside to Queen Isabella.]

Q. Isab. I fear'd as much: murder can not be hid.

Y. Mor. It is my hand; what gather you by this?

K. Edw. Third. That thither thou didst send a murderer.

Y. Mor. What murderer? bring forth the man I sent.

K. Edw. Third. Ah, Mortimer, thou know'st that he is slain!

And so shalt thou be too.—Why stays he here?

Bring him unto a hurdle, drag him forth;

Hang him, I say, and set his quarters up:

And bring his head back presently to me.

Q. Isab. For my sake, sweet son, pity Mortimer!

Y. Mor. Madam, entreat not: I will rather die

Than sue for life unto a paltry boy.

K. Edw. Third. Hence with the traitor, with the murderer!

Y. Mor. Base Fortune, now I see, that in thy wheel

There is a point, to which when men aspire,

They tumble headlong down: that point I touch'd,

And, seeing there was no place to mount up higher,

Why should I grieve at my declining fall?—

Farewell, fair queen: weep not for Mortimer,

That scorns the world, and, as a traveller,

Goes to discover countries yet unknown.

K. Edw. Third. What, suffer you the traitor to delay?

[Exit the younger Mortimer with First Lord and some of the Attendants.]

Q. Isab. As thou receivest thy life from me,

Spill not the blood of gentle Mortimer!

K. Edw. Third. This argues that you spilt my father's blood,

Else would you not entreat for Mortimer.

Q. Isab. I spill his blood! no.

K. Edw. Third. Ay, madam, you; for so the rumour runs.

Q. Isab. That rumour is untrue: for loving thee,

Is this report rais'd on poor Isabel.

K. Edw. Third. I do not think her so unnatural.

Sec. Lord. My lord, I fear me it will prove too true.

K. Edw. Third. Mother, you are suspected for his death

And therefore we commit you to the Tower,

Till further trial may be made thereof.

If you be guilty, though I be your son,

Think not to find me slack or pitiful.

Q. Isab. Nay, to my death; for too long have I liv'd,

Whenas my son thinks to abridge my days.

K. Edw. Third. Away with her! her words enforce these tears,

And I shall pity her, if she speak again.

Q. Isab. Shall I not mourn for my beloved lord?

And with the rest accompany him to his grave.

Sec. Lord. Thus, madam, 'tis the king's will you shall hence.

Q. Isab. He hath forgotten me: stay; I am his mother.

Sec. Lord. That boots not; therefore, gentle madam, go.

Q. Isab. Then come, sweet death, and rid me of this grief!

[Exit with Second Lord and some of the Attendants.]

Re-enter First Lord, with the head of the younger
MORTIMER.

First Lord. My lord, here is the head of Mortimer.

K. Edw. Third. Go fetch my father's hearse, where it shall lie;

And bring my funeral robes. [Exeunt Attendants.]

Accursed head,

Could I have rul'd thee then, as I do now,

Thou hadst not hatch'd this monstrous treachery!—

Here comes the hearse: help me to mourn, my lords.

Re-enter Attendants, with the hearse and funeral robes.

Sweet father, here unto thy murder'd ghost

I offer up the wicked traitor's head;

And let these tears, distilling from mine eyes,

Be witness of my grief and innocence.

[Exeunt.]

THE MASSACRE AT PARIS

DRAMATIS PERSONÆ

CHARLES THE NINTH, King of France.	LOREINE, a preacher.
DUKE OF ANJOU, his brother, afterwards KING HENRY THE THIRD.	SEROUNE.

GONZAGO.	WIFE to SEROUNE.
RETES.	MAID to the DUCHESS OF GUISE.
MOUNTSORRELL.
MUGEROUN.
THE CUTPURSE.

Enter CHARLES, the French king; CATHERINE, the Queen-Mother; the KING OF NAVARRE; MARGARET, Queen of Navarre; the PRINCE OF CONDÉ; the LORD HIGH ADMIRAL; the OLD QUEEN OF NAVARRE; with others.

Char. Prince of Navarre, my honourable brother,
 Prince Condé, and my good Lord Admiral,
 I wish this union and religious league,
 Knit in these hands, thus join'd in nuptial rites,
 May not dissolve till death dissolve our lives;
 And that the native sparks of princely love,
 That kindled first this motion in our hearts,
 May still be fuell'd in our progeny.

Nav. The many favours which your grace hath shown,
 From time to time, but specially in this,
 Shall bind me ever to your highness' will,
 In what Queen-Mother or your grace commands.

Cath. Thanks, son Navarre. You see we love you well,
That link you in marriage with our daughter here;
And, as you know, our difference in religion
Might be a means to cross you in your love.—

Char. Well, madam, let that rest.—

And now, my lords, the marriage-rites perform'd,
We think it good to go and consummate
The rest with hearing of a holy mass.—

Sister, I think yourself will bear us company.

Mar. I will, my good lord.

Char. The rest that will not go, my lords, may stay.—

Come, mother,

Let us go to honour this solemnity.

Cath. Which I'll dissolve with blood and cruelty. [Aside.
Exeunt all except the King of Navarre, Condé,
and the Admiral.

Nav. Prince Condé, and my good Lord Admiral,
Now Guise may storm, but do us little hurt,
Having the king, Queen-mother on our sides,
To stop the malice of his envious heart,
That seeks to murder all the Protestants.

Have you not heard of late how he decreed

(If that the king had given consent thereto)

That all the protestants that are in Paris

Should have been murdered the other night?

Adm. My lord, I marvel that th' aspiring Guise
Dares once adventure, without the king's consent,
To meddle or attempt such dangerous things.

Con. My lord, you need not marvel at the Guise,
For what he doth, the Pope will ratify,
In murder, mischief, or in tyranny.

Nav. But he that sits and rules above the clouds
Doth hear and see the prayers of the just,
And will revenge the blood of innocents,
That Guise hath slain by treason of his heart,
And brought by murder to their timeless ends.

Adm. My lord, but did you mark the Cardinal,
The Guise's brother, and the Duke Dumaine,
How they did storm at these your nuptial rites,
Because the house of Bourbon now comes in,
And joins your lineage to the crown of France?

Nav. And that's the cause that Guise so frowns at us,
And beats his brains to catch us in his trap,

Which he hath pitch'd within his deadly toil.
Come, my lords, let's go to the church, and pray
That God may still defend the right of France,
And make his Gospel flourish in this land.

[Exeunt.]

Enter GUISE.

Guise. If ever Hymen lour'd at marriage-rites,
And had his altars deck'd with dusky lights;
If ever sun stain'd heaven with bloody clouds,
And made it look with terror on the world;
If ever day were turn'd to ugly night,
And night made semblance of the hue of hell;
This day, this hour, this fatal night,
Shall fully show the fury of them all.—
Apothecary!

Enter APOTHECARY.

Apoth. My lord?

Guise. Now shall I prove, and guerdon to the full,
The love thou bear'st unto the house of Guise.
Where are those perfum'd gloves which I sent
To be poison'd? hast thou done them? speak;
Will every savour breed a pang of death?

Apoth. See where they be, my good lord; and he that smells
But to them, dies.

Guise. Then thou remain'st resolute?

Apoth. I am, my lord, in what your grace commands,
Till death.

Guise. Thanks, my good friend: I will requite thy love.
Go, then, present them to the Queen Navarre;
For she is that huge blemish in our eye,
That makes these upstart heresies in France:
Be gone, my friend, present them to her straight.

[Exit Apothecary.]

Soldier!

Enter a Soldier.

Sold. My lord?

Guise. Now come thou forth, and play thy tragic part.
Stand in some window, opening near the street,
And when thou see'st the Admiral ride by,
Discharge thy musket, and perform his death;
And then I'll guerdon thee with store of crowns.

Sold. I will, my lord.

[Exit.]

Guise. Now, Guise, begin those deep-engender'd thoughts

To burst abroad those never-dying flames
Which cannot be extinguished but by blood.
Oft have I levell'd, and at last have learn'd
That peril is the chiefest way to happiness,
And resolution honour's fairest aim.
What glory is there in a common good,
That hangs for every peasant to achieve?
That like I best, that flies beyond my reach.
Set me to scale the high Pyramides,
And thereon set the diadem of France;
I'll either rend it with my nails to naught,
Or mount the top with my aspiring wings,
Although my downfall be the deepest hell.
For this I wake, when others think I sleep,
For this I wait, that scorn attendance else;
For this, my quenchless thirst, whereon I build,
Hath often pleaded kindred to the king;
For this, this head, this heart, this hand, and sword,
Contrives, imagines, and fully executes,
Matters of import aimed at by many,
Yet understood by none;
For this, hath heaven engender'd me of earth;
For this, this earth sustains my body's weight,
And with this weight I'll counterpoise a crown,
Or with seditions weary all the world;
For this, from Spain the stately Catholics
Send Indian gold to coin me French ecues;
For this, have I a largess from the Pope,
A pension, and a dispensation too;
And by that privilege to work upon,
My policy hath fram'd religion.
Religion! O Diabole!
Fie, I am asham'd, however that I seem,
To think a word of such a simple sound,
Of so great matter should be made the ground!
The gentle king, whose pleasure uncontroll'd
Weakeneth his body, and will waste his realm,
If I repair not what he ruins,—
Him, as a child, I daily win with words,
So that for proof he barely bears the name;
I execute, and he sustains the blame.
The Mother-Queen works wonders for my sake,
And in my love entombs the hope of France,

Rifling the bowels of her treasury,
To supply my wants and necessity.
Paris hath full five hundred colleges,
As monasteries, priories, abbeys, and halls,
Wherein are thirty thousand able men,
Besides a thousand sturdy student Catholics;
And more,—of my knowledge, in one cloister keep
Five hundred fat Franciscan friars and priests:
All this, and more, if more may be compris'd,
To bring the will of our desires to end.

Then, Guise,
Since thou hast all the cards within thy hands,
To shuffle or cut, take this as surest thing,
That, right or wrong, thou deal thyself a king.—
Ay, but, Navarre,—'tis but a nook of France,
Sufficient yet for such a petty king,
That, with a rabblement of his heretics,
Blinds Europe's eyes, and troubleth our estate.
Him will we—[Pointing to his sword.] but first let's follow
those in France

That hinder our possession to the crown.
As Cæsar to his soldiers, so say I,—
Those that hate me will I learn to loathe.
Give me a look, that, when I bend the brows,
Pale death may walk in furrows of my face;
A hand, that with a grasp may gripe the world;
An ear to hear what my detractors say;
A royal seat, a sceptre, and a crown;
That those which do behold them may become
As men that stand and gaze against the sun.
The plot is laid, and things shall come to pass
Where resolution strives for victory.

[Exit.]

Enter the KING OF NAVARRE, QUEEN MARGARET, the OLD QUEEN OF NAVARRE, the PRINCE OF CONDÉ, and the ADMIRAL; they are met by the Apothecary with the gloves, which he gives to the OLD QUEEN.

Apoth. Madam,

I beseech your grace to accept this simple gift.

Old Q. of Nav. Thanks, my good friend. Hold, take thou this reward.

[Gives a purse.]

Apoth. I humbly thank your majesty.

[Exit.]

Old Q. of Nav. Methinks the gloves have a very strong perfume,

The scent whereof doth make my head to ache.

Nav. Doth not your grace know the man that gave them you?

Old Q. of Nav. Not well; but do remember such a man.

Adm. Your grace was ill-advis'd to take them, then,

Considering of these dangerous times.

Old Q. of Nav. Help, son Navarre! I am poison'd!

Mar. The heavens forbid your highness such mishap!

Nav. The late suspicion of the Duke of Guise

Might well have mov'd your highness to beware

How you did meddle with such dangerous gifts.

Mar. Too late, it is, my lord, if that be true,

To blame her highness; but I hope it be

Only some natural passion makes her sick.

Old Q. of Nav. O, no, sweet Margaret! the fatal poison

Works within my head; my brain-pan breaks;

My heart doth faint; I die!

[Dies.

Nav. My mother poison'd here before my face!

O gracious God, what times are these!

O, grant, sweet God, my days may end with hers,

That I with her may die and live again!

Mar. Let not this heavy chance, my dearest lord,

(For whose effects my soul is massacred),

Infect thy gracious breast with fresh supply

To aggravate our sudden misery.

Adm. Come, my lords, let us bear her body hence,

And see it honoured with just solemnity.

[As they are going out, the Soldier dischargeth his musket at the Admiral.

Con. What, are you hurt, my Lord High Admiral?

Adm. Ay, my good lord, shot through the arm.

Nav. We are betray'd! Come, my lords,

And let us go tell the king of this.

Adm. These are

The cursed Guisians, that do seek our death.

O, fatal was this marriage to us all.

[Exeunt, bearing out the body of the Old Queen of Navarre.

Enter KING CHARLES, CATHERINE the Queen-Mother,
GUISE, ANJOU, and DUMAINE.

Cath. My noble son, and princely Duke of Guise,

Now have we got the fatal, straggling deer

Within the compass of a deadly toil,
And, as we late decreed, we may perform.

Char. Madam, it will be noted through the world
An action bloody and tyrannical;
Chiefly, since under safety of our word
They justly challenge their protection:
Besides, my heart relents that noblemen,
Only corrupted in religion,
Ladies of honour, knights, and gentlemen,
Should, for their conscience, taste such ruthless ends.

Anj. Though gentle minds should pity others' pains,
Yet will the wisest note their proper griefs,
And rather seek to scourge their enemies
Than be themselves base subjects to the whip.

Guise. Methinks my Lord Anjou hath well advis'd
Your highness to consider of the thing,
And rather choose to seek your country's good
Than pity or relieve these upstart heretics.

Cath. I hope these reasons may serve my princely son
To have some care for fear of enemies.

Char. Well, madam, I refer it to your majesty,
And to my nephew here, the Duke of Guise:
What you determine, I will ratify.

Cath. Thanks to my princely son.—Then tell me, Guise,
What order will you set down for the massacre?

Guise. Thus, madam. They
That shall be actors in this massacre
Shall wear white crosses on their burgonets,
And tie white linen scarfs about their arms;
He that wants these, and is suspect of heresy,
Shall die, be he king or emperor. Then I'll have
A peal of ordnance shot from the tower, at which
They all shall issue out, and set the streets,
And then,
The watchword being given, a bell shall ring,
Which when they hear, they shall begin to kill,
And never cease until that bell shall cease;
Then breathe a while.

Enter the ADMIRAL'S Serving-Man.

Char. How now, fellow! what news?

Serv.-M. An it please your grace, the Lord High Admiral,
Riding the streets, was traitorously shot;

And most humbly entreats your majesty
To visit him, sick in his bed,

Char. Messenger, tell him I will see him straight.

[Exit Serv.-M.]

What shall we do now with the Admiral?

Cath. Your majesty were best go visit him,
And make a show as if all were well.

Char. Content; I will go visit the Admiral.

Guise. And I will go take order for his death.

[Exeunt Catherine and Guise.]

The ADMIRAL discovered in bed.

Char. How fares it with my Lord High Admiral?

Hath he been hurt with villains in the street?

I vow and swear, as I am King of France,
To find and to repay the man with death,
With death delay'd and torments never us'd,
That durst presume, for hope of any gain,
To hurt the nobleman his sovereign loves.

Adm. Ah, my good lord, these are the Guisians,
That seek to massacre our guiltless lives!

Char. Assure yourself, my good Lord Admiral,
I deeply sorrow for your treacherous wrong;
And that I am not more secure myself
Than I am careful you should be preserv'd.—
Cousin, take twenty of our strongest guard,
And, under your direction, see they keep
All treacherous violence from our noble friend;
Repaying all attempts with present death
Upon the cursed breakers of our peace.—
And so be patient, good Lord Admiral,
And every hour I will visit you.

Adm. I humbly thank your royal majesty.

[Exeunt Charles, etc. Scene closes.]

Enter GUISE, ANJOU, DUMAINE, GONZAGO, RETES, MOUNTSORRELL, and Soldiers, to the massacre.

Guise. Anjou, Dumaine, Gonzago, Retes, swear,
By the argent crosses in your burgonets,
To kill all that you suspect of heresy.

Dum. I swear by this, to be unmerciful.

Anj. I am disguis'd, and none knows who I am,
And therefore mean to murder all I meet.

Gon. And so will I.

Retes. And I.

Guise. Away, then! break into the Admiral's house.

Retes. Ay, let the Admiral be first despatch'd.

Guise. The Admiral,

Chief standard-bearer to the Lutherans,

Shall in the entrance of this massacre

Be murder'd in his bed.

Gonzago, conduct them thither; and then

Beset his house, that not a man may live.

Anj. That charge is mine.—Switzers, keep you the streets;

And at each corner shall the king's guard stand.

Gon. Come, sirs, follow me. [Exit Gonzago with others.]

Anj. Cousin, the captain of the Admiral's guard,

Plac'd by my brother, will betray his lord.

Now, Guise, shall Catholics flourish once again;

The head being off, the members cannot stand.

Retes. But look, my lord, there's some in the Admiral's house.

[The Admiral discovered in bed; Gonzago and others in the house.]

Anj. In lucky time: come, let us keep this lane,

And slay his servants that shall issue out.

Gon. Where is the Admiral?

Adm. O, let me pray before I die!

Gon. Then pray unto our Lady; kiss this cross. [Stabs him.]

Adm. O God, forgive my sins! [Dies.]

Guise. Gonzago, what, is he dead?

Gon. Ay, my lord.

Guise. Then throw him down.

[The body of the Admiral is thrown down.]

Anj. Now, cousin, view him well:

It may be 'tis some other, and he escap'd.

Guise. Cousin, 'tis he; I know him by his look:

See where my soldier shot him through the arm;

He miss'd him near, but we have struck him now,—

Ah, base Chatillon and degenerate,

Chief standard-bearer to the Lutherans,

Thus, in despite of thy religion,

The Duke of Guise stamps on thy lifeless bulk!

Anj. Away with him! cut off his head and hands,

And send them for a present to the Pope;

And, when this just revenge is finished,

Unto Mount Faucon will we drag his corse;
 And he, that living hated so the Cross,
 Shall, being dead, be hang'd thereon in chains.

Guise. Anjou, Gonzago, Retes, if that you three
 Will be as resolute as I and Dumaine,
 There shall not be a Huguenot breathe in France.

Anj. I swear by this cross, we'll not be partial,
 But slay as many as we can come near.

Guise. Mountsorrell, go shoot the ordnance off,
 That they, which have already set the street,
 May know their watchword; then toll the bell,
 And so let's forward to the massacre.

Mount. I will, my lord. [Exit.

Guise. And now, my lords, let's closely to our business.

Anj. Anjou will follow thee.

Dum. And so will Dumaine.

[The ordnance being shot off, the bell tolls.]

Guise. Come, then, let's away. [Exeunt.]

Enter GUISE, and the rest, with their swords drawn, chasing the Protestants.

Guise. Tuez, tuez, tuez!

Let none escape! murder the Huguenots!

Anj. Kill them! kill them! [Exeunt.]

Enter LOREINE, running; GUISE and the rest pursuing him.

Guise. Loreine, Loreine! follow Loreine!—Sirrah,

Are you a preacher of these heresies?

Lor. I am a preacher of the word of God;

And thou a traitor to thy soul and him.

Guise. "Dearly beloved brother,"—thus 'tis written.

[Stabs Loreine, who dies.]

Anj. Stay, my lord, let me begin the psalm.

Guise. Come, drag him away, and throw him in a ditch.

[Exeunt with the body]

Enter MOUNTSORRELL, and knocks at SEROUNE's door.

Seroune's Wife [within]. Who is that which knocks there?

Mount. Mountsorrell, from the Duke of Guise.

Seroune's Wife [within]. Husband, come down; here's one would speak with you.

From the Duke of Guise.

Enter SEROUNE from the house.

Ser. To speak with me, from such a man as he?

Mount. Ay, ay, for this, Seroune; and thou shalt ha't.

[Showing his dagger.]

Ser. O, let me pray, before I take my death!

Mount. Despatch, then, quickly.

Ser. O Christ, my Saviour!

Mount. Christ, villain!

Why, darest thou to presume to call on Christ,

Without the intercession of some saint?

Sanctus Jacobus, he's my saint; pray to him.

Ser. O, let me pray unto my God!

Mount. Then take this with you.

[Stabs Seroune, who dies; and then exit.]

Enter RAMUS, in his study.

Ramus. What fearful cries come from the river Seine,

That fright poor Ramus sitting at his book!

I fear the Guisians have pass'd the bridge,

And mean once more to menace me.

Enter TALÆUS.

Tal. Fly, Ramus, fly, if thou wilt save thy life!

Ramus. Tell me, Talæus, wherefore should I fly?

Tal. The Guisians are

Hard at thy door, and mean to murder us:

Hark, hark, they come! I'll leap out at the window.

Ramus. Sweet Talæus, stay.

Enter GONZAGO and RETES.

Gon. Who goes there?

Retes. 'Tis Talæus, Ramus' bedfellow.

Gon. What art thou?

Tal. I am, as Ramus is, a Christian.

Retes. O, let him go; he is a Catholic. [Exit Talæus.]

Gon. Come, Ramus, more gold, or thou shalt have the stab.

Ramus. Alas, I am a scholar! how should I have gold?

All that I have is but my stipend from the king,

Which is no sooner receiv'd but it is spent.

Enter GUISE, ANJOU, DUMAINE, MOUNTSORRELL, and Soldiers.

Anj. Who have you there?

Retes. 'Tis Ramus, the king's Professor of Logic.

Guise. Stab him.

Ramus. O, good my lord,

Wherein hath Ramus been so offensive?

Guise. Marry, sir, in having a smack in all,
And yet didst never sound anything to the depth.
Was it not thou that scoff'dst the Organon,
And said it was a heap of vanities?
He that will be a flat dichotomist,
And seen in nothing but epitomes,
Is in your judgment thought a learned man;
And he, forsooth, must go and preach in Germany,
Excepting against doctors' axioms,
And ipse dixi with this quiddity,
Argumentum testimonii est inartificiale.
To contradict which, I say, Ramus shall die:
How answer you that? your nego argumentum
Cannot serve, sirrah.—Kill him.

Ramus. O, good my lord, let me but speak a word!

Anj. Well, say on.

Ramus. Not for my life do I desire this pause;
But in my latter hour to purge myself,
In that I know the things that I have wrote,
Which, as I hear, one Scheckius takes it ill,
Because my places, being but three, contain all his.
I knew the Organon to be confus'd,
And I reduc'd it into better form:
And this for Aristotle will I say,
That he that despiseth him can ne'er
Be good in logic or philosophy;
And that's because the blockish Sorbonnists
Attribute as much unto their [own] works
As to the service of the eternal God.

Guise. Why suffer you that peasant to declaim?

Stab him, I say, and send him to his friends in hell.

Anj. Ne'er was there collier's son so full of pride.

[Stabs Ramus, who dies.]

Guise. My Lord of Anjou, there are a hundred Protestants,
Which we have chas'd into the river Seine,
That swim about, and so preserve their lives:
How may we do? I fear me they will live.

Dum. Go place some men upon the bridge,
With bows and darts, to shoot at them they see,
And sink them in the river as they swim.

Guise. 'Tis well advis'd, Dumaine; go see it straight be done. [Exit Dumaine.]

And in the meantime, my lord, could we devise
To get those pedants from the King Navarre,
That are tutors to him and the Prince of Condé—
Anj. For that, let me alone: cousin, stay you here,
And when you see me in, then follow hard.

ANJOU knocketh at the door; and enter the KING OF NAVARRE and the PRINCE OF CONDÉ, with their two Schoolmasters.

How now, my lords! how fare you?
Nav. My lord, they say
That all the Protestants are massacred.
Anj. Ay, so they are; but yet, what remedy?
I have done what I could to stay this broil.
Nav. But yet, my lord, the report doth run,
That you were one that made this massacre.
Anj. Who, I? you are deceiv'd; I rose but now.

GUISE, GONZAGO, RETES, MOUNTSORRELL, and Soldiers, come forward.

Guise. Murder the Huguenots! take those pedants hence!
Nav. Thou traitor, Guise, lay off thy bloody hands!
Con. Come, let us go tell the king.
[Exit with the King of Navarre.]

Guise. Come, sirs,
I'll whip you to death with my poniard's point.
[Stabs the Schoolmasters, who die.]

Anj. Away with them both!
[Exeunt Anjou and Soldiers with the bodies.]

Guise. And now, sirs, for this night let our fury stay.
Yet will we not that the massacre shall end:
Gonzago, post you to Orleans,
Retes to Dieppe, Mountsorrell unto Rouen,
And spare not one that you suspect of heresy.
And now stay
That bell, that to the devil's matins rings.
Now every man put off his burgonet,
And so convey him closely to his bed. [Exeunt.]

Enter ANJOU, with two Lords of Poland.

Anj. My lords of Poland, I must needs confess,
The offer of your Prince Elector's far
Beyond the reach of my deserts;

For Poland is, as I have been inform'd,
 A martial people, worthy such a king
 As hath sufficient counsel in himself
 To lighten doubts, and frustrate subtle foes;
 And such a king, whom practice long hath taught
 To please himself with manage of the wars,
 The greatest wars within our Christian bounds,—
 I mean our wars against the Muscovites,
 And, on the other side, against the Turk,
 Rich princes both, and mighty emperors.
 Yet, by my brother Charles, our king of France,
 And by his grace's council, it is thought
 That, if I undertake to wear the crown
 Of Poland, it may prejudice their hope
 Of my inheritance to the crown of France;
 For, if th' Almighty take my brother hence,
 By due descent the regal seat is mine.
 With Poland, therefore, must I covenant thus,—
 That if, by death of Charles, the diadem
 Of France be cast on me, then, with your leaves,
 I may retire me to my native home.
 If your commission serve to warrant this,
 I thankfully shall undertake the charge
 Of you and yours, and carefully maintain
 The wealth and safety of your kingdom's right.
First Lord. All this, and more, your highness shall command,
 For Poland's crown and kingly diadem.
Anj. Then, come, my lords, let's go. [Exeunt.]

Enter two Men, with the ADMIRAL's body.

First Man. Now, sirrah, what shall we do with the Admiral?
Sec. Man. Why, let us burn him for an heretic.
First Man. O, no! his body will infect the fire, and the fire
 the air, and so we shall be poisoned with him.
Sec. Man. What shall we do, then?
First Man. Let's throw him into the river.
Sec. Man. O, 'twill corrupt the water, and the water the fish, and the fish ourselves, when we eat them!
First Man. Then throw him into the ditch.
Sec. Man. No, no. To decide all doubts, be ruled by me:
 let's hang him here upon this tree.
First Man. Agreed.
[They hang up the body on a tree, and then exeunt.]

Enter GUISE, CATHERINE the Queen-Mother, and the CARDINAL OF LORRAINE, with Attendants.

Guise. Now, madam, how like you our lusty Admiral?

Cath. Believe me, Guise, he becomes the place so well

As I could long ere this have wish'd him there.

But come,

Let's walk aside; the air's not very sweet.

Guise. No, by my faith, madam.—

Sirs, take him away, and throw him in some ditch.

[The Attendants bear off the Admiral's body.]

And now, madam, as I understand,

There are a hundred Huguenots and more,

Which in the woods do hold their synagogue,

And daily meet about this time of day;

And thither will I, to put them to the sword.

Cath. Do so, sweet Guise; let us delay no time;

For, if these stragglers gather head again,

And disperse themselves throughout the realm of France,

It will be hard for us to work their deaths.

Be gone; delay no time, sweet Guise.

Guise. Madam,

I go as whirlwinds rage before a storm.

[Exit.]

Cath. My Lord of Lorraine, have you mark'd of late,

How Charles our son begins for to lament

For the late night's-work which my Lord of Guise

Did make in Paris amongst the Huguenots?

Card. Madam, I have heard him solemnly vow,

With the rebellious King of Navarre,

For to revenge their deaths upon us all.

Cath. Ay, but, my lord, let me alone for that;

For Catherine must have her will in France.

As I do live, so surely shall he die,

And Henry then shall wear the diadem;

And, if he grudge or cross his mother's will,

I'll disinherit him and all the rest;

For I'll rule France, but they shall wear the crown,

And, if they storm, I then may pull them down.

Come, my lord, let us go.

[Exeunt.]

Enter five or six Protestants, with books, and kneel together. Then enter GUISE and others.

Guise. Down with the Huguenots! murder them!

First Pro. O Monsieur de Guise, hear me but speak!

Guise. No, villain; that tongue of thine,
That hath blasphem'd the holy Church of Rome,
Shall drive no plaints into the Guise's ears,
To make the justice of my heart relent.—
Tuez, tuez, tuez ! let none escape.

[They kill the Protestants.

So, drag them away.

[Excunt with the bodies.

Enter KING CHARLES, supported by the KING OF NAVARRE and EPERNOUN; CATHERINE the Queen-Mother, the CARDINAL OF LORRAINE, PLESHE, and Attendants.

Char. O, let me stay, and rest me here a while!

A griping pain hath seiz'd upon my heart;

A sudden pang, the messenger of death.

Cath. O, say not so! thou kill'st thy mother's heart.

Char. I must say so; pain forceth me complain.

Nav. Comfort yourself, my lord, and have no doubt

But God will sure restore you to your health.

Char. O, no, my loving brother of Navarre!

I have deserv'd a scourge, I must confess;

Yet is there patience of another sort

Than to misdo the welfare of their king:

God grant my nearest friends may prove no worse!

O, hold me up! my sight begins to fail,

My sinews shrink, my brains turn upside down;

My heart doth break: I faint and die.

[Dies.

Cath. What, art thou dead, sweet son? speak to thy mother!

O, no, his soul is fled from out his breast,

And he nor hears nor sees us what we do!

My lords, what resteth there now for to be done,

But that we presently despatch ambassadors

To Poland, to call Henry back again,

To wear his brother's crown and dignity?

Epernoun, go see it presently be done,

And bid him come without delay to us.

Eper. Madam, I will.

[Exit.

Cath. And now, my lords, after these funerals be done,

We will, with all the speed we can, provide

For Henry's coronation from Poland.

Come, let us take his body hence.

[*The body of King Charles is borne out; and excunt
all except the King of Navarre and Pleshé.*

Nav. And now, Pleshé, whilst that these broils do last,

My opportunity may serve me fit
To steal from France, and hie me to my home,
For here's no safety in the realm for me:
And now that Henry is call'd from Poland,
It is my due, by just succession;
And therefore, as speedily as I can perform,
I'll muster up an army secretly,
For fear that Guise, join'd with the king of Spain,
Might seek to cross me in mine enterprise.
But God, that always doth defend the right,
Will show his mercy, and preserve us still.

Pleshé. The virtues of our true religion
Cannot but march, with many graces more,
Whose army shall discomfit all your foes,
And, at the length, in Pampeluna crown
(In spite of Spain, and all the popish power,
That holds it from your highness wrongfully)
Your majesty her rightful lord and sovereign.

Nav. Truth, Pleshé; and God so prosper me in all,
As I intend to labour for the truth,
And true profession of his holy word!
Come, Pleshé, let's away whilst time doth serve.

[Exeunt.]

Trumpets sounded within, and a cry of "Vive le Roi," two or three times. Enter ANJOU crowned as King Henry the Third; CATHERINE the Queen-Mother, the CARDINAL OF LORRAINE, GUISE, EPERNOUN, MUGEROUN, the Cutpurse, and others.

All. Vive le Roi, Vive le Roi! [A flourish of trumpets.]

Cath. Welcome from Poland, Henry, once again!

Welcome to France, thy father's royal seat!
Here hast thou a country void of fears,
A warlike people to maintain thy right,
A watchful senate for ordaining laws,
A loving mother to preserve thy state,
And all things that a king may wish besides;
All this, and more, hath Henry with his crown.

Card. And long may Henry enjoy all this, and more!

All. Vive le Roi, Vive le Roi! [A flourish of trumpets.]

Henry. Thanks to you all. The guider of all crowns
Grant that our deeds may well deserve your loves!
And so they shall, if fortune speed my will,

And yield your thoughts to height of my deserts.
 What say our minions? think they Henry's heart
 Will not both harbour love and majesty?
 Put off that fear, they are already join'd:
 No person, place, or time, or circumstance,
 Shall slack my love's affections from his bent:
 As now you are, so shall you still persist,
 Removeless from the favours of your king.

Mug. We know that noble minds change not their thoughts
 For wearing of a crown, in that your grace
 Hath worn the Poland diadem before
 You were invested in the crown of France.

Henry. I tell thee, Mugeroun, we will be friends,
 And fellows too, whatever storms arise.

Mug. Then may it please your majesty to give me leave
 To punish those that do profane this holy feast.

Henry. How mean'st thou that?

[Mugeroun cuts off the Cutpurse's ear, for cutting the gold buttons off his cloak.]

Cutp. O Lord, mine ear!

Mug. Come, sir, give me my buttons, and here's your ear.

Guise. Sirrah, take him away.

Henry. Hands off, good fellow; I will be his bail
 For this offence.—Go, sirrah, work no more
 Till this our coronation-day be past.—
 And now,

Our solemn rites of coronation done,
 What now remains but for a while to feast,
 And spend some days in barriers, tourney, tilt,
 And like disports, such as do fit the court?
 Let's go, my lords; our dinner stays for us.

[Exeunt all except Catherine the Queen-mother and the Cardinal of Lorraine.]

Cath. My Lord Cardinal of Lorraine, tell me,
 How likes your grace my son's pleasantness?
 His mind, you see, runs on his minions,
 And all his heaven is to delight himself;
 And, whilst he sleeps securely thus in ease,
 Thy brother Guise and we may now provide
 To plant ourselves with such authority
 As not a man may live without our leaves.
 Then shall the Catholic faith of Rome
 Flourish in France, and none deny the same.

Card. Madam, as in secrecy I was told,
My brother Guise hath gather'd a power of men,
Which are, he saith, to kill the Puritans;
But 'tis the house of Bourbon that he means.
Now, madam, must you insinuate with the king,
And tell him that 'tis for his country's good,
And common profit of religion.

Cath. Tush, man, let me alone with him,
To work the way to bring this thing to pass;
And, if he do deny what I do say,
I'll despatch him with his brother presently,
And then sha'll Monsieur wear the diadem.
Tush, all shall die unless I have my will;
For, while she lives, Catherine will be queen.
Come, my lord, let us go seek the Guise,
And then determine of this enterprise.

[Exeunt.]

Enter the DUCHESS OF GUISE and her Maid.

Duch. of G. Go fetch me pen and ink,—

Maid. I will, madam.

Duch. That I may write unto my dearest lord.

[Exit Maid.]

Sweet Mugeroun, 'tis he that hath my heart,
And Guise usurps it 'cause I am his wife,
Fain would I find some means to speak with him,
But cannot, and therefore am enforc'd to write,
That he may come and meet me in some place,
Where we may one enjoy the other's sight.

Re-enter the Maid, with pen, ink, and paper.

So, set it down, and leave me to myself.

[Exit Maid. The Duchess writes.]

O, would to God, this quill that here doth write,
Had late been pluck'd from out fair Cupid's wing,
That it might print these lines within his heart!

Enter GUISE.

Guise. What, all alone, my love? and writing too?
I prithee, say to whom thou writ'st.

Duch. To such

A one, my lord, as, when she reads my lines,
Will laugh, I fear me, at their good array.

Guise. I pray thee, let me see.

Duch. O, no, my lord; a woman only must
Partake the secrets of my heart.

Guise. But, madam, I must see. [Seizes the paper.]
Are these your secrets that no man must know?

Duch. O, pardon me, my lord!

Guise. Thou trothless and unjust! what lines are these?

Am I grown old, or is thy lust grown young?

Or hath my love been so obscur'd in thee,

That others need to comment on my text?

Is all my love forgot, which held thee dear,

Ay, dearer than the apple of mine eye?

Is Guise's glory but a cloudy mist,

In sight and judgment of thy lustful eye?

Mort Dieu! were not the fruit within thy womb,

Of whose increase I set some longing hope,

This wrathful hand should strike thee to the heart.

Hence, strumpet! hide thy head for shame;

And fly my presence, if thou look to live! [Exit Duchess.]

O wicked sex, perjured and unjust!

Now do I see that from the very first

Her eyes and looks sow'd seeds of perjury.

But villain, he, to whom these lines should go,

Shall buy her love even with his dearest blood. [Exit.]

Enter the KING OF NAVARRE, PLESHÉ, BARTUS, and train,
with drums and trumpets.

Nav. My lords, sith in a quarrel just and right

We undertake to manage these our wars

Against the proud disturbers of the faith,

(I mean the Guise, the Pope, and king of Spain,

Who set themselves to tread us under foot,

And rent our true religion from this land;

But for you know our quarrel is no more

But to defend their strange inventions,

Which they will put us to with sword and fire,)

We must with resolute minds resolve to fight,

In honour of our God, and country's good.

Spain is the council-chamber of the Pope,

Spain is the place where he makes peace and war;

And Guise for Spain hath now incens'd the king

To send his power to meet us in the field.

Bar. Then in this bloody brunt they may behold

The sole endeavour of your princely care,

To plant the true succession of the faith,
In spite of Spain and all his heresies.

Nav. The power of vengeance now encamps itself
Upon the haughty mountains of my breast;
Plays with her gory colours of revenge,
Whom I respect as leaves of boasting green,
That change their colour when the winter comes,
When I shall vaunt as victor in revenge.

Enter a Messenger.

How now, sirrah! what news?

Mes. My lord, as by our scouts we understand,
A mighty army comes from France with speed;
Which are already muster'd in the land,
And mean to meet your highness in the field.

Nav. In God's name, let them come!
This is the Guise that hath incens'd the king
To levy arms, and make these civil broils.
But canst thou tell who is their general?

Mes. Not yet, my lord, for thereon do they stay;
But, as report doth go, the Duke of Joyeux
Hath made great suit unto the king therefore.

Nav. It will not countervail his pains, I hope.
I would the Guise in his stead might have come!
But he doth lurk within his drowsy couch,
And makes his footstool on security:
So he be safe, he cares not what becomes
Of king or country; no, not for them both.
But come, my lords, let us away with speed,
And place ourselves in order for the fight.

[Exeunt.]

Enter KING HENRY, GUISE, EPERNOUN, and JOYEUX.

Henry. My sweet Joyeux, I make thee general
Of all my army, now in readiness
To march 'gainst the rebellious King Navarre;
At thy request I am content thou go,
Although my love to thee can hardly suffer't,
Regarding still the danger of thy life.

Joyeux. Thanks to your majesty: and so, I take my leave.—
Farewell to my Lord of Guise, and Epernoun.

Guise. Health and hearty farewell to my Lord Joyeux.

[Exit Joyeux.]

Henry. So kindly, cousin of Guise, you and your wife

Do both salute our lovely minions.
 Remember you the letter, gentle sir,
 Which your wife writ
 To my dear minion, and her chosen friend?

[Makes horns at Guise.

Guise. How now, my lord! faith, this is more than need.
 Am I thus to be jested at and scorn'd?
 'Tis more than kingly or emperious:
 And, sure, if all the proudest kings
 In Christendom should bear me such derision,
 They should know how I scorn'd them and their mocks.
 I love your minions! dote on them yourself;
 I know none else but holds them in disgrace;
 And here, by all the saints in heaven, I swear,
 That villain for whom I bear this deep disgrace,
 Even for your words that have incens'd me so,
 Shall buy that strumpet's favour with his blood!
 Whether he have dishonour'd me or no,

Par la mort de Dieu, il mourra!

[Exit.

Henry. Believe me, this jest bites sore.

Eper. My lord, 'twere good to make them friends,
 For his oaths are seldom spent in vain.

Enter MUGEROUN.

Henry. How now, Mugeroun! met'st thou not the Guise at the door?

Mug. Not I, my lord; what if I had?

Henry. Marry, if thou hadst, thou mightst have had the stab,
 For he hath solemnly sworn thy death.

Mug. I may be stabb'd, and live till he be dead:
 But wherefore bears he me such deadly hate?

Henry. Because his wife bears thee such kindly love.

Mug. If that be all, the next time that I meet her,
 I'll make her shake off love with her heels.

But which way is he gone? I'll go take a walk
 On purpose from the court to meet with him.

[Exit.

Henry. I like not this. Come, Epernoun,

Let us go seek the duke, and make them friends. [Exeunt.

Alarums, within, and a cry—"The DUKE JOYEUX is slain."

Enter the KING OF NAVARRE, BARTUS, and train.

Nav. The duke is slain, and all his power dispers'd,
 And we are grac'd with wreaths of victory.

Thus God, we see, doth ever guide the right,
To make his glory great upon the earth.

Bar. The terror of this happy victory,
I hope, will make the king surcease his hate,
And either never manage army more,
Or else employ them in some better cause.

Nav. How many noblemen have lost their lives
In prosecution of these cruel arms,
Is ruth, and almost death, to call to mind.
But God we know will always put them down
That lift themselves against the perfect truth;
Which I'll maintain so long as life doth last,
And with the Queen of England join my force
To beat the papal monarch from our lands,
And keep those relics from our countries' coasts.
Come, my lords; now that this storm is overpast,
Let us away with triumph to our tents. [Exeunt.]

Enter a Soldier.

Sold. Sir, to you, sir, that dares make the duke a cuckold, and use a counterfeit key to his privy-chamber-door; and although you take out nothing but your own, yet you put in that which displeaseth him, and so forestall his market, and set up your standing where you should not; and whereas he is your landlord, you will take upon you to be his, and till the ground that he himself should occupy, which is his own free land; if it be not too free—there's the question; and though I come not to take possession
(as I would I might!) yet I mean to keep you out; which
I will, if this gear hold.

Enter MUGEROUN.

What, are ye come so soon? have at ye, sir!
[Shoots at Mugeroun and kills him.]

Enter GUISE and Attendants.

Guise. [Giving a purse] Hold thee, tall soldier, take thee this,
and fly. [Exit Soldier.]
Lie there, the king's delight, and Guise's scorn!
Revenge it, Henry, as thou list or dare;
I did it only in despite of thee.
[Attendants bear off Mugeroun's body.]

Enter KING HENRY and EPERNOUN.

Henry. My Lord of Guise, we understand
That you have gathered a power of men:
What your intent is yet we cannot learn,
But we presume it is not for our good.

Guise. Why, I am no traitor to the crown of France;
What I have done, 'tis for the Gospel's sake.

Eper. Nay, for the Pope's sake, and thine own benefit,
What peer in France, but thou, aspiring Guise,
Durst be in arms without the king's consent?
I challenge thee for treason in the cause.

Guise. Ah, base Epernoun! were not his highness here,
Thou shouldst perceive the Duke of Guise is mov'd.

Henry. Be patient, Guise, and threat not Epernoun,
Lest thou perceive the king of France be mov'd.

Guise. Why, I'm a prince of the Valois line,
Therefore an enemy to the Bourbonites;
I am a juror in the holy league,
And therefore hated of the Protestants:
What should I do but stand upon my guard?
And, being able, I'll keep an host in pay.

Eper. Thou able to maintain an host in pay,
That liv'st by foreign exhibition!
The Pope and King of Spain are thy good friends;
Else all France knows how poor a duke thou art.

Henry. Ay, those are they that feed him with their gold,
To countermand our will, and check our friends.

Guise. My lord, to speak more plainly, thus it is,
Being animated by religious zeal,
I mean to muster all the power I can,
To overthrow those factious Puritans:
And know, my lord, the Pope will sell his triple crown,
Ay, and the Catholic Philip, king of Spain,
Ere I shall want, will cause his Indians
To rip the golden bowels of America.
Navarre, that cloaks them underneath his wings,
Shall feel the house of Lorraine is his foe.
Your highness needs not fear mine army's force;
'Tis for your safety, and your enemies' wreck.

Henry. Guise, wear our crown, and be thou king of France,
And, as dictator, make or war or peace,
Whilst I cry placet, like a senator!

I cannot brook thy haughty insolence:
Dismiss thy camp, or else by our edict
Be thou proclaim'd a traitor throughout France.

Guise. The choice is hard; I must dissemble.— [Aside.

My lord, in token of my true humility,
And simple meaning to your majesty,
I kiss your grace's hand, and take my leave,
Intending to dislodge my camp with speed.

Henry. Then farewell, Guise; the king and thou are friends.

[Exit Guise.

Eper. But trust him not, my lord; for, had your highness

Seen with what a pomp he enter'd Paris,
And how the citizens with gifts and shows
Did entertain him,
And promised to be at his command—
Nay, they fear'd not to speak in the streets,
That the Guise durst stand in arms against the king,
For not effecting of his holiness' will.

Henry. Did they of Paris entertain him so?

Then means he present treason to our state,
Well, let me alone.—Who's within there?

Enter an Attendant.

Make a discharge of all my council straight,
And I'll subscribe my name, and seal it straight.

[Attendant writes.

My head shall be my council; they are false;
And, Epernoun, I will be rul'd by thee.

Eper. My lord,

I think, for safety of your royal person,
It would be good the Guise were made away,
And so to quite your grace of all suspect.

Henry. First let us set our hand and seal to this,

And then I'll tell thee what I mean to do.— [Writes.
So; convey this to the council presently.

[Exit Attendant.

And, Epernoun, though I seem mild and calm,
Think not but I am tragical within.

I'll secretly convey me unto Blois;
For, now that Paris takes the Guise's part,
Here is no staying for the king of France,
Unless he mean to be betray'd and die:
But, as I live, so sure the Guise shall die.

[Exeunt.

Enter the KING OF NAVARRE, reading a letter, and BARTUS.

Nav. My lord, I am advertised from France
That the Guise hath taken arms against the king,
And that Paris is revolted from his grace.

Bar. Then hath your grace fit opportunity
To show your love unto the king of France,
Offering him aid against his enemies,
Which cannot but be thankfully receiv'd.

Nav. Bartus, it shall be so: post, then, to Franco,
And there salute his highness in our name;
Assure him all the aid we can provide
Against the Guisians and their complices.
Bartus, be gone: commend me to his grace,
And tell him, ere it be long, I'll visit him.

Bar. I will, my lord.

[Exit.

Nav. Pleshé!

Enter PLESHÉ.

Pleshé. My lord!

Nav. Pleshé, go muster up our men with speed,
And let them march away to France amain,
For we must aid the king against the Guise.
Be gone, I say; 'tis time that we were there.

Pleshé. I go, my lord.

[Exit.

Nav. That wicked Guise, I fear me much will be
The ruin of that famous realm of France;
For his aspiring thoughts aim at the crown:
'A takes his vantage on religion,
To plant the Pope and Popelings in the realm,
And bind it wholly to the see of Rome.
But, if that God do prosper mine attempts,
And send us safely to arrive in France,
We'll beat him back, and drive him to his death.
That basely seeks the ruin of his realm.

[Exit.

Enter the Captain of the Guard, and three Murderers.

Cap. Come on, sirs. What, are you resolutely bent,
Hating the life and honour of the Guise?
What, will you not fear, when you see him come?

First Murd. Fear him, said you? tush, were he here, we would kill him presently.

Sec. Murd. O, that his heart were leaping in my hand!

The Massacre at Paris • 321

Third Murd. But when will he come, that we may murder him?

Cap. Well, then, I see you are resolute.

First Murd. Let us alone; I warrant you.

Cap. Then, sirs, take your standings within this chamber;
For anon the Guise will come.

All three Murderers. You will give us our money?

Cap. Ay, ay, fear not: stand close: so; be resolute.

[Exeunt Murderers.]

Now falls the star whose influence governs France,

Whose light was deadly to the Protestants:

Now must he fall, and perish in his height.

Enter KING HENRY and EPERNOUN.

Henry. Now, captain of my guard, are these murderers ready?

Cap. They be, my good lord.

Henry. But are they resolute, and arm'd to kill,

Hating the life and honour of the Guise?

Cap. I warrant ye, my lord. [Exit.]

Henry. Then come, proud Guise, and here disgorge thy breast,

Surcharg'd with surfeit of ambitious thoughts;

Breathe out that life wherein my death was hid,

And end thy endless treasons with thy death.

[Knocking within.]

Guise. [within] Hold, varlet, hé!—Epernoun, where is the king?

Eper. Mounted his royal cabinet.

Guise. [within] I prithee, tell him that the Guise is here.

Eper. An please your grace, the Duke of Guise doth crave
Access unto your highness.

Henry. Let him come in.—

Come, Guise, and see thy traitorous guile outreach'd,
And perish in the pit thou mad'st for me.

Enter GUISE.

Guise. Good morrow to your majesty.

Henry. Good morrow to my loving cousin of Guise:

How fares it this morning with your excellence?

Guise. I heard your majesty was scarcely pleas'd,

That in the court I bare so great a train.

Henry. They were to blame that said I was displeas'd;

322 (Marlowe's Plays

And you, good cousin, to imagine it.
'Twere hard with me, if I should doubt my kin,
Or be suspicious of my dearest friends.
Cousin, assure you I am resolute,
Whatsoever any whisper in mine ears,
Not to suspect disloyalty in thee:

And so, sweet coz, farewell. [Exit with Epernoun.]

Guise. So;

Now sues the king for favour to the Guise,
And all his minions stoop when I command:
Why, this 'tis to have an army in the field.
Now, by the holy sacrament, I swear,
As ancient Romans o'er their captive lords,
So will I triumph o'er this wanton king;
And he shall follow my proud chariot's wheels.
Now do I but begin to look about,
And all my former time was spent in vain.
Hold, sword,
For in thee is the Duke of Guise's hope.

Re-enter Third Murderer.

Villain, why dost thou look so ghastly? speak.

Third Murd. O, pardon me, my Lord of Guise!

Guise. Pardon thee! why, what hast thou done?

Third Murd. O my lord, I am one of them that is set to murder you!

Guise. To murder me, villain!

Third Murd. Ay, my lord: the rest have ta'en their standings in the next room; therefore, good my lord, go not forth.

Guise. Yet Cæsar shall go forth.

Let mean conceits and baser men fear death:

Tut, they are peasants; I am Duke of Guise;

And princes with their looks engender fear.

First Murd. [within] Stand close; he is coming; I know him
by his voice.

Guise. As pale as ashes! nay, then, it is time
To look about.

Enter First and Second Murderers.

First and Sec. Murderers. Down with him, down with him!

[They stab Guise.]

Guise. O, I have my death's wound! give me leave to speak,

Sec. Murd. Then pray to God, and ask forgiveness of the king.

Guise. Trouble me not; I ne'er offended him,
Nor will I ask forgiveness of the king.
O, that I have not power to stay my life,
Nor immortality to be reveng'd!
To die by peasants, what a grief is this!
Ah, Sixtus, be reveng'd upon the king!
Philip and Parma, I am slain for you!
Pope, excommunicate, Philip, depose
The wicked branch of curs'd Valois his line!
Vive la messe! perish Huguenots!
Thus Cæsar did go forth, and thus he died.

[Dies.

Enter the Captain of the Guard.

Cap. What, have you done?
Then stay a while, and I'll go call the king.
But see, where he comes.

Enter KING HENRY, EPERNOUN, and Attendants.

My lord, see, where the Guise is slain.

Henry. Ah, this sweet sight is physic to my soul!
Go fetch his son for to behold his death.—

[Exit an Attendant.

Surcharg'd with guilt of thousand massacres,
Monsieur of Lorraine, sink away to hell!
And, in remembrance of those bloody broils,
To which thou didst allure me, being alive.
And here in presence of you all, I swear,
I ne'er was king of France until this hour.
This is the traitor that hath spent my gold
In making foreign wars and civil broils.
Did he not draw a sort of English priests
From Douay to the seminary at Rheims.
To hatch forth treason 'gainst their natural queen?
Did he not cause the king of Spain's huge fleet
To threaten England, and to menace me?
Did he not injure Monsieur that's deceas'd?
Hath he not made me, in the Pope's defence,
To spend the treasure, that should strength my land,
In civil broils between Navarre and me?
Tush, to be short, he meant to make me monk,
Or else to murder me, and so be king.

Let Christian princes, that shall hear of this,
 (As all the world shall know our Guise is dead),
 Rest satisfied with this, that here I swear,
 Ne'er was there king of France so yok'd as I.
Eper. My lord, here is his son.

Enter GUISE'S SON.

Henry. Boy, look, where your father lies.
G.'s Son. My father slain! who hath done this deed?
Henry. Sirrah, 'twas I that slew him; and will slay
 Thee too, an thou prove such a traitor.
G.'s Son. Art thou king, and hast done this bloody deed?
 I'll be reveng'd. [Offers to throw his dagger.]
Henry. Away to prison with him! I'll clip his wings
 Or e'er he pass my hands. Away with him.
 [Some of the Attendants bear off Guise's Son.]
 But what availeth that this traitor's dead,
 When Duke Dumaine, his brother, is alive,
 And that young cardinal that is grown so proud?
 Go to the governor of Orleans,
 And will him, in my name, to kill the duke.
 [To the Captain of the Guard.]
 Get you away, and strangle the cardinal.

[To the Murderers.]

[Exeunt Captain of the Guard and Murderers.]

These two will make one entire Duke of Guise,
 Especially with our old mother's help.
Eper. My lord, see, where she comes, as if she droop'd
 To hear these news.
Henry. And let her droop; my heart is light enough.

Enter CATHERINE the QUEEN-MOTHER.

Mother, how like you this device of mine?
 I slew the Guise, because I would be king.
Cath. King! why, so thou wert before:
 Pray God thou be a king now this is done!
Henry. Nay, he was king, and countermanded me:
 But now I will be king, and rule myself,
 And make the Guisians stoop that are alive.
Cath. I cannot speak for grief.—When thou wast born,
 I would that I had murder'd thee, my son!
 My son! thou art a changeling, not my son:
 I curse thee, and exclaim thee miscreant,

Traitor to God and to the realm of France!

Henry. Cry out, exclaim, howl till thy throat be hoarse!

The Guise is slain, and I rejoice therefore:

And now will I to arms.—Come, Epernoun,

And let her grieve her heart out, if she will.

[Exit with Epernoun.]

Cath. Away! leave me alone to meditate.

[Exeunt Attendants.]

Sweet Guise, would he had died, so thou wert here!

To whom shall I bewray my secrets now,

Or who will help to build religion?

The Protestants will glory and insult;

Wicked Navarre will get the crown of France;

The Popedom cannot stand; all goes to wreck;

And all for thee, my Guise! What may I do?

But sorrow seize upon my toiling soul!

For, since the Guise is dead, I will not live.

[Exit.]

Enter two Murderers, dragging in the CARDINAL.

Card. Murder me not; I am a cardinal.

First Murd. Wert thou the Pope, thou mightst not 'scape from us.

Card. What, will you file your hands with churchmen's blood?

Sec. Murd. Shed your blood! O Lord, no! for we intend to strangle you.

Card. Then there is no remedy, but I must die?

First Murd. No remedy; therefore prepare yourself.

Card. Yet lives my brother Duke Dumaine, and many more,

To revenge our death upon that cursed king;

Upon whose heart may all the Furies gripe,

And with their paws drench his black soul in hell!

First Murd. Yours, my Lord Cardinal, you should have said.—

[They strangle him.]

So, pluck amain:

He is hard-hearted; therefore pull with violence.

Come, take him away.

[Exeunt with the body.]

Enter DUMAINE, reading a letter; with others.

Dum. My noble brother murder'd by the king!

O, what may I do for to revenge thy death?

The king's alone, it cannot satisfy.

Sweet Duke of Guise, our prop to lean upon,

Now thou art dead, here is no stay for us.

I am thy brother, and I'll revenge thy death,
 And root Valois his line from forth of France;
 And beat proud Bourbon to his native home,
 That basely seeks to join with such a king,
 Whose murderous thoughts will be his overthrow.
 He will'd the governor of Orleans, in his name,
 That I with speed should have been put to death;
 But that's prevented, for to end his life,
 And all those traitors to the Church of Rome
 That durst attempt to murder noble Guise.

Enter Friar.

Fri. My lord, I come to bring you news that your brother the Cardinal of Lorraine, by the king's consent, is lately strangled to death.

Dum. My brother [the] Cardinal slain, and I alive?
 O words of power to kill a thousand men!—
 Come, let us away, and levy men;
 'Tis war that must assuage this tyrant's pride.

Fri. My lord, hear me but speak.

I am a friar of the order of the Jacobins,
 That for my conscience' sake will kill the king.

Dum. But what doth move thee, above the rest, to do the deed?

Fri. O, my lord, I have been a great sinner in my days! and the deed is meritorious.

Dum. But how wilt thou get opportunity?

Fri. Tush, my lord, let me alone for that.

Dum. Friar, come with me;

We will go talk more of this within.

[Exeunt.]

Drums and Trumpets. Enter KING HENRY, the KING OF NAVARRE, EPERNOUN, BARTUS, PLESHE, Soldiers, and Attendants.

Henry. Brother of Navarre, I sorrow much
 That ever I was prov'd your enemy,
 And that the sweet and princely mind you bear
 Was ever troubled with injurious wars.
 I vow, as I am lawful King of France,
 To recompense your reconciled love
 With all the honours and affections
 That ever I vouchsaf'd my dearest friends.

Nav. It is enough if that Navarre may be

The Massacre at Paris , 327

Esteemed faithful to the King of France,
Whose service he may still command till death.

Henry. Thanks to my kingly brother of Navarre.
Then here we'll lie before Lutetia walls,
Girting this strumpet city with our siege,
Till, surfeiting with our afflicting arms,
She cast her hateful stomach to the earth.

Enter a Messenger.

Mes. An it please your majesty, here is a friar of the order of the Jacobins, sent from the President of Paris, that craves access unto your grace.

Henry. Let him come in. [Exit Mess.]

Enter Friar, with a letter.

Eper. I like not this friar's look:

'Twere not amiss, my lord, if he were search'd.

Henry. Sweet Epernoun, our friars are holy men,
And will not offer violence to their king,
For all the wealth and treasure of the world.—
Friar, thou dost acknowledge me thy king?

Fri. Ay, my good lord, and will die therein.

Henry. Then come thou near, and tell what news thou bring'st.

Fri. My lord,

The President of Paris greets your grace
And sends his duty by these speedy lines,
Humbly craving your gracious reply. [Gives letter.]

Henry. I'll read them, friar, and then I'll answer thee.

Fri. Sancie Jacobe, now have mercy upon me!

[Stabs the king with a knife, as he reads the letter; and then the king gets the knife, and kills him.]

Eper. O, my lord, let him live a while!

Henry. No, let the villain die, and feel in hell
Just torments for his treachery.

Nav. What, is your highness hurt?

Henry. Yes, Navarre; but not to death, I hope.

Nav. God shield your grace from such a sudden death!—

Go call a surgeon hither straight.

[Exit an Attendant.]

Henry. What irreligious pagans' parts be these,
Of such as hold them of the holy church!

Take hence that damned villain from my sight.

[Attendants carry out the Friar's body.]

Eper. Ah, had your highness let him live,

We might have punish'd him to his deserts!

Henry. Sweet Epernoun, all rebels under heaven

Shall take example by his punishment,

How they bear arms against their sovereign.—

Go call the English agent hither straight:

[Exit an Attendant.]

I'll send my sister England news of this,

And give her warning of her treacherous foes.

Enter a Surgeon.

Nav. Pleaseth your grace to let the surgeon search your wound?

Henry. The wound, I warrant ye, is deep, my lord.—

Search, surgeon, and resolve me what thou see'st.

[The Surgeon searches the wound.]

Enter the English Agent.

Agent for England, send thy mistress word

What this detested Jacobin hath done.

Tell her, for all this, that I hope to live;

Which if I do, the papal monarch goes

To wreck, and [th'] antichristian kingdom falls:

These bloody hands shall tear his triple crown,

And fire accursed Rome about his ears;

I'll fire his crazed buildings, and enforce

The papal towers to kiss the lowly earth.—

Navarre, give me thy hand: I here do swear

To ruinate that wicked Church of Rome,

That hatcheth up such bloody practices;

And here protest eternal love to thee,

And to the Queen of England specially,

Whom God hath bless'd for hating papistry.

Nav. These words revive my thoughts, and comfort me,

To see your highness in this virtuous mind,

Henry. Tell me, surgeon, shall I live?

Surg. Alas, my lord, the wound is dangerous,

For you are stricken with a poison'd knife!

Henry. A poison'd knife! what, shall the French king die,

Wounded and poison'd both at once?

The Massacre at Paris , 329

Eper. O, that

That damned villain were alive again,
That we might torture him with some new-found death!

Bar. He died a death too good:

The devil of hell torture his wicked soul!

Henry. Ah, curse him not, sith he is dead!—

O, the fatal poison works within my breast!—

Tell me, surgeon, and flatter not—may I live?

Surg. Alas, my lord, your highness cannot live!

Nav. Surgeon, why say'st thou so? the king may live.

Henry. O, no, Navarre! thou must be king of France!

Nav. Long may you live, and still be King of France.

Eper. Or else, die Epernoun!

Henry. Sweet Epernoun, thy king must die.—My lords,

Fight in the quarrel of this valiant prince,

For he's your lawful king, and my next heir;

Valois's line ends in my tragedy.

Now let the house of Bourbon wear the crown;

And may it ne'er end in blood, as mine hath done!—

Weep not, sweet Navarre, but revenge my death.—

Ah, Epernoun, is this thy love to me?

Henry, thy king, wipes off these childish tears,

And bids thee whet thy sword on Sixtus' bones,

That it may keenly slice the Catholics.

He loves me not [the most] that sheds most tears,

But he that makes most lavish of his blood.

Fire Paris, where these treacherous rebels lurk.—

I die, Navarre; come bear me to my sepulchre.

Salute the Queen of England in my name,

And tell her, Henry dies her faithful friend.

[Dies.

Nav. Come, lords, take up the body of the king,

That we may see it honourably interr'd:

And then I vow so to revenge his death

As Rome, and all those popish prelates there,

Shall curse the time that e'er Navarre was king,

And rul'd in France by Henry's fatal death.

[They march out, with the body of King Henry lying on four men's shoulders, with a dead march, drawing weapons on the ground.]

Jup. Come, gentle Ganymede, and play with me;
I love thee well, say Juno what she will.

Gan. I am much better for your worthless love,
That will not shield me from her shrewish blows!
To day, whenas I fill'd into your cups,
And held the cloth of pleasance whiles you drank,
She reach'd me such a rap for that I spill'd,
As made the blood run down about mine ears.

Jup. What, dares she strike the darling of my thoughts?
By Saturn's soul, and this earth-threatening hair,
That, shaken thrice, makes nature's buildings quake,
I vow, if she but once frown on thee more,
To hang her, meteor like, 'twixt heaven and earth,
And bind her, hand and foot, with golden cords,
As once I did for harming Hercules!

Gan. Might I but see that pretty sport a-foot,
O, how would I with Helen's brother laugh,

Dido, Queen of Carthage , 331

And bring the gods to wonder at the game!
Sweet Jupiter, if e'er I pleas'd thine eye,
Or seemed fair, wall'd-in with eagle's wings,
Grace my immortal beauty with this boon,
And I will spend my time in thy bright arms.

Jup. What is't, sweet wag, I should deny thy youth?
Whose face reflects such pleasure to mine eyes,
As I, exhal'd with thy fire-darting beams,
Have oft driven back the horses of the Night,
Whenas they would have hal'd thee from my sight.
Sit on my knee, and call for thy content,
Control proud Fate, and cut the thread of Time:
Why, are not all the gods at thy command,
And heaven and earth the bounds of thy delight?
Vulcan shall dance to make thee laughing sport,
And my nine daughters sing when thou art sad;
From Juno's bird I'll pluck her spotted pride,
To make thee fans wherewith to cool thy face;
And Venus' swans shall shed their silver down,
To sweeten out the slumbers of thy bed;
Hermes no more shall show the world his wings,
If that thy fancy in his feathers dwell,
But, as this one, I'll tear them all from him.
[Plucks a feather from Hermes' wings.]
Do thou but say, "their colour pleaseth me."
Hold here, my little love; these linked gems.
[Gives jewels.]

My Juno ware upon her marriage-day,
Put thou about thy neck, my own sweet heart,
And trick thy arms and shoulders with my theft.

Gan. I would have a jewel for mine ear,
And a fine brooch to put in my hat,
And then I'll hug with you an hundred times.

Jup. And shalt have, Ganymede, if thou wilt be my love.

Enter VENUS.

Ven. Ay, this is it: you can sit toying there,
And playing with that female wanton boy,
Whiles my Æneas wanders on the seas,
And rests a prey to every billow's pride.
Juno, false Juno, in her chariot's pomp,
Drawn through the heavens by steeds of Boreas' brood,
Made Hebe to direct her airy wheels

Into the windy country of the clouds;
Where, finding Æolus entrench'd with storms,
And guarded with a thousand grisly ghosts,
She humbly did beseech him for our bane,
And charg'd him drown my son with all his train.
Then gan the winds break ope their brazen doors,
And all Æolia to be up in arms:

Poor Troy must now be sack'd upon the sea,
And Neptune's waves be envious men of war;
Epeus' horse, to Ætna's hill transform'd,
Prepared stands to wreck their wooden walls;
And Æolus, like Agamemnon, sounds
The surges, his fierce soldiers, to the spoil:
See how the night, Ulysses-like, comes forth,
And intercepts the day, as Dolon erst!
Ay, me! the stars surpris'd, like Rhesus' steeds,
Are drawn by darkness forth Astræus' tents.
What shall I do to save thee, my sweet boy?
Whenas the waves do threat our crystal world,
And Proteus, raising hills of floods on high,
Intends, ere long, to sport him in the sky.
False Jupiter, reward'st thou virtue so?
What, is not piety exempt from woe?
Then die, Æneas, in thine innocence,
Since that religion hath no recompense.

Jup. Content thee, Cytherea, in thy care,
Since thy Æneas' wandering fate is firm,
Whose weary limbs shall shortly make repose
In those fair walls I promis'd him of yore.
But, first, in blood must his good fortune bud,
Before he be the lord of Turnus' town,
Or force her smile that hitherto hath frown'd:
Three winters shall he with the Rutiles war,
And, in the end, subdue them with his sword;
And full three summers likewise shall he waste
In managing those fierce barbarian minds;
Which once perform'd, poor Troy, so long suppress'd,
From forth her ashes shall advance her head,
And flourish once again, that erst was dead.
But bright Ascanius, beauty's better work,
Who with the sun divides one radiant shape,
Shall build his throne amidst those starry towers
That earth-born Atlas, groaning, underprops:

No bounds, but heaven, shall bound his empery,
Whose azur'd gates enchased with his name,
Shall make the Morning haste her grey uprise,
To feed her eyes with his engraven fame.
Thus, in stout Hector's race, three hundred years
The Roman sceptre royal shall remain,
Till that a princess-priest conceiv'd by Mars,
Shall yield to dignity a double birth,
Who will eternish Troy in their attempts.

Ven. How may I credit these thy flattering terms,
When both sea and sands beset their ships,
And Phœbus, as in Stygian pools, refrains
To taint his tresses in the Tyrrhene main?

Jup. I will take order for that presently.—
Hermes, awake! and haste to Neptune's realm,
Whereas the wind-god, warring now with fate,
Besiege[s] th' offspring of our kingly loins:
Charge him from me to turn his stormy powers,
And fetter them in Vulcan's sturdy brass,
That darst thus proudly wrong our kinsman's peace.

[Exit Hermes.]

Venus, farewell; thy son shall be our care.—
Come, Ganymede, we must about this gear.

[Exeunt Jupiter and Ganymede.]

Ven. Disquiet seas, lay down your swelling looks,
And court Æneas with your calmy cheer,
Whose beauteous burden well might make you proud,
Had not the heavens, conceived with hell-born clouds
Veil'd his resplendent glory from your view:
For my sake, pity him, Oceanus,
That erstwhile issu'd from thy watery loins,
And had my being from thy bubbling froth.
Triton, I know, hath fill'd his trump with Troy,
And therefore will take pity on his toil,
And call both Thetis and Cymodoce
To succour him in this extremity.

Enter ÆNEAS, ASCANIUS, ACHATES, and others.

What, do I see my son now come on shore?
Venus, how art thou compass'd with content,
The while thine eyes attract their sought-for joys!
Great Jupiter, still honour'd may'st thou be
For this no friendly aid in time of need!

Here in this bush disguised will I stand,
 Whiles my Æneas spends himself in plaints,
 And heaven and earth with his unrest acquaints.

Æn. You sons of care, companions of my course,
 Priam's misfortune follows us by sea,
 And Helen's rape doth haunt ye at the heels.
 How many dangers have we overpass'd!
 Both barking Scylla, and the sounding rocks,
 The Cyclops' shelves, and grim Ceraunia's seat,
 Have you o'ergone, and yet remain alive.
 Pluck up your hearts, since Fate still rests our friend,
 And changing heavens may those good days return,
 Which Pergama did vaunt in all her pride.

Ach. Brave prince of Troy, thou only art our god,
 That by thy virtues free'st us from annoy,
 And mak'st our hopes survive to coming joys:
 Do thou but smile, and cloudy heaven will clear,
 Whose night and day descendeth from thy brows,
 Though we be now in extreme misery,
 And rest the map of weather-beaten woe,
 Yet shall the aged sun shed forth his hair,
 To make us live unto our former heat,
 And every beast the forest doth send forth
 Bequeath her young ones to our scantied food.

Asc. Father, I faint; good father, give me meat.

Æn. Alas, sweet boy, thou must be still a while.
 Till we have fire to dress the meat we kill'd!—
 Gentle Achates, reach the tinder box,
 That we may make a fire to warm us with,
 And roast our new found victuals on this shore.

Ven. See, what strange arts necessity finds out!
 How near, my sweet Æneas, art thou driven!

[Aside,

Æn. Hold; take this candle, and go light a fire;
 You shall have leaves and windful boughs enow,
 Near to these woods, to roast you meat withal,—
 Ascanius, go and dry thy drenched limbs,
 Whiles I with my Achates rove abroad,
 To know what coast the wind hath driven us on,
 Or whether men or beasts inhabit it.

[Exeunt Ascanius and others,

Ach. The air is pleasant, and the soil most fit
 For cities and society's supports;
 Yet much I marvel that I cannot find

No steps of men imprinted in the earth.

Ven. Now is the time for me to play my part.— [Aside,

Ho, young men! saw you, as you came,
Any of all my sisters wandering here,
Having a quiver girded to her side,
And clothed in a spotted leopard's skin?

Æn. I neither saw nor heard of any such.

But what may I, fair virgin, call your name,
Whose looks set forth no mortal form to view,
Nor speech bewrays aught human in thy birth?
Thou art a goddess that delud'st our eyes,
And shroud'st thy beauty in this borrow'd shape;
But whether thou the Sun's bright sister be,
Or one of chaste Diana's fellow nymphs,
Live happy in the height of all content,
And lighten our extremes with this one boon,
As to instruct us under what good heaven
We breathe as now, and what this world is call'd
On which by tempests' fury we are cast:

Tell us, O, tell us, that are ignorant!
And this right hand shall make thy altars crack
With mountain-heaps of milk-white sacrifice.

Ven. Such honour, stranger, do I not affect:

It is the use for Tyrian maids to wear
Their bow and quiver in this modest sort,
And suit themselves in purple for the nonce,
That they may trip more lightly o'er the lawnds,
And overtake the tusked boar in chase.
But for the land whereof thou dost inquire,
It is the Punic kingdom, rich and strong,
Adjoining on Agenor's stately town,
The kingly seat of Southern Libya,
Whereas Sidonian Dido rules as queen.

But what are you that ask of me these things?
Whence may you come, or whither will you go?

Æn. Of Troy am I, Æneas is my name;

Who, driven by war from forth my native world,
Put sails to sea to seek out Italy;
And my divine descent from sceptred Jove:
With twice twelve Phrygian ships I plough'd the deep,
And made that way my mother Venus led;
But of all them scarce seven do anchor safe,
And they so wreck'd and welter'd by the waves,

As every tide tilts 'twixt their oaken sides;
 And all of them, unburden'd of their load,
 Are ballasted with billows' watery weight.
 But hapless I, God wot, poor and unknown,
 Do trace these Libyan deserts, all despis'd,
 Exil'd forth Europe and wide Asia both,
 And have not any coverture but heaven.

Ven. Fortune hath favour'd thee, whate'er thou be,
 In sending thee unto this courteous coast.
 A' God's name, on! and haste thee to the court,
 Where Dido will receive ye with her smiles:
 And for thy ships, which thou supposest lost,
 Not one of them hath perish'd in the storm,
 But are arrived safe, not far from hence:
 And so, I leave thee to thy fortune's lot,
 Wishing good luck unto thy wandering steps.

[Exit.

Æn. Achates, 'tis my mother that is fled;
 I know her by the movings of her feet.—
 Stay, gentle Venus, fly not from thy son!
 Too cruel, why wilt thou forsake me thus,
 Or in these shades deceiv'st mine eyes so oft?
 Why talk we not together hand in hand,
 And tell our griefs in more familiar terms?
 But thou art gone, and leav'st me here alone
 To dull the air with my discursive moan.

[Exeunt.

Enter IARBAS, followed by ILIONEUS, CLOANTHUS, SERGESTUS, and others.

Ili. Follow, ye Trojans, follow this brave lord,
 And plain to him the sum of your distress.

Iar. Why, what are you, or wherefore do you sue?

Ili. Wretches of Troy, envied of all the winds,
 That crave such favour at your honour's feet,
 As poor distressed misery may plead:
 Save, save, O, save our ships from cruel fire,
 That do complain the wounds of thousand waves,
 And spare our lives, whom every spite pursues!
 We come not, we, to wrong your Libyan gods,
 Or steal your household Lares from their shrines;
 Our hands are not prepar'd to lawless spoil,
 Nor armed to offend in any kind;
 Such force is far from our unweapon'd thoughts,
 Whose fading weal, of victory forsook,

Forbids all hope to harbour near our hearts.

Iar. But tell me, Trojans, Trojans if you be,
Unto what fruitful quarters were ye bound,
Before that Boreas buckled with your sails?

Clo. There is a place, Hesperia term'd by us,
An ancient empire, famoused for arms,
And fertile in fair Ceres' furrow'd wealth,
Which now we call Italia, of his name
That in such peace long time did rule the same.
Thither made we;

When, suddenly, gloomy Orion rose,
And led our slips into the shallow sands,
Whereas the southern wind with brackish breath,
Dispers'd them all amongst the wreckful rocks:
From thence a few of us escap'd to land;
The rest, we fear, are folded in the floods.

Iar. Brave men-at-arms, abandon fruitless fears,
Since Carthage knows to entertain distress.

Serg. Ay, but the barbarous sort do threat our steps,
And will not let us lodge upon the sands;
In multitudes they swarm unto the shore,
And from the first earth interdict our feet.

Iar. Myself will see they shall not trouble ye:
Your men and you shall banquet in our court,
And every Trojan be as welcome here
As Jupiter to silly Baucis' house.
Come in with me; I'll bring you to my queen.
Who shall confirm my words with further deeds.

Serg. Thanks, gentle lord, for such unlook'd-for grace:

Might we but once more see Æneas' face,
Then would we hope to quite such friendly turns,
As shall surpass the wonder of our speech. [Exeunt.

ACT II

Enter ÆNEAS, ACHATES, ASCANIUS, and others.

Æn. Where am I now? these should be Carthage walls.

Ach. Why stands my sweet Æneas thus amaz'd?

Æn. O my Achates, Theban Niobe,
Who for her sons' death wept out life and breath,
And, dry with grief, was turn'd into a stone,
Had not such passions in her head as I!

Methinks,

That town there should be Troy, yon Ida's hill,
There Xanthus' stream, because here's Priamus;
And when I know it is not, then I die.

Ach. And in this humour is Achates too;
I cannot choose but fall upon my knees,
And kiss his hand. O, where is Hecuba?
Here she was wont to sit; but, saving air,
Is nothing here; and what is this but stone?

Æn. O, yet this stone doth make Æneas weep!
And would my prayers (as Pygmalion's did)
Could give it life, that under his conduct
We might sail back to Troy, and be reveng'd
On these hard-hearted Grecians which rejoice
That nothing now is left of Priamus!
O, Priamus is left, and this is he!
Come, come aboard; pursue the hateful Greeks.

Ach. What means Æneas?

Æn. Achates, though mine eyes say this is stone,
Yet thinks my mind that this is Priamus;
And when my grieved heart sighs and says no,
Then would it leap out to give Priam life.—
O, were I not at all, so thou mightst be!—
Achates, see, King Priam wags his hand!
He is alive; Troy is not overcome!

Ach. Thy mind, Æneas, that would have it so,
Deludes thy eyesight; Priamus is dead.

Æn. Ah, Troy is sack'd, and Priamus is dead!
And why should poor Æneas be alive?

Asc. Sweet father, leave to weep; this is not he,
For, were it Priam, he would smile on me.

Ach. Æneas, see, here come the citizens:
Leave to lament, lest they laugh at our fears.

Enter CLOANTHUS, SERGESTUS, ILIONEUS, and others.

Æn. Lords of this town, or whatsoever style
Belongs unto your name, vouchsafe of ruth
To tell us who inhabits this fair town,
What kind of people, and who governs them;
For we are strangers driven on this shore,
And scarcely know within what clime we are.

Ili. I hear Æneas' voice, but see him not,
For none of these can be our general.

Ach. Like Ilioneus, speaks this nobleman,

But Ilioneus goes not in such robes.

Serg. You are Achates, or I [am] deceiv'd.

Ach. Æneas, see, Sergestus, or his ghost!

Ili. He names Æneas; let us kiss his feet.

Clo. It is our captain; see, Ascanius!

Serg. Live long Æneas and Ascanius!

Æn. Achates, speak, for I am overjoy'd.

Ach. O Ilioneus, art thou yet alive?

Ili. Blest be the time I see Achates' face!

Clo. Why turns Æneas from his trusty friends?

Æn. Sergestus, Ilioneus, and the rest,

Your sight amaz'd me. O, what destinies

Have brought my sweet companions in such plight?

O, tell me, for I long to be resolv'd!

Ili. Lovely Æneas, these are Carthage walls;

And here Queen Dido wears th' imperial crown.

Who for Troy's sake hath entertain'd us all,

And clad us in these wealthy robes we wear.

Oft hath she ask'd us under whom we serv'd;

And, when we told her, she would weep for grief,

Thinking the sea had swallow'd up thy ships;

And, now she sees thee, how will she rejoice!

Serg. See, where her servitors pass through the hall

Bearing a banquet: Dido is not far.

Ili. Look, where she comes; Æneas, view her well.

Æn. Well may I view her; but she sees not me.

Enter DIDO, ANNA, IARBAS, and train.

Dido. What stranger art thou, that dost eye me thus?

Æn. Sometime I was a Trojan, mighty queen;

But Troy is not:—what shall I say I am?

Ili. Renowned Dido, 'tis our general,

Warlike Æneas.

Dido. Warlike Æneas, and in these base robes!—

Go fetch the garment which Sichæus ware.—

[Exit an Attendant who brings in the garment, which Æneas puts on.]

Brave prince, welcome to Carthage and to me,

Both happy that Æneas is our guest.

Sit in this chair, and banquet with a queen:

Æneas is Æneas, were he clad

In weeds as bad as ever Irus ware.

Æn. This is no seat for one that's comfortless:

May it please your grace to let Æneas wait;
For though my birth be great, my fortune's mean,
Too mean to be companion to a queen.

Dido. Thy fortune may be greater than thy birth:

Sit down, Æneas, sit in Dido's place;
And, if this be thy son, as I suppose,
Here let him sit.—Be merry, lovely child.

An. This place beseems me not; O pardon me!

Dido. I'll have it so; Æneas, be content.

Asc. Madam, you shall be my mother.

Dido. And so I will, sweet child.—Be merry, man:

Here's to thy better fortune and good stars. [Drinks

Æn. In all humility, I thank your grace.

Dido. Remember who thou art; speak like thyself:

Humility belongs to common grooms.

Æn. And who so miserable as Æneas is?

Dido. Lies it in Dido's hands to make thee blest?

Then be assur'd thou art not miserable.

Æn. O Priamus, O Troy, O Hecuba!

Dido. May I entreat thee to discourse at large,

And truly too, how Troy was overcome?

For many tales go of that city's fall,

And scarcely do agree upon one point:

Some say Antenor did betray the town;

Others report 'twas Sinon's perjury;

But all in this, that Troy is overcome,

And Priam dead; yet how, we hear no news.

Æn. A woful tale bids Dido to unfold,

Whose memory, like pale Death's stony mace,

Beats forth my senses from this troubled soul,

And makes Æneas sink at Dido's feet.

Dido. What, faints Æneas to remember Troy,

In whose defence he fought so valiantly?

Look up, and speak.

Æn. Then speak, Æneas, with Achilles' tongue:

And, Dido, and you Carthaginian peers,

Hear me; but yet with Myrmidons' harsh ears,

Daily inur'd to broils and massacres,

Lest you be mov'd too much with my sad tale.

The Grecian soldiers, tir'd with ten years' war,

Began to cry, "Let us unto our ships,

Troy is invincible, why stay we here?"

With whose outcries Atrides being appall'd,
Summon'd the captains to his princely tent;
Who, looking on the scars we Trojans gave,
Seeing the number of their men decreas'd,
And the remainder weak and out of heart,
Gave up their voices to dislodge the camp,
And so in troops all march'd to Tenedos:
Where when they came, Ulysses on the sand
Assay'd with honey words to turn them back;
And, as he spoke, to further his intent,
The winds did drive huge billows to the shore,
And heaven was darken'd with tempestuous clouds;
Then he alleg'd the gods would have them stay,
And prophesied Troy should be overcome:
And therewithal he call'd false Sinon forth,
A man compact of craft and perjury,
Whose ticing tongue was made of Hermes' pipe,
To force an hundred watchful eyes to sleep;
And him, Epeus having made the horse,
With sacrificing wreaths upon his head,
Ulysses sent to our unhappy town;
Who, grovelling in the mire of Xanthus' banks,
His hands bound at his back, and both his eyes
Turn'd up to heaven, as one resolv'd to die,
Our Phrygian shepherd[s] hal'd within the gates,
And brought unto the court of Priamus;
To whom he us'd action so pitiful,
Looks so remorseful, vows so forcible,
As therewithal the old man overcome,
Kiss'd him, embrac'd him, and unloos'd his bands:
And then—O Dido, pardon me!
Dido. Nay, leave not here; resolve me of the rest.
Æn. O, the enchanting words of that base slave
Made him to think Epeus' pine-tree horse
A sacrifice t' appease Minerva's wrath!
The rather, for that one Laocoon,
Breaking a spear upon his hollow breast,
Was with two winged serpents stung to death.
Whereat aghast, we were commanded straight
With reverence to draw it into Troy:
In which unhappy work was I employ'd;
These hands did help to hale it to the gates,
Through which it could not enter, 'twas so huge,—

O, had it never enter'd, Troy had stood !
 But Priamus, impatient of delay,
 Enforc'd a wide breach in that rampir'd wall
 Which thousand battering-rams could never pierce,
 And so came in this fatal instrument:
 At whose accursed feet, as overjoy'd,
 We banqueted, till, overcome with wine,
 Some surfeited, and others soundly slept.
 Which Sinon viewing, caus'd the Greekish spies
 To haste to Tenedos, and tell the camp:
 Then he unlock'd the horse; and suddenly,
 From out his entrails, Neoptolemus,
 Setting his spear upon the ground, leapt forth,
 And, after him, a thousand Grecians more,
 In whose stern faces shin'd the quenchless fire
 That after burnt the pride of Asia.
 By this, the camp was come unto the walls,
 And through the breach did march into the streets,
 Where, meeting with the rest, " Kill, kill ! " they cried.
 Frighted with this confused noise, I rose,
 And, looking from a turret, might behold
 Young infants swimming in their parents' blood,
 Headless carcasses piled up in heaps,
 Virgins half-dead, dragg'd by their golden hair,
 And with main force flung on a ring of pikes,
 Old men with swords thrust through their aged sides,
 Kneeling for mercy to a Greekish lad,
 Who with steel pole-axes dash'd out their brains.
 Then buckled I mine armour, drew my sword.
 And thinking to go down, came Hector's ghost,
 With ashy visage, blueish sulphur eyes,
 His arms torn from his shoulders, and his breast
 Furrow'd with wounds, and, that which made me weep,
 Thongs at his heels, by which Achilles' horse
 Drew him in triumph through the Greekish camp,
 Burst from the earth, crying " Æneas, fly !
 Troy is a-fire, the Grecians have the town ! "

Dido. O Hector, who weeps not to hear thy name ?

Æn. Yet flung I forth, and, desperate of my life,
 Ran in the thickest throngs, and with this sword
 Sent many of their savage ghosts to hell.
 At last came Pyrrhus, fell and full of ire,
 His harness dropping blood, and on his spear

The mangled head of Priam's youngest son;
And, after him, his band of Myrmidons,
With balls of wild-fire in their murdering paws,
Which made the funeral flame that burnt fair Troy:
All which hemm'd me about, crying, " This is he! "

Dido. Ah, how could poor Æneas scape their hands?

Æn. My mother Venus, jealous of my health,
Convey'd me from their crooked nets and bands;
So I escap'd the furious Pyrrhus' wrath:
Who then ran to the palace of the king,
And at Jove's altar finding Priamus,
About whose wither'd neck hung Hecuba,
Folding his hand in hers, and jointly both
Beating their breasts, and falling on the ground,
He, with his falchion's point rais'd up at once,
And with Megæra's eyes, star'd in their face,
Threatening a thousand deaths at every glance:
To whom the aged king thus, trembling, spoke;
" Achilles' son, remember what I was,
Father of fifty sons, but they are slain;
Lord of my fortune, but my fortune's turn'd;
King of this city, but my Troy is fir'd;
And now am neither father, lord, nor king:
Yet who so wretched but desires to live?
O, let me live, great Neoptolemus! "
Not mov'd at all, but smiling at his tears,
This butcher, whilst his hands were yet held up,
Treading upon his breast, struck off his hands.

Dido. O, end, Æneas! I can hear no more.

Æn. At which the frantic queen leap'd on his face,
And in his eyelids hanging by the nails,
A little while prolong'd her husband's life.
At last, the soldiers pull'd her by the heels,
And swung her howling in the empty air,
Which sent an echo to the wounded king:
Whereat he lifted up his bed-rid limbs,
And would have grappled with Achilles' son,
Forgetting both his want of strength and hands;
Which he disdainng, whisk'd his sword about,
And with the wind thereof the king fell down;
Then from the navel to the throat at once
He ripp'd old Priam; at whose latter gasp
Jove's marble statue gan to bend the brow,

As loathing Pyrrhus for this wicked act.
 Yet he, undaunted, took his father's flag,
 And dipp'd it in the old king's chill-cold blood,
 And then in triumph ran into the streets,
 Through which he could not pass for slaughter'd men;
 So, leaning on his sword, he stood stone still,
 Viewing the fire wherewith rich Ilion burnt.
 By this, I got my father on my back,
 This young boy in mine arms, and by the hand
 Led fair Creusa, my beloved wife;
 When thou, Achates, with thy sword mad'st way,
 And we were round environ'd with the Greeks:
 O, there I lost my wife! and, had not we
 Fought manfully, I had not told this tale.
 Yet manhood would not serve; of force we fled;
 And, as we went unto our ships, thou know'st
 We saw Cassandra sprawling in the streets,
 Whom Ajax ravish'd in Diana's fane,
 Her cheeks swollen with sighs, her hair all rent;
 Whom I took up to bear unto our ships:
 But suddenly the Grecians follow'd us,
 And I, alas, was forc'd to let her lie!
 Then got we to our ships, and, being aboard,
 Polyxena cried out, "Æneas, stay!
 The Greeks pursue me; stay, and take me in!"
 Mov'd with her voice, I leap'd into the sea,
 Thinking to bear her on my back aboard,
 For all our ships were launch'd into the deep,
 And, so I swom, she, standing on the shore,
 Was by the cruel Myrmidons surpris'd
 And, after that, by Pyrrhus sacrific'd.

Dido. I die with melting ruth; Æneas, leave.
Anna. O, what became of aged Hecuba?
Iar. How got Æneas to the fleet again?
Dido. But how scap'd Helen, she that caus'd this war?
Æn. Achates, speak; sorrow hath tir'd me quite.
Ach. What happen'd to the queen we cannot show;
 We hear they led her captive into Greece:
 As for Æneas, he swom quickly back;
 And Helena betray'd Deiphobus,
 Her lover, after Alexander died,
 And so was reconcil'd to Menelaus.

Dido. O, had that ticing strumpet ne'er been born!—

Trojan, thy ruthful tale hath made me sad:
Come, let us think upon some pleasing sport,
To rid me from these melancholy thoughts.

[Exeunt all except Ascanius, whom Venus, entering with Cupid at another door, takes by the sleeve as he is going off.]

Ven. Fair child, stay thou with Dido's waiting maid:
I'll give thee sugar almonds, sweet conserves,
A silver girdle, and a golden purse,
And this young prince shall be thy playfellow.

Asc. Are you Queen Dido's son?

Cup. Ay; and my mother gave me this fine bow.

Asc. Shall I have such a quiver and a bow?

Ven. Such bow, such quiver, and such golden shafts,
Will Dido give to sweet Ascanius.

For Dido's sake I take thee in my arms,
And stick these spangled feathers in thy hat:
Eat comfits in mine arms, and I will sing.

[Sings.]

Now is he fast asleep; and in this grove,
Amongst green brakes, I'll lay Ascanius,
And strew him with sweet-smelling violets,
Blushing roses, purple hyacinths:
These milk-white doves shall be his centroncls,
Who, if that any seek to do him hurt,
Will quickly fly to Cytherea's fist.

Now, Cupid, turn thee to Ascanius' shape,
And go to Dido, who, instead of him,
Will set thee on her lap, and play with thee:
Then touch her white breast with this arrow head,
That she may dote upon Æneas' love,
And by that means repair his broken ships,
Victual his soldiers, give him wealthy gifts,
And he, at last, depart to Italy,
Or else in Carthage make his kingly throne.

Cup. I will, fair mother; and so play my part
As every touch shall wound Queen Dido's heart.

[Exit.]

Ven. Sleep, my sweet nephew, in these cooling shades,
Free from the murmur of these running streams,
The cry of beasts, the rattling of the winds,
Or whisking of these leaves: all shall be still,
And nothing interrupt thy quiet sleep,
Till I return, and take thee hence again.

[Exit.]

ACT III

Enter CUPID as ASCANIUS.

Cup. Now, Cupid, cause the Carthaginian queen
To be enamour'd of thy brother's looks;
Convey this golden arrow in thy sleeve,
Lest she imagine thou art Venus' son;
And when she strokes thee softly on the head,
Then shall I touch her breast and conquer her.

Enter DIDO, ANNA, and IARBAS.

Iar. How long, fair Dido, shall I pine for thee?
'Tis not enough that thou dost grant me love,
But that I may enjoy what I desire:
That love is childish which consists in words.

Dido. Iarbas, know, that thou, of all my wooers,—
And yet have I had many mightier kings,—
Hast had the greatest favours I could give.
I fear me, Dido hath been counted light
In being too familiar with Iarbas;
Albeit the gods do know, no wanton thought
Had ever residence in Dido's breast.

Iar. But Dido is the favour I request.

Dido. Fear not, Iarbas; Dido may be thine.

Anna. Look, sister, how Æneas' little son
Plays with your garments and embraceth you.

Cup. No, Dido will not take me in her arms;
I shall not be her son, she loves me not.

Dido. Weep not, sweet boy; thou shalt be Dido's son:
Sit in my lap, and let me hear thee sing. [Cupid sings
No more, my child; now talk another while,
And tell me where learn'dst thou this pretty song.

Cup. My cousin Helen taught it me in Troy.

Dido. How lovely is Ascanius when he smiles!

Cup. Will Dido let me hang about her neck?

Dido. Ay, wag; and give thee leave to kiss her too.

Cup. What will you give me now? I'll have this fan.

Dido. Take it, Ascanius, for thy father's sake.

Iar. Come, Dido, leave Ascanius: let us walk.

Dido. Go thou away; Ascanius shall stay.

Iar. Ungentle queen, is this thy love to me?

Dido. O stay, Iarbas, and I'll go with thee!

Cup. An if my mother go, I'll follow her.

Dido. Why stay'st thou here? thou art no love of mine.

Iar. Iarbas, die, seeing she abandons thee!

Dido. No; live, Iarbas: what hast thou deserv'd,

That I should say thou art no love of mine?

Something thou hast deserv'd. -- Away, I say!

Depart from Carthage; come not in my sight.

Iar. Am I not king of rich Gætulia?

Dido. Iarbas, pardon me, and stay a while.

Cup. Mother, look here.

Dido. What tell'st thou me of rich Gætulia?

Am not I queen of Libya? then depart.

Iar. I go to feed the humour of my love,

Yet not from Carthage for a thousand worlds.

Dido. Iarbas!

Iar. Doth Dido call me back?

Dido. No; but I charge thee never look on me.

Iar. Then pull out both mine eyes, or let me die. [Exit.

Anna. Wherefore doth Dido bid Iarbas go?

Dido. Because his loathsome sight offends mine eye,

And in my thoughts is shrin'd another love.

O Anna, didst thou know how sweet love were,

Full soon wouldst thou abjure this single life!

Anna. Poor soul, I know too well the sour of love:

O, that Iarbas could but fancy me! [Aside.

Dido. Is not Æneas fair and beautiful?

Anna. Yes, and Iarbas foul and favourless.

Dido. Is he not eloquent in all his speech?

Anna. Yes; and Iarbas rude and rustical.

Dido. Name not Iarbas: but, sweet Anna, say,

Is not Æneas worthy Dido's love?

Anna. O sister, were you empress of the world,

Æneas well deserves to be your love!

So lovely is he, that, where'er he goes,

The people swarm to gaze him in the face.

Dido. But tell them, none shall gaze on him but I,

Lest their gross eye-beams taint my lover's cheeks.

Anna, good sister Anna, go for him,

Lest with these sweet thoughts I melt clean away.

Anna. Then, sister, you'll abjure Iarbas' love?

Dido. Yet must I hear that loathsome name again?

Run for Æneas, or I'll fly to him.

[Exit Anna.]

Cup. You shall not hurt my father when he comes.

Dido. No; for thy sake I'll love thy father well.—

O dull-conceited Dido, that till now

Didst never think Æneas beautiful!

But now, for quittance of this oversight,

I'll make me bracelets of his golden hair;

His glistening eyes shall be my looking-glass;

His lips an altar, where I'll offer up

As many kisses as the sea hath sands;

Instead of music I will hear him speak;

His looks shall be my only library;

And thou, Æneas, Dido's treasury,

In whose fair bosom I will lock more wealth

Than twenty thousand Indias can afford.

O, here he comes! Love, love, give Dido leave

To be more modest than her thoughts admit,

Lest I be made a wonder to the world.

Enter ÆNEAS, ACHATES, SERGESTUS, ILIONEUS, and CLOANTHUS.

Achates, how doth Carthage please your lord?

Ach. That will Æneas show your majesty.

Dido. Æneas, art thou there?

Æn. I understand, your highness sent for me.

Dido. No; but, now thou art here, tell me, in sooth,

In what might Dido highly pleasure thee.

Æn. So much have I receiv'd at Dido's hands,

As, without blushing, I can ask no more:

Yet, queen of Afric, are my ships unrigg'd,

My sails all rent in sunder with the wind,

My oars broken, and my tackling lost,

Yea, all my navy split with rocks and shelves;

Nor stern nor anchor have our maimed fleet;

Our masts the furious winds struck overboard:

Which piteous wants if Dido will supply,

We will account her author of our lives.

Dido. Æneas, I'll repair thy Trojan ships,

Conditionally that thou wilt stay with me,

And let Achates sail to Italy:

I'll give thee tackling made of rivell'd gold,

Wound on the barks of odoriferous trees;

Oars of massy ivory, full of holes,

Through which the water shall delight to play;
 Thy anchors shall be hew'd from crystal rocks,
 Which, if thou lose, shall shine above the waves;
 The masts, whereon thy swelling sails shall hang,
 Hollow pyramides of silver plate;
 The sails of folded lawn, where shall be wrought
 The wars of Troy,—but not Troy's overthrow;
 For ballast, empty Dido's treasury:
 Take what ye will, but leave Æneas here.
 Achates, thou shalt be so seemly clad,
 As sea-born nymphs shall swarm about thy ships,
 And wanton mermaids court thee with sweet songs,
 Flinging in favours of more sovereign worth
 Than Thetis hangs about Apollo's neck,
 So that Æneas may but stay with me.

Æn. Wherefore would Dido have Æneas stay?

Dido. To war against my bordering enemies.

Æneas, think not Dido is in love;

For, if that any man could conquer me,

I had been wedded ere Æneas came:

See, where the pictures of my suitors hang;

And are not these as fair as fair may be?

Ach. I saw this man at Troy, ere Troy was sack'd.

Serg. I this in Greece, when Paris stole fair Helen.

Ili. This man and I were at Olympia's games.

Serg. I know this face; he is a Persian born:

I travell'd with him to Ætolia.

Cloan. And I in Athens with this gentleman,

Unless I be deceiv'd, disputed once.

Dido. But speak, Æneas; know you none of these?

Æn. No, madam; but it seems that these are kings.

Dido. All these, and others which I never saw,

Have been most urgent suitors for my love;

Some came in person, others sent their legates,

Yet none obtain'd me: I am free from all;

And yet, God knows, entangled unto one.

This was an orator, and thought by words

To compass me; but yet he was deceiv'd:

And this a Spartan courtier, vain and wild:

But his fantastic humours pleas'd not me:

This was Alcion, a musician;

But, play'd he ne'er so sweet, I let him go:

This was the wealthy king of Thessaly;

But I had gold enough, and cast him off:
 This, Meleager's son, a warlike prince;
 But weapons gree not with my tender years:
 The rest are such as all the world well knows:
 Yet now I swear, by heaven and him I love,
 I was as far from love as they from hate.

Æn. O, happy shall he be whom Dido loves!

Dido. Then never say that thou art miserable,
 Because, it may be, thou shalt be my love:
 Yet boast not of it, for I love thee not,—
 And yet I hate thee not.—O, if I speak,
 I shall betray myself! [Aside]—Æneas, come:
 We two will go a-hunting in the woods;
 But not so much for thee,—thou art but one,—
 As for Achates and his followers.

[Exeunt.]

Enter JUNO to ASCANIUS, who lies asleep.

Juno. Here lies my hate, Æneas' cursed brat,
 The boy wherein false Destiny delights,
 The heir of Fury, the favourite of the Fates,
 That ugly imp that shall outwear my wrath,
 And wrong my deity with high disgrace.
 But I will take another order now,
 And raze th' eternal register of Time:
 Troy shall no more call him her second hope,
 Nor Venus triumph in his tender youth;
 For here, in spite of heaven, I'll murder him,
 And feed infection with his let-out life.
 Say, Paris, now shall Venus have the ball?
 Say, vengeance, now shall her Ascanius die?
 O, no! God wot, I cannot watch my time,
 Nor quit good turns with double fee down told!
 Tut, I am simple, without mind to hurt,
 And have no gall at all to grieve my foes!
 But lustful Jove and his adulterous child
 Shall find it written on confusion's front,
 That only Juno rules in Rhamnus' town.

Enter VENUS.

Ven. What should this mean? my doves are back return'd,
 Who warn me of such danger preest at hand
 To harm my sweet Ascanius' lovely life.—
 Juno, my mortal foe, what makes you here?

Avaunt, old witch! and trouble not my wits.

Juno. Fie, Venus, that such causeless words of wrath
Should e'er defile so fair a mouth as thine!
Are not we both sprung of celestial race,
And banquet, as two sisters, with the gods?
Why is it, then, displeasure should disjoin
Whom kindred and acquaintance co-unites?

Ven. Out, hateful hag! thou wouldst have slain my son,
Had not my doves discover'd thy intent:
But I will tear thy eyes fro forth thy head,
And feast the birds with their blood-shotten balls,
If thou but lay thy fingers on my boy.

Juno. Is this, then, all the thanks that I shall have
For saving him from snakes' and serpents' stings,
That would have kill'd him, sleeping, as he lay?
What, though I was offended with thy son,
And wrought him mickle woe on sea and land,
When, for the hate of Trojan Ganymede,
That was advanced by my Hebe's shame,
And Paris' judgment of the heavenly ball,
I muster'd all the winds unto his wreck,
And urg'd each element to his annoy?
Yet now I do repent me of his ruth,
And wish that I had never wrong'd him so,
Bootless, I saw, it was to war with fate
That hath so many unresisted friends:
Wherefore I chang'd my counsel with the time,
And planted love where envy erst had sprung.

Ven. Sister of Jove, if that thy love be such
As these protestations do paint forth,
We two, as friends, one fortune will divide:
Cupid shall lay his arrows in thy lap,
And to a sceptre change his golden shafts;
Fancy and modesty shall live as mates,
And thy fair peacocks by my pigeons perch:
Love my Æneas, and desire is thine;
The day, the night, my swans, my sweets, are thine.

Juno. More than melodious are these words to me
That overcloy my soul with their content,
Venus, sweet Venus, how may I deserve
Such amorous favours at thy beauteous hand?
But, that thou mayst more easily perceive
How highly I do prize this amity,

Hark to a motion of eternal league,
Which I will make in quittance of thy love.
Thy son, thou know'st, with Dido now remains
And feeds his eyes with favours of her court;
She, likewise, in admiring spends her time,
And cannot talk nor think of aught but him;
Why should not they, then, join in marriage,
And bring forth mighty kings to Carthage town,
Whom casualty of sea hath made such friends?
And, Venus, let there be a match confirm'd
Betwixt these two, whose loves are so alike;
And both our deities, conjoin'd in one,
Shall chain felicity unto their throne.

Ven. Well could I like this reconcilement's means;
But much I fear, my son will ne'er consent,
Whose armed soul, already on the sea,
Darts forth her light to Lavinia's shore.

Juno. Fair queen of love, I will divorce these doubts,
And find the way to weary such fond thoughts.
This day they both a-hunting forth will ride
Into the woods adjoining to these walls;
When, in the midst of all their gamesome sports,
I'll make the clouds dissolve their watery works,
And drench Silvanus' dwellings with their showers;
Then in one cave the queen and he shall meet,
And interchangeably discourse their thoughts,
Whose short conclusion will seal up their hearts
Unto the purpose which we now propound.

Ven. Sister, I see you savour of my wiles;
Be it as you will have [it] for this once.
Meantime Ascanius shall be my charge;
Whom I shall bear to Ida in mine arms,
And couch him in Adonis' purple down.

[Exeunt.]

Enter DIDO, ÆNEAS, ANNA, IARBAS, ACHATES,
CUPID as ASCANIUS, and Followers.

Dido. Æneas, think not but I honour thee,
That thus in person go with thee to hunt:
My princely robes, thou see'st, are laid aside,
Whose glittering pomp Diana's shroud supplies;
All fellows now, dispos'd alike to sport;
The woods are wide, and we have store of game.
Fair Trojan, hold my golden bow a while,

Until I gird my quiver to my side.—

Lords, go before; we two must talk alone.

Iar. Ungentle, can she wrong Iarbas so?

I'll die before a stranger have that grace.

"We two will talk alone"—what words be these? [Aside.]

Dido. What makes Iarbas here of all the rest?

We could have gone without your company.

Æn. But love and duty led him on perhaps

To press beyond acceptance to your sight.

Iar. Why, man of Troy, do I offend thine eyes?

Or art thou griev'd thy betters press so nigh?

Dido. How now, Gætulian! are you grown so brave,

To challenge us with your comparisons?

Peasant, go seek companions like thyself,

And meddle not with any that I love.—

Æneas, be not mov'd at what he says;

For otherwhile he will be out of joint.

Iar. Women may wrong by privilege of love;

But, should that man of men, Dido except,

Have taunted me in these opprobrious terms,

I would have either drunk his dying blood,

Or else I would have given my life in gage.

Dido. Huntsmen, why pitch you not your toils apace,

And rouse the light-foot deer from forth their lair?

Anna. Sister, see, see Ascanius in his pomp,

Bearing his hunt-spear bravely in his hand!

Dido. Yea, little son, are you so forward now?

Cup. Ay, mother; I shall one day be a man,

And better able unto other arms;

Meantime these wanton weapons serve my war,

Which I will break betwixt a lion's jaws.

Dido. What, dar'st thou look a lion in the face?

Cup. Ay; and outface him too, do what he can.

Anna. How like his father speaketh he in all!

Æn. And mought I live to see him sack rich Thebes,

And load his spear with Grecian princes' heads,

Then would I wish me with Anchises' tomb,

And dead to honour that hath brought me up.

Iar. And might I live to see thee shipp'd away,

And hoist aloft on Neptune's hideous hills,

Then would I wish me in fair Dido's arms,

And dead to scorn that hath pursu'd me so. [Aside.]

Æn. Stout friend Achates, dost thou know this wood?

Ach. As I remember, here you shot the deer
That sav'd your famish'd soldiers' lives from death,
When first you set your foot upon the shore;
And here we met fair Venus, virgin-like,
Bearing her bow and quiver at her back.

Æn. O, how these irksome labours now delight,
And overjoy my thoughts with their escape!
Who would not undergo all kind of toil,
To be well stor'd with such a winter's tale?

Dido. Æneas, leave these dumps, and let's away,
Some to the mountains, some unto the soil,
You to the valleys,—thou unto the house.

[Exeunt all except Iarbas.]

Iar. Ay, this it is which wounds me to the death,
To see a Phrygian, far-fet o'er the sea,
Preferr'd before a man of majesty.
O love! O hate! O cruel women's hearts,
That imitate the moon in every change,
And, like the planets, ever love to range!
What shall I do, thus wronged with disdain?
Revenge me on Æneas or on her?
On her! fond man, that were to war 'gainst heaven,
And with one shaft provoke ten thousand darts.
This Trojan's end will be thy envy's aim,
Whose blood will reconcile thee to content,
And make love drunken with thy sweet desire.
But Dido, that now holdeth him so dear,
Will die with very tidings of his death:
But time will discontinue her content,
And mould her mind unto new fancy's shapes.
O God of heaven, turn the hand of Fate
Unto that happy day of my delight!
And then—what then? Iarbas shall but love:
So doth he now, though not with equal gain;
That resteth in the rival of thy pain,
Who ne'er will cease to soar till he be slain.

[Exit.]

The storm. Enter ÆNEAS and DIDO in the cave, at several times.

Dido. Æneas!

Æn. Dido!

Dido. Tell me, dear love, how found you out this cave?

Æn. By chance, sweet queen, as Mars and Venus met.

Dido. Why, that was in a net, where we are loose;
And yet I am not free,—O, would I were!

Æn. Why, what is it that Dido may desire
And not obtain, be it in human power?

Dido. The thing that I will die before I ask,
And yet desire to have before I die.

Æn. It is not aught Æneas may achieve?

Dido. Æneas! no; although his eyes do pierce.

Æn. What, hath Iarbas anger'd her in aught?
And will she be avenged on his life?

Dido. Not anger'd me, except in angering thee.

Æn. Who, then, of all so cruel may he be
That should detain thy eye in his defects?

Dido. The man that I do eye where'er I am;
Whose amorous face, like Pæan, sparkles fire,
Whenas he butts his beams on Flora's bed.
Prometheus hath put on Cupid's shape,
And I must perish in his burning arms:
Æneas, O Æneas, quench these flames!

Æn. What ails my queen? is she fain sick of late?

Dido. Not sick, my love; but sick I must conceal
The torment that it boots me not reveal:
And yet I'll speak,—and yet I'll hold my peace.
Do shame her worst, I will disclose my grief:
Æneas, thou art he—what did I say?
Something it was that now I have forgot.

Æn. What means fair Dido by this doubtful speech?

Dido. Nay, nothing; but Æneas loves me not.

Æn. Æneas' thoughts dare not ascend so high
As Dido's heart, which monarchs might not scale.

Dido. It was because I saw no king like thee,
Whose golden crown might balance my content;
But now that I have found what to affect,
I follow one that loveth fame 'fore me,
And rather had seem fair [in] Sirens' eyes,
Than to the Carthage queen that dies for him.

Æn. If that your majesty can look so low
As my despised worths that shun all praise,
With this my hand I give to you my heart,
And vow, by all the gods of hospitality,
By heaven and earth, and my fair brother's bow
By Paphos, Capys, and the purple sea
From whence my radiant mother did descend,

And by this sword that sav'd me from the Greeks,
 Never to leave these new-upreared walls,
 Whiles Dido lives and rules in Juno's town,—
 Never to like or love any but her!

Dido. What more than Delian music do I hear,
 That calls my soul from forth his living seat
 To move unto the measures of delight?
 Kind clouds, that sent forth such a courteous storm
 As made disdain to fly to fancy's lap!
 Stout love, in mine arms make thy Italy,
 Whose crown and kingdom rests at thy command:
 Sichæus, not Æneas, be thou call'd;
 The king of Carthage, not Anchises' son:
 Hold, take these jewels at thy lover's hand,

[Giving jewels, etc.]

These golden bracelets, and this wedding-ring,
 Wherewith my husband woo'd me yet a maid,
 And be thou king of Libya by my gift.

[Exeunt to the cave.]

ACT IV

Enter ACHATES, CUPID as ASCANIUS, IARBAS, and ANNA.

Ach. Did ever men see such a sudden storm,
 Or day so clear so suddenly o'ercast?

Iar. I think some fell enchantress dwelleth here,
 That can call them forth whenas she please,
 And dive into black tempest's treasury,
 Whenas she means to mask the world with clouds.

Anna. In all my life I never knew the like;
 It hailed, it snow'd, it lighten'd, all at once.

Ach. I think, it was the devil's revelling night,
 There was such hurly-burly in the heavens:
 Doubtless Apollo's axle-tree is crack'd,
 Or aged Atlas' shoulder out of joint,
 The motion was so over-violent.

Iar. In all this coil, where have ye left the queen?

Asc. Nay, where's my warlike father, can you tell?

Anna. Behold where both of them come forth the cave.

Iar. Come forth the cave! can heaven endure this sight?

Iarbas, cause that unrevenging Jove,

Whose flinty darts slept in Typhœus' den,
Whiles these adulterers surfeited with sin.
Nature, why mad'st me not some poisonous beast,
That with the sharpness of my edged sting
I might have stak'd them both unto the earth,
Whilst they were sporting in this darksome cave?

Enter, from the cave, ÆNEAS and DIDO.

Æn. The air is clear, and southern winds are whist.

Come, Dido, let us hasten to the town,
Since gloomy Æolus doth cease to frown.

Dido. Achates and Ascanius, well met.

Æn. Fair Anna, how escap'd you from the shower?

Anna. As others did, by running to the wood.

Dido. But where were you, Iarbus, all this while?

Iar. Not with Æneas in the ugly cave.

Dido. I see, Æneas sticketh in your mind;
But I will soon put by that stumbling-block,
And quell those hopes that thus employ your cares.

[Exeunt.]

Enter IARBAS to sacrifice.

Iar. Come, servants, come; bring forth the sacrifice,
That I may pacify that gloomy Jove,
Whose empty altars have enlarg'd our ills.—

[Servants bring in the sacrifice, and then exeunt.]

Eternal Jove, great master of the clouds,
Father of gladness and all frolic thoughts,
That with thy gloomy hand corrects the heaven,
When airy creatures war amongst themselves;
Hear, hear, O, hear Iarbas' plaining prayers,
Whose hideous echoes make the welkin howl,
And all the woods Eliza to resound!

The woman that thou will'd us entertain,
Where, straying in our borders up and down,
She crav'd a hide of ground to build a town,
With whom we did divide both laws and land,
And all the fruits that plenty else sends forth,
Scorning our loves and royal marriage-rites,
Yields up her beauty to a stranger's bed;
Who, having wrought her shame, is straightway fled:
Now, if thou be'st a pitying god of power,
On whom ruth and compassion ever waits,

Redress these wrongs, and warn him to his ships,
That now afflicts me with his flattering eyes.

Enter ANNA.

Anna. How now, Iarbas! at your prayers so hard?

Iar. Ay, Anna: is there aught you would with me?

Anna. Nay, no such weighty busines of import,

But may be slack'd until another time:

Yet, if you would partake with me the cause

Of this devotion that detaineth you,

I would be thankful for such courtesy.

Iar. Anna, against this Trojan do I pray,

Who seeks to rob me of thy sister's love,

And dive into her heart by colour'd looks.

Anna. Alas, poor king, that labours so in vain

For her that so delighteth in thy pain!

Be rul'd by me, and seek some other love,

Whose yielding heart may yield thee more relief.

Iar. Mine eye is fix'd where fancy cannot start:

O, leave me, leave me to my silent thoughts,

That register the numbers of my ruth,

And I will either move the thoughtless flint,

Or drop out both mine eyes in drizzling tears,

Before my sorrow's tide have any stint!

Anna. I will not leave Iarbas, whom I love,

In this delight of dying pensiveness.

Away with Dido! Anna be thy song;

Anna, that doth admire thee more than heaven.

Iar. I may nor will list to such loathsome change,

That intercepts the course of my desire.—

Servants, come fetch these empty vessels here;

For I will fly from these alluring eyes,

That do pursue my peace where'er it goes.

[Exit.—Servants re-enter, and carry out the vessels, etc.]

Anna. Iarbas, stay, loving Iarbas, stay!

For I have honey to present thee with.

Hard-hearted, wilt not deign to hear me speak?

I'll follow thee with outcries ne'ertheless,

And strew thy walks with my dishevell'd hair.

[Exit.]

Enter ÆNEAS.

Æn. Carthage, my friendly host, adieu!

Since destiny doth call me from thy shore:

Hermes this night, descending in a dream,
Hath summon'd me to fruitful Italy;
Jove wills it so; my mother wills it so;
Let my Phœnissa grant, and then I go.
Grant she or no, Æneas must away;
Whose golden fortunes, clogg'd with courtly ease,
Cannot ascend to Fame's immortal house,
Or banquet in bright Honour's burnish'd hall,
Till he hath furrow'd Neptune's glassy fields,
And cut a passage through his topless hills.—
Achates, come forth! Sergestus, Ilioneus,
Cloanthus, haste away! Æneas calls.

Enter ACHATES, CLOANTHUS, SERGESTUS, and ILIONEUS.

Ach. What wills our lord, or wherefore did he call?

Æn. The dream, brave mates, that did beset my bed,
When sleep but newly had embrac'd the night,
Commands me leave these unrenowned realms,
Whereas nobility abhors to stay,
And none but base Æneas will abide.
Aboard, aboard! since Fates do bid aboard,
And slice the sea with sable-coloured ships,
On whom the nimble winds may all day wait,
And follow them, as footmen, through the deep.
Yet Dido casts her eyes, like anchors, out,
To stay my fleet from loosing forth the bay:
"Come back, come back," I hear her cry a-far,
"And let me link thy body to my lips,
That, tied together by the striving tongues,
We may, as one, sail into Italy."

Ach. Banish that ticing dame from forth your mouth,
And follow your fore-seeing stars in all:
This is no life for men-at-arms to live,
Where dalliance doth consume a soldier's strength,
And wanton motions of alluring eyes
Effminate our minds, inur'd to war.

Il. Why, let us build a city of our own,
And not stand lingering here for amorous looks.
Will Dido raise old Priam forth his grave,
And build the town again the Greeks did burn?
No, no; she cares not how we sink or swim,
So she may have Æneas in her arms.

Clo. To Italy, sweet friends, to Italy!

360 Marlowe's Plays

We will not stay a minute longer here.

Æn. Trojans, aboard, and I will follow you.

[Exeunt all except Æneas.]

I fain would go, yet beauty calls me back:
To leave her so, and not once say farewell,
Were to transgress against all laws of love.
But, if I use such ceremonious thanks
As parting friend accustom on the shore,
Her silver arms will coil me round about,
And tears of pearl cry, "Stay, Æneas, stay!"
Each word she says will then contain a crown,
And every speech be ended with a kiss:
I may not dure this female drudgery:
To sea, Æneas! find out Italy!

[Exit.]

Enter Dido and ANNA.

Dido. O Anna, run unto the water side!

They say Æneas' men are going aboard;

It may be, he will steal away with them:

Stay not to answer me: run, Anna, run! [Exit Anna.]

O foolish Trojans, that would steal from hence,

And not let Dido understand their drift!

I would have given Achates store of gold,

And Ilioneus gum and Libyan spice;

The common soldiers rich embroider'd coats,

And silver whistles to control the winds,

Which Circe sent Sichæus when he liv'd;

Unworthy are they of a queen's reward.

See, where they come: how might I do to chide?

Re-enter ANNA, with ÆNEAS, ACHATES, CLOANTHUS, ILIONEUS, SERGESTUS, and Carthaginian Lords.

Anna. 'Twas time to run; Æneas had been gone;

The sails were hoisting up, and he aboard.

Dido. Is this thy love to me?

Æn. O princely Dido, give me leave to speak!

I went to take my farewell of Achates.

Dido. How haps Achates bid me not farewell?

Acha. Because I fear'd your grace would keep me here.

Dido. To rid thee of that doubt, aboard again:

I charge thee put to sea, and stay not here.

Ach. Then let Æneas go aboard with us.

Dido. Get you aboard; Æneas means to stay.

Æn. The sea is rough, the winds blow to the shore.

Dido. O false Æneas! now the sea is rough;
But, when you were aboard, 'twas calm enough:
Thou and Achates meant to sail away.

Æn. Hath not the Carthage queen mine only son?
Thinks Dido I will go and leave him here?

Dido. Æneas, pardon me; for I forgot
That young Ascanius lay with me this night;
Love made me jealous: but, to make amends,
Wear the imperial crown of Libya,
[Giving him her crown and sceptre.

Sway thou the Punic sceptre in my stead,
And punish me, Æneas, for this crime.

Æn. This kiss shall be fair Dido's punishment.

Dido. O, how a crown becomes Æneas' head!
Stay here, Æneas, and command as king.

Æn. How vain am I to wear this diadem,
And bear this golden sceptre in my hand!
A burgonet of steel, and not a crown,
A sword, and not a sceptre, fits Æneas.

Dido. O keep them still, and let me gaze my fill!
Now looks Æneas like immortal Jove:
O where is Ganymede, to hold his cup,
And Mercury, to fly for what he calls?
Ten thousand Cupids hover in the air,
And fan it in Æneas' lovely face!
O that the clouds were here wherein thou fled'st,
That thou and I unseen might sport ourselves!
Heaven, envious of our joys, is waxen pale;
And when we whisper, then the stars fall down,
To be partakers of our honey talk.

Æn. O Dido, patroness of all our lives,
When I leave thee, death be my punishment!
Swell, raging seas! frown, wayward Destinies!
Blow, winds! threaten, ye rocks and sandy shelves!
This is the harbour that Æneas seeks:
Let's see what tempests can annoy me now.

Dido. Not all the world can take thee from mine arms.
Æneas may command as many Moors
As in the sea are little water drops:
And now, to make experience of my love,—
Fair sister Anna, lead my lover forth,
And, seated on my jennet, let him ride,

As Dido's husband, through the Punic streets;
And will my guard, with Mauritanian darts
To wait upon him as their sovereign lord.

Anna. What if the citizens repine thereat?

Dido. Those that dislike what Dido gives in charge,
Command my guard to slay for their offence.
Shall vulgar peasants storm at what I do?
The ground is mine that gives them sustenance,
The air wherein they breathe, the water, fire,
All that they have, their lands, their goods, their lives,
And I, the goddess of all these, command
Æneas ride as Carthaginian king.

Ach. Æneas, for his parentage, deserves
As large a kingdom as is Libya.

Æn. Ay, and, unless the Destinies be false,
I shall be planted in as rich a land.

Dido. Speak of no other land; this land is thine;
Dido is thine, henceforth I'll call thee lord.—
Do as I bid thee, sister; lead the way;
And from a turret I'll behold my love.

Æn. Then here in me shall flourish Priam's race;
And thou and I, Achates, for revenge
For Troy, for Priam, for his fifty sons,
Our kinsmen's lives and thousand guiltless souls,
Will lead an host against the hateful Greeks,
And fire proud Lacedæmon o'er their heads.

[Exeunt all except Dido and Carthaginian Lords]

Dido. Speaks not Æneas like a conqueror?
O blessed tempests that did drive him in!
O happy sand that made him run aground!
Henceforth you shall be our Carthage gods.
Ay, but it may be, he will leave my love,
And seek a foreign land call'd Italy:
O that I had a charm to keep the winds
Within the closure of a golden ball;
Or that the Tyrrhene sea were in mine arms,
That he might suffer shipwreck on my breast,
As oft as he attempts to hoist up sail!
I must prevent him; wishing will not serve.—
Go bid my nurse take young Ascanius,
And bear him in the country to her house;
Æneas will not go without his son;
Yet, lest he should, for I am full of fear,

Bring me his oars, his tackling, and his sails.

[Exit First Lord.]

What if I sink his ships? O, he will frown!
 Better he frown than I should die for grief,
 I cannot see him frown; it may not be:
 Armies of foes resolv'd to win this town,
 Or impious traitors vow'd to have my life,
 Affright me not; only Æneas' frown
 Is that which terrifies poor Dido's heart:
 Not bloody spears, appearing in the air,
 Presage the downfall of my empery,
 Nor blazing comets threaten Dido's death;
 It is Æneas' frown that ends my days.
 If he forsake me not, I never die;
 For in his looks I see eternity,
 And he'll make me immortal with a kiss.

Re-enter First Lord, with Attendants carrying tackling, etc.

First Lord. Your nurse is gone with young Ascanius;

And here's Æneas' tackling, oars, and sails.

Dido. Are these the sails that, in despite of me,
 Pack'd with the winds to bear Æneas hence?

I'll hang ye in the chamber where I lie;

Drive, if you can, my house to Italy:

I'll set the casement open, that the winds

May enter in, and once again conspire

Against the life of me, poor Carthage queen:

But, though ye go, he stays in Carthage still;

And let rich Carthage fleet upon the seas,

So I may have Æneas in mine arms.

Is this the wood that grew in Carthage plains,

And would be toiling in the watery billows,

To rob their mistress of her Trojan guest?

O cursed tree, hadst thou but wit or sense,

To measure how I prize Æneas' love,

Thou wouldst have leapt from out the sailors' hands,

And told me that Æneas meant to go!

And yet I blame thee not; thou art but wood.

The water, which our poets term a nymph,

Why did it suffer thee to touch her breast,

And shrunk not back, knowing my love was there?

The water is an element, no nymph.

Why should I blame Æneas for his flight?
 O Dido, blame not him, but break his oars!
 These were the instruments that launch'd him forth,
 There's not so much as this base tackling too,
 But dares to heap up sorrow to my heart:
 Was it not you that hoised up these sails?
 Why burst you not, and they fell in the seas?
 For this will Dido tie ye full of knots.
 And shear ye all asunder with her hands:
 Now serve to chastise shipboys for their faults;
 Ye shall no more offend the Carthage queen.
 Now, let him hang my favours on his masts,
 And see if those will serve instead of sails;
 For tackling, let him take the chains of gold
 Which I bestow'd upon his followers;
 Instead of oars, let him use his hands,
 And swim to Italy. I'll keep these sure.—
 Come, bear them in.

[Exeunt.]

Enter Nurse, with CUPID as ASCANIUS.

Nurse. My Lord Ascanius, you must go with me.

Cup. Whither must I go? I'll stay with my mother.

Nurse. No, thou shalt go with me unto my house.

I have an orchard that hath store of plums,
 Brown almonds, services, ripe figs, and dates,
 Dewberries, apples, yellow oranges;

A garden where are bee-hives full of honey,
 Musk-roses, and a thousand sort of flowers;
 And in the midst doth run a silver stream,
 Where thou shalt see the red-gill'd fishes leap,
 White swans, and many lovely water-fowls.

Now speak, Ascanius, will you go or no?

Cup. Come, come, I'll go. How far hence is your house?

Nurse. But hereby, child; we shall get thither straight.

Cup. Nurse, I am weary; will you carry me?

Nurse. Ay, so you'll dwell with me, and call me mother.

Cup. So you'll love me, I care not if I do.

Nurse. That I might live to see this boy a man!

How prettily he laughs! Go, you wag!

You'll be a twigger when you come to age.—

Say Dido what she will, I am not old;

I'll be no more a widow; I am young;

I'll have a husband, or else a lover.

Cup. A husband, and no teeth!

Nurse. O, what mean I to have such foolish thoughts?

Foolish is love, a toy.—O sacred love!

If there be any heaven in earth, 'tis love,

Especially in women of your years.—

Blush, blush for shame! why shouldst thou think of love?

A grave, and not a lover, fits thy age.—

A grave! why, I may live a hundred years;

Fourscore is but a girl's age: love is sweet.—

My veins are wither'd, and my sinews dry:

Why do I think of love, now I should die?

Cup. Come, nurse.

Nurse. Well, if he come a-wooing, he shall speed:

O, how unwise was I to say him nay!

[Exeunt.]

ACT V

Enter ÆNEAS, with a paper in his hand, drawing the platform of the city; ACHATES, SERGESTUS, CLOANTHUS, and ILIONEUS.

Æn. Triumph, my mates! our travels are at end:

Here will Æneas build a statelier Troy

Than that which grim Atrides overthrew.

Carthage shall haunt her petty walls no more;

For I will grace them with a fairer frame,

And clad her in a crystal livery,

Wherein the day may evermore delight;

From golden India Ganges will I fetch,

Whose wealthy streams may wait upon her towers,

And triple-wise entrench her round about;

The sun from Egypt shall rich odours bring,

Wherewith his burning beams (like labouring bees

That load their thighs with Hybla's honey-spoils)

Shall here unburden their exhaled sweets,

And plant our pleasant suburbs with their fumes.

Ach. What length or breadth shall this brave town contain?

Æn. Not past four thousand paces at the most.

Ili. But what shall it be call'd? Troy, as before?

Æn. That have I not determin'd with myself.

Clo. Let it be term'd Ænea, by your name.

Serg. Rather Ascania, by your little son.

Æn. Nay, I will have it called Anchisæon,
Of my old father's name.

Enter HERMES with ASCANIUS.

Her. Æneas, stay; Jove's herald bids thee stay.

Æn. Whom do I see? Jove's winged messenger!
Welcome to Carthage' new-erected town.

Her. Why, cousin, stand you building cities here,
And beautifying the empire of this queen,
While Italy is clean out of thy mind?
Too-too forgetful of thine own affairs,
Why wilt thou so betray thy son's good hap?
The king of gods sent me from highest heaven,
To sound this angry message in thine ears:
Vain man, what monarchy expect'st thou here?
Or with what thought sleep'st thou in Libya shore?

If that all glory hath forsaken thee,
And thou despise the praise of such attempts,
Yet think upon Ascanius' prophecy,
And young Iulus' more than thousand years,
Whom I have brought from Ida, where he slept,
And bore young Cupid unto Cyprus' isle.

Æn. This was my mother that beguil'd the queen,
And made me take my brother for my son:
No marvel, Dido, though thou be in love,
That daily dandlest Cupid in thy arms.—
Welcome, sweet child: where hast thou been this long?

Asc. Eating sweet comfits with Queen Dido's maid,
Who ever since hath lull'd me in her arms.

Æn. Sergestus, bear him hence unto our ships,
Lest Dido, spying him, keep him for a pledge.

[Exit Sergestus with Ascanius.]

Her. Spend'st thou thy time about this little boy,
And giv'st not ear unto the charge I bring?
I tell thee, thou must straight to Italy,
Or else abide the wrath of frowning Jove.

[Exit.]

Æn. How should I put into the raging deep,
Who have no sails nor tackling for my ships?
What, would the gods have me, Deucalion-like,
Float up and down where'er the billows drive?
Though she repair'd my fleet and gave me ships,
Yet hath she ta'en away my oars and masts,
And left me neither sail nor stern aboard.

Enter IARBAS.

Iar. How now, Æneas! sad! what mean these dumps?

Æn. Iarbas, I am clean besides myself;
Jove hath heap'd on me such a desperate charge,
Which neither art nor reason may achieve,
Nor I devise by what means to contrive.

Iar. As how, I pray? may I entreat you tell?

Æn. With speed he bids me sail to Italy,
Whenas I want both rigging for my fleet.
And also furniture for these my men.

Iar. If that be all, then cheer thy drooping looks,
For I will furnish thee with such supplies.
Let some of those thy followers go with me,
And they shall have what thing soe'er thou need'st.

Æn. Thanks, good Iarbas, for thy friendly aid:
Achates and the rest shall wait on thee,
Whilst I rest thankful for this courtesy.

[Exeunt all except Æneas.]

Now will I haste unto Lavinian shore,
And raise a new foundation to old Troy.
Witness the gods, and witness heaven and earth,
How loath I am to leave these Libyan bounds,
But that eternal Jupiter commands!

Enter DIDO.

Dido. I fear I saw Æneas' little son
Led by Achates to the Trojan fleet.
If it be so, his father means to fly:—
But here he is; now, Dido, try thy wit.—
Æneas, wherefore go thy men aboard?
Why are thy ships new-rigg'd? or to what end,
Launch'd from the haven, lie they in the road?
Pardon me, though I ask; love makes me ask.

[Aside]

Æn. O, pardon me, if I resolve thee why!
Æneas will not feign with his dear love.
I must from hence: this day, swift Mercury,
When I was laying a platform for these walls,
Sent from his father Jove, appear'd to me,
And in his name rebuk'd me bitterly
For lingering here, neglecting Italy.

Dido. But yet Æneas will not leave his love.

Æn. I am commanded by immortal Jove

To leave this town and pass to Italy;

And therefore must of force.

Dido. These words proceed not from Æneas' heart.

Æn. Not from my heart, for I can hardly go;

And yet I may not stay. Dido, farewell.

Dido. Farewell! is this the 'mends for Dido's love?

Do Trojans use to quit their lovers thus?

Farewell may Dido, so Æneas stay;

I die, if my Æneas say farewell.

Æn. Then let me go, and never say farewell:

Let me go; farewell [none]: I must from hence.

Dido. These words are poison to poor Dido's soul:

O, speak like my Æneas, like my love!

Why look'st thou toward the sea? the time hath been

When Dido's beauty chain'd thine eyes to her.

Am I less fair than when thou saw'st me first?

~~O~~ then, Æneas, 'tis for grief of thee!

Say thou wilt stay in Carthage with thy queen,

And Dido's beauty will return again.

Æneas, say, how canst thou take thy leave?

Wilt thou kiss Dido? O, thy lips have sworn

To stay with Dido! canst thou take her hand?

Thy hand and mine have plighted mutual faith;

Therefore, unkind Æneas, must thou say,

"Then let me go, and never say farewell"?

Æn. O queen of Carthage, wert thou ugly-black,

Æneas could not choose but hold thee dear!

Yet must he not gainsay the gods' behest.

Dido. The gods! what gods be those that seek my death?

Wherein have I offended Jupiter,

That he should take Æneas from mine arms?

O, no! the gods weigh not what lovers do:

It is Æneas calls Æneas hence;

And woful Dido, by these blubber'd cheeks,

By this right hand, and by our spousal rites,

Desires Æneas to remain with her;

Si bene quid de te merui, fuit aut tibi quidquam

Dulce meum, miserere domus labentis, et istam,

Oro, si quis adhuc precibus locus, exue mentem.

Æn. Desine meque tuis incendere teque querelis;

Italiam non sponte sequor.

Dido. Hast thou forgot how many neighbour kings

Were up in arms, for making thee my love?

How Carthage did rebel, Iarbas storm,
And all the world call'd me a second Helen,
For being entangled by a stranger's looks?
So thou wouldst prove as true as Paris did,
Would, as fair Troy was, Carthage might be sack'd,
And I be call'd a second Helena!

Had I a son by thee, the grief were less,
That I might see Æneas in his face:
Now if thou go'st, what canst thou leave behind,
But rather will augment than ease my woe?

Æn. In vain, my love, thou spend'st thy fainting breath:
If words might move me, I were overcome.

Dido. And wilt thou not be mov'd with Dido's words?

Thy mother was no goddess, perjur'd man,
Nor Dardanus the author of thy stock;
But thou art sprung from Scythian Caucasus,
And tigers of Hyrcania gave thee suck.—
Ah, foolish Dido, to forbear this long!—

Wast thou not wreck'd upon this Libyan shore,
And cam'st to Dido like a fisher swain?

Repair'd not I thy ships, made thee a king,
And all thy needy followers noblemen?
O serpent, that came creeping from the shore,
And I for pity harbour'd in my bosom,
Wilt thou now slay me with thy venom'd sting,
And hiss at Dido for preserving thee?

Go, go, and spare not; seek out Italy:
I hope that that which love forbids me do,
The rocks and sea-gulfs will perform at large,
And thou shalt perish in the billows' ways,
To whom poor Dido doth bequeath revenge:
Ay, traitor! and the waves shall cast thee up,
Where thou and false Achates first set foot;
Which if it chance, I'll give ye burial,
And weep upon your lifeless carcasses,
Though thou nor he will pity me a whit.

Why star'st thou in my face? If thou wilt stay,
Leap in mine arms; mine arms are open wide;
If not, turn from me, and I'll turn from thee;
For though thou hast the heart to say farewell,
I have not power to stay thee.

[Exit Æneas.

Is he gone?

Ay, but he'll come again; he cannot go;

He loves me too-too well to serve me so:
 Yet he that in my sight would not relent,
 Will, being absent, be obdurate still.
 By this, is he got to the water-side;
 And, see, the sailors take him by the hand;
 But he shrinks back; and now, remembering me,
 Returns amain: welcome, welcome, my love!
 But where's Æneas? ah, he's gone, he's gone!

Enter ANNA.

Anna. What means my sister, thus to rave and cry?

Dido. O Anna, my Æneas is aboard,
 And, leaving me, will sail to Italy!
 Once didst thou go, and he came back again:
 Now bring him back, and thou shalt be a queen,
 And I will live a private life with him.

Anna. Wicked Æneas!

Dido. Call him not wicked, sister: speak him fair,
 And look upon him with a mermaid's eye;
 Tell him, I never vow'd at Aulis' gulf
 The desolation of his native Troy.
 Nor sent a thousand ships unto the walls,
 Nor ever violated faith to him;
 Request him gently, Anna, to return:
 I crave but this,—he stay a tide or two,
 That I may learn to bear it patiently;
 If he depart thus suddenly, I die.
 Run, Anna, run; stay not to answer me.

Anna. I go, fair sister: heavens grant good success! [Exit.]

Enter Nurse.

Nurse. O Dido, your little son Ascanius
 Is gone! he lay with me last night,
 And in the morning he was stoln from me:
 I think, some fairies have beguiled me.

Dido. O cursed hag and false dissembling wretch,
 That slay'st me with thy harsh and hellish tale!
 Thou for some petty gift hast let him go,
 And I am thus deluded of my boy.—
 Away with her to prison presently,

Enter Attendants.

Trait'ress too keen and cursed sorceress!

Nurse. I know not what you mean by treason, I;

I am as true as any one of yours.

Dido. Away with her! suffer her not to speak.

[Exit Nurse with Attendants.]

My sister comes: I like not her sad looks.

Re-enter ANNA.

Anna. Before I came, Æneas was aboard,
And, spying me, hois'd up the sails amain;
But I cried out, " Æneas, false Æneas, stay! "
Then gan he wag his hand, which, yet held up,
Made me suppose he would have heard me speak;
Then gan they drive into the ocean:
Which when I view'd, I cried, " Æneas, stay!
Dido, fair Dido wills Æneas stay! "
Yet he, whose heart[s] of adamant or flint,
My tears nor plaints could mollify a whit.
Then carelessly I rent my hair for grief:
Which seen to all, though he beheld me not,
They gan to move him to redress my ruth,
And stay a while to hear what I could say;
But he, clapp'd under hatches, sail'd away.

Dido. O Anna, Anna, I will follow him!

Anna. How can you go, when he hath all your fleet.

Dido. I'll frame me wings of wax, like Icarus,
And, o'er his ships, will soar unto the sun,
That they may melt, and I fall in his arms;
Or else I'll make a prayer unto the waves,
That I may swim to him, like Triton's niece.
O Anna, fetch Arion's harp,
That I may tice a dolphin to the shore,
And ride upon his back unto my love!
Look, sister, look! lovely Æneas' ships!
See, see, the billows heave 'em up to heaven,
And now down fall the keels into the deep!
O sister, sister, take away the rocks!
They'll break his ships. O Proteus, Neptune, Jove,
Save, save Æneas, Dido's liefest love!
Now is he come on shore, safe without hurt:
But, see, Achates wills him put to sea,
And all the sailors merry-make for joy;

But he, remembering me, shrinks back again:
See, where he comes! welcome, welcome, my love!

Anna. Ah, sister, leave these idle fantasies!

Sweet sister, cease; remember who you are.

Dido. Dido I am, unless I be deceiv'd:

And must I rave thus for a runagate?

Must I make ships for him to sail away?

Nothing can bear me to him but a ship,

And he hath all my fleet.—What shall I do,

But die in fury of this oversight?

Ay, I must be the murderer of myself:

No, but I am not; yet I will be straight.—

[Aside.]

Anna, be glad; now have I found a mean

To rid me from these thoughts of lunacy:

Not far from hence

There is a woman famoused for arts,

~~Daughter~~ unto the nymphs Hesperides,

Who will'd me sacrifice his ticing relics:

Go, Anna, bid my servants bring me fire.

[Exit Anna.]

Enter IARBAS.

Iar. How long will Dido mourn a stranger's flight
That hath dishonour'd her and Carthage both?
How long shall I with grief consume my days,
And reap no guerdon for my truest love?

Enter Attendants with wood and torches.

Dido. Iarbas, talk not of Æneas; let him go:

Lay to thy hands, and help me make a fire,

That shall consume all that this stranger left;

For I intend a private sacrifice,

To cure my mind, that melts for unkind love.

Iar. But, afterwards, will Dido grant me love?

Dido. Ay, ay, Iarbas; after this is done,

None in the world shall have my love but thou.

[They make a fire.]

So, leave me now; let none approach this place.

[Exeunt Iarbas and Attendants.]

Now, Dido, with these relics burn thyself,

And make Æneas famous through the world

For perjury and slaughter of a queen.

Here lie[s] the sword that in the darksome cave

He drew, and swore by, to be true to me;

Thou shalt burn first; thy crime is worse than his.
 Here lie[s] the garment which I cloth'd him in
 When first he came on shore: perish thou too.
 These letters, lines, and perjur'd papers, all
 Shall burn to cinders in this precious flame.
 And now, ye gods, that guide the starry frame,
 And order all things at your high dispose,
 Grant, though the traitors land in Italy,
 They may be still tormented with unrest;
 And from mine ashes let a conqueror rise,
 That may revenge this treason to a queen
 By ploughing up his countries with the sword!
 Betwixt this land and that be never league;
Litora litoribus contraria, fluctibus undas
Imprecor, arma armis; pugnent ipsique nepotes!
 Live, false Æneas! truest Dido dies;
Sic, sic juvant ire sub umbras.

[Throws herself into the flames.

Re-enter ANNA.

Anna. O, help, Iarbas! Dido in these flames
 Hath burnt herself! ay me, unhappy me!

Re-enter IARBAS, running.

Iar. Cursed Iarbas, die to expiate
 The grief that tires upon thine inward soul!—
 Dido, I come to thee.—Ay me, Æneas!

[Stabs himself, and dies.

Anna. What can my tears or cries prevail me now?

Dido is dead!

Iarbas slain, Iarbas my dear love!

O sweet Iarbas, Anna's sole delight!

What fatal Destiny envies me thus,

To see my sweet Iarbas slay himself?

But Anna now shall honour thee in death,

And mix her blood with thine; this shall I do,

That gods and men may pity this my death,

And rue our ends, senseless of life or breath:

Now, sweet Iarbas, stay! I come to thee.

[Stabs herself, and dies.

HERO AND LEANDER

TO THE RIGHT WORSHIPFUL SIR THOMAS
WALSINGHAM, KNIGHT.

Sir, we think not ourselves discharged of the duty we owe to our friend when we have brought the breathless body to the earth; for, albeit the eye there taketh his ever-farewell of that beloved object, yet the impression of the man that hath been dear unto us, living an after-life in our memory, ~~there~~ putteth us in mind of farther obsequies due unto the deceased; and namely of the performance of whatsoever we may judge shall make to his living credit and to the effecting of his determinations prevented by the stroke of death. By these meditations (as by an intellectual will) I suppose myself executor to the unhappily deceased author of this poem; upon whom knowing that in his lifetime you bestowed many kind favours, entertaining the parts of reckoning and worth which you found in him with good countenance and liberal affection, I cannot but see so far into the will of him dead, that whatsoever issue of his brain should chance to come abroad, that the first breath it should take might be the gentle air of your liking; for, since his self had been accustomed thereunto, it would prove more agreeable and thriving to his right children than any other foster countenance whatsoever. At this time seeing that this unfinished tragedy happens under my hands to be imprinted, of a double duty, the one to yourself, the other to the deceased, I present the same to your most favourable allowance, offering my utmost self now and ever to be ready at your worship's disposing.

EDWARD BLUNT.

THE FIRST SESTIAD ¹

THE ARGUMENT OF THE FIRST SESTIAD.

Hero's description and her love's;
The fane of Venus where he moves
His worthy love-suit, and attains;
Whose bliss the wrath of Fates restrains
For Cupid's grace to Mercury:
Which tale the author doth imply.

On Hellespont, guilty of true love's blood,
In view and opposite two cities stood,
Sea-borderers, disjoin'd by Neptune's might;
The one Abydos, the other Sestos hight.
At Sestos Hero dwelt; Hero the fair,
Whom young Apollo courted for her hair,
And offer'd as a dower his burning throne,
Where she should sit, for men to gaze upon.
The outside of her garments were of lawn,
The lining purple silk, with gilt stars drawn;
Her wide sleeves green, and border'd with a grove,
Where Venus in her naked glory strove
To please the careless and disdainful eyes
Of proud Adonis, that before her lies;
Her kirtle blue, whereon was many a stain,
Made with the blood of wretched lovers slain.
Upon her head she ware a myrtle wreath,
From whence her veil reach'd to the ground beneath:
Her veil was artificial flowers and leaves,
Whose workmanship both man and beast deceives:
Many would praise the sweet smell as she past,
When 'twas the odour which her breath forth cast;
And there for honey bees have sought in vain,
And, beat from thence, have lighted there again.
About her neck hung chains of pebble-stone,
Which, lighten'd by her neck, like diamonds shone.
She ware no gloves; for neither sun nor wind
Would burn or parch her hands, but, to her mind,
Or warm or cool them, for they took delight
To play upon those hands, they were so white.
Buskins of shells, all silver'd, used she,

¹ The first two Sestiads were written by Marlowe; the last four by Chapman, who supplied also the Arguments for the six Sestiads.

And branch'd with blushing coral to the knee;
Where sparrows perch'd, of hollow pearl and gold,
Such as the world would wonder to behold:
Those with sweet water oft her handmaid fills,
Which, as she went, would cherup through the bills.
Some say, for her the fairest Cupid pin'd,
And, looking in her face, was strooken blind.
But this is true; so like was one the other,
As he imagin'd Hero was his mother;
And oftentimes into her bosom flew,
About her naked neck his bare arms threw,
And laid his childish head upon her breast,
And, with still panting rock, there took his rest.
So lovely-fair was Hero, Venus' nun,
As Nature wept, thinking she was undone,
Because she took more from her than she left,
And of such wondrous beauty her bereft:
Therefore, in sign her treasure suffer'd wrack,
Since Hero's time hath half the world been black.

Amorous Leander, beautiful and young,
(Whose tragedy divine Musæus sung,)
Dwelt at Abydos; since him dwelt there none
For whom succeeding times make greater moan.
His dangling tresses, that were never shorn,
Had they been cut, and unto Colchos borne,
Would have allur'd the venturous youth of Greece
To hazard more than for the golden fleece.
Fair Cynthia wish'd his arms might be her sphere;
Grief makes her pale, because she moves not there.
His body was as straight as Circe's wand;
Jove might have sipt out nectar from his hand.
Even as delicious meat is to the tast,
So was his neck in touching, and surpast
The white of Pelops' shoulder: I could tell ye,
How smooth his breast was, and how white his belly;
And whose immortal fingers did imprint
That heavenly path with many a curious dint
That runs along his back; but my rude pen
Can hardly blazon forth the loves of men,
Much less of powerful gods: let it suffice
That my slack Muse sings of Leander's eyes;
Those orient cheeks and lips, exceeding his
That leapt into the water for a kiss

Of his own shadow, and, despising many,
 Died ere he could enjoy the love of any.
 Had wild Hippolytus Leander seen,
 Enamour'd of his beauty had he been:
 His presence made the rudest peasant melt,
 That in the vast uplandish country dwelt;
 The barbarous Thracian soldier, mov'd with nought,
 Was mov'd with him, and for his favour sought.
 Some swore he was a maid in man's attire,
 For in his looks were all that men desire,—
 A pleasant-smiling cheek, a speaking eye,
 A brow for love to banquet royally;
 And such as knew he was a man, would say,
 "Leander, thou art made for amorous play:
 Why art thou not in love, and lov'd of all?
 Though thou be fair, yet be not thine own thrall."

The men of wealthy Sestos every year,
 For his sake whom their goddess held so dear,
 Rose-cheek'd Adonis, kept a solemn feast:
 Thither resorted many a wandering guest
 To meet their loves: such as had none at all,
 Came lovers home from this great festival;
 For every street, like to a firmament,
 Glisten'd with breathing stars, who, where they went,
 Frighted the melancholy earth, which deem'd
 Eternal heaven to burn, for so it seem'd,
 As if another Phaëton had got
 The guidance of the sun's rich chariot.
 But, far above the loveliest, Hero shin'd,
 And stole away th' enchanted gazer's mind;
 For like sea nymphs' inveigling harmony,
 So was her beauty to the standers by;
 Nor that night-wandering, pale, and watery star
 (When yawning dragons draw her thirling car
 From Latmus' mount up to the gloomy sky,
 Where, crown'd with blazing light and majesty,
 She proudly sits) more over-rules the flood
 Than she the hearts of those that near her stood.
 Even as when gaudy nymphs pursue the chase,
 Wretched Ixion's shaggy-footed race,
 Incens'd with savage heat, gallop amain
 From steep pine-bearing mountains to the plain,
 So ran the people forth to gaze upon her,

And all that view'd her were enamour'd on her:
And as in fury of a dreadful fight,
Their fellows being slain or put to flight,
Poor soldiers stand with fear of death dead-strooken,
So at her presence all surpris'd and taken,
Await the sentence of her scornful eyes;
He whom she favours lives; the other dies:
There might you see one sigh; another rage;
And some, their violent passions to assuage
Compile sharp satires; but, alas, too late!
For faithful love will never turn to hate;
And many, seeing great princes were denied,
Pin'd as they went, and thinking on her died.
On this feast-day,—O cursed day and hour!—
Went Hero thorough Sestos, from her tower
To Venus' temple, where unhappily,
As after chanc'd, they did each other spy.
So fair a church as this had Venus none:
The walls were of discolour'd jasper-stone,
Wherein was Proteus carv'd; and over-head.
A lively vine of green sea-agate spread,
Where by one hand light-headed Bacchus hung,
And with the other wine from grapes out-wrung.
Of crystal shining fair the pavement was;
The town of Sestos call'd it Venus' glass:
There might you see the gods, in sundry shapes,
Committing heady riots, incest, rapes;
For know, that underneath this radiant flour
Was Danæ's statue in a brazen tower;
Jove slily stealing from his sister's bed,
To dally with Idalian Ganymed,
And for his love Europa bellowing loud,
And tumbling with the Rainbow in a cloud;
Blood-quaffing Mars heaving the iron net
Which limping Vulcan and his Cyclops set;
Love kindling fire, to burn such towns as Troy;
Silvanus weeping for the lovely boy
That now is turn'd into a cypress-tree,
Under whose shade the wood-gods love to be.
And in the midst a silver altar stood:
There Hero, sacrificing turtle's blood,
Vail'd to the ground, veiling her eyelids close;
And modestly they open'd as she rose:

Thence flew Love's arrow with the golden head;
And thus Leander was enamoured.
Stone-still he stood, and evermore he gaz'd,
Till with the fire, that from his countenance blaz'd,
Relenting Hero's gentle heart was strook:
Such force and virtue hath an amorous look.

It lies not in our power to love or hate,
For will in us is over-rul'd by fate.
When two are stript long ere the course begin,
We wish that one should lose, the other win;
And one especially do we affect
Of two gold ingots, like in each respect:
The reason no man knows; let it suffice,
What we behold is censur'd by our eyes.
Where both deliberate, the love is slight:
Who ever lov'd, that lov'd not at first sight?

He kneel'd; but unto her devoutly pray'd:
Chaste Hero to herself thus softly said,
" Were I the saint he worships, I would hear him ;"
And, as she spake those words, came somewhat near him.

He started up; she blush'd as one asham'd;
Wherewith Leander much more was inflam'd.
He touch'd her hand; in touching it she trembled:
Love deeply ground, hardly is dissembled.
These lovers parled by the touch of hands:
True love is mute, and oft amazed stands.
Thus while dumb signs their yielding hearts entangled,
The air with sparks of living fire was spangled;
And Night, deep-drench'd in misty Acheron,
Heav'd up her head, and half the world upon
Breath'd darkness forth (dark night is Cupid's day):
And now begins Leander to display
Love's holy fire, with words, with sighs, and tears;
Which, like sweet music, enter'd Hero's ears;
And yet at every word she turn'd aside,
And always cut him off, as he replied.
At last, like to a bold sharp sophister,
With cheerful hope thus he accosted her.
" Fair creature, let me speak without offence:
I would my rude words had the influence
To lead thy thoughts as thy fair looks do mine!
Then shouldst thou be his prisoner, who is thine.

Be not unkind and fair; mis-shapen stuff
 Are of behaviour boisterous and rough.
 O, shun me not, but hear me ere you go!
 God knows, I cannot force love as you do:
 My words shall be as spotless as my youth,
 Full of simplicity and naked truth.
 This sacrifice, whose sweet perfume descending
 From Venus' altar, to your footsteps bending,
 Doth testify that you exceed her far,
 To whom you offer, and whose nun you are.
 Why should you worship her? her you surpass
 As much as sparkling diamonds flaring glass.
 A diamond set in lead his worth retains;
 A heavenly nymph, belov'd of human swains,
 Receives no blemish, but oftentimes more grace;
 Which makes me hope, although I am but base,
 — e in respect of thee divine and pure,
 utiful service may thy love procure;
 And I in duty will excel all other,
 As thou in beauty dost exceed Love's mother.
 Nor heaven nor thou were made to gaze upon:
 As heaven preserves all things, so save thou one.
 A stately builded ship, well rigg'd and tall,
 The ocean maketh more majestical:
 Why vow'st thou, then, to live in Sestos here,
 Who on Love's seas more glorious wouldst appear?
 Like untun'd golden strings all women are,
 Which long time lie untouch'd, will harshly jar.
 Vessels of brass, oft handled, brightly shine:
 What difference betwixt the richest mine
 And basest mould, but use? for both, not us'd,
 Are of like worth. Then treasure is abus'd,
 When misers keep it: being put to loan,
 In time it will return us two for one.
 Rich robes themselves and others do adorn;
 Neither themselves nor others, if not worn.
 Who builds a palace, and rams up the gate,
 Shall see it ruinous and desolate:
 Ah, simple Hero, learn thyself to cherish!
 Lone women, like to empty houses, perish.
 Less sins the poor rich man, that starves himself
 In heaping up a mass of drossy pelf,
 Than such as you: his golden earth remains,

Which, after his decease, some other gains;
 But this fair gem, sweet in the loss alone,
 When you fleet hence, can be bequeath'd to none;
 Or, if it could, down from th' enamell'd sky
 All heaven would come to claim this legacy,
 And with intestine broils the world destroy,
 And quite confound Nature's sweet harmony.
 Well therefore by the gods decreed it is,
 We human creatures should enjoy that bliss.
 One is no number; maids are nothing, then,
 Without the sweet society of men.
 Wilt thou live single still? one shalt thou be,
 Though never singling Hymen couple thee.
 Wild savages, that drink of running springs,
 Think water far excels all earthly things;
 But they, that daily taste neat wine, despise it:
 Virginitie, albeit some highly prize it,
 Compar'd with marriage, had you tried them both,
 Differs as much as wine and water doth.
 Base bullion for the stamp's sake we allow:
 Even so for men's impression do we you;
 By which alone, our reverend fathers say,
 Women receive perfection every way.
 This idol, which you term virginitie,
 Is neither essence subject to the eye,
 No, nor to any one exterior sense,
 Nor hath it any place of residence,
 Nor is't of earth or mould celestial,
 Or capable of any form at all.
 Of that which hath no being, do not boast:
 Things that are not at all, are never lost.
 Men foolishly do call it virtuous:
 What virtue is it, that is born with us?
 Much less can honour be ascrib'd thereto:
 Honour is purchas'd by the deeds we do
 Believe me, Hero, honour is not won,
 Until some honourable deed be done.
 Seek you, for chastity, immortal fame,
 And know that some have wrong'd Diana's name?
 Whose name is it, if she be false or not,
 So she be fair, but some vile tongues will blot?
 But you are fair, ay me! so wondrous fair,
 So young, so gentle, and so debonair,

As Greece will think, if thus you live alone,
Some one or other keeps you as his own.
Then, Hero, hate me not, nor from me fly,
To follow swiftly blasting infamy.
Perhaps thy sacred priesthood makes thee loath:
Tell me, to whom mad'st thou that heedless oath? "
"To Venus," answer'd she; and, as she spake,
Forth from those two tralucient cisterns brake
A stream of liquid pearl, which down her face
Made milk-white paths, whereon the gods might trace
To Jove's high court. He thus replied: "The rites
In which love's beauteous empress most delights,
Are banquets, Doric music, midnight revel,
Plays, masks, and all that stern age counteth evil.
Thee as a holy idiot doth she scorn;
For thou, in vowing chastity, hast sworn
To rob her name and honour, and thereby
Committ'st a sin far worse than perjury,
Even sacrilege against her deity,
Through regular and formal purity.
To expiate which sin, kiss and shake hands:
Such sacrifice as this Venus demands."
Thereat she smil'd, and did deny him so,
As put thereby, yet might he hope for mo;
Which makes him quickly reinforce his speech,
And her in humble manner thus beseech:
"Though neither gods nor men may thee deserve,
Yet for her sake, whom you have vow'd to serve,
Abandon fruitless cold virginity.
The gentle queen of love's sole enemy.
Then shall you most resemble Venus' nun,
When Venus' sweet rites are perform'd and done.
Flint breasted Pallas joys in single life;
But Pallas and your mistress are at strife.
Love, Hero, then, and be not tyrannous;
But heal the heart that thou hast wounded thus;
Nor stain thy youthful years with avarice:
Fair fools delight to be accounted nice.
{ The richest corn dies, if it be not reapt;
Beauty alone is lost, too warily kept."
These arguments he us'd, and many more;
Wherewith she yielded, that was won before.
Hero's looks yielded, but her words made war:

Women are won when they begin to jar.
 Thus, having swallow'd Cupid's golden hook,
 The more she striv'd, the deeper was she strook:
 Yet, evilly feigning anger, strove she still,
 And would be thought to grant against her will.
 So having paus'd a while, at last she said,
 "Who taught thee rhetoric to deceive a maid?
 Ay me! such words as these should I abhor,
 And yet I like them for the orator."
 With that, Leander stoop'd to have embrac'd her,
 But from his spreading arms away she cast her,
 And thus bespake him: "Gentle youth, forbear
 To touch the sacred garments which I wear.
 Upon a rock, and underneath a hill,
 Far from the town, (where all is whist and still,
 Save that the sea, playing on yellow sand,
 Sends forth a rattling murmur to the land,
 Whose sound allures the golden Morpheus
 In silence of the night to visit us,)
 My turret stands; and there, God knows, I play
 With Venus' swans and sparrows all the day.
 A dwarfish beldam bears me company,
 • That hops about the chamber where I lie,
 And spends the night, that might be better spent,
 In vain discourse and apish merriment:—
 Come thither." As she spake this, her tongue tripp'd,
 For unawares, "Come thither," from her slipp'd;
 And suddenly her former colour chang'd,
 And here and there her eyes through anger rang'd;
 And, like a planet moving several ways
 At one self instant, she, poor soul, assays,
 Loving, not to love at all, and every part
 Strove to resist the motions of her heart:
 And hands so pure, so innocent, nay, such
 As might have made Heaven stoop to have a touch,
 Did she uphold to Venus, and again
 Vow'd spotless chastity; but all in vain;
 Cupid beats down her prayers with his wings;
 Her vows about the empty air he flings:
 All deep enrag'd, his sinewy bow he bent,
 And shot a shaft that burning from him went;
 Wherewith she strooken, look'd so dolefully,
 As made Love sigh to see his tyranny;

And, as she wept, her tears to pearl he turn'd,
And wound them on his arm, and for her mourn'd.
Then towards the palace of the Destinies,
Laden with languishment and grief, he flies,
And to those stern nymphs humbly made request,
Both might enjoy each other, and be blest.
But with a ghastly dreadful countenance,
Threatening a thousand deaths at every glance,
They answer'd Love, nor would vouchsafe so much
As one poor word, their hate to him was such:
Hearken a while, and I will tell you why.

Heaven's winged herald, Jove-born Mercury,
The self-same day that he asleep had laid
Enchanted Argus, spied a country maid,
Whose careless hair, instead of pearl t'adorn it,
Glister'd with dew, as one that seem'd to scorn it.
Her breath as fragrant as the morning rose;
Her mind pure, and her tongue untaught to glose:
Yet proud she was (for lofty Pride that dwells
In towered courts, is oft in shepherds' cells),
And too-too well the fair vermilion knew
And silver tincture of her cheeks, that drew
The love of every swain. On her this god
Enamour'd was, and with his snaky rod
Did charm her nimble feet, and made her stay,
The while upon a hillock down he lay,
And sweetly on his pipe began to play,
And with smooth speech her fancy to assay,
Till in his twining arms he lock'd her fast,
And then he woo'd with kisses; and at last,
As shepherds do, her on the ground he laid,
And, tumbling in the grass, he often stray'd
Beyond the bounds of shame, in being bold
To eye those parts which no eye should behold:
And, like an insolent commanding lover,
Boasting his parentage, would needs discover
The way to new Elysium. But she,
Whose only dower was her chastity,
Having striven in vain, was now about to cry,
And crave the help of shepherds that were nigh.
Herewith he stay'd his fury, and began
To give her leave to rise: away she ran;
After went Mercury, who us'd such cunning,

As she, to hear his tale, left off her running;
 (Maids are not won by brutish force and might
 But speeches full of pleasure, and delight;)
 And, knowing Hermes courted her, was glad
 That she such loveliness and beauty had
 As could provoke his liking; yet was mute,
 And neither would deny nor grant his suit.
 Still vow'd he love: she, wanting no excuse
 To feed him with delays, as women use,
 Or thirsting after immortality,
 (All women are ambitious naturally,)
 Impos'd upon her lover such a task,
 As he ought not perform, nor yet she ask;
 A draught of flowing nectar she requested,
 Wherewith the king of gods and men is feasted.
 He, ready to accomplish what she will'd,
 Stole some from Hebe (Hebe Jove's cup fill'd),
 And gave it to his simple rustic love:
 Which being known,—as what is hid from Jove?—
 He inly storm'd, and wax'd more furious
 Than for the fire filch'd by Prometheus;
 And thrusts him down from heaven. He, wandering
 here,
 In mournful terms, with sad and heavy cheer,
 Complain'd to Cupid: Cupid, for his sake,
 To be reveng'd on Jove did undertake;
 And those on whom heaven, earth, and hell relies,
 I mean the adamantine Destinies,
 He wounds with love, and forc'd them equally
 To dote upon deceitful Mercury.
 They offer'd him the deadly fatal knife
 That shears the slender threads of human life;
 At his fair feather'd feet the engines laid,
 Which th' earth from ugly Chaos' den upweigh'd.
 These he regarded not; but did entreat
 That Jove, usurper of his father's seat,
 Might presently he banish'd into hell,
 And aged Saturn in Olympus dwell.
 They granted what he crav'd; and once again
 Saturn and Ops began their golden reign:
 Murder, rape, war, and lust, and treachery,
 Were with Jove clos'd in Stygian empery.
 But long this blessed time continu'd not:

As soon as he his wished purpose got,
 He, reckless of his promise, did despise
 The love of th' everlasting Destinies.
 They, seeing it, both Love and him abhorr'd,
 And Jupiter unto his place restor'd:
 And, but that learning, in despite of Fate,
 Will amount aloft, and enter heaven-gate,
 And to the seat of Jove itself advance,
 Hermes had slept in hell with Ignorance.
 Yet, as a punishment, they added this,
 That he and Poverty should always kiss
 And to this day is every scholar poor:
 Gross gold from them runs headlong to the boor.
 Likewise the angry Sisters, thus deluded,
 To venge themselves on Hermes, have concluded
 That Midas' brood shall sit in Honour's chair,
 To which the Muses' sons are only heir;
 And fruitful wits, that inaspiring are,
 Shall discontent run into regions far;
 And few great lords in virtuous deeds shall joy
 But be surpris'd with every garish toy,
 And still enrich the lofty servile clown,
 Who with encroaching guile keeps learning down.
 Then muse not Cupid's suit no better sped,
 Seeing in their loves the Fates were injured.

THE SECOND SESTIAD

THE ARGUMENT OF THE SECOND SESTIAD.

Hero of love takes deeper sense,
 And doth her love more recompense:
 Their first night's meeting, where sweet kisses
 Are th' only crowns of both their blisses.
 He swims t' Abydos, and returns:
 Cold Neptune with his beauty burns;
 Whose suit he shuns, and doth aspire
 Hero's fair tower and his desire.

By this, sad Hero, with love unacquainted,
 Viewing Leander's face, fell down and fainted.
 He kiss'd her, and breath'd life into her lips;
 Wherewith, as one displeas'd, away she trips;
 Yet, as she went, full often look'd behind,

And many poor excuses did she find
 To linger by the way, and once she stay'd,
 And would have turn'd again, but was afraid,
 In offering parley, to be counted light:
 So on she goes, and, in her idle flight,
 Her painted fan of curled plumes let fall,
 Thinking to train Leander therewithal.
 He, being a novice, knew not what she meant,
 But stay'd, and after her a letter sent;
 Which joyful Hero answer'd in such sort,
 As he had hoped to scale the beauteous fort
 Wherein the liberal Graces lock'd their wealth;
 And therefore to her tower he got by stealth.
 Wide-open stood the door; he need not climb;
 And she herself, before the pointed time,
 Had spread the board, with roses strew'd the room,
 And oft look'd out, and mus'd he did not come.
 At last he came: O, who can tell the greeting
 These greedy lovers had at their first meeting?
 He ask'd; she gave; and nothing was denied;
 Both to each other quickly were affied:
 Look how their hands, so were their hearts united,
 And what he did, she willingly requited.
 (Sweet are the kisses, the embracements sweet,
 When like desires and like affections meet;
 For from the earth to heaven is Cupid rais'd,
 Where fancy is in equal balance pais'd.)
 Yet she this rashness suddenly repented,
 And turn'd aside, and to herself lamented,
 As if her name and honour had been wrong'd,
 By being possess'd of him for whom she long'd;
 Ay, and she wish'd, albeit not from her heart,
 That he would leave her turret and depart.
 The mirthful god of amorous pleasure smil'd
 To see how he this captive nymph beguil'd;
 For hitherto he did but fan the fire,
 And kept it down, that it might mount the higher.
 Now wax'd she jealous lest his love abated,
 Fearing her own thoughts made her to be hated.
 Therefore unto him hastily she goes,
 And, like light Salmacis, her body throws
 Upon his bosom, where with yielding eyes
 She offers up herself a sacrifice

To slake his anger, if he were displeas'd:
 O, what god would not therewith be appeas'd?
 Like Æsop's cock, this jewel he enjoy'd,
 And as a brother with his sister toy'd,
 Supposing nothing else was to be done,
 Now he her favour and goodwill had won.
 But know you not that creatures wanting sense,
 By nature have a mutual appetite,
 And, wanting organs to advance a step,
 Mov'd by love's force, unto each other leep?
 Much more in subjects having intellect
 Some hidden influence breeds like effect.
 Albeit Leander, rude in love and raw,
 Long dallying with Hero, nothing saw
 That might delight him more, yet he suspected
 Some amorous rites or other were neglected.
 Therefore unto his body hers he clung:
 She, fearing on the rushes to be flung,
 Striv'd with redoubled strength; the more she striv'd,
 The more a gentle pleasing heat reviv'd,
 Which taught him all that elder lovers know;
 And now the same gan so to scorch and glow,
 As in plain terms, yet cunningly, he crave it:
 Love always makes those eloquent that have it.
 She, with a kind of granting, put him by it,
 And ever, as he thought himself most nigh it,
 Like to the tree of Tantalus, she fled,
 And, seeming lavish, sav'd her maidenhead.
 Ne'er king more sought to keep his diadem,
 Than Hero this inestimable gem:
 Above our life we love a steadfast friend;
 Yet when a token of great worth we send,
 We often kiss it, often look thereon,
 And stay the messenger that would be gone;
 No marvel, then, though Hero would not yield
 So soon to part from that she dearly held:
 Jewels being lost are found again; this never;
 'Tis lost but once, and once lost, lost for ever.
 Now had the Morn espied her lover's steeds;
 Whereat she starts, puts on her purple weeds,
 And, red for anger that he stay'd so long,
 All headlong throws herself the clouds among.
 And now Leander, fearing to be miss'd,

Embrac'd her suddenly, took leave, and kiss'd:
 Long was he taking leave, and loathe to go,
 And kiss'd again, as lovers use to do.
 Sad Hero wrung him by the hand, and wept,
 Saying, " Let your vows and promises be kept ":
 Then standing at the door, she turn'd about,
 As loathe to see Leander going out.
 And now the sun, that through th' horizon peeps,
 As pitying these lovers, downward creeps;
 So that in silence of the cloudy night,
 Though it was morning, did he take his flight.
 But what the secret trusty night conceal'd,
 Leander's amorous habit soon reveal'd:
 With Cupid's myrtle was his bonnet crown'd,
 About his arms the purple riband wound,
 Wherewith she wreath'd her largely-spreading hair;
 Nor could the youth abstain, but he must wear
 The sacred ring wherewith she was endow'd,
 When first religious chastity she vow'd;
 Which made his love through Sestos to be known,
 And thence unto Abydos sooner blown
 Than he could sail; for incorporeal Fame,
 Whose weight consists in nothing but her name,
 Is swifter than the wind, whose tardy plumes
 Are reeking water and dull earthly fumes.

Hoine when he came, he seem'd not to be there,
 But, like exiled air thrust from his sphere,
 Set in a foreign place; and straight from thence,
 Alcides-like, by mighty violence,
 He would have chas'd away the swelling main,
 That him from her unjustly did detain.
 Like as the sun in a diameter
 Fires and inflames objects removed far,
 And heateth kindly, shining laterally;
 So beauty sweetly quickens when 'tis nigh,
 But being separated and remov'd,
 Burns where it cherish'd, murders where it lov'd,
 Therefore even as an index to a book,
 So to his mind was young Leander's look.
 O, none but gods have power their love to hide!
 Affection by the countenance is descried;
 The light of hidden fire itself discovers,
 And love that is conceal'd betrays poor lovers.

His secret flame apparently was seen:
Leander's father knew where he had been,
And for the same mildly rebuk'd his son,
Thinking to quench the sparkles new-begun,
But love resisted once, grows passionate,
And nothing more than counsel lovers hate;
For as a hot proud horse highly disdains
To have his head controll'd, but breaks the reins,
Spits forth the ringled bit, and with his hoves
Checks the submissive ground; so he that loves,
The more he is restrain'd, the worse he fares:
What is it now but mad Leander dares?
"O Hero, Hero!" thus he cried full oft;
And then he got him to a rock aloft,
Where having spied her tower, long star'd he on't,
And pray'd the narrow toiling Hellespont
To part in twain, that he might come and go;
But still the rising billows answer'd, "No."
With that, he stripp'd him to the ivory skin,
And, crying, "Love, I come," leap'd lively in:
Whereat the sapphire-visag'd god grew proud,
And made his capering Triton sound aloud,
Imagining that Ganymede, displeas'd,
Had left the heavens; therefore on him he seiz'd.
Leander striv'd; the waves about him wound,
And pull'd him to the bottom, where the ground
Was strew'd with pearl, and in low coral groves
Sweet-singing mermaids sported with their loves
On heaps of heavy gold, and took great pleasure
To spurn in careless sort the shipwreck treasure;
For here the stately azure palace stood,
Where kingly Neptune and his train abode.
The lusty god embrac'd him, call'd him "love,"
And swore he never should return to Jove:
But when he knew it was not Ganymed,
For under water he was almost dead,
He heav'd him up, and, looking on his face,
Beat down the bold waves with his triple mace,
Which mounted up, intending to have kiss'd him.
And fell in drops like tears because they miss'd him.
Leander, being up, began to swim,
And, looking back, saw Neptune follow him:
Whereat aghast, the poor soul gan to cry,

" O, let me visit Hero ere I die! "
 The god put Helle's bracelet on his arm,
 And swore the sea should never do him harm.
 He clapp'd his plump cheeks, with his tresses play'd,
 And, smiling wantonly, his love bewray'd;
 He watch'd his arms, and, as they open'd wide
 At every stroke, betwixt them would he slide,
 And steal a kiss, and then run out and dance,
 And, as he turn'd, cast many a lustful glance,
 And throw him gaudy toys to please his eye,
 And dive into the water, and there pry
 Upon his breast, his thighs, and every limb,
 And up again, and close beside him swim,
 And talk of love. Leander made reply,
 " You are deceiv'd; I am no woman, I."
 Thereat smil'd Neptune, and then told a tale,
 How that a shepherd, sitting in a vale,
 Play'd with a boy so lovely-fair and kind,
 As for his love both earth and heaven pin'd;
 That of the cooling river durst not drink,
 Lest water-nymphs should pull him from the brink;
 And when he sported in the fragrant lawns,
 Goat-footed Satyrs and up-staring Fauns
 Would steal him thence. Ere half this tale was done,
 " Ay me," Leander cried, " th' enamour'd sun,
 That now should shine on Thetis' glassy bower,
 Descends upon my radiant Hero's tower:
 O, that these tardy arms of mine were wings! "
 And, as he spake, upon the waves he springs.
 Neptune was angry that he gave no ear,
 And in his heart revenging malice bare:
 He flung at him his mace; but, as it went,
 He call'd it in, for love made him repent:
 The mace, returning back, his own hand hit,
 As meaning to be veng'd for darting it.
 When this fresh-bleeding wound Leander view'd,
 His colour went and came, as if he ru'd
 The grief which Neptune felt: in gentle breasts
 Relenting thoughts, remorse, and pity rests;
 And who have hard hearts and obdurate minds,
 But vicious, hare-brain'd, and illiterate hinds?
 The god, seeing him with pity to be mov'd,
 Thereon concluded that he was belov'd;

(Love is too full of faith, too credulous,
With folly and false hope deluding us;) .
Wherefore, Leander's fancy to surprise,
To the rich ocean for gifts he flies;
'Tis wisdom to give much; a gilt prevails
When deep-persuading oratory fails.

By this, Leander, being near the land,
Cast down his weary feet, and felt the sand.
Breathless albeit he were, he rested not
Till to the solitary tower he got;
And knock'd, and call'd: at which celestial noise
The longing heart of Hero much more joys,
Than nymphs and shepherds when the timbrel rings,
Or crooked dolphin when the sailor sings.
She stay'd not for her robes, but straight arose,
And, drunk with gladness, to the door she goes;
Where seeing a naked man, she screech'd for fear,
(Such sights as this to tender maids are rare,)
And ran into the dark herself to hide
(Rich jewels in the dark are soonest spied).
Unto her was he led, or rather drawn
By those white limbs which sparkled through the lawn:
The nearer that he came, the more she fled,
And, seeking refuge, slipt into her bed;
Whereon Leander sitting, thus began,
Through numbing cold, all feeble, faint, and wan.
"If not for love, yet, love, for pity-sake,
Me in thy bed and maiden bosom take;
At least vouchsafe these arms some little room,
Who, hoping to embrace thee, cheerly swoon:
This head was beat with many a churlish billow,
And therefore let it rest upon thy pillow."
Herewith affrighted, Hero shrunk away,
And in her lukewarm place Leander lay;
Whose lively heat, like fire from heaven fet,
Would animate gross clay, and higher set
The drooping thoughts of base-declining souls,
Than dreary-Mars-carousing nectar bowls.
His hands he cast upon her like a snare:
She, overcome with shame and sallow fear,
Like chaste Diana when Actæon spied her,
Being suddenly betray'd, div'd down to hide her;
And, as her silver body downward went,

With both her hands she made the bed a tent,
 And in her own mind thought herself secure,
 O'ercast with dim and darksome coverture.
 And now she lets him whisper in her ear,
 Flatter, entreat, promise, protest, and swear:
 Yet ever, as he greedily assay'd
 To touch those dainties, she the harpy play'd,
 And every limb did, as a soldier stout,
 Defend the fort, and keep the foeman out;
 For though the rising ivory mount he scal'd,
 Which is with azure circling lines empal'd.
 Much like a globe (a globe may I term this,
 By which Love sails to regions full of bliss,)
 Yet there with Sisyphus he toil'd in vain,
 Till gentle parley did the truce obtain.
 Even as a bird, which in our hands we wring,
 Forth plungeth, and oft flutters with her wing,
 She trembling strove: this strife of hers, like that
 Which made the world, another world begat
 Of unknown joy. Treason was in her thought,
 And cunningly to yield herself she sought.
 Seeming not won, yet won she was at length:
 In such wars women use but half their strength.
 Leander now, like Theban Hercules,
 Enter'd the orchard of th' Hesperides;
 Whose fruit none rightly can describe, but he
 That pulls or shakes it from the golden tree.
 Wherein Leander, on her quivering breast,
 Breathless spoke something, and sigh'd out the rest;
 Which so prevail'd, as he, with small ado,
 Enclos'd her in his arms, and kiss'd her too:
 And every kiss to her was as a charm,
 And to Leander as a fresh alarm:
 So that the truce was broke, and she, alas,
 Poor silly maiden, at his mercy was.
 Love is not full of pity, as men say,
 But deaf and cruel where he means to prey
 And now she wish'd this night were never done,
 And sigh'd to think upon th' approaching sun;
 For much it griev'd her that the bright day-light
 Should know the pleasure of this blessed night,
 And them, like Mars and Erycine, display
 Both in each other's arms chain'd as they lay.

Again, she knew not how to frame her look,
Or speak to him, who in a moment took
That which so long, so charily she kept;
And fain by stealth away she would have crept,
And to some corner secretly have gone,
Leaving Leander in the bed alone.
But as her naked feet were whipping out,
He on the sudden cling'd her so about,
That, mermaid-like, unto the floor she slid;
One half appear'd the other half was hid.
Thus near the bed she blushing stood upright,
And from her countenance behold ye might
A kind of twilight break, which through the air,
As from an orient cloud, glimps'd here and there;
And round about the chamber this false morn
Brought forth the day before the day was born.
So Hero's ruddy cheek Hero betray'd,
And her all naked to his sight display'd:
Whence his admiring eyes more pleasure took
Than Dis, on heaps of gold fixing his look.
By this, Apollo's golden harp began
To sound forth music to the ocean;
Which watchful Hesperus no sooner heard,
But he the bright Day-bearing car prepar'd,
And ran before, as harbinger of light,
And with his flaring beams mock'd ugly Night
Till she, o'ercome with anguish, shame, and rage,
Dang'd down to hell her loathsome carriage.¹

THE THIRD SESTIAD

THE ARGUMENT OF THE THIRD SESTIAD.

Leander to the envious light
 Resigns his night-sports with the night,
 And swims the Hellespont again.
 Thesme, the deity sovereign
 Of customs and religious rites,
 Appears, reproving his delights,
 Since nuptial honours he neglected;
 Which straight he vows shall be effected.
 Fair Hero, left devirginate,
 V'eighs, and with fury wails her state:
 But with her love and woman's wit
 She argues and approveth it.

New light gives new directions, fortunes new
 To fashion our endeavours that ensue.
 More harsh, at least more hard, more grave and high
 Our subject runs, and our stern Muse must fly.
 Love's edge is taken off, and that light flame,
 Those thoughts, joys, longings, that before became
 High unexperienc'd blood, and maids' sharp plights,
 Must now grow staid, and censure the delights,
 That, being enjoy'd, ask judgment; now we praise,
 As having parted: evenings crown the days.

And now, ye wanton Loves, and young Desires,
 Pied Vanity, the mint of strange attires,
 Ye lipping Flatteries, and obsequious Glances,
 Relentful Musics, and attractive Dances,
 And you detested Charms constraining love!
 Shun love's stoln sports by that these lovers prove.

By this, the sovereign of heaven's golden fires,
 And young Leander, lord of his desires,
 Together from their lover's arms arose:
 Leander into Hellespontus throws
 His Hero-handled body, whose delight
 Made him disdain each other epithite.
 And so amidst th' enamour'd waves he swims,
 The god of gold of purpose gilt his limbs,
 That, this word gilt including double sense,
 The double guilt of his incontinence
 Might be express'd, that had no stay t' employ
 The treasure which the love-god let him joy
 In his dear Hero, with such sacred thrift

As had beseem'd so sanctified a gift;
But, like a greedy vulgar prodigal,
Would on the stock dispend, and rudely fall,
Before his time, to that unblessed blessing
Which, for lust's plague, doth perish with possessing:
Joy graven in sense, like snow in water, wasts;
Without preserve of virtue, nothing lasts.
What man is he, that with a wealthy eye
Enjoys a beauty richer than the sky,
Through whose white skin, softer than soundest sleep,
With damask eyes the ruby blood doth peep,
And runs in branches through her azure veins,
Whose mixture and first fire his love attains;
Whose both hands limit both love's deities,
And sweeten human thoughts like paradise;
Whose disposition silken and is kind,
Directed with an earth-exempted mind;—
Who thinks not heaven with such a love is given?
And who, like earth, would spend that dower of heaven,
With rank desire to joy it all at first?
What simply kills our hunger, quencheth thirst,
Clothes but our nakedness, and makes us live,
Praise doth not any of her favours give:
But what doth plentifully minister
Beauteous apparel and delicious cheer,
So order'd that it still excites desire,
And still gives pleasure freeness to aspire,
The palm of Bounty ever moist preserving;
To Love's sweet life this is the courtly carving.
Thus Time and all-states-ordering Ceremony
Had banish'd all offence: Time's golden thigh
Upholds the flowery body of the earth
In sacred harmony, and every birth
Of men and actions makes legitimate;
Being us'd aright, the use of time is fate.

Yet did the gentle flood transfer once more
This prize of love home to his father's shore,
Where he unlades himself of that false wealth
That makes few rich,—treasures compos'd by stealth;
And to his sister, kind Hermione,
(Who on the shore kneel'd, praying to the sea
For his return,) he all love's goods did show,
In Hero seis'd for him, in him for Hero.

His most kind sister all his secrets knew,
 And to her, singing, like a shower, he flew,
 Sprinkling the earth, that to their tombs took in Streams dead for love, to leave his ivory skin,
 Which yet a snowy foam did leave above,
 As soul to the dead water that did love;
 And from thence did the first white roses spring
 (For love is sweet and fair in every thing),
 And all the sweeten'd shore, as he did go,
 Was crown'd with odorous roses, white as snow.
 Love-blest Leander was with love so fill'd.
 That love to all that touch'd him he instill'd;
 And as the colours of all things we see,
 To our sight's powers communicated be,
 So to all objects that in compass came
 Of any sense he had, his senses' flame
 Flow'd from his parts with force so virtual,
 It fir'd with sense things mere insensual.

Now, with warm baths and odours comforted,
 When he lay down, he kindly kiss'd his bed,
 As consecrating it to Hero's right,
 And vow'd thereafter, that whatever sight
 Put him in mind of Hero or her bliss,
 Should be her altar to prefer a kiss.

Then laid he forth his late-enriched arms,
 In whose white circle Love writ all his charms,
 And made his characters sweet Hero's limbs,
 When on his breast's warm sea she sideling swims;
 And as those arms, held up in circle, met,
 He said, "See, sister, Hero's carquet net!
 Which she had rather wear about her neck,
 Than all the jewels that do Juno deck."

But, as he shook with passionate desire
 To put in flame his other secret fire,
 A music so divine did pierce his ear,
 As never yet his ravish'd sense did hear;
 When suddenly a light of twenty hues
 Brake through the roof, and, like the rainbow, views
 Amaz'd Leander: in whose beams came down
 The goddess Ceremony, with a crown
 Of all the stars; and Heaven with her descended:
 Her flaming hair to her bright feet extended,
 By which hung all the bench of deities;

And in a chain, compact of ears and eyes,
She led Religion: all her body was
Clear and transparent as the purest glass,
For she was all presented to the sense:
Devotion, Order, State, and Reverence,
Her shadows were; Society, Memory;
All which her sight made live, her absence die.
A rich disparent pentacle she wears,
Drawn full of circles and strange characters.
Her face was changeable to every eye;
One way look'd ill, another graciously;
Which while men view'd, they cheerful were and holy,
But looking off, vicious and melancholy.
The snaky paths to each observed law
Did Policy in her broad bosom draw.
One hand a mathematic crystal sways,
Which, gathering in one line a thousand rays
From her bright eyes, Confusion burns to death,
And all estates of men distinguisheth:
By it Morality and Comeliness
Themselves in all their sightly figures dress.
Her other hand a laurel rod applies,
To beat back Barbarism and Avarice,
That follow'd, eating earth and excrement
And human limbs; and would make proud ascent
To seats of gods, were Ceremony slain.
The Hours and Graces bore her glorious train;
And all the sweets of our society
Were spher'd and treasur'd in her bounteous eye.
Thus she appear'd, and sharply did reprove
Leander's bluntness in his violent love;
Told him how poor was substance without rites,
Like bills unsign'd; desires without delights;
Like meats unseason'd; like rank corn that grows
On cottages, that none or reaps or sows;
Not being with civil forms confirm'd and bounded,
For human dignities and comforts founded;
But loose and secret all their glories hide;
Fear fills the chamber, Darkness decks the bride.
She vanish'd, leaving pierc'd Leander's heart
With sense of his unceremonious part,
In which, with plain neglect of nuptial rites,
He close and flatly fell to his delights:

And instantly he vow'd to celebrate
 All rites pertaining to his married state.
 So up he gets, and to his father goes,
 To whose glad ears he doth his vows disclose.
 The nuptials are resolv'd with utmost power;
 And he at night would swim to Hero's tower,
 From whence he meant to Sestos' forked bay
 To bring her covertly, where ships must stay,
 Sent by his father, throughly rigg'd and mann'd,
 To waft her safely to Abydos' strand.
 There leave we him; and with fresh wing pursue
 Astonish'd Hero, whose most wished view
 I thus long have forborne, because I left her
 So out of countenance, and her spirits bereft her:
 To look of one abashed is impudence,
 When of slight faults he hath too deep a sense.
 Her blushing het her chamber: she look'd out,
 And all the air she purpled round about;
 And after it a foul black day befell,
 Which ever since a red morn doth foretell,
 And still renews our woes for Hero's woe;
 And foul it prov'd, because it figur'd so
 The next night's horror; which prepare to hear;
 I fail, if it profane your daintiest ear.

Then, ho, most strangely-intellectual fire,
 That, proper to my soul, hast power t'inspire
 Her burning faculties, and with the wings
 Of thy unsphered flame visit'st the springs
 Of spirits immortal! Now (as swift as Time
 Doth follow Motion) find th' eternal clime
 Of his free soul, whose living subject stood
 Up to the chin in the Pierian flood,
 And drunk to me half this Musæan story,
 Inscribing it to deathless memory:
 Confer with it, and make my pledge as deep,
 That neither's draught be consecrate to sleep;
 Tell it how much his late desires I tender
 (If yet it know not), and to light surrender
 My soul's dark offspring, willing it should die
 To loves, to passions, and society.

Sweet Hero, left upon her bed alone,
 Her maidenhead, her vows, Leander gone,
 And nothing with her but a violent crew

Of new-come thoughts, that yet she never knew,
 Even to herself a stranger, was much like
 Th' Iberian city that War's hand did strike
 By English force in princely Essex' guide,
 When Peace assur'd her towers had fortified,
 And golden-finger'd India had bestow'd
 Such wealth on her, that strength and empire flow'd
 Into her turrets, and her virgin waist
 The wealthy girdle of the sea embrac'd;
 Till our Leander, that made Mars his Cupid,
 For soft love suits with iron thunders chid;
 Swum to her town, dissolv'd her virgin zone;
 Led in his power, and made Confusion
 Run through her streets amaz'd, that she suppos'd
 She had not been in her own walls enclosed,
 But rapt by wonder to some foreign state,
 Seeing all her issue so disconsolate,
 And all her peaceful mansions possess'd
 With war's just spoil, and many a foreign guest
 From every corner driving an enjoyer,
 Supplying it with power of a destroyer.
 So far'd fair Hero in th' expugned fort
 Of her chaste bosom; and of every sort
 Strange thoughts possess'd her, ransacking her breast
 For that that was not there, her wonted rest.
 She was a mother straight, and bore with pain
 Thoughts that spake straight, and wish'd their mother slain;
 She hates their lives, and they their own and hers:
 Such strife still grows where sin the race prefers:
 Love is a golden bubble, full of dreams,
 That waking breaks, and fills us with extremes.
 She mus'd how she could look upon her sire,
 And not show that without, that was intire;
 For as a glass is an inanimate eye,
 And outward forms embraceth inwardly,
 So is the eye an animate glass, that shows
 In forms without us; and as Phœbus throws
 His beams abroad, though he in clouds be clos'd,
 Still glancing by them till he find oppos'd
 A loose and rorid vapour that is fit
 T' event his searching beams, and useth it
 To form a tender twenty-colour'd eye,

Cast in a circle round about the sky;
 So when our fiery soul, our body's star,
 (That ever is in motion circular,)
 Conceives a form, in seeking to display it
 Through all our cloudy parts, it doth convey it
 Forth at the eye, as the most pregnant place,
 And that reflects it round about the face.
 And this event, uncourtly Hero thought,
 Her inward guilt would in her looks have wrought;
 For yet the world's stale cunning she resisted,
 To bear foul thoughts, yet forge what looks she listed,
 And held it for a very silly sleight,
 To make a perfect metal counterfeit.
 Glad to disclaim herself, proud of an art
 That makes the face a pandar to the heart.
 Those be the painted moons, whose lights profane
 Beauty's true heaven, at full still in their wane;
 Those be the lapwing faces that still cry,
 "Here 'tis!" when that they vow is nothing nigh:
 Base fools! when every moorish fool can teach
 That which men think the height of human reach.
 But custom, that the apoplexy is
 Of bed-rid nature and lives led amiss,
 And takes away all feeling of offence,
 Yet braz'd not Hero's brow with impudence;
 And this she thought most hard to bring to pass,
 To seem in countenance other than she was,
 As if she had two souls, one for the face,
 One for the heart, and that they shifted place
 As either list to utter or conceal
 What they conceiv'd, or as one soul did deal
 With both affairs at once, keeps and ejects
 Both at an instant contrary effects;
 Retention and ejection in her powers
 Being acts alike; for this one vice of ours,
 That forms the thought, and sways the countenance,
 Rules both our motion and our utterance.
 These and more grave conceits toil'd Hero's spirits;
 For, though the light of her discursive wits
 Perhaps might find some little hole to pass
 Through all these worldly cinctures, yet, alas!
 There was a heavenly flame encompass'd her,—
 Her goddess, in whose fane she did prefer

Her virgin vows, from whose impulsive sight
She knew the black shield of the darkest night
Could not defend her, nor wit's subtlest art:
This was the point pierc'd Hero to the heart;
Who, heavy to the death, with a deep sigh,
And hand that languish'd, took a robe was nigh,
Exceeding large, and of black cypres made,
In which she sate, hid from the day in shade,
Even over head and face, down to her feet;
Her left hand made it at her bosom meet,
Her right hand lean'd on her heart-bowing knee,
Wrapp'd in unshapeful folds, 'twas death to see;
Her knee stay'd that, and that her falling face;
Each limb help'd other to put on disgrace:
No form was seen, where form held all her sight;
But, like an embryo that saw never light,
Or like a scorched statue made a coal
With three-wing'd lightning, or a wretched soul
Muffled with endless darkness, she did sit:
The night had never such a heavy spirit. .
Yet might a penetrating eye well see
How fast her clear tears melted on her knee
Through her black veil, and turn'd as black as it,
Mourning to be her tears. Then wrought her wit
With her broke vow, her goddess' wrath, her fame,—
All tools that ingenious despair could frame:
Which made her strew the floor with her torn hair,
And spread her mantle piece-meal in the air.
Like Jove's son's club, strong passion struck her down
And with a piteous shriek enforc'd her swoon:
Her shriek made with another shriek ascend
The frighted matron that on her did tend;
And as with her own cry her sense was slain,
So with the other it was call'd again.
She rose, and to her bed made forced way,
And laid her down even where Leander lay;
And all this while the red sea of her blood
Ebb'd with Leander: but now turn'd the flood,
And all her fleet of spirits came swelling in,
With child of sail, and did hot fight begin
With those severe conceits she too much mark'd:
And here Leander's beauties were embark'd.
He came in swimming, painted all with joys,

Such as might sweeten hell: his thought destroys
 All her destroying thoughts; she thought she felt
 His heart in hers, with her contentions melt,
 And chide her soul that it could so much err,
 To check the true joys he deserv'd in her.
 Her fresh heat-blood cast figures in her eyes,
 And she suppos'd she saw in Neptune's skies
 How her star wander'd, wash'd in smarting brine,
 For her love's sake, that with immortal wine
 Should be embath'd, and swim in more heart's-ease
 Than there was water in the Sestian seas.
 Then said her Cupid-prompted spirit: "Shall I
 Sing moans to such delightful harmony?
 Shall slick-tongu'd Fame, patch'd up with voices rude,
 The drunken bastard of the multitude,
 (Begot when father Judgment is away,
 And, gossip-like, says because others say,
 Takes news as if it were too hot to eat,
 And spits it slaving forth for dog-fees meat,)
 Make me, for forging a fantastic vow,
 Presume to bear what makes grave matrons bow?
 Good vows are never broken with good deeds,
 For then good deeds were bad: vows are but seeds,
 And good deeds fruits; even those good deeds that grow
 From other stocks than from th' observed vow,
 That is a good deed that prevents a bad;
 Had I not yielded, slain myself I had.
 Hero Leander is, Leander Hero;
 Such virtue love hath to make one of two,
 If, then, Leander did my maidenhead git,
 Leander being myself, I still retain it:
 We break chaste vows when we live loosely ever,
 But bound as we are, we live loosely never:
 Two constant lovers being join'd in one,
 Yielding to one another, yield to none.
 We know not how to vow till love unblind us,
 And vows made ignorantly never bind us.
 Too true it is, that, when 'tis gone, men hate
 The joys as vain they took in love's estate:
 But that's since they have lost the heavenly light
 Should show them way to judge of all things right,
 When life is gone, death must implant his terror:

As death is foe to life, so love to error.
 Before we love, how range we through this sphere,
 Searching the sundry fancies hunted here!
 Now with desire of wealth transported quite
 Beyond our free humanity's delight;
 Now with ambition climbing falling towers,
 Whose hope to scale, our fear to fall devours;
 Now rapt with pastimes, pomp, all joys impure:
 In things without us no delight is sure.
 But love, with all joys crown'd, within doth sit:
 O goddess, pity love, and pardon it!"
 Thus spake she weeping: but her goddess' ear
 Burn'd with too stern a heat, and would not hear.
 Ay me! hath heaven's strait fingers no more graces
 For such as Hero than for homeliest faces?
 Yet she hop'd well, and in her sweet conceit
 Weighing her arguments, she thought them weight,
 And that the logic of Leander's beauty,
 And them together, would bring proofs of duty;
 And if her soul, that was a skilful glance
 Of heaven's great essence, found such imperance
 In her love's beauties, she had confidence
 Jove lov'd him too, and pardon'd her offence:
 Beauty in heaven and earth this grace doth win,
 It suppleth rigour, and it lessens sin.
 Thus, her sharp wit, her love, her secrecy,
 Trooping together, made her wonder why
 She should not leave her bed, and to the temple;
 Her health said she must live; her sex, dissemble.
 She view'd Leander's place, and wish'd he were Turn'd to his place, so his place were Leander.
 "Ay me," said she, "that love's sweet life and sense
 Should do it harm! my love had not gone hence,
 Had he been like his place: O blessed place,
 Image of constancy! Thus my love's grace
 Parts nowhere, but it leaves something behind
 Worth observation: he renowns his kind:
 His motion is, like heaven's, orbicular,
 For where he once is, he is ever there.
 This place was mine; Leander, now 'tis thine,
 Thou being myself, then it is double mine,
 Mine, and Leander's mine, Leander's mine.
 O, see what wealth it yields me, nay, yields him!

For I am in it, he for me doth swim.
 Rich, fruitful love, that, doubling self estates,
 Elixir-like contracts, though separates!
 Dear place, I kiss thee, and do welcome thee,
 As from Leander ever sent to me."

THE FOURTH SESTIAD

THE ARGUMENT OF THE FOURTH SESTIAD.

Hero, in sacred habit deckt,
 Doth private sacrifice effect.
 Her scarf's description, wrought by Fate;
 Ostents that threaten her estate;
 The strange, yet physical, events,
 Leander's counterfeit presents.
 In thunder Cyprides descends,
 Presaging both the lovers' ends:
 Ecce, the goddess of remorse,
 With vocal and articulate force
 Inspires Leucote, Venus' swan,
 T' excuse the beauteous Sestian.
 Venus, to wreak her rites' abuses,
 Creates the monster Eronusis,
 Inflaming Hero's sacrifice
 With lightning darted from her eyes;
 And thereof springs the painted beast
 That ever since taints every breast.

Now from Leander's place she rose, and found
 Her hair and rent robe scatter'd on the ground;
 Which taking up, she every piece did lay
 Upon an altar, where in youth of day
 She us'd t' exhibit private sacrifice:
 Those would she offer to the deities
 Of her fair goddess and her powerful son,
 As relics of her late-felt passion;
 And in that holy sort she vow'd to end them,
 In hope her violent fancies, that did rend them,
 Would as quite fade in her love's holy fire,
 As they should in the flames she meant t' inspire.
 Then she put on all her religious weeds,
 That deck'd her in her secret sacred deeds;
 A crown of icicles, that sun nor fire
 Could ever melt, and figur'd chaste desire;
 A golden star shin'd in her naked breast,
 In honour of the queen-light of the east.

In her right hand she held a silver wand,
On whose bright top Peristera did stand,
Who was a nymph, but now transform'd a dove,
And in her life was dear in Venus' love;
And for her sake she ever since that time
Choos'd doves to draw her coach through heaven's blue clime.

Her plenteous hair in curled billows swims
On her bright shoulder: her harmonious limbs
Sustain'd no more but a most subtile veil,
That hung on them, as it durst not assail
Their different concord; for the weakest air
Could raise it swelling from her beauties fair;
Nor did it cover, but adumbrate only
Her most heart-piercing parts, that a blest eye
Might see, as it did shadow, fearfully,
All that all-love-deserving paradise:
It was as blue as the most freezing skies;
Near the sea's hue, for thence her goddess came:
On it a scarf she wore of wondrous frame;
In midst whereof she wrought a virgin's face,
From whose each cheek a fiery blush did chase
Two crimson flames, that did two ways extend,
Spreading the ample scarf to either end;
Which figur'd the division of her mind,
Whiles yet she rested bashfully inclined,
And stood not resolute to wed Leander;
This serv'd her white neck for a purple sphere,
And cast itself at full breadth down her back:
There, since the first breath that begun the wrack
Of her free quiet from Leander's lips,
She wrought a sea, in one flame, full of ships;
But that one ship where all her wealth did pass,
Like simple merchants' goods, Leander was;
For in that sea she naked figur'd him;
Her diving needle taught him how to swim,
And to each thread did such resemblance give,
For joy to be so like him it did live:
Things senseless live by art, and rational die
By rude contempt of art and industry.
Scarce could she work, but, in her strength of thought,
She fear'd she prick'd Leander as she wrought,
And oft would shriek so, that her guardian, frighted,

Would staring haste, as with some mischief cited:
 They double life that dead things' grief sustain;
 They kill that feel not their friends' living pain.
 Sometimes she fear'd he sought her infamy;
 And then, as she was working of his eye.
 She thought to prick it out to quench her ill;
 But, as she prick'd, it grew more perfect still:
 Trifling attempts no serious acts advance;
 The fire of love is blown by dalliance.
 In working his fair neck she did so grace it,
 She still was working her own arms t' embrace it.
 That, and his shoulders, and his hands were seen
 Above the stream; and with a pure sea-green
 She did so quaintly shadow every limb,
 All might be seen beneath the waves to swim.

In this conceited scarf she wrought beside
 A moon in change, and shooting stars did glide
 In number after her with bloody beams;
 Which figur'd her affects in their extremes,
 Pursuing nature in her Cynthian body,
 And did her thoughts running on change imply;
 For maids take more delight, when they prepare,
 And think of wives' states, than when wives they are.
 Beneath all these she wrought a fisherman,
 Drawing his nets from forth the ocean;
 Who drew so hard, ye might discover well
 The toughen'd sinews in his neck did swell:
 His inward strains drave out his blood-shot eyes
 And springs of sweat did in his forehead rise;
 Yet was of naught but of a serpent sped,
 That in his bosom flew and stung him dead:
 And this by Fate into her mind was sent,
 Not wrought by mere instinct of her intent.
 At the scarf's other end her hand did frame,
 Near the fork'd point of the divided flame,
 A country virgin keeping of a vine,
 Who did of hollow bulrushes combine
 Snares for the stubble-loving grasshopper,
 And by her lay her scrip that nourish'd her.
 Within a myrtle shade she sate and sung;
 And tufts of waving reeds about her sprung
 Where lurk'd two foxes, that, while she applied
 Her trifling snares, their thieveries did divide,

One to the vine, another to her scrip,
That she did negligently overslip;
By which her fruitful vine and wholesome fare
She suffer'd spoil'd, to make a childish snare.
These ominous fancies did her soul express,
And every finger made a prophetess,
To show what death was hid in love's disguise,
And make her judgment conquer Destinies.
O, what sweet forms fair ladies' souls do shroud,
Were they made seen and forced through their blood;
If through their beauties, like rich work through lawn,
They would set forth their minds with virtues drawn,
In letting graces from their fingers fly,
To still their eyas thoughts with industry:
That their plied wits in number'd silks might sing
Passion's huge conquest, and their needles leading
Affection prisoner through their own-built cities,
Pinion'd with stories and Arachnean ditties.

Proceed we now with Hero's sacrifice:
She odours burn'd, and from their smoke did rise
Unsavoury fumes, that air with plagues inspir'd;
And then the consecrated sticks she fir'd,
On whose pale flame an angry spirit flew,
And beat it down still as it upward grew;
The virgin tapers that on th' altar stood,
When she inflam'd them, burn'd as red as blood:
All sad ostents of that too near success,
That made such moving beauties motionless.
Then Hero wept; but her affrighted eyes
She quickly wrested from the sacrifice,
Shut them, and inwards for Leander look'd.
Search'd her soft bosom, and from thence she pluck'd
His lovely picture: which when she had view'd,
Her beauties were with all love's joys renew'd;
The odours sweeten'd, and the fires burn'd clear,
Leander's form left no ill object there:
Such was his beauty, that the force of light,
Whose knowledge teacheth wonders infinite,
The strength of number and proportion,
Nature had plac'd in it to make it known,
Art was her daughter, and what human wits
For study lost, entomb'd in drossy spirits.
After this accident, (which for her glory

Hero could not but make a history,)
 Th' inhabitants of Sestos and Abydos
 Did every year, with feasts propitious,
 To fair Leander's picture sacrifice:
 And they were persons of especial price
 That were allow'd it, as an ornament
 T' enrich their houses, for the continent
 Of the strange virtues all approv'd it held;
 For even the very look of it repell'd
 All blastings, witchcrafts, and the strifes of nature
 In those diseases that no herbs could cure:
 The wolfy sting of avarice it would pull,
 And make the rankest miser bountiful;
 It kill'd the fear of thunder and of death;
 The discords that conceit engendereth
 'Twixt man and wife, it for the time would cease;
 The flames of love it quench'd, and would increase;
 Held in a prince's hand, it would put out
 The dreadful'st comet; it would ease all doubt
 Of threatened mischiefs; it would bring asleep
 Such as were mad; it would enforce to weep
 Most barbarous eyes; and many more effects
 This picture wrought, and sprung Leandrian sects:
 Of which was Hero first; for he whose form,
 Held in her hand, clear'd such a fatal storm,
 From hell she thought his person would defend her,
 Which night and Hellespont would quickly send her.
 With this confirm'd, she vow'd to banish quite
 All thought of any check to her delight;
 And, in contempt of silly bashfulness,
 She would the faith of her desires profess,
 Where her religion should be policy,
 To follow love with zeal her piety;
 Her chamber her cathedral-church should be,
 And her Leander her chief deity;
 For in her love these did the gods forego;
 And though her knowledge did not teach her so,
 Yet did it teach her this, that what her heart
 Did greatest hold in her self-greatest part,
 That she did make her god; and 'twas less naught
 To leave gods in profession and in thought,
 Than in her love and life; for therein lies
 Most of her duties and their dignities;

And, rail the brain-bald world at what it will,
That's the grand atheism that reigns in it still.
Yet singularity she would use no more,
For she was singular too much before;
But she would please the world with fair pretext;
Love would not leave her conscience perplex:
Great men that will have less do for them, still
Must bear them out, though th' acts be ne'er so ill;
Meanness must pander be to Excellence;
Pleasure atones Falsehood and Conscience:
Dissembling was the worst, thought Hero then,
And that was best, now she must live with men.
O virtuous love, that taught her to do best
When she did worst, and when she thought it least!
Thus would she still proceed in works divine,
And in her sacred state of priesthood shine,
Handling the holy rites with hands as bold,
As if therein she did Jove's thunder hold,
And need not fear those menaces of error,
Which she at others threw with greatest terror.
O lovely Hero, nothing is thy sin,
Weigh'd with those foul faults other priests are in!
That having neither faiths, nor works, nor beauties,
T' engender any 'scuse for slubber'd duties,
With as much countenance fill their holy chairs,
And sweat denouncements 'gainst profane affairs,
As if their lives were cut out by their places,
And they the only fathers of the graces.

Now, as with settled mind she did repair
Her thoughts to sacrifice her ravish'd hair
And her torn robe, which on the altar lay,
And only for religion's fire did stay,
She heard a thunder by the Cyclops beaten,
In such a volley as the world did threaten,
Given Venus as she parted th' airy sphere,
Descending now to chide with Hero here:
When suddenly the goddess' waggoners,
The swans and turtles that, in coupled pheres,
Through all worlds' bosoms draw her influence,
Lighted in Hero's window, and from thence
To her fair shoulders flew the gentle doves,—
Graceful Ædone that sweet pleasure loves,
And ruff-foot Chreste with the tufted crown;

Both which did kiss her, though their goddess frown.
 The swans did in the solid flood, her glass,
 Proin their fair plumes; of which the fairest was
 Jove-lov'd Leucote, that pure brightness is;
 The other bounty-loving Dapsilis,
 All were in heaven, now they with Hero were:
 But Venus' looks brought wrath, and urged fear.
 Her robe was scarlet; black her head's attire;
 And through her naked breast shin'd streams of fire,
 As when the rarified air is driven
 In flashing streams, and opes the darken'd heaven,
 In her white hand a wreath of yew she bore;
 And, breaking th' icy wreath sweet Hero wore,
 She forc'd about her brows her wreath of yew,
 And said, " Now, minion, to thy fate be true,
 Though not to me; endure what this portends:
 Begin where lightness will, in shame it ends.
 Love makes thee cunning; thou art current now,
 By being counterfeit: thy broken vow
 Deceit, with her pied garters must rejoin,
 And with her stamp thou countenances must coin;
 Coyness, and pure deceits, for purities,
 And still a maid wilt seem in cozen'd eyes,
 And have an antic face to laugh within,
 While thy smooth looks make men digest thy sin,
 But since thy lips (least thought forsworn) forswore,
 Be never virgin's vow worth trusting more!"

When Beauty's dearest did her goddess hear
 Breathe such rebukes 'gainst that she could not clear,
 Dumb sorrow spake aloud in tears and blood,
 That from her grief-burst veins, in piteous flood,
 From the sweet conduits of her favour fell.
 The gentle turtles did with moans make swell
 Their shining gorges; the white black-ey'd swans
 Did sing as woful epicedians.
 As they would straightways die: when Pity's queen,
 The goddess Ecte, that had ever been
 Hid in a watery cloud near Hero's cries,
 Since the first instant of her broken eyes,
 Gave bright Leucote voice, and made her speak,
 To ease her anguish, whose swoln breast did break
 With anger at her goddess, that did touch
 Hero so near for that she us'd so much;

And, thrusting her white neck at Venus, said:
" Why may not amorous Hero seem a maid,
Though she be none, as well as you suppress
In modest cheeks your inward wantonness?
How often have we drawn you from above,
T' exchange with mortals rites for rites in love!
Why in your priest, then, call you that offence,
That shines in you, and is your influence? "
With this, the Furies stopp'd Leucote's lips,
Enjoin'd by Venus; who with rosy whips
Beat the kind bird. Fierce lightning from her eyes
Did set on fire fair Hero's sacrifice,
Which was her torn robe and enforced hair;
And the bright flame became a maid most fair
For her aspect: her tresses were of wire,
Knit like a net, where hearts, set all on fire,
Struggled in pants, and could not get releast;
Her arms were all with golden pincers drest,
And twenty-fashion'd knots, pulleys, and brakes,
And all her body girt with painted snakes;
Her down-parts in a scorpion's tail combin'd,
Freckled with twenty colours; pied wings shin'd
Out of her shoulders; cloth had never dye,
Nor sweeter colours never viewed eye,
In scorching Turkey, Cares, Tartary,
Than shin'd about this spirit notorious;
Nor was Arachne's web so glorious.
Of lightning, and of shreds she was begot;
More hold in base dissemblers is there not.
Her name was Eronusis. Venus flew
From Hero's sight, and at her chariot drew
This wondrous creature to so steep a height,
That all the world she might command with sleight
Of her gay wings; and then she bade her haste,—
Since Hero had dissembled, and disgrac'd
Her rites so much,—and every breast infect
With her deceits: she made her architect
Of all dissimulation; and since then
Never was any trust in maids or men.

O, it spited
Fair Venus' heart to see her most delighted,
And one she choos'd, for temper of her mind,
To be the only ruler of her kind,

So soon to let her virgin race be ended !
 Not simply for the fault a whit offended,
 But that in strife for chasteness with the Moon,
 Spiteful Diana bade her show but one
 That was her servant vow'd, and liv'd a maid ;
 And, now she thought to answer that upbraid,
 Hero had lost her answer: who knows not
 Venus would seem as far from any spot
 Of light demeanour, as the very skin
 'Twixt Cynthia's brows? sin is asham'd of sin.
 Up Venus flew, and scarce durst up for fear
 Of Phœbe's laughter, when she pass'd her sphere:
 And so most ugly-clouded was the light,
 That day was hid in day; night came ere night;
 And Venus could not through the thick air pierce,
 Till the day's king, god of undaunted verse,
 Because she was so plentiful a theme
 To such as wore his laurel anademe,
 Like to a fiery bullet made descent,
 And from her passage those fat vapours rent,
 That, being not thoroughly rarified to rain,
 Melted like pitch, as blue as any vein;
 And scalding tempests made the earth to shrink
 Under their fervour, and the world did think
 In every drop a torturing spirit flew,
 It pierc'd so deeply, and it burn'd so blue.
 Betwixt all this and Hero, Hero held
 Leander's picture, as a Persian shield;
 And she was free from fear of worst success:
 The more ill threats us, we suspect the less:
 As we grow hapless, violence subtle grows,
 Dumb, deaf, and blind, and comes when no man knows.

THE FIFTH SESTIAD

THE ARGUMENT OF THE FIFTH SESTIAD.

Day doubles her accustomed date,
 As loath the Night, incens'd by Fate,
 Should wreck our lovers. Hero's plight;
 Longs for Leander and the night:
 Which ere her thirsty wish recovers,
 She sends for two betrothed lovers,
 And marries them, that, with their crew,
 Their sports, and ceremonies due,
 She covertly might celebrate,
 With secret joy, her own estate.
 She makes a feast, at which appears
 The wild nymph Teras, that still bears
 An ivory lute, tells ominous tales,
 And sings at solemn festivals.

Now was bright Hero weary of the day,
 Thought an Olympiad in Leander's stay.
 Sol and the soft-foot Hours hung on his arms,
 And would not let him swim, foreseeing his harms:
 That day Aurora double grace obtain'd
 Of her love Phœbus; she his horses rein'd,
 Set on his golden knee, and, as she list,
 She pull'd him back; and, as she pull'd, she kiss'd,
 To have him turn to bed: he lov'd her more,
 To see the love Leander Hero bore:
 Examples profit much; ten times in one,
 In persons full of note, good deeds are done.

Day was so long, men walking fell asleep;
 The heavy humours that their eyes did steep
 Made them fear mischiefs. The hard streets were beds
 For covetous churls and for ambitious heads,
 That, spite of Nature, would their business ply:
 All thought they had the falling epilepsy,
 Men grovell'd so upon the smother'd ground;
 And pity did the heart of Heaven confound.
 The Gods, the Graces, and the Muses came Down to the Destinies, to stay the frame
 Of the true lovers' deaths, and all world's tears:
 But Death before had stopp'd their cruel ears.
 All the celestials parted mourning then,
 Pierc'd with our human miseries more than men:

Ah, nothing doth the world with mischief fill, °
But want of feeling one another's ill!

With their descent the day grew something fair,
And cast a brighter robe upon the air.
Hero, to shorten time with merriment,
For young Alcmane and bright Mya sent,
Two lovers that had long crav'd marriage-dues
At Hero's hands: but she did still refuse;
For lovely Mya was her consort vow'd
In her maid state, and therefore not allow'd
To amorous nuptials: yet fair Hero now
Intended to dispense with her cold vow,
Since hers was broken, and to marry her:
The rites would pleasing matter minister
To her conceits, and shorten tedious day.
They came; sweet Music usher'd th' odorous way,
And wanton Air in twenty sweet forms danc'd
After her fingers; Beauty and Love advanc'd °
Their ensigns in the downless rosy faces
Of youths and maids, led after by the Graces.
For all these Hero made a friendly feast,
Welcom'd them kindly, did much love protest,
Winning their hearts with all the means she might,
That, when her fault should chance t' abide the light,
Their loves might cover or extenuate it,
And high in her worst fate make pity sit.

She married them; and in the banquet came,
Borne by the virgins. Hero striv'd to frame
Her thoughts to mirth: ay me! but hard it is
To imitate a false and forced bliss;
Ill may a sad mind forge a merry face,
Nor hath constrained laughter any grace.
Then laid she wine on cares to make them sink:
Who fears the threats of Fortune, let him drink.

To these quick nuptials enter'd suddenly
Admir'd Teras with the ebon thigh;
A nymph that haunted the green Sestian groves,
And would consort soft virgins in their loves,
At gaysome triumphs and on solemn days,
Singing prophetic elegies and lays,
And fingering of a silver lute she tied
With black and purple scarfs by her left side.
Apollo gave it, and her skill withal,

And she was term'd his dwarf, she was so small:
 Yet great in virtue, for his beams enclos'd
 His virtues in her; never was propos'd
 Riddle to her, or augury, strange or new,
 But she resolv'd it; never slight tale flew
 From her charm'd lips without important sense,
 Shown in some grave succeeding consequence.

This little sylvan, with her songs and tales,
 Gave such estate to feasts and nuptials,
 That though oftentimes she forewent tragedies,
 Yet for her strangeness still she pleas'd their eyes;
 And for her smallness they admir'd her so,
 They thought her perfect born, and could not grow.

All eyes were on her. Hero did command
 An altar deck'd with sacred state should stand
 At the feast's upper end, close by the bride,
 On which the pretty nymph might sit espied.
 Then all were silent; every one so hears,
 As all their senses climb'd into their ears:
 And first this amorous tale, that fitted well
 Fair Hero and the nuptials, she did tell.

The Tale of Teras.

Hymen, that now is god of nuptial rites,
 And crowns with honour Love and his delights,
 Of Athens was a youth, so sweet of face,
 That many thought him of the female race;
 Such quickening brightness did his clear eyes dart,
 Warm went their beams to his beholder's heart,
 In such pure leagues his beauties were combin'd,
 That there your nuptial contracts first were sign'd;
 For as proportion, white and crimson, meet
 In beauty's mixture, all right clear and sweet,
 The eye responsible, the golden hair,
 And none is held, without the other, fair;
 All spring together, all together fade;
 Such intermix'd affections should invade .
 Two perfect lovers; which being yet unseen,
 Their virtues and their comforts copied been
 In beauty's concord, subject to the eye;
 And that, in Hymen, pleas'd so matchlessly,
 That lovers were esteem'd in their full grace,

Like form and colour mix'd in Hymen's face;
 And such sweet concord was thought worthy then
 Of torches, music, feasts, and greatest men:
 So Hymen look'd, that even the chastest mind
 He mov'd to join in joys of sacred kind;
 For only now his chin's first down consorted
 His head's rich fleece, in golden curls contorted;
 And as he was so lov'd, he lov'd so too:
 So should best beauties, bound by nuptials, do.

Bright Eucharis, who was by all men said
 The noblest, fairest, and the richest maid
 Of all th' Athenian damsels, Hymen lov'd
 With such transmission, that his heart remov'd
 From his white breast to hers: but her estate,
 In passing his, was so interminate
 For wealth and honour, that his love durst feed
 On naught but sight and hearing, nor could breed
 Hope of requital, the grand prize of love;
 Nor could he hear or see, but he must prove
 How his rare beauty's music would agree
 With maids in consort; therefore robbed he
 His chin of those same few first fruits it bore,
 And, clad in such attire as virgins wore,
 He kept them company; and might right well,
 For he did all but Eucharis excel
 In all the fair of beauty: yet he wanted
 Virtue to make his own desires implanted
 In his dear Eucharis; for women never
 Love beauty in their sex, but envy ever.
 His judgment yet, that durst not suit address,
 Nor, past due means, presume of due success,
 Reason gat Fortune in the end to speed
 To his best prayers: but strange it seem'd, indeed,
 That Fortune should a chaste affection bless:
 Preferment seldom graceth bashfulness.
 Nor grac'd it Hymen yet; but many a dart,
 And many an amorous thought, enthrill'd his heart,
 Ere he obtain'd her; and he sick became,
 Forc'd to abstain her sight; and then the flame
 Rag'd in his bosom. O, what grief did fill him!
 Sight made him sick, and want of sight did kill him.
 The virgins wonder'd where Diætia stay'd,
 For so did Hymen term himself, a maid.

At length with sickly looks he greeted them:
'Tis strange to see 'gainst what an extreme stream
A lover strives; poor Hymen look'd so ill,
That as in merit he increased still
By suffering much, so he in grace decreas'd:
Women are most won, when men merit least:
If Merit look not well, Love bids stand by;
Love's special lesson is to please the eye.
And Hymen soon recovering all he lost,
Deceiving still these maids, but himself most,
His love and he with many virgin dames,
Noble by birth, noble by beauty's flames,
Leaving the town with songs and hallow'd lights,
To do great Ceres Eleusina rites
Of zealous sacrifice, were made a prey
To barbarous rovers, that in ambush lay,
And with rude hands enforc'd their shining spoil,
Far from the darken'd city, tir'd with toil:
And when the yellow issue of the sky
Came trooping forth, jealous of cruelty
To their bright fellows of this under-heaven,
Into a double night they saw them driven,—
A horrid cave, the thieves' black mansion;
Where, weary of the journey they had gone,
Their last night's watch, and drunk with their sweet gains,
Dull Morpheus enter'd, laden with silken chains,
Stronger than iron, and bound the swelling veins
And tired senses of these lawless swains.
But when the virgin lights thus dimly burn'd,
O, what a hell was heaven in! how they mourn'd,
And wrung their hands, and wound their gentle forms
Into the shapes of sorrow! golden storms
Fell from their eyes; as when the sun appears,
And yet it rains, so show'd their eyes their tears:
And, as when funeral dames watch a dead corse,
Weeping about it, telling with remorse
What pains he felt, how long in pain he lay,
How little food he eat, what he would say,
And then mix mournful tales of others' deaths,
Smothering themselves in clouds of their own breaths;
At length, one cheering other, call for wine;
The golden bowl drinks tears out of their eyne,

As they drink wine from it; and round it goes,
Each helping other to relieve their woes;
So cast these virgins' beauties mutual rays,
One lights another, face the face displays;
Lips by reflection kiss'd, and hands hands shook,
Even by the whiteness each of other took.

But Hymen now us'd friendly Morpheus' aid,
Slew every thief, and rescu'd every maid:
And now did his enamour'd passion take Heart from his hearty deed, whose worth did make
His hope of bounteous Eucharis more strong;
And now came Love with Proteus, who had long
Juggled the little god with prayers and gifts,
Ran through all shapes, and varied all his shifts,
To win Love's stay with him, and make him love him;
And when he saw no strength of sleight could move him
To make him love or stay, he nimbly turn'd
Into Love's self, he so extremely burn'd.
And thus came Love, with Proteus and his power,
T' encounter Eucharis: first, like the flower
That Juno's milk did spring, the silver lily,
He fell on Hymen's hand, who straight did spy
The bounteous godhead, and with wondrous joy
Offer'd it Eucharis. She, wondrous coy,
Drew back her hand: the subtle flower did woo it,
And, drawing it near, mix'd so you could not know it:
As two clear tapers mix in one their light,
So did the lily and the hand their white.
She view'd it; and her view the form bestows
Amongst her spirits: for, as colour flows
From superficies of each thing we see,
Even so with colours forms emitted be;
And where Love's form is, Love is; Love is form:
He enter'd at the eye; his sacred storm
Rose from the hand, Love's sweetest instrument:
It stirr'd her blood's sea so, that high it went,
And beat in bashful waves 'gainst the white shore
Of her divided cheeks; it rag'd the more,
Because the tide went 'gainst the haughty wind
Of her estate and birth: and, as we find,
In fainting ebbs, the flowery Zephyr hurls
The green-hair'd Hellespont, broke in silver curls,
'Gainst Hero's tower; but in his blast's retreat,

The waves obeying him, they after beat,
 Leaving the chalky shore a great way pale,
 Then moist it freshly with another gale;
 So ebb'd and flow'd in Eucharis's face,
 Coyness and Love striv'd which had greatest grace;
 Virginitie did fight on Coyness' side,
 Fear of her parents' frowns, and female pride
 Loathing the lower place, more than it loves
 The high contents desert and virtue moves.
 With Love fought Hymen's beauty and his valure,
 Which scarce could so much favour yet allure
 To come to strike, but fameless idle stood:
 Action is fiery valour's sovereign good.
 But Love, once enter'd, wish'd no greater aid
 Than he could find within; thought thought betray'd;
 The brib'd, but incorrupted, garrison
 Sung "Io Hymen"; there those songs begun,
 And Love was grown so rich with such a gain,
 And wanton with the ease of his free reign,
 That he would turn into her roughest frowns
 To turn them out; and thus be Hymen crowns
 King of his thoughts, man's greatest empery:
 This was his first brave step to deity.

Home to the mourning city they repair,
 With news as wholesome as the morning air,
 To the sad parents of each saved maid:
 But Hymen and his Eucharis had laid
 This plat, to make the flame of their delight
 Round as the moon at full, and full as bright.

Because the parents of chaste Eucharis
 Exceeding Hymen's so, might cross their bliss;
 And as the world rewards deserts, that law
 Cannot assist with force; so when they saw
 Their daughter safe, take vantage of their own,
 Praise Hymen's valour much, nothing bestown;
 Hymen must leave the virgins in a grove
 Far off from Athens, and go first to prove,
 If to restore them all with fame and life,
 He should enjoy his dearest as his wife.
 This told to all the maids, the most agree:
 The riper sort, knowing what 'tis to be
 The first month of a news so far deriv'd,
 And that to hear and bear news brave folks liv'd,

As being a carriage special hard to bear
 Occurrents, these occurrents being so dear,
 They did with grace protest, they were content
 T' accost their friends with all their compliment,
 For Hymen's good; but to incur their harm,
 There he must pardon them. This wit went warm
 To Adolesche's brain, a nymph born high,
 Made all of voice and fire, that upwards fly:
 Her heart and all her forces' nether train
 Climbd to her tongue, and thither fell her brain,
 Since it could go no higher; and it must go;
 All power she had, even her tongue, did so:
 In spirit and quickness she much joy did take,
 And lov'd her tongue, only for quickness' sake;
 And she would haste and tell. The rest all stay:
 Hymen goes one, the nymph another way;
 And what became of her I'll tell at last:
 Yet take her visage now;—moist-lipp'd, long-fac'd,
 Thin like an iron wedge, so sharp and tart,
 As 'twere of purpose made to cleave Love's heart:
 Well were this lovely beauty rid of her.
 And Hymen did at Athens now prefer
 His welcome suit, which he with joy aspir'd:
 A hundred princely youths with him retir'd
 To fetch the nymphs; chariots and music went
 And home they came: heaven with applauses rent.
 The nuptials straight proceed, whiles all the town,
 Fresh in their joys, might do them most renown.
 First, gold-lock'd Hymen did to church repair,
 Like a quick offering burn'd in flames of hair;
 And after, with a virgin firmament
 The godhead-proving bride attended went
 Before them all: she look'd in her command,
 As if form-giving Cypria's silver hand
 Gripp'd all their beauties, and crushed out one flame;
 She blush'd to see how beauty overcame
 The thoughts of all men. Next, before her went
 Five lovely children, deck'd with ornament
 Of her sweet colours, bearing torches by;
 For light was held a happy augury
 Of generation, whose efficient right
 Is nothing else but to produce to light.
 The odd disparent number they did choose,

To show the union married loves should use,
Since in two equal parts it will not sever,
But the midst holds one to rejoin it ever,
As common to both parts: men therefore deem
That equal number gods do not esteem,
Being authors of sweet peace and unity,
But pleasing to th' infernal empery,
Under whose ensigns Wars and Discords fight,
Since an even number you may disunite
In two parts equal, naught in middle left
To reunite each part from other rest;
And five they hold in most especial prize,
Since 'tis the first odd number that doth rise
From the two foremost numbers' unity,
That odd and even are; which are two and three;
For one no number is; but thence doth flow
The powerful race of number. Next, did go
A noble matron, that did spinning bear
A huswife's rock and spindle, and did wear
A wether's skin, with all the snowy fleece,
To intimate that even the daintiest piece
And noblest-born dame should industrious be:
That which does good disgraceth no degree.

And now to Juno's temple they are come,
Where her grave priest stood in the marriage-room:
On his right arm did hang a scarlet veil,
And from his shoulders to the ground did trail,
On either side, ribands of white and blue:
With the red veil he hid the bashful hue
Of the chaste bride, to show the modest shame,
In coupling with a man, should grace a dame.
Then took he the disparent silks, and tied
The lovers by the waists, and side by side,
In token that hereafter they must bind
In one self-sacred knot each other's mind.
Before them on an altar he presented
Both fire and water, which was first invented,
Since to ingenerate every human creature
And every other birth produc'd by Nature,
Moisture and heat must mix; so man and wife
For human race must join in nuptial life.
Then one of Juno's birds, the painted jay,
He sacrific'd, and took the gall away;

All which he did behind the altar throw,
 In sign no bitterness of hate should grow,
 'Twixt married loves, nor any least disdain.
 Nothing they spake, for 'twas esteem'd too plain
 For the most silken mildness of a maid,
 To let a public audience hear it said,
 She boldly took the man; and so respected
 Was bashfulness in Athens, it erected
 To chaste Agneia, which is Shamefacedness,
 A sacred temple, holding her a goddess.
 And now to feasts, masks, and triumphant shows,
 The shining troops return'd, even till earth-throes
 Brought forth with joy the thickest part of night,
 When the sweet nuptial song, that us'd to cite
 All to their rest, was by Phemonœe sung,
 First Delphian prophetess, whose graces sprung
 Out of the Muses' well: she sung before
 The bride into her chamber; at which door
 A matron and a torch-bearer did stand:
 A painted box of confits in her hand
 The matron held, and so did other some
 That compass'd round the honour'd nuptial room.
 The custom was that every maid did wear,
 During her maidenhead, a silken sphere
 About her waist, above her inmost weed,
 Knit with Minerva's knot, and that was freed
 By the fair bridegroom on the marriage-night,
 With many ceremonies of delight:
 And yet eternis'd Hymen's tender bride,
 To suffer it dissolv'd so, sweetly cried.
 The maids that heard, so lov'd and did adore her,
 They wish'd with all their hearts to suffer for her.
 So had the matrons, that with confits stood
 About the chamber, such affectionate blood,
 And so true feeling of her harmless pains,
 That every one a shower of confits rains;
 For which the bride-youths scrambling on the ground,
 In noise of that sweet hail her cries were drown'd.
 And thus blest Hymen joy'd his gracious bride,
 And for his joy was after deified.
 The saffron mirror by which Phœbus' love,
 Green Tellus, decks her, now he held above
 The cloudy mountains: and the noble maid,

Sharp-visag'd Adolesche, that was stray'd
 Out of her way, in hasting with her news,
 Not till this hour th' Athenian turrets views;
 And now brought home by guides, she heard by all,
 That her long kept occurrents would be stale,
 And how fair Hymen's honours did excel
 For those rare news which she came short to tell.
 To hear her dear tongue robb'd of such a joy,
 Made the well-spoken nymph take such a toy,
 That down she sunk: when lightning from above
 Shrunk her lean body, and, for mere free love,
 Turn'd her into the pied-plum'd Psittacus,
 That now the Parrot is surnam'd by us,
 Who still with counterfeit confusion prates
 Naught but news common to the common'st mates.—
 This told, strange Teras touch'd her lute, and sung
 This ditty, that the torchy evening sprung.

Epithalamion Terasos.

Come, come, dear Night! Love's mart of kisses,
 Sweet close of his ambitious line,
 The fruitful summer of his blisses!
 Love's glory doth in darkness shine.
 O, come, soft rest of cares! come, Night!
 Come, naked Virtue's only tire,
 The reaped harvest of the light,
 Bound up in sheaves of sacred fire!
 Love calls to war;
 Sighs his alarms,
 Lips his swords are,
 The field his arms.

Come, Night, and lay thy velvet hand
 On glorious Day's outfacing face;
 And all thy crowned flames command,
 For torches to our nuptial grace!
 Love calls to war;
 Sighs his alarms,
 Lips his swords are,
 The field his arms.

No need have we of factious Day,
 To cast, in envy of thy peace,

Her balls of discord in thy way:

Here Beauty's day doth never cease;

Day is abstracted here,

And varied in a triple sphere.

Hero, Alcmane, Mya, so outshine thee,

Ere thou come here, let Thetis thrice refine thee.

Love calls to war;

Sighs his alarms,

Lips his swords are,

The field his arms.

The evening star I see:

Rise, youths! the evening star

Helps Love to summon war;

Both now embracing be.

Rise, youths! Love's rite claims more than banquets;
rise!

Now the bright marigolds, that deck the skies,

Phœbus' celestial flowers, that, contrary

To his flowers here, ope when he shuts his eye,

And shut when he doth open, crown your sports:

Now Love in Night, and Night in Love exhorts

Courtship and dances: all your parts employ,

And suit Night's rich expansure with your joy.

Love paints his longings in sweet virgins' eyes:

Rise, youths! Love's rite claims more than banquets;
rise!

Rise, virgins! let fair nuptial loves enfold

Your fruitless breasts: the maidenheads ye hold

Are not your own alone, but parted are;

Part in disposing them your parents share,

And that a third part is; so must ye save

Your loves a third, and you your thirds must have.

Love paints his longings in sweet virgins' eyes:

Rise, youths! Love's rites claim more than banquets;
rise!

Herewith the amorous spirit, that was so kind

To Teras' hair, and comb'd it down with wind.

Still as it, comet-like, brake from her brain,

Would needs have Teras gone, and did refrain

To blow it down: which, staring up, dismay'd

The timorous feast; and she no longer stay'd;

But, bowing to the bridegroom and the bride,
 Did, like a shooting exhalation, glide
 Out of their sights: the turning of her back
 Made them all shriek, it look'd so ghastly black.
 O hapless Hero! that most hapless cloud
 Thy soon-succeeding tragedy foreshow'd.
 Thus all the nuptial crew to joys depart;
 But much-wrung Hero stood Hell's blackest dart:
 Whose wound because I grieve so to display,
 I use digressions thus t'increase the day.

THE SIXTH SESTIAD

THE ARGUMENT OF THE SIXTH SESTIAD.

Leucote flies to all the Winds,
 And from the Fates their outrage blinds,
 That Hero and her love may meet.
 Leander, with Love's complete fleet
 Mann'd in himself, puts forth to seas;
 When straight the ruthless Destinies,
 With Até, stir the winds to war
 Upon the Hellespont: their jar
 Drowns poor Leander. Hero's eyes,
 Wet witnesses of his surprise,
 Her torch blown out, grief casts her down
 Upon her love, and both doth drown:
 In whose just ruth the god of seas
 Transforms them to th' Acanthides.

No longer could the Day nor Destinies
 Delay the Night, who now did frowning rise
 Into her throne; and at her humorous breasts
 Visions and Dreams lay sucking: all men's rests
 Fell like the mists of death upon their eyes,
 Day's too-long darts so kill'd their faculties.
 The Winds yet, like the flowers, to cease began;
 For bright Leucote, Venus' whitest swan,
 That held sweet Hero dear, spread her fair wings,
 Like to a field of snow, and message brings
 From Venus to the Fates, t'entreat them lay
 Their charge upon the Winds their rage to stay,
 That the stern battle of the seas might cease,
 And guard Leander to his love in peace.
 The Fates consent;—ay me, dissembling Fates!

They show'd their favours to conceal their hates,
 And draw Leander on, lest seas too high
 Should stay his too obsequious destiny:
 Who like a fleering slavish parasite,
 In warping profit or a traitorous sleight,
 Hoops round his rotten body with devotes,
 And pricks his descant face full of false notes;
 Praising with open throat, and oaths as foul
 As his false heart, the beauty of an owl;
 Kissing his skipping hand with charmed skips,
 That cannot leave, but leaps upon his lips
 Like a cock-sparrow, or shameless quean
 Sharp at a red-lipp'd youth, and naught doth mean
 Of all his antic shows, but doth repair
 More tender fawns, and takes a scatter'd hair
 From his tame subject's shoulder; whips and calls
 For everything he lacks; creeps 'gainst the walls
 With backward humbles, to give needless way:
 Thus his false fate did with Leander play.

First, to black Eurus flies the white Leucote.
 (Born 'mongst the negroes in the Levant sea,
 On whose curl'd head[s] the glowing sun doth rise,)
 And shows the sovereign will of Destinies,
 To have him cease his blasts; and down he lies.
 Next, to the fenny Notus course she holds,
 And found him leaning, with his arms in folds,
 Upon a rock, his white hair full of showers;
 And him she chargeth by the fatal powers,
 To hold in his wet cheeks his cloudy voice.
 To Zephyr then that doth in flowers rejoice:
 To snake-foot Boreas next she did remove,
 And found him tossing of his ravish'd love,
 To heat his frosty bosom hid in snow;
 Who with Leucote's sight did cease to blow.
 Thus all were still to Hero's heart's desire;
 Who with all speed did consecrate a fire
 Of flaming gums and comfortable spice,
 To light her torch, which in such curious price
 She held, being object to Leander's sight,
 That naught but fires perfum'd must give it light.
 She lov'd it so, she griev'd to see it burn,
 Since it would waste, and soon to ashes turn:
 Yet, if it burn'd not, 'twere not worth her eyes;

What made it nothing, gave it all the prize,
 Sweet torch, true glass of our society!
 What man does good, but he consumes thereby?
 But thou wert lov'd for good, held high, given show;
 Poor virtue loath'd for good, obscur'd, held low:
 Do good, be pin'd,—be deedless good, disgrac'd;
 Unless we feed on men, we let them fast,
 Yet Hero with these thoughts her torch 'did spend:
 When bees make wax, Nature doth not intend
 It should be made a torch; but we, that know
 The proper virtue of it, make it so,
 And, when 'tis made, we light it: nor did Nature
 Propose one life to maids; but each such creature
 Makes by her soul the best of her true state,
 Which without love is rude, disconsolate,
 And wants love's fire to make it mild and bright,
 Till when, maids are but torches wanting light.
 Thus 'gainst our grief, not cause of grief, we fight:
 The right of naught is glean'd, but the delight.
 Up went she: but to tell how she descended,
 Would God she were not dead, or my verse ended!
 She was the rule of wishes, sum, and end,
 For all the parts that did on love depend:
 Yet cast the torch his brightness further forth;
 But what shines nearest best, holds truest worth.
 Leander did not through such tempests swim
 To kiss the torch, although it lighted him:
 But all his powers in her desires awaked,
 Her love and virtues cloth'd him richly naked.
 Men kiss but fire that only shows pursue;
 Her torch and Hero, figure show and virtue.
 Now at oppos'd Abydos naught was heard
 But bleating flocks, and many a bellowing herd,
 Slain for the nuptials; cracks of falling woods;
 Blows of broad axes; pourings out of floods.
 The guilty Hellespont was mix'd and stain'd
 With bloody torrent that the shambles rain'd;
 Not arguments of feast, but shows that bled,
 Foretelling that red night that followed.
 More blood was spilt, more honours were address'd,
 Than could have graced any happy feast;
 Rich banquets, triumphs, every pomp employs
 His sumptuous hand; no miser's nuptial joys.

Air felt continual thunder with the noise
 Made in the general marriage-violence;
 And no man knew the cause of this expense,
 But the two hapless lords, Leander's sire,
 And poor Leander, poorest where the fire
 Of credulous love made him most rich surmis'd:
 As short was he of that himself so priz'd,
 As is an empty gallant full of form,
 That thinks each look an act, each drop a storm,
 That falls from his brave breathings; most brought up
 In our metropolis, and hath his cup
 Brought after him to feasts; and much palm bears
 For his rare judgment in th' attire he wears;
 Hath seen the hot Low-Countries, not their heat,
 Observe their rampires and their buildings yet;
 And, for your sweet discourse with mouths, is heard
 Giving instructions with his very beard;
 Hath gone with an ambassador, and been
 A great man's mate in travelling, even to Rhene;
 And then puts all his worth in such a face
 As he saw brave men make, and strives for grace
 To get his news forth: as when you descry
 A ship, with all her sail contends to fly
 Out of the narrow Thames with winds unapt,
 Now crosseth here, then there, then his way rapt,
 And then hath one point reach'd, then alters all,
 And to another crooked reach doth fall
 Of half a bird-bolt's shoot, keeping more coil
 Than if she danc'd upon the ocean's toil;
 So serious is his trifling company,
 In all his swelling ship of vacantr'y,
 And so short of himself in his high thought
 Was our Leander in his fortunes brought,
 And in his fort of love that he thought won;
 But otherwise he scorns comparison.

O sweet Leander, thy large worth I hide
 In a short grave! ill-favour'd storms must chide
 Thy sacred favour; I in floods of ink
 Must drown thy graces, which white papers drink,
 Even as thy beauties did the foul black seas;
 I must describe the hell of thy decease,
 That heaven did merit: yet I needs must see
 Our painted fools and cockhorse peasantry

Still, still usurp, with long lives, loves, and lust,
The seats of Virtue, cutting short as dust
Her dear-bought issue: ill to worse converts,
And tramples in the blood of all deserts.

Night close and silent now goes fast before
The captains and the soldiers to the shore,
On whom attended the appointed fleet
At Sestos' bay, that should Leander meet,
Who feign'd he in another ship would pass:
Which must not be, for no one mean there was
To get his love home, but the course he took.
Forth did his beauty for his beauty look,
And saw her through her torch, as you behold
Sometimes within the sun a face of gold,
Form'd in strong thoughts, by that tradition's force
That says a god sits there and guides his course.
His sister was with him; to whom he show'd
His guide by sea, and said, "Oft have you view'd
In one heaven many stars, but never yet
In one star many heavens till now were met.
See, lovely sister! see, now Hero shines,
No heaven but her appears; each star repines,
And all are clad in clouds, as if they mourn'd
To be by influence of earth out-burn'd.
Yet doth she shine, and teacheth Virtue's train
Still to be constant in hell's blackest reign,
Though even the gods themselves do so entreat them
As they did hate, and earth as she would eat them."

Off went his silken robe, and in he leapt,
Whom the kind waves so licorously cleapt,
Thickening for haste, one in another, so,
To kiss his skin, that he might almost go
To Hero's tower, had that kind minute lasted.
But now the cruel Fates with Até hasted
To all the Winds, and made them battle fight
Upon the Hellespont, for either's right
Pretended to the windy monarchy;
And forth they brake, the seas mix'd with the sky,
And toss'd distress'd Leander, being in hell,
As high as heaven: bliss not in height doth dwell.
The Destinies sate dancing on the waves,
To see the glorious Winds with mutual braves
Consume each other: O, true glass, to see

How ruinous ambitious statists be
 To their own glories! Poor Leander cried
 For help to sea-born Venus she denied;
 To Boreas, that, for his Atthæa's sake,
 He would some pity on his Hero take,
 And for his own love's sake, on his desires;
 But Glory never blows cold Pity's fires.
 Then call'd he Neptune, who, through all the noise,
 Knew with affright his wreck'd Leander's voice,
 And up he rose; for haste his forehead hit
 'Gainst heaven's hard crystal; his proud waves he smit
 With his fork'd sceptre, that could not obey;
 Much greater powers than Neptune's gave them sway.
 They lov'd Leander so, in groans they brake
 When they came near him; and such space did take
 'Twixt one another, loath to issue on,
 That in their shallow furrows earth was shown,
 And the poor lover took a little breath:
 But the curst Fates sate spinning of his death
 On every wave, and with the servile Winds
 Tumbled them on him. And now Hero finds,
 By that she felt, her dear Leander's state:
 She wept, and pray'd for him to every Fate;
 And every Wind that whipp'd her with her hair
 About the face, she kiss'd and spake it fair,
 Kneel'd to it, gave it drink out of her eyes
 To quench his thirst: but still their cruelties
 Even her poor torch envi'd, and rudely beat
 The baiting flame from that dear food it eat;
 Dear, for it nourish'd her Leander's life;
 Which with her robe she rescu'd from their strife:
 But silk too soft was such hard hearts to break;
 And she, dear soul, even as her silk, faint, weak,
 Could not preserve it; out, O, out it went!
 Leander still call'd Neptune, that now rent
 His brackish curls, and tore his wrinkled face,
 Where tears in billows did each other chase;
 And, burst with ruth, he hurl'd his marble mace
 At the stern Fates; it wounded Lachesis
 That drew Leander's thread, and could not miss
 The thread itself, as it her hand did hit,
 But smote it full, and quite did sunder it.
 The more kind Neptune rag'd, the more he raz'd

His love's life fort, and kill'd as he embrac'd:
Anger doth still his own mishap increase;
If any comfort live, it is in peace.
O thievish Fates, to let blood, flesh, and sense,
Build two fair temples for their excellence,
To rob it with a poison'd influence!
Though souls' gifts starve, the bodies are held dear
In ugliest things; sense-sport preserves a bear:
But here naught serves our turns: O heaven and earth,
How most-most wretched is our human birth!
And now did all the tyrannous crew depart,
Knowing there was a storm in Hero's heart,
Greater than they could make, and scorn'd their smart.
She bow'd herself so low out of her tower,
That wonder 'twas she fell not ere her hour,
With searching the lamenting waves for him:
Like a poor snail, her gentle supple limb
Hung on her turret's top, so most downright,
As she would dive beneath the darkness quite,
To find her jewel;—jewel!—her Leander,
A name of all earth's jewels pleas'd not her
Like his dear name: "Leander, still my choice,
Come naught but my Leander! O my voice,
Turn to Leander! henceforth be all sounds,
Accents, and phrases, that show all griefs' wounds,
Analys'd in Leander! O black change!
Trumpets, do you, with thunder of your clange,
Drive out this change's horror! My voice faints:
Where all joy was, now shriek out all complaints!"
Thus cried she; for her mixed soul could tell
Her love was dead: and when the Morning fell
Prostrate upon the weeping earth for woe,
Blushes, that bled out of her cheeks, did show
Leander brought by Neptune, bruis'd and torn
With cities' ruins he to rocks had worn,
To filthy usuring rocks, that would have blood,
Though they could get of him no other good.
She saw him, and the sight was much-much more
Than might have serv'd to kill her: should her store
Of giant sorrows speak?—Burst,—die,—bleed,
And leave poor plaints to us that shall succeed.
She fell on her love's bosom, hugg'd it fast,
And with Leander's name she breath'd her last.

Neptune for pity in his arms did take them,
 Flung them into the air, and did awake them
 Like two sweet birds, surnam'd th' Acanthides,
 Which we call Thistle-warps, that near no seas
 Dare ever come, but still in couples fly,
 And feed on thistle-tops, to testify
 The hardness of their first life in their last;
 The first, in thorns of love, that sorrows past:
 And so most beautiful their colours show
 As none (so little) like them; her sad brow
 A sable velvet feather covers quite,
 Even like the forehead-cloth that, in the night,
 Or when they sorrow, ladies use to wear:
 Their wings, blue, red, and yellow, mix'd appear;
 Colours that, as we construe colours, paint
 Their states to life;—the yellow shows their saint,
 The dainty Venus, left them; blue, their truth;
 The red and black, ensigns of death and ruth. •
 And this true honour from their love-death sprung,—
 They were the first that ever poet sung.

THE PASSIONATE SHEPHERD TO HIS LOVE ‘

COME live with me, and be my love;
And we will all the pleasures prove
That hills and valleys, dales and fields,
Woods or steepy mountain yields.

And we will sit upon the rocks,
Seeing the shepherds feed their flocks
By shallow rivers, to whose falls
Melodious birds sing madrigals.

And I will make thee beds of roses, ‘
And a thousand fragrant posies;
A cap of flowers, and a kirtle
Embroider’d all with leaves of myrtle

A gown made of the finest wool
Which from our pretty lambs we pull;
Fair-lined slippers for the cold,
With buckles of the purest gold;

A belt of straw and ivy-buds,
With coral clasps and amber studs:
An if these pleasures may thee move,
Come live with me, and be my love.

The shepherd-swains shall dance and sing
For thy delight each May morning:
If these delights thy mind may move,
Then live with me, and be my love.

FRAGMENT

First printed in "Englands Parnassus," 1600

I WALK'D along a stream, for pureness rare,
Brighter than sun-shine; for it did acquaint
The dullest sight with all the glorious prey
That in the pebble-paved channel lay.

No molten crystal, but a richer mine,
Even Nature's rarest alchymy ran there,—
Diamonds resolv'd, and substance more divine, •
Through whose bright-gliding current might appear
A thousand naked nymphs, whose ivory shine,
Enamelling the banks, made them more dear
Than ever was that glorious palace' gate
Where the day-shining Sun in triumph sate.

Upon this brim the eglantine and rose,
The tamarisk, olive, and the almond tree,
As kind companions, in one union grows,
Folding their twining arms, as oft we see
Turtle-taught lovers either other close,
Lending to dulness feeling sympathy;
And as a costly valance o'er a bed,
So did their garland-tops the brook o'erspread.

Their leaves, that differ'd both in shape and show,
Though all were green, yet difference such in green,
Like to the checker'd bent of Iris' bow,
Prided the running main, as it had been—

DIALOGUE IN VERSE

Jack. Seest thou not yon farmer's son?
He hath stoln my love from me, alas!
What shall I do? I am undone;
My heart will ne'er be as it was.
O, but he gives her gay gold rings,
And tufted gloves [for] holiday,
And many other goodly things,
That hath stoln my love away.

Friend. Let him give her gay gold rings
Or tufted gloves, were they ne'er so [gay];
[F]or were her lovers lords or kings,
They should not carry the wench away.

Jack. But 'a dances wonders well,
And with his dances stole her love from me:
Yet she wont to say, I bore the bell
For dancing and for courtesy.

Dick. Fie, lusty younker, what do you here,
Not dancing on the green to-day?
For Pierce, the farmer's son, I fear,
Is like to carry your wench away.

Jack. Good Dick, bid them all come hither,
And tell Pierce from me beside,
That, if he thinks to have the wench,
Here he stands shall lie with the bride.

¹ First printed in The Allyn Papers (for the Shakespeare Society), p. 8, by Payne Collier, who prefaced it with the following remarks: "In the original MS. this dramatic dialogue in verse is written as prose, on one side of a sheet of paper, at the back of which, in a more modern hand, is the name 'Kitt Marlowe.' What connection, if any, he may have had with it, it is impossible to determine." This Dialogue may be a fragment of The Maiden's Holiday, a lost comedy, which is said to have been written partly by Marlowe.—DYCE.

Dick. Fie, Nan, why use thy old lover so,
For any other new-come guest?
Thou long time his love did know;
Why shouldst thou not use him best?

Nan. Bonny Dick, I will not forsake
My bonny Rowland for any gold:
If he can dance as well as Pierce,
He shall have my heart in hold.

Pierce. Why, then, my hearts, let's to this gear;
And by dancing I may won
My Nan, whose love I hold so dear
As any realm under the sun.

Gentleman. Then, gentles, ere I speed from hence,
I will be so bold to dance
A turn or two without offence;
For, as I was walking along by chance,
I was told you did agree.

Friend. 'Tis true, good sir; and this is she Hopes your worship comes not to crave her,
For she hath lovers two or three,
And he that dances best must have her.

Gentleman. How say you, sweet, will you dance with me?
And you [shall] have both land and [hill];
My love shall want nor gold nor fee.

Nan. I thank you, sir, for your good will;
But one of these my love must be:
I'm but a homely country maid,
And far unfit for your degree;
[To dance with you I am afraid.]

Friend. Take her, good sir, by the hand,
As she is fairest: were she fairer,
By this dance, you shall understand,
He that can win her is like to wear her.

Fool. And saw you not [my] Nan to-day,
 My mother's maid have you not seen?
 My pretty Nan is gone away
 To seek her love upon the green.
 [I cannot see her 'mong so many:]
 She shall have me, if she have any.

Nan. Welcome, sweetheart, and welcome here,
 Welcome, my [true] love, now to me.
 This is my love [and my darling dear],
 And that my husband [soon] must be.
 And, boy, when thou com'st home, thou'lt see
 Thou art as welcome home as he.

Gentleman. Why, how now, sweet Nan! I hope you jest.

Nan. No, by my troth, I love the fool the best:
 And, if you be jealous, God give you good-night!
 I fear you're a gelding, you caper so light.

Gentleman. I thought she had jested and meant but a fable,
 But now do I see she hath play[d] with his bable.
 I wish all my friends by me to take heed,
 That a fool come not near you when you mean to speed.

The true Tragedie of
Richard Duke of Yorke

 RICHARD DUKE OF YORKE
 AND THE
 GOOD KING HENRY THE SIXT

Enter RICHARD DUKE OF YORKE, the EARL OF WARWICKE, the DUKE OF NORFFOLKE, MARQUIS MONTAGUE, EDWARD EARLE OF MARCH, CROOKEBACK RICHARD, and the yong EARLE OF RUTLAND, with Drumme and Souldiers, with white Roses in their hats.

Warwike. I wonder how the king escapt our hands.

Yorke. Whilst we pursude the horsemen of the North,

He sliue stole awaie and left his men!

Whereat the great Lord of Northumberland,

Whose warlike eares could neuer brooke retrait,

Chargde our maine battels front, and therewith him

Lord Stafford and Lord Clifford all abreast

Brake in and were by the hands of comimon Souldiers slain.

Edw. Lord Staffords father Duke of Buckingham,

Is either slaine or wounded dangerouslie,

I cleit his Beuer with a downe right blow:

Father that this is true behold his blood.

Mont. And brother heeres the Earle of Wiltshires

Bloud, whom I encountred as the battailes iound.

Rsch. Speake thou for me and tell them what I did.

Yorke. What is your grace dead my L. of Summerset?

Norff. Such hope haue all the line of Iohn of Gawnt.

Rsch. Thus doe I hope to shape king Henries head.

War. And so do I victorious prince of Yorke,

Before I see thee seated in that throne

Which now the house of Lancaster vsurpes,

I vow by heauens these eies shal neuer close.

This is the pallace of that fearefull king,

And that the regall chaire? Possesse it Yorke:

For this is thine and not king Henries heires.

Yorke. Assist me then sweet Warwike, and I wil:

For hither are we broken in by force.

Norff. Weele all assist thee, and he that flies shal die,

Yorke. Thanks gentle Norffolke. Staie by me my Lords

And souldiers staie you heere and lodge this night:

War. And when the king comes offer him no

Violence, vnlesse he seek to put vs out by force.

Rich. Armde as we be, lets staie within this house?

War. The bloudie parlement shall this be calde.

Vnlesse Plantagenet Duke of Yorke be king

And bashfull Henrie be deposde whose cowardise

Hath made vs by words to our enemies.

York. Then leaue me not my Lords; for now I meane

To take possession of my right.

War. Neither the king, nor him that loues him best,

The proudest burd that holds vp Lancaster.

Dares stirre a wing if Warwike shake his bels.

Ile plant Plantagenet: and root him out who dares?

Resolue thee Richard: Claime the English crowne.

Enter KING HENRIE THE SIXTH, with the DUKE OF EXCESTER, the EARLE OF NORTHUMBERLAND, the EARLE OF WESTMERLAND and CLIFFORD, the EARLE OF CUMBERLAND, with red Roses in their hats.

King. Looke Lordings where the sturdy rebel sits,

Euen in the chaire of state: belike he meanes

Backt by the power of Warwike that false peere,

To aspire vnto the crowne, and raigne as king.

Earle of Northumberland, he slew thy father,

And thine Clifford: and you both haue vow'd reuenge,

On him, his sonnes, his fauorites, and his friends.

North. And if I be not, heauens be reuengd on me.

Clif. The hope thereof, makes Clifford mourn in steel.

West. What? shall we suffer this, lets pull him downe.

My hart for anger breakes, I cannot speake.

King. Be patient gentle Earle of Westmerland.

Clif. Patience is for pultrouns such as he

He durst not sit there had your father liu'd?

My gracious Lord: here in the Parlement,

Let vs assaile the familie of Yorke.

North. Well hast thou spoken cosen, be it so.

King. O know you not the Cittie fauours them,

And they haue troopes of soldiers at their becke?

Exet. But when the D. is slaine, theile quicklie fie.

King. Far be it from the thoughtes of Henries hart

To make a shambles of the parlement house.

Cosen of Exeter, words, frownes, and threats,

Shall be the warres that Henrie meanes to vse.

Thou factious duke of Yorke, descend my throne,

I am thy soueraigne.

York. Thou art deceiu'd: I am thine.

Exet. For shame come downe he made thee D. of York.

York. Twas mine inheritance as the kingdome is.

Exet. Thy father was a traytor to the crowne.

War. Exeter thou art a traitor to the crowne,

In following this vsurping Henry.

- Clif.* Whom should he follow but his naturall king.
War. True Clif. and that is Richard Duke of Yorke.
King. And shall I stande while thou sittest in my throne?
Yorh. Content thy selfe it must and shall be so.
War. Be Duke of Lancaster, let him be king.
West. Why? he is both king & Duke of Lancaster,
 And that the Earle of Westmerland shall mainetaine.
War. And Warwike shall disproue it. You forget
 That we are those that chaste you from the field
 And slew your father, and with colours spred,
 Marcht through the Cittie to the pallas gates.
Nor. No Warwike I remember it to my grieft,
 And by his soule thou and thy house shall rewit.
West. Plantagenet of thee and of thy sonnes,
 Thy kinsmen and thy friendes, Ile haue more lues,
 Then drops of bloud were in my fathers vaines.
Clif. Vrge it no more, least in reuenge thereof,
 I send thee Warwike such a messenger,
 As shall reueng his death before I stirre.
War. Poore Clifford, how I skorn thy worthles threats.
Yorh. Wil ye we shew our title to the crowne,
 Or else our swords shall plead it in the field?
King. What title haste thou traitor to the Crowne?
 Thy father was as thou art Duke of Yorke,
 Thy grandfather Roger Mortimer earle of March,
 I am the sonne of Henrie the Fift who tamde the French,
 And made the Dolphin stoope, and seazd vpon their
 Townes and prouinces.
War. Talke not of France since thou hast lost it all.
King. The Lord protector lost it and not I,
 When I was crownd I was but nine months old.
Rich. You are olde enough now and yet me thinkes you lose,
 Father teare the Crowne from the Vsurers head,
Edw. Do so sweet father, set it on your head.
Mont. Good brother as thou lou'st & honorst armes,
 Lets fight it out and not stand caulling thus.
Rich. Sound drums and trumpets & the king will fly.
Yorh. Peace sonnes:
Northum. Peace thou and giue king Henry leaue to speake.
King. Ah Plantagenet, why seekest thou to depose me?
 Are we not both Plantagenets by birth,
 And from two brothers lineallie discent?
 Suppose by right and equitie thou be king,
 Thinkst thou that I will leaue my kinglie seate
 Wherein my father and my grandsire sat?
 No, first shall warre vnpeople this my realme,
 I and our colours often borne in France,
 And now in England to our harts great sorrow
 Shall be my winding sheete, why faint you Lords?
 My titles better farre than his.
War. Proue it Henrie and thou shalt be king?
King. Why Henrie the fourth by conquest got the Crowne.

Yorke. T'was by rebellion against his soueraigne.

King. I know not what to saie my titles weake,

Tell me maie not a king adopt an heire?

War. What then?

King. Then am I lawfull king For Richard

The second in the view of manie Lords

Resigne the Crowne to Henrie the fourth,

Whose heire my Father was, and I am his.

Yorke. I tell thee he rose against him being his

Soueraigne, & made him to resigne the crown perforce.

War. Suppose my Lord he did it vnconstraine,

Thinke you that were preiudiciall to the Crowne?

Exet. No, for he could not so resigne the Crowne,

But that the next heire must succeed and raigne.

King. Art thou against vs, Duke of Exceter?

Exet. His is the right, and therefore pardon me.

King. All will reuolt from me and turne to him.

Northum. Plantagenet for all the claime thou laist,

Thinke not king Henry shall be thus deposde?

War. Deposde he shall be in despiht of thee.

North. Tush Warwike, Thou art deceu'd? tis not thy Southerne powers of Essex, Suffolke, Norffolke, and of Kent that makes thee thus presumptuous and proud,
Can set the Duke vp in despiht of me.

Cliff. King Henrie be thy title right or wrong,

Lord Clifford vowes to fight in thy defence.

Maie that ground gape and swallow me aliuie,

Where I do kneele to him that slew my father.

King. O Clifford, how thy words reuiue my soule.

Yorke. Henry of Lancaster resigne thy crowne.

What mutter you? or what conspire you Lords?

War. Doe right vnto this prinche Duke of Yorke,

Or I will fill the house with armed men,

Enter Souldiers.

And ouer the chaire of state where now he sits,

Wright vp his title with thy vsurping bloud.

King. O Warwike, heare me speake.

Let me but raigne in quiet whilst I liue.

Yorke. Confirm the crowne to me and to mine heires

And thou shalt raigne in quiet whilst thou liu'st.

King. Conuey the souldiers hence, and then I will.

War. Captaine conduct them into Tutthill fieldes.

Clif. What wrong is this vnto the Prince your son?

War. What good is this for England and himselfe?

Northum. Base, fearfull, and despairing Henry.

Clif. How hast thou wronged both thy selfe and vs?

West. I cannot staie to heare these Articles.

[Exit.

Clif. Nor I, Come cosen, lets go tell the Queene.

Northum. Be thou a praie vnto the house of Yorke,

And die in bands for this vnkingly deed.

[Exit.

Clif. In dreadfull warre maist thou be ouercome,

Or lue in peace abandon'd and despisde.

[Exit.

Exet. They seeke reuenge, and therefore will not yeeld my Lord.

King. Ah Exeter?

War. Why should you sigh my Lord?

King. Not for my selfe Lord Warwike, but my sonne,

Whom I vnnaturallie shall disinherit.

But be it as it maie : I heere intaile the Crowne

To thee and to thine heires, conditionallie,

That here thou take thine oath, to cease these ciuill

Broiles, and whilst I lue to honour me as thy king and Soueraigne.

York. That oath I willinglie take and will performe.

War. Long lue king Henry. Plantagenet embrace him?

King. And long lue thou and all thy forward sonnes.

York. Now Yorke and Lancaster are reconcilde.

Exet. Accurst be he that seekes to make them foes,

[Sound Trumpets.

York. My Lord Ile take my leaue, for Ile to Wakefield

To my castell.

[Exit Yorke and his sonnes.

War. And Ile keepe London with my souldiers.

[Exit.

Nor. And Ile to Norfolke with my followers.

[Exit.

Mont. And I to the sea from whence I came.

[Exit.

* Enter the QUEENE and the PRINCE.

Exet. My Lord here comes the Queen, Ile steale away.

King. And so will I.

Queene. Naie staie, or else I follow thee.

King. Be patient gentle Queene, and then Ile staie.

Quee. What patience can there? ah timorous man,

Thou hast vndoone thy selfe, thy sonne, and me,

And giuen our rights vnto the house of Yorke.

Art thou a king and wilt be forst to yeeld?

Had I bene there, the souldiers should haue tost

Me on their launces points, before I would haue

Granted to their wils. The Duke is made

Protector of the land: Sterne Fawconbridge

Commands the narrow seas. And thinkst thou then

To sleepe secure? I heere diuorce me Henry

From thy bed, vntill that Act of Parlement

Be recalde, wherein thou yeeldest to the house of Yorke,

The Northern Lords that haue forsworne thy colours,

Will follow mine if once they see them spread,

And spread they shall vnto thy deepe disgrace.

Come sonne, lets awaie and leaue him heere alone.

King. Staie gentle Margaret, and here me speake.

Queene. Thou hast spoke too much alreadie, therefore be still.

King. Gentle sonne Edward, wilt thou staie with me?

Quee. I, to be murdred by his enemies.

[Exit.

Prin. When I returne with victorie from the field,

Ile see your Grace, till then Ile follow her.

[Exit.

The True Tragedie of

King. Poore Queene, her loue to me and to the prince her sonne,
 Makes hir in furie thus forget hir selfe.
 Renenged maie shee be on that accursed Duke.
 Come cosen of Exeter, staie thou here,
 For Clifford and those Northern Lords be gone
 I feare towards Wakefield, to disturbe the Duke.

Enter EDWARD, and RICHARD, and MONTAGUE.

Edw. Brother, and cosen Montague, giue mee leaue to speake.

Rich. Nay, I can better plaie the Orator.

Mont. But I haue reasons strong and forceable.

Enter the DUKE OF YORKE.

York. Howe nowe sonnes what at a iarre amongst your selues?

Rich. No father, but a sweete contention, about that which concerns your selfe and vs, The crowne of England father.

York. The crowne boy, why Henries yet alieue,
 And I haue sworne that he shall raigne in quiet till
 His death.

Edw. But I would breake an hundred othes to raigne one year.

Rich. And if it please your grace to giue me leaue,

Ile shew your grace the waie to saue your oath,
 And dispossesse king Henrie from the crowne.

Yorke. I prethe Dicke let me heare thy deuise.

Rich. Then thus my Lord. An oath is of no moment
 Being not sworne before a lawfull magistrate.

Henry is none but doth vsurpe your right,
 And yet your grace stands bound to him by oath,
 Then noble father resolute your selfe,
 And once more claime the crowne.

Yorke. I, saist thou so boie? why then it shall be so.

I am resolute to win the crowne, or die.

Edward, thou shalt to Edmund Brooke Lord Cobham,

With whom the Kentishmen will willinglie rise:

Thou cosen Montague, shalt to Norffolke straight,

And bid the Duke to muster vppe his souldiers,

And come to me to Wakefield presentlie.

And Richard thou to London strait shalt post,

And bid Richard Newill Earle of Warwiike

To leaue the cittie, and with his men of warre,

To meete me at Saint Albons ten daies hence.

My selfe heere in Sandall castell will prouide

Both men and monie to further our attempts.

Now, what newes?

[Enter a Messenger.]

Mes. My Lord, the Queene with thirtie thousand men,

Accompanied with the Earles of Cumberland,

Northumberland and Westmerland, and others of the House of Lancaster, are marching towards Wakefield,

To besiege you in your castell heere.

Enter SIR IOHN and SIR HUGH MORTIMER.

Yorke. A Gods name, let them come. Cosen Montagus post you hence: and boies staie you with me.

Sir Iohn and sir Hugh Mortimers mine vncles,
Your welcome to Sandall in an happie houre,
The armie of the Queene meanes to besiege vs.

Sir Iohn. Shee shall not neede my Lorde, weele meete her in the field.

Yorke. What with fise thousand souldiers vncl?

Rich. I father with fise hundred for a need,
A womans generall, what should you feare?

Yorke. Indeed, manie braue battells haue I woon
In Normandie, when as the enimie
Hath bin ten to one, and why should I now doubt
Of the like successe? I am resolu'd. Come lets goe.

Edw. Lets march awaie, I heare their drums.

[Exit.

Alarmes, and then enter the yong EARLE OF RUTLAND and his Tutor.

Tutor. Oh flie my Lord, lets leaue the Castell,
And flie to Wakefield straight.

Enter CLIFFORD.

Rut. O Tutor, looke where bloudie Clifford comes.

Clif. Chaplin awaie, thy Priesthood saues thy life,
As for the brat of that accursed Duke
Whose father slew my father, he shall die.

Tutor. Oh Clifford spare this tender Lord, least
Heauen reuenge it on thy head: Oh saue his life.

Clif. Soldiers awaie and drag him hence perforce:
Awaie with the villaine. [Exit the Chaplein.

How now, what dead alreadie? or is it feare that Makes him close his eies? Ile open them.

Rut. So lookes the pent vp Lion on the lambe,
And so he walkes insulting ouer his praie,
And so he turnes againe to rend his limmes in sunder,
Oh Clifford, kill me with thy sword, and
Not with such a cruell threatning looke,
I am too meane a subiect for thy wrath,
Be thou reuengde on men, and let me liue.

Clif. In vaine thou speakest poore boy: my fathers
Bloud hath stopt the passage where thy wordes shoulde enter.

Rut. Then let my fathers blood ope it againe? he is a
Man, and Clifford cope with him,

Clif. Had I thy brethren here, their liues and thine
Were not reuenge sufficient for me.

Or should I dig vp thy forefathers graues,

And hang their rotten coffins vp in chaines,
It could not slake mine ire, nor ease my hart.
The sight of anie of the house of Yorke,
Is as a furie to torment my soule.

Therefore till I root out that curssed line

And leaue not one on earth, Ile liue in hell therefore

Rut. Oh let me praie, before I take my death.

To thee I praie Sweet Clifford pittie me.

Clif. I, such pittie as my rapiers point affords.

Rut. I neuer did thee hurt, wherefore wilt thou kill mee?

Clif. Thy father hath.

Rut. But twas ere I was borne.

Thou hast one sonne, for his sake pittie me,

Least in reuenge thereof, sith God is iust,

He be as miserable slaine as I.

Oh, let me liue in prison all my daies,

And when I giue occasion of offence,

Then let me die, for now thou hast no cause.

Clif. No cause? Thy Father slew my father, therefore Die.

Plantagenet I come Plantagenet,

And thus thy sonnes blood cleauing to my blade,

Shall rust vpon my weapon, till thy blood

Congeald with his, doe make me wipe off both. .

[Exit.

Alarmes, enter the DUKE OF YORKE folus.

Yorke. Ah Yorke, post to thy castell, saue thy life,

The goale is lost thou house of Lancaster,

Thrise happie chance is it for thee and thine,

That heauen abridgde my daies and cals me hence,

But God knowes what chance hath betide my sonnes;

But this I know they haue demeand themselues,

Like men borne to renowne by life or death:

Three times this daie came Richard to my sight,

And cried courage Father: Victorie or death.

And twise so oft came Edward to my view,

With purple Faulchen painted to the hilts,

In blood of those whom he had slaughtered.

Oh harke, I heare the drums? No waie to flie:

No waie to saue my life? And heere I staie:

And heere my life must end.

Enter the QUEENE, CLIFFORD, Northumberland, and Souldiers.

Come bloudie Clifford, rough Northumberland,

I dare your quenchlesse furie to more blood.

This is the But, and this abides your shot.

Northum. Yeeld to our mercies proud Plantagenet.

Clif. I, to such mercie as his ruthfull arme

With downe right paiment lent vnto my father,

- Now Phaeton hath tumbled from his carre,
 And made an euening at the noone tide pricke.
Yorke. My ashes like the Phœnix maie bring forth
 A bird that will reuenge it on you all,
 And in that hope I cast mine eies to heauen,
 Skorning what ere you can afflict me with:
 Why staie you Lords? what, multitudes and feare?
Cliff. So cowards fight when they can flie no longer:
 So Dones doe pecke the Rauens piercing tallents:
 So desperate theeues all hopelesse of their liues,
 Breath out inuectiues gainst the officers.
Yorke. Oh Clifford, yet bethinke thee once againe,
 And in thy minde orerun my former time:
 And bite thy toung that flaunderst him with cowardise,
 Whose verie looke hath made thee quake ere this.
Cliff. I will not handie with thee word for word,
 But buckle with thee blowes twise two for one.
Queene. Hold valiant Clifford for a thousand causes,
 I would prolong the traitors life a while.
 Wrath makes him death, speake thou Northumberland.
Nor. Hold Clifford, doe not honour him so much,
 To pricke thy finger though to wound his hart:
 What valure were it when a curre doth grin,
 For one to thrust his hand betweene his teeth,
 When he might spurne him with his foote awaie?
 Tis warres prise to take all aduantages,
 And ten to one, is no impeach in warres,
 Fight and take him.
Cliff. I, I so strues the Woodcocke with the gun.
North. So doth the cunnie struggle with the net.
Yorke. So triumphs theeues vpon their conquered
 Bootie So true men yeeld by robbers ouermatcht.
North. What will your grace haue done with him?
Queen. Braue warriors, Clifford & Northumberland
 Come make him stand vpon this molehill here,
 That aime at mountaines with outstretched arme,
 And parted but the shaddow with his hand.
 Was it you that reuelde in our Parlement,
 And made a prechment of your high descent?
 Where are your messe of sonnes to backe you now?
 The wanton Edward, and the lustie George?
 Or where is that valiant Crookbacke prodegie?
 Dickey your boy, that with his grumbling voice,
 Was wont to cheate his Dad in mutinies?
 Or amongst the rest, where is your darling Rutland?
 Looke Yorke? I dipt this napkin in the bloud,
 That valiant Clifford with his rapiers point,
 Made issue from the bosome of thy boy.
 And if thine eies can water for his death,
 I giue thee this to drie thy cheeks withall.
 Alas poore Yorke. But that I hate thee much,
 I should lament thy miserable state.

452 The True Tragedie of

I prethee greeue to make me merrie Yorke.
Stamp, raue and fret, that I maie sing and dance.
What? hath thy fierie hart so parcht thine entrailes,
That not a teare can fall for Rullands death?
Thou wouldst be feede I see to make me sport.
Yorke cannot speake, vnlesse he weare a crowne.
A crowne for Yorke? and Lords bow low to him.
So: hold you his hands, while I doe set it on.
I, now lookes he like a king?
This is he that tooke king Henries chaire,
And this is he was his adopted aire.
But how is it that great Plantagenet,
Is crownd so soone, and broke his holie oath,
As I bethinke me you should not be king,
Till our Henry had shooke hands with death,
And will you impale your head with Henries glorie,
And rob his temples of the Diadem
Now in his life against your holie oath?
Oh, tis a fault too too vnardonable.
Off with the crowne, and with the crowne his head,
And whilst we breath, take time to doe him dead.
Clif. Thats my office for my fathers death.
Queen. Yet stay: & lets here the Orisons he makes.
York. She wolfe of France, but worse than Wolues of France:
Whose tongue more poison'd than the Adders tooth
How ill beseeeming is it in thy sexe,
To triumph like an Amazonian trull
Vpon his woes, whom Fortune captiuates?
But that thy face is visard like, vnchanging,
Made impudent by vse of euill deeds:
I would assaie, proud Queene to make thee blush:
To tell thee of whence thou art, from whom deriu'de,
Twere shame enough to shame thee, wert thou not shamelesse.
Thy father beares the type of king of Naples,
Of both the Sissiles and Ierusalem,
Yet not so wealthie as an English Yeoman.
Hath that poore Monarch taught thee to insult?
It needes not, or it bootes thee not proud Queene,
Vnlesse the Adage must be verifide:
That beggers mounted, run their horse to death.
Tis beautie, that oft makes women proud,
But God he wots thy share thereof is small.
Tis gouernment, that makes them most admirde,
The contrarie doth make thee wondred at.
Tis vertue that makes them seeme deuine,
The want thereof makes thee abhominable.
Thou art as opposite to euerie good,
As the Antipodes are vnto vs,
Or as the south to the Septentrion.
Oh Tygers hart wrapt in a womans hide?
How couldst thou draine the life bloud of the childe,
To bid the father wipe his eies withall,

And yet be seene to beare a womans face?
 Women are milde, pittifull, and flexible,
 Thou indurate, sterne, rough, remorselesse.
 Bids thou me rage? why now thou hast thy will.
 Wouldst haue me weepe? why so thou hast thy wish.
 For raging windes blowes vp a storme of teares,
 And when the rage alaies the raine begins.
 These teares are my sweet Rutlands obsequies,
 And euerie drop begs vengeance as it fals,
 On thee fell Clifford, and the false French woman.

North. Beshrew me but his passions moue me so,
 As hardlie can I checke mine eies from teares.

York. That face of his the hungrie Cannibals
 Could not haue tucht, would not haue stained with bloud
 But you are more inhumaine, more inexorable,
 O ten times more then Tygers of Arcadia.
 See ruthlesse Queene a haplesse fathers teares.
 This cloth thou dipts in bloud of my sweet boy
 And loe with teares I wash the bloud awaie.
 Keepe thou the napkin and go boast of that,
 And if thou tell the heaue storie well,
 Vpon my soule the hearers will sheed teares,
 I, euen my foes will sheed fast falling teares,
 And saie alas, it was a pitteous deed.
 Here, take the crowne, and with the crowne my curse,
 And in thy need such comfort come to thee,
 As now I reape at thy two cruell hands.
 Hard-harted Clifford, take me from the world,
 My soule to heauen, my bloud vpon your heads.

North. Had he bin slaughterman of all my kin,
 I could not chuse but weepe with him to see,
 How inlie anger gripes his hart.

Quee. What weeping ripe, my Lorde Northumberland?
 Thinke but vpon the wrong he did vs all,
 And that will quicklie drie your melting tears.

Clif. Thears for my oath, thears for my fathers death.

Queene. And thears to right our gentle harted kind.

York. Open thy gates of mercie gracious God,
 My soule flies foorth to meet with thee.

Queene. Off with his head and set it on Yorke Gates,
 So Yorke maie ouerlooke the towne of Yorke.

[Exeunt omnes.]

*Enter EDWARD and RICHARD, with drum
 and Souldiers.*

Edw. After this dangerous fight and haplesse warre,
 How doth my noble brother Richard fare?

Rich. I cannot ioy vntil I be resolu'de,
 Where our right valiant father is become.
 How often did I see him beare himselfe,
 As doth a lion midst a heard of neat,

So fled his enemies our valiant father,
Methinkes tis pride enough to be his sonne.

[Three sunnes appeare in the aire

Edw. Loe how the morning opes her golden gates,
And takes her farewell of the glorious sun,
Dasell mine eies or doe I see three suns?

Rich. Three glorious suns, not seperated by a racking
Cloud, but seuered in a pale cleere shining skie.
See, see, they ioine, embrace, and seeme to kisse,
As if they vowde some league inuiolate:
Now are they but one lampe, one light, one sun,
In this the heauens doth figure some euent.

Edw. I thinke it cites vs brother to the field,
That we the sonnes of braue Plantagenet,
Alreadie each one shining by his meed,
May ioine in one and ouerpeere the world,
As thus the earth, and therefore henceforward,
Ile beare vpon my Target, three faire shining suns.
But what art thou that lookest so heauilie?

Mes. Oh one that was a wofull looker on,
When as the noble Duke of Yorke was slaine.

Edw. O speake no more, for I can heare no more.

Rich. Tell on thy tale, for I will heare it all

Mes. When as the noble Duke was put to flight,
And then pursu'de by Clifford and the Queene,
And manie souldiers moe, who all at once
Let driue at him and forst the Duke to yeeld:
And then they set him on a molehill there,
And crownd the gracious Duke in high despite,
Who then with teares began to waile his fall.
The ruthlesse Queene perceruing he did weepe,
Gaue him a handkercher to wipe his eies,
Dipt in the blood of sweet young Ruland
By rough Clifford slaine: who weeping tooke it vp.
Then through his brest they thrust their bloudy swordes,
Who like a lambe fell at the butchers feete.
Then on the gates of Yorke they set his head,
And there it doth remaine the piteous spectacle
That ere mine eies beheld.

Edw. Sweet Duke of Yorke our prop to leane vpon,
Now thou art gone there is no hope for vs:
Now my soules pallace is become a prison.
Oh would she breake from compasse of my breast,
For neuer shall I haue more ioie.

Rich. I cannot weepe, for all my breasts moisture
Scarce serues to quench my furnace burning hart:
I cannot ioie till this white rose be dide,
Euen in the hart blood of the house of Lancaster.
Richard, I bare thy name, and Ile reuenge thy death,
Or die my selfe in seeking of reuenge.

Edw. His name that valiant Duke hath left with thee,
His chaire and Dukedome that remaines for me.

Rich. Nay, if thou be that princely Eagles bird,
Shew thy descent by gazing gainst the sunne,
For chaire, and dukedome, Throne and kingdome faie:
For either that is thine, or else thou wert not his?

Enter the EARLE OF WARWIKE, MONTAGUE, with drum, ancient, and souldiers.

War. How now faire Lords. what fare? what newes abroad?

Rich. Ah Warwike? should we report the balefull
Newes, and at each words deliuerance stab poinyardes
In our flesh till all were told, the words would adde
More anguish then the wounds.

Ah valiant Lord the Duke of Yorke is slaine.

Edw. Ah Warwike Warwike, that Plantagenet,
Which held thee deere: I, euen as his soules redemption,
Is by the sterne L. Clifford, done to death.

War. Ten daies ago I drownd those newes in teares.
And now to adde more measure to your woes,
I come to tell you things since then befallne.
After the bloudie fraie at Wakefield fought,
Where your braue father breath'd his latest gaspe,
Tidings as swift as the post could runne,
Was brought me of your losse, and his departure.
I then in London keeper of the King,
Mustred my souldiers, gathered flockes of friends,
And verie well appointed as I thought,
Marcht to saint Albans to entercept the Queene,
Bearing the King in my behalfe along,
For by my scouters I was aduertised,
That she was comming, with a full intent
To dash your late decree in parliament,
Touching king Henries heires and your succession.
Short tale to make, we at Saint Albans met,
Our battels iounde, and both sides fiercelie fought.
But whether twas the coldnesse of the king,
He lookt full gentlie on his warlike Queene,
That robde my souldiers of their heated spleene,
Or whether twas report of his successe,
Or more then common feare of Cliffords rigor,
Who thunders to his captaines bloud and death,
I cannot tell. But to conclude with truth,
Their weapons like to lightnings went and came,
Our souldiers like the night Owles laste flight,
Or like an idle thresher with a flaile,
Fel gentle downe as if they smote their friends.
I cheerd them vp with iustice of the cause,
With promise of hie paie and great rewardes,
But all in vaine, they had no harts to fight,
Nor we in them no hope to win the daie,
So that We fled. The king vnto the Queene,
Lord George your brother, Norfolke, and my selfe,

In hast, post hast, are come to ioine with you,
For in the marches here we heard you were,
Making another head to fight againe.

Edw. Thankes gentle Warwike.

How farre hence is the Duke with his power?
And when came George from Burgundie to England?

War. Some fve miles off the Duke is with his power.

But as for your brother he was latelie sent
From your kind Aunt, Duches of Burgundie,
With aide of souldiers gainst this needfull warre.

Rich. Twas ods belike, when valiant Warwike fled.

Oft haue I heard thy praises in pursute,
But nere till now thy scandall of retire.

War. Nor now my scandall Richard dost thou heare,

For thou shalt know that this right hand of mine,
Can plucke the Diadem from faint Henries head,
And wring the awefull scepter from his fist:

Were he as famous and as bold in warre,
As he is famde for mildnesse, peace and praier.

Rich. I know it well Lord Warwike blame me not,

Twas loue I bare thy glories made me speake.
But in this troublous time, whats to be done:

Shall we go throw away our coates of steele,
And clad our bodies in blacke mourning gownes,
Numbring our Auemaries with our beades

Or shall we on the helmets of our foes,
Tell our deuotion with reuengefull armes?

If for the last, saie I, and to it Lords.

War. Why therefore Warwike came to find you out,

And therefore comes my brother Montague.

Attend me Lords, the proud insulting Queene,
With Clifford and the haught Northumberland,
And of their feathermanie mo proud birdes,
Haue wrought the easie melting king like waxe,
He sware consent to your succession,
His oath inrolled in the Parliament.

But now to London all the crew are gone,
To frustrate his oath or what besides

May make against the house of Lancaster.

Their power I gesse them fifty thousand strong.

Now if the helpe of Norfolke and my selfe,

Can but amount to 48. thousand,

With all the friendes that thou braue earle of March,

Among the louing Welshmen canst procure,

Why via, To London will we march amaine,

And once againe bestride our foming steedes,

And once againe crie charge vpon the foe,

But neuer once againe turne backe and flie.

Rich. I, now me thinkes I heare great Warwike speake:

Nere maie he liue to see a sunshine daie,

That cries retire, when Warwike bids him stay.

Edw. Lord Warwike, on thy shoulder will I leane,

And when thou faints, must Edward fall:
Which perill heauen forefend.

War. No longer Earle of March, but Duke of Yorke,
The next degree, is Englands royall king:
And king of England shalt thou be proclaimde,
In euery burrough as we passe along:
And he that casts not vp his cap for ioie,
Shall for the offence make forfeit of his head.
King Edward, valiant Richard, Montague,
Stay we no longer dreaming of renowne,
But forward to effect these resolutions.

Enter a Messenger.

Mes. The Duke of Norffolke sends you word by me,
The Queene is comming with a puissant power,
And craues your companie for speedie councell.

War. Why then it sorts braue Lordes. Lets march away.
[Exeunt Omnes.]

Enter the KING and QUEENE, PRINCE EDWARD, and the Northerne Earles, with drum and Souldiers.

Quee. Welcome my Lord to this braue town of York.

Yonders the head of that ambitious enemie,
That fought to be impaled with your crowne.
Doth not the object please your eie my Lord?

King. Euen as the rockes please them that feare their wracke.
Withhold ~~repence~~ deare God, tis not my fault,
Nor wittinglie haue I infringe my vow.

Clif. My gracious Lord, this too much lenitie,
And harmefull pittie must be laid aside,
To whom do Lyons cast their gentle looke
Not to the beast that would vsurpe his den.
Whose hand is that the sauage Beare doth licke?
Not his that spoiles his young before his face.
Whose scapes the lurking serpents mortall sting?
Not he that sets his foot vpon her backe.
The smallest worme will turne being troden on,
And Doues will pecke, in rescue of their broode.
Ambitious Yorke did leuell at thy Crowne,
Thou smiling, while he knit his angrie browes.
He but a Duke, would haue his sonne a king,
And raise his issue like a louing fire.
Thou being a king blest with a goodlie sonne,
Didst giue consent to disinherit him,
Which argude thee a most vnnatural father.
Vnreasonable creatures feed their yong,
And though mans face be fearefull to their eies,
Yet in protection of their tender ones,
Who hath not seene them euen with those same wings
Which they haue sometime vsde in fearefull flight,

Make warre with him, that climes vnto their nest,
 Offring their owne liues in their yongs defence?
 For shame my Lord, make them your president,
 Were it not pittie that this goodlie boy,
 Should lose his birthright through his fathers fault?
 And long hereafter saie vnto his child,
 What my great grandfather and grandsire got,
 My carelesse father fondlie gaue awaie?
 Looke on the boy and let his manlie face,
 Which promiseth successfull fortune to vs all,
 Steele thy melting thoughtes,
 To keepe thine owne, and leaue thine owne with him.

King. Full wel hath Clifford plaid the Orator,
 Inferring arguments of mighty force.
 But tell me, didst thou neuer yet heare tell,
 That things euill got had euer bad successe,
 And happie euer was it for that sonne,
 Whose father for his hoording went to hell.
 I leaue my sonne my vertuous deedes behind,
 And would my father had left me no more,
 For all the rest is held at such a rate,
 As askes a thousand times more care to keepe,
 Then maie the present profit counteruaile.
 Ah cosen Yorke, would thy best friendes did know,
 How it doth greeue me that thy head stands there.
Quee. My Lord, this harmefull pittie makes your followers faint
 You promise knighthood to your princelie sonne.
 Vnsheath your sword and straight doe dub him knight.
 Kneele downe Edward.

King. Edward Plantagenet, arise a knight,
 And learne this lesson boy, draw thy sword in right.
Prince. My gracious father by your kingly leaue,
 Ile draw it as apparant to the crowne,
 And in that quarrel vse it to the death.
Northum. Why that is spoken like a toward prince.

Enter a Messenger.

Mes. Royall commaunders be in readinesse
 For with a band of fiftie thousand men,
 Comes Warwike backing of the Duke of Yorke.
 And in the townes whereas they passe along,
 Proclaimes him king, and manie flies to him,
 Prepare your battels, for they be at hand.
Clif. I would your highnesse would depart the field,
 The Queene hath best successe when you are absent.
Quee. Do good my Lord, and leaue vs to our fortunes.
King. Why thats my fortune, therefore Ile stay still.
Clif. Be it with resolution then to fight.
Prince. Good father cheere these noble Lords,
 Vnsheath your sword, sweet father crie Saint George.
Clif. Pitch we our battell heere, for hence wee will not move.

Enter the HOUSE OF YORKE.

Edward. Now periurde Henrie wilt thou yeelede thy crowne,
And kneele for mercie at thy soueraignes feete?

Queen. Go rate thy minions proud insulting boy,
Becomes it thee to be thus malepert,
Before thy king and lawfull soueraigne?

Edw. I am his king, and he should bend his knee,
I was adopted heire by his consent.

George. Since when he hath broke his oath.
For as we heare you that are king
Though he doe weare the Crowne,
Haue causde him by new act of Parlement
To blot our brother out, and put his owne son in.

Clif. And reason George. Who should succede the father but the son?

Rich. Are you their butcher?

Clif. I Crookbacke, here I stand to answere thee, or any of your sort.

Rich. Twas you that kild yong Rutland, was it not?

Clif. Yes, and old Yorke too, and yet not satisfide.

Rich. For Gods sake Lords giue synald to the fight.

War. What saiest thou Henry? wilt thou yeelede thy crowne?

Queen. What, long tongde War. dare you speake?

When you and I met at saint Albones last,
Your legs did better seruice than your hands.

War. I, then twas my turne to flee, but now tis thine.

Clif. You said so much before, and yet you fled.

War. Twas not your valour Clifford, that droue mee thence.

Northum. No nor your manhood Warwicke, that could make you staie.

Rich. Northumberland, Northumberland, wee holde
Thee reuerentlie. Breake off the parlie, sor scarce
I can refraine the execution of my big swolne
Hart, against that Clifford there, that
Cruell child-killer.

Clif. Why I kild thy father, calst thou him a child?

Rich. I like a villaine, and a trecherous coward,

As thou didst kill our tender brother Rutland.

But ere sunne set Ile make thee curse the deed.

King. Haue doone with wordes great Lodes, and heare me speake.

Queen. Defie them then, or else hold close thy lips.

King. I prethe giue no limits to my tongue,

I am a king, and priuledge to speake.

Clif. My Lord the wound that bred this meeting here
Cannot be cru'd with words, therefore be still.

Rich. Then executioner vnsheath thy sword,
By him that made vs all I am resolu'de,
That Cliffords manhood hangs vpon his tongue.

Edw. What saist thou Henry, shall I haue my right or no?

The True Tragedie of

A thousand men haue broke their fast to daie,
That nere shall dine, vnlesse thou yeeld the crowne.

War. If thou denie their blouds be on thy head,
For Yorke in iustice puts his armour on.

Prin. If all be right that Warwiike saies is right,
There is no wrong but all things must be right.

Rich. Whosocuer got thee, there thy mother stands,
For well I wot thou hast thy mothers tongue.

Queen. But thou art neither like thy sire nor dam,
But like a foule mishapen stygmaticke

Marks by the destinies to be auoided,
As venome Todes, or Lizards fainting lookes.

Rich. Iron of Naples, hid with English gilt,
Thy father beares the title of a king,
As if a channell should be calde the Sea;
Shames thou not, knowing from whence thou art de-
Riu'de, to parlie thus with Englands lawfull heires?

Edw. A wispe of straw were worth a thousand crowns,
To make that shamelesse callet know her selfe,
Thy husbands father reueld in the hart of France,
And tam'de the French, and made the Dolphin stoope;
And had he macht according to his state,
He might haue kept that glorie till this daie.

But when he tooke a begger to his bed,
And gracst thy poore sire with his bridall daie,
Then that sun-shine bred a showre for him
Which washt his fathers fortunes out of France,
And heapt seditions on his crowne at home.

For what hath mou'd these tumults but thy pride?

Hadst thou beene meeke, our title yet had slept

And we in pittie of the gentle king,

Had slipt our claime vntill an other age.

George. But when we saw our summer brought the gaine,

And that the haruest brought vs no increase,

We set the axe to thy vsurping root,

And though the edge haue something hit our selues,

Yet know thou we will neuer cease to strike,

Till we haue hewne thee downe,

Or bath'd thy growing with our heated blouds.

Edw. And in this resolution, I defie thee,

Not willing anie longer conference,

Since thou deniest the gentle king to speake.

Sound trumpets, let our bloudie colours waue,

And either victorie or else a graue.

Quee. Staie Edward staie.

Edw. Hence wrangling woman, Ile no longer staie,

Thy words will cost ten thousand liues to daie.

[Exeunt Omnes. Alarmes.]

Enter WARWIK.

War. Sore spent with toile as runners with the race,

I laie me downe a little while to breath,

For strokes receiue, and manie blowes repaide,
Hath robd my strong knit sinnewes of their strength,
And force perforce needes must I rest my selfe.

Enter EDWARD.

Edw. Smile gentle heauens or strike vngentle death,
That we maie die vnlesse we gaine the daie:
What fatall starre malignant frownes from heauen
Vpon the harmlesse line of *Yorke*s true house?

Enter George.

George. Come brother, come, lets to the field againe,
For yet theres hope inough to win the daie
Then let vs backe to cheere our fainting Troupes,
Lest they retire now we haue left the field.
War. How now my lords: what hap, what hope of good?

Enter RICHARD running.

Rich. Ah Warwike, why haste thou withdrawne thy selfe?
Thy noble father in the thickest thronges,
Cride still for Warwike his thrise valiant son,
Vntill with thousand swords he was beset,
And manie wounds made in his aged brest,
And as he tottering sate vpon his steede,
He waft his hand to me and cride aloud:
Richard, commend me to my valiant sonne,
And still he cride Warwike reuenge my death,
And with those words he tumbled off his horse,
And so the noble Salsbury gaue vp the ghost.

War. Then let the earth be drunken with his blood,
He kill my horse because I will not flie:
And here to God of heauen I make a vow,
Neuer to passe from forth this bloody field
Till I am full reuenged for his death.

Edw. Lord Warwike, I doe bend my knees with thine,
And in that vow now ioine my soule to thee,
Thou setter vp and puller downe of kings,
Vouchsafe a gentle victorie to vs,
Or let vs die before we loose the daie.

George. Then let vs haste to cheere the souldiers harts,
And call them pillers that will stand to vs,
And hiely promise to remunerate
Their trustie seruice, in these dangerous warres.

Rich. Come, come awaie, and stand not to debate,
For yet is hope of fortune good enough.
Brothers, giue me your hands, and let vs part
And take our leaues vntill we meet againe,
Where ere it be in heauen or in earth.
Now I that neuer wept, now melt in wo,

To see*these dire mishaps continue so.

Warwike farewell.

War. Awaie awaie, once more sweet Lords farewell.

[Exeunt Omnes.]

Alarmes, and then enter RICHARD at one dore and CLIFFORD at the other.

Rich. A Clifford a Clifford.

Clif. A Richard a Richard.

Rich. Now Clifford, for Yorke & young Rutlands death,

This thirsty sword that longs to drinke thy bloud,

Shall lop thy limmes, and slise thy cursed hart,

For to reuenge the murders thou hast made.

Clif. Now Richard, I am with thee here alone,

This is the hand that stabd thy father Yorke,

And this the hand that slew thy brother Rutland,

And heres the heart that triumphs in their deathes,

And cheeres these hands that slew thy sire and brother,

To execute the like vpon thy selfe,

And so haue at thee.

*Alarmes. They fight, and then enters Warwike and rescues
RICHARD & then exeunt omnes. Alarmes still, and then enter
Henry solus.*

Hen. Oh gracious God of heauen looke downe on vs

And set some endes to these incessant griefes,

How like a mastlesse ship vpon the seas,

This woful battaile doth continue still,

Now leaning this way, now to that side driue,

And none doth know to whom the daie will fall.

O would my death staie these ciuill iars!

Would I had neuer raind, nor nere bin king,

Margret and Clifford, chide me from the field,

Swearing they had best successe when I was thence.

Would God that I were dead so all were well,

Or would my crowne suffice, I were content

To yeeld it them and liue a priuate life.

Enter a Souldier with a dead man in his armes.

Sould. Il blowes the wind that profits no bodie,

This man that I haue slaine in fight to daie,

Maie be possessed of some store of crownes,

And I will search to find them if I can,

But stay. Me thinkes it is my fathers face,

Oh I tis he whom I haue slaine in fight,

From London was I prest out by the king,

My father he came on the part of Yorke,

And in this conflict I haue slaine my father:

Oh pardon God, I knew not what I did,

And pardon father, for I knew thee not.

Enter an other Soldier with a dead man.

2 Soul. Lie there thou that foughtst with me so stoutly,
Now let me see what store of gold thou haste,
But staie, me thinkes this is no famous face:
Oh no it is my sonne that I haue slaine in fight,
O monstrous times begetting such euent,
How cruel bloody, and ironious,
This deadlie quarrell daie doth beget,
Poore boy thy father gaue thee lif too late,
And hath bereau'd thee of thy life too sone.

King. Wo aboute wo, grieve more then common grieve,
Whilst Lyons warre and battaile for their dens,
Poore lambs do feelee the rigour of their wraths:
The red rose and the white are on his face,
The fatall colours of our struing houses,
Wither one rose, and let the other flourish,
For if you strue, ten thousand liues must perish.

1 Sould. How will my mother for my fathers death,
Take on with me and nere be satisfide?

2 Soul How will my wife for slaughter of my son,
Take on with me and nere be satisfide?

King. How will the people now misdeeme their king,
Oh would my death their mundes could satisfie.

1 Sould. Was euer son so rude his fathers bloud to spil?

2 Soul. Was euer father so vnnaturall his son to kill?

King. Was euer king thus greeud and vexed still?

1 Sould. Ile beare thee hence from this accursed place,
For wo is ~~me~~ to see my fathers face.

[Exit with his father.]

2 Soul. Ile beare thee hence & let them fight that wil,
For I haue murdered where I should not kill.

[Exit with his sonne.]

K. Hen. Weepe wretched man, Ile lay thee teare for tear,
Here sits a king as woe begone as thee.

Alarmer and enter the QUEENE.

Queen. Awaie my Lord to Barwicke presentlie,
The daie is lost, our friends are murdered,
No hope is left for vs, therefore awaie,

Enter PRINCE EDWARD.

Prince. Oh father flie, our men haue left the field,
Take horse sweet father, let vs saue our selues.

Enter EXETER.

Exet. Awaie my Lord for vengeance comes along with him:
Nay stand not to expostulate make hast,
Or else come after, Ile awaie before.

K. Hen. Nare staie good Exeter, for Ile along with thee.

Enter CLIFFORD wounded, with an arrow in his necke.

Clif. Heere burnes my candell out,
That whilst it lasted gaue king Henry light.
Ah Lancaster, I feare thine ouerthrow,
More then my bodies parting from my soule.
My loue and feare glude manie friendes to thee,
And now I die, that tough commixture melts.
Impairing Henry strengthened misproud Yorke,
The common people swarme like summer flies,
And whither flies the Gnats but to the sun?
And who shines now but Henries enemie?
Oh Phæbus hadst thou neuer giuen consent,
That Phaeton should checke thy fierie steedes,
Thy burning carre had neuer scorcht the earth.
And Henry hadst thou liu'd as kings should doe,
And as thy father and his father did,
Giuing no foot vnto the house of Yorke,
I and ten thousand in this wofull land,
Had left no mourning Widdowes for our deathes,
And thou this daie hadst kept thy throne in peace.
For what doth cherish weedes but gentle aire?
And what makes robbers bold but lenitie?
Bootlesse are plaintes, and curelesse are my woundes,
No waie to flie, no strength to hold our flight,
The foe is merclesse and will not pittie me,
And at their hands I haue deserude no pittie.
The aire is got into my bleeding wounds,
And much effuse of bloud doth make me faint,
Come Yorke and Richard, Warwike and the rest,
I stabde your fathers, now come split my brest.

Enter EDWARD, RICHARD and WARWIKE, and Souldiers.

Edw. Thus farre our fortunes keeps an vpward
Course, and we are grast with wreathes of victorie.
Some troopes pursue the bloudie minded Queene,
That now towards Barwike doth poste amaine,
But thinke you that Clifford is fled awaie with them?

War. No, tis impossible he should escape,
For though before his face I speake the words,
Your brother Richard markt him for the graue.
And where so ere he be I warrant him dead.

[Clifford grones and then dies.]

Edw. Harke, what soule is this that takes his heauy leaue?

Rich. A deadlie grone, like life and deaths departure.

Edw. See who it is, and now the battailes ended,
Friend or foe, let him be friendlie vsed.

Rich. Reuerse that doome of mercie, for tis Clifford,
Who kild our tender brother Rutland,
And stabd our princelie father Duke of Yorke.

War. From off the gates of Yorke fetch downe the Head, Your fathers head which Clifford placed there.
Instead of that, let his supplie the roome.
Measure for measure must be answered.

Edw. Bring forth that fatall skrichowle to our house,
That nothing sung to vs but bloud and death,
Now his euill boding tongue no more shall speake.

War. I thinke his vnderstanding is bereft.
Say Clifford, doost thou know who speakes to thee?
Darke cloudie death oreshades his beames of life,
And he nor sees nor heares vs what we saie.

Rich. Oh would he did, and so perhaps he doth,
And tis his policie that in the time of death,
He might auoid such bitter stormes as he
In his houre of death did giue vnto our father.

George. Richard if thou thinkest so, vex him with eager words.

Rich. Clifford, aske mercie and obtaine no grace.

Edw. Clifford, repent in bootlesse penitence.

War. Clifford deuise excuses for thy fault.

George. Whilst we deuise fell tortures for thy fault.

Rich. Thou pittiedst Yorke, and I am sonne to Yorke.

Edw. Thou pittiedst Rutland, and I will pittie thee.

George. Wheres captaine Margaret to fence you now?

War. They mocke thee Clifford sweare as thou wast wont.

Rich. What not an oth? Nay, then I know hees dead.
Tis hard, when Clifford cannot foord his friend an oath.

By this I know hees dead, and by my soule,
Would this right hand buy but an howres life,
That I in all contempt might raile at him.
Ide cut it off and with the issuing bloud,
Stifle the villaine whose instanced thirst,
Yorke and young Rutland could not satisfie.

War. I, but he is dead, off with the traitors head,
And reare it in the place your fathers stands.
And now to London with triumphant march,
There to be crowned Englands lawfull king.
From thence shall Warwike crosse the seas to France,
And aske the ladie Bona for thy Queene,
So shalt thou sinew both these landes together,
And hauing France thy friend thou needst not dread,
The scattered foe that hopes to rise againe.
And though they cannot greatly sting to hurt,
Yet looke to haue them busie to offend thine cares.
First Ile see the coronation done,
And afterward Ile crosse the seas to France,
To effect this marriage if it please my Lord.

Edw. Euen as thou wilt good Warwike let it be.

But first before we goe, George kneele downe.

We here create thee Duke of Clarence, and girt thee with the sword,

Our younger brother Richard Duke of Glocester.

Warwike as my selfe shal do & vndo as him pleaseth best.

The True Tragedie of

Rich. Let me be Duke of Clarence, George of Gloster,
For Glosters Dukedome is too ominous.

War. Tush thats a childish obseruation.

Richard be Duke of Gloster. Now to London,
To see these honors in possession.

[Exeunt Omnes.]

Enter two keepers with bow and arrowes.

Keeper. Come, lets take our stands vpon this hill,
And by and by the deere will come this waie.
But staie, heere comes a man, lets listen him a while.

Enter KING HENRIE disguise.

Hen. From Scotland am I stolne euen of pure loue,
And thus disguise to greet my native land.
No, Henrie no, It is no land of thine,
No bending knee will call thee Cesar now,
No humble suters sues to thee for right,
For how canst thou helpe them and not thy selfe?

Keeper. I marrie sir, here is a deere, his skin is a
Keepers fee. Sirra stand close, for as I thinke,
This is the king, king Edward hath deposde.

Hen. My Queene and sonne poore soules are gone to France, and as I heare the great commanding Warwihs,
To intreat a marriage with the ladie Bona,
If this be true, poore Queene and sonne,
Your labour is but spent in vaine,
For Lewis is a prince soone wun with words,
And Warwihe is a subtil Orator.
He laughs and saies, his Edward is instalde,
She weepes, and saies her Henry is deposde,
He on his right hand asking a wife for Edward,
She on his left side crauing aide for Henry.

Keeper. What art thou that talkes of kings and queens?

Hen. More then I seeme, for lesse I should not be,

A man at least, and more I cannot be,

And men maie talke of kings, and why not I?

Keeper. I but thou talkest as if thou wert a king thy selfe.

Hen. Why so I am in mind though not in shew.

Keeper. And if thou be a king where is thy crowne?

Hen. My crowne is in my hart, not on my head.

My crowne is calde content, a crowne that

Kings doe seldome times enioy.

Keeper. And if thou be a king crownd with content,

Your crowne content and you, must be content

To go with vs vnto the officer, for as we thinke

You are our quondam king, K. Edward hath deposde,

And therefore we charge you in Gods name & the kings

To go along with vs vnto the officers.

Hen. Gods name be fulfild, your kings name be

Obaide, and be you kings, command and Ile obay.

[Exeunt Omnes.]

Enter KING EDWARD, CLARENCE, and GLOSTER, MONTAGUE, HASTINGS, and the LADY GRAY.

K. Edw. Brothers of Clarence, and of Glocester,
This ladies husband heere, sir Richard Gray,
At the battaile of saint Albones did lose his life,
His lands then were seazed on by the conqueror.
Her sute is now to repoesse those lands,
And sith in quarrell of the house of Yorke,
The noble gentleman did lose his life,
In honor we cannot denie her sute.

Glo. Your highnesse shall doe well to grant it then.

K. Edw. I, so I will, but yet Ile make a pause.

Glo. I, is the wind in that doore?

Clarence, I see the Lady hath some thing to grant,
Before the king will grant her humble sute.

Cla. He knows the game, how well he keepes the wind.

K. Ed. Widow come some other time to know our mind.

La. May it please your grace I cannot brooke delaies,
I beseech your highnesse to dispatch me now.

K. Ed. Lords giue vs leaue, wee meane to trie this widdowes wit.

Cla. I, good leaue haue you.

Glo. For you will haue leaue till youth take leaue,
And leaue you to your crouch.

K. Ed. Come hither widdow, howe many children haste thou?

Cla. I thinke he meanes to begge a child on her.

Glo. Nay whip me then, heele rather giue hir two.

La. Three my most gracious Lord.

Glo. You shall haue foure and you wil be rulde by him.

K. Ed. Were it not pittie they shoulde loose their fathers lands?

La. Be pittifull then dread L. and grant it them.

K. Edw. Ile tell thee how these lands are to be got.

La. So shall you bind me to your highnesse seruice.

K. Ed. What seruice wilt thou doe me if I grant it them?

La. Euen what your highnesse shall command.

Glo. Naie then widow Ile warrant you all your Husbands lands, if you grant to do what he Commands. Fight close or in good faith
You catch a clap.

Cla. Naie I feare her not vnlesse she fall.

Glo. Marie godsforbot man, for heele take vantage then.

La. Why stops my Lord, shall I not know my taske?

K. Ed. An easie taske, tis but to loue a king.

La. Thats soone performde, because I am a subiect.

K. Ed. Why then thy husbandes landes I frelie giue thee.

La. I take my leaue with manie thousand thankes.

Cla. The match is made, shee seales it with a cursie.

K. Ed. Staie widdow staie, what loue dost thou thinke
I sue so much to get?

La. My humble seruice, such as subiects owes and the lawes commands.

K. Ed. No by my troth, I meant no such loue,

The True Tragedie of

- But to tell thee the troth, I aime to lie with thee.
La. To tell you plaine, my Lord, I had rather lie in prison.
K. Edw. Why then thou canst not get thy husbandes lands.
La. Then mine honestie shall be my dower,
 For by that losse I will not purchase them.
K. Ed. Herein thou wrongst thy children mightilie.
La. Heerein your highnesse wrongs both them and
 Me, but mightie Lord this merrie inclination
 Agrees not with the sadnesse of my sute.
 Please it your highnes to dismises me either with I or no.
K. Ed. I, if thou saie I to my request,
 No, if thou saie no to my demand.
La. Then no my Lord, my sute is at an end.
Glo. The widdow likes him not, shee bends the brow.
Cl. Why he is the bluntest woer in christendome.
K. Ed. Her lookes are all repleat with maestie,
 One waie or other she is for a king,
 And she shall be my loue or else my Queene.
 Saie that king Edward tooke thee for his Queene.
La. Tis better said then done, my gracious Lord.
 I am a subject fit to iest withall,
 But far vnfit to be a Soueraigne.
K. Edw. Sweet widdow, by my state I sweare, I speake
 No more then what my hart intends,
 And that is to enioie thee for my loue.
La. And that is more then I will yeeld vnto,
 I know I am too bad to be your Queene,
 And yet too good to be your Concubine.
K. Edw. You cauill widdow I did meane my Queene.
La. Your grace would be loath my sonnes should call you father.
K. Edw. No more then when my daughters call thee
 Mother. Thou art a widow and thou hast some children.
 And by Gods mother I being but a bachelor
 Haue other some. Why tis a happy thing
 To be the father of manie children.
 Argue no more, for thou shalt be my Queene.
Glo. The ghostlie father now hath done his shrift.
Cl. When he was made a shrurier twas for shift.
K. Edw. Brothers, you muse what talke the widdow
 And I haue had, you would thinke it strange
 If I should marrie her.
Cl. Marrie her my Lord, to whom?
K. Edw. Why Clarence to my selfe.
Glo. That would be ten daies wonder at the least.
Cl. Why thats a daie longer then a wonder lastes.
Glo. And so much more are the wonders in extreames.
K. Edw. Well ieast on brothers, I can tell you, hir
 Sute is granted for her husbandes lands.

Enter a Messenger.

- Mes.* And it please your grace, Henry your foe is Taken, and brought as prisoner to your pallace gates,

K. Edw. Awaie with him and send him to the Tower,
And let vs go question with the man about
His apprehension. Lords along, and vse this Ladie honorable.

[Exeunt Omnes.]

Manet GLOSTER and speakes.

Glost. I, Edward will vse women honourable,
Would he were wasted marrow, bones and all,
That from his loines no issue might succeed
To hinder me from the golden time I looke for,
For I am not yet lookt on in the world.
First is there Edward, Clarence, and Henry
And his sonne, and all they lookt for issue
Of their loines ere I can plant my selfe,
A cold premeditation for my purpose,
What other pleasure is there in the world beside?
I will go clad my bodie in gaie ornaments,
And lull my selfe within a ladies lap,
And witch sweet Ladies with my words and lookes.
Oh monstrous man, to harbour such a thought!
Why loue did scorne me in my mothers wombe,
And for I should not deale in hir affaires,
Shee did corrupt fraile nature in the flesh,
And plaste an enuious mountaine on my backe,
Where sits deformity to mocke my bodie,
To drie mine arme vp like a withered shrimpe.
To make my legges of an vnequall size,
And am I then a man to be belou'd?
Easier for me to compasse twentie crownes.
Tut I can smile, and murder when I smile,
I crie content, to that that greenes me most.
I can adde colours to the Camelioun,
And for a need change shapes with Protheus,
And set the aspiring Catalin to schoole.
Can I doe this, and cannot get the crowne?
Tush were it ten times higher, Ile pull it downe.

[Exit.]

Enter KING LEWIS and the LADIE BONA, and QUEENE MARGARET, PRINCE EDWARD, and OXFORD and others.

Lewes. Welcome Queene Margaret to the Court of France,
It fits not Lewis to sit while thou dost stand.
Sit by my side, and here I vow to thee,
Thou shalt haue aide to repoesse thy right,
And beat proud Edward from his vsurped seat.
And place king Henry in his former rule.

Queen. I humble thanke your royall maiestie.
And pray the God of heauen to blesse thy state,
Great king of France, that thus regards our wrongs.

Enter WARWIKE.

Lew. How now, who is this?

Queen. Our Earle of Warwiike Edwardes chiefest friend.

Lew. Welcome braue Warwike, what brings thee to France?

War. From worthy Edward king of England,
My Lord and Soueraigne and thy vowed friend.
I come in kindnes and vnfaigned loue,
First to do greetings to thy royall person
And then to craue a league of amitie,
And lastlie to confirme that amitie
With nuptiall knot if thou vouchsafe to grant
That vertuous ladie Bona thy faire sister,
To Englands king in lawfull marriage.

Queen. And if this go forward all our hope is done.

War. And gracious Madam, in our kings behalfe,
I am commanded with your loue and fauour,
Humble to kisse your hand and with my tongue,
To tell the passions of my soueraignes hart,
Where fame late entring at his heedfull eares,
Hath plast thy glorious image and thy vertues.

Queen. King Lewes and Lady Bona heare me speake,
Before you answer Warwike or his words,
For hee it is hath done vs all these wrongs.

War. Inurious Margaret.

Prince Ed. And why not Queene?

War. Because thy father Henry did vsurpe,
And thou no more art Prince then shee is Queene.

Ox. Then Warwike disanuls great Iohn of Gaunt,
That did subdue the greatest part of Spaine,
And after Iohn of Gaunt wife Henry the fourth,
Whose wisdom was a mirrour to the world.
And after this wife prince Henry the fift,
Who with his prowesse conquered all France,
From these our Henries lineallie discent.

War. Oxford, how haps that in this smooth discourse
You told not how Henry the sixt had lost
All that Henry the fift had gotten.

Me thinkes these peeres of France should smile at that

But for the rest you tell a pettigree
Of threescore and two yeares a sillie time,
To make prescription for a kingdomes worth.

Oxf. Why Warwike, canst thou denie thy king,
Whom thou obeyedst thirtie and eight yeeres
And bewray thy treasons with a blush?

War. Can Oxford that did euer fence the right,
Now buckler falshood with a pettigree?
For shame leaue Henry and call Edward king.

Oxf. Call him my king by whom mine elder
Brother the Lord Awbray Vere was done to death,
And more than so, my father euen in the
Downefall of his mellowed yeares,
When age did call him to the dore of death?
No Warwike no, whilst life vpholds this arme,
This arme vpholds the house of Lancaster.

War. And I the house of Yorke.

- K. Lewes.* Queene Margaret, prince Edward and Oxford, vouchsafe to forbear a while,
 Till I doe talke a word with Warwike.
 Now Warwike euen vpon thy honor tell me true;
 Is Edward lawfull king or no?
 For I were loath to linke with him, that is not lawfull heir.
- War.* Thereon I pawne mine honour and my credit.
- Lew.* What is he gracious in the peoples eies?
- War.* The more, that Henry is vnfortunate.
- Lew.* What is his loue to our sister Bona?
- War.* Such it seemes
 As maie beseeme a monarke like himselfe.
 My selfe haue often heard him saie and sweare,
 That this his loue was an eternall plant,
 The root whereof was fixt in vertues ground,
 The leaues and fruite maintaine with beauties sun,
 Exempt from enuie, but not from disdain,
 Vnlesse the ladie Bona quite his paine.
- Lew.* Then sister let vs heare your firme resolute.
- Bona.* Your grant or your denial shall be mine,
 But ere this daie I must confesse, when I
 Haue heard your kings deserts recounted,
 Mine eares haue tempted iudgement to desire.
- Lew.* Then draw neere Queene Margaret and be a
 Witnesse, that Bona shall be wife to the English king.
- Prince Edw.* To Edward, but not the English king.
- War.* Henry now liues in Scotland at his ease,
 Where hauing nothing, nothing can he lose,
 And as for your selfe our quondam Queene,
 You haue a father able to maintaine your state,
 And better twere to trouble him then France.
- [Sound for a post within.]
- Lew.* Here comes some post Warwike to thee or vs.
- Post.* My Lord ambassador this letter is for you,
 Sent from your brother Marquis Montague.
 This from our king vnto your Maiestie.
 And these to you Madam, from whom I know not.
- Oxf.* I like it well that our faire Queene and mustresse,
 Smiles at her newes when Warwike frets at his.
- P. Ed.* And marke how Lewes stamps as he were nettled.
- Lew.* Now Margaret & Warwike, what are your news?
- Queen.* Mine such as fils my hart full of ioie.
- War.* Mine full of sorrow and harts discontent.
- Lew.* What hath your king married the Ladie Grav,
 And now to excuse himselfe sends vs a post of papers?
 How dares he presume to vse vs thus?
- Queen.* This proueth Edwards loue, & Warwikes honesty.
- War.* King Lewis, I here protest in sight of heauen,
 And by the hope I haue of heauenlie blisse,
 That I am cleare from this misdeed of Edwards.
 No more my king, for he dishonours me,
 And most himselfe, if he could see his shame.

Did I forget that by the house of Yorke,
 My father came vntimelie to this death?
 Did I let passe the abuse done to my neece?
 Did I impale him with the regall Crowne,
 And thrust king Henry from his natieue home,
 And most vngratefull doth he vse me thus?
 My gracious Queene pardon what is past,
 And henceforth I am thy true seruitour,
 I will reuenge the wrongs done to ladie Bona;
 And replant Henry in his former state.

Queen. Yes Warwike I doe quite forget thy former Faults, if now thou wilt become king Henries friend.

War. So much his friend, I his vnfaigned friend
 That if king Lewes vouchsafe to furnish vs
 With some few bands of chosen souldiers,
 Ile vndertake to land them on our coast,
 And force the Tyrant from his seate by warre,
 Tis not his new made bride shall succour him.

Lew. Then at the last I firmelie am resolu'd,
 You shall haue aide: and English messenger returne
 In post, and tell false Edward thy supposed king,
 That Lewis of France is sending ouer Maskers
 To reuell it with him and his new bride.

Bona. Tell him in hope helle be a Widower shortlie,
 Ile weare the willow garland for his sake.

Queen. Tell him my mourning weedes be laide aside,
 And I am readie to put armour on.

War. Tell him from me, that he hath done me wrong,
 And therefore Ile vncrowne him er't be long.
 Thears thy reward, begone.

Lew. But now tell me Warwike, what assurance
 I shall haue of thy true loyaltie?

War. This shall assure my constant loyaltie,
 If that our Queene and this young prince agree,
 Ile ioine mine eldest daughter and my ioie
 To him forthwith in holie wedlockes bandes.

Queen. With all my hart, that match I like full wel,
 Loue her sonne Edward, shee is faire and yong,
 And giue thy hand to Warwike for thy loue.

Lew. It is enough, and now we will prepare,
 To leue souldiers for to go with you.
 And you Lord Bourbon our high Admirall,
 Shall waft them safelie to the English coast,
 And chase proud Edward from his slumbring trance,
 For mocking marriage with the name of France.

War. I came from Edward as Ambassadour
 But I returne his sworne and mortall foe:
 Matter of marriage was the charge he gaue me,
 But dreadfull warre shall answere his demand.
 Had he none else to make a stale but me?
 Then none but I shall turne his iest to sorrow.
 I was the chiefe that raise him to the crowne,

And Ile be chiefe to bring him downe againe,
 Not that I pittie Henries miserie,
 But seeke reuenge on Edwards mockerie.

[Exit.

Enter KING EDWARD, the QUEENE and CLARENCE, and GLOSTER, and MONTAGUE and HASTINGS, and PENBROOKE, with Souldiers.

Edw. Brothers of Clarence and of Glocester,
 What thinke you of our marriage with the ladie Gray?

Cla. My Lord, we thinke as Warwike and Lewes
 That are so slacke in iudgement, that theile take
 No offence at this suddaine marriage.

Edw. Suppose they doe, they are but Lewes and Warwike, and I am your king and Warwikes,
 And will be obaied.

Glo. And shall, because our king, but yet such
 Sudden marriages seldome proueth well.

Edw. Yea brother Richard are you against vs too?

Glo. Not I my Lord, no, God forefend that I should
 Once gaine saie your highnesse pleasure,
 I, & twere a pittie to sunder them that yoake so wel together.

Edw. Setting your skornes and your dislikes aside,
 Shew me some reasons why the Ladie Gray,
 Maie not be my loue and Englands Queene?
 Speake freeilie Clarence, Gloster,
Montague and Hastings.

Cla. My Lord then this is my opinion,
 That Warwike beeing dishonored in his embassage,
 Doth seeke reuenge to quite his iniuries.

Glo. And Lewes in regard of his sisters wrongs,
 Doth ioinne with Warwike to supplant your state.

Edw. Suppose that Lewis and Warwike be appeasd,
 By such meanes as I can best deuise.

Mont. But yet to haue ioined with France in this Alliance, would more haue strengthened this our Commonwealth, gainst forraine stormes,
 Then anie home bred marriage.

Hast. Let England be true within it selfe,
 We need not France nor any alliance with them.

Cla. For this one speech the Lord Hastings wel deserues,
 To haue the daughter and heire of the Lord Hungerford.

Edw. And what then? It was our will it should be so?

Cla. I, and for such a thing too the Lord Scales
 Did well deserue at your hands, to haue the Daughter of the Lord Bonfield, and left your Brothers to go seeke elsewhere, but in
 Your madnes, you burie brotherhood.

Edw. Alasse poore Clarence, is it for a wife,
 That thou art mal-content,
 Why man be of good cheere, I will prouide thee one.

Cla. Naie you plaide the broker so ill for your selfe.

That you shall giue me leaue to make my
Choise as I thinke good, and to that intent,
I shortlie meane to leaue you.

Edw. Leaue me or tarrie I am full resolu'd,
Edward will not be tied to his brothers wils,

Queen. My Lords doe me but right and you must
Confesse, before it pleasd his highnesse to aduance
My state to title of a Queene,
That I was not ignoble in my birth.

Edw. Forbeare my loue to fawne vpon their frownes,
For thee they must obay, naie shall obaie,
And if they looke for fauour at my hands.

Mont. My Lord, heere is the messenger returnd from France.

Enter a Messenger.

Edw. Now sirra, What letters or what newes?

Mes. No letters my Lord, and such newes as without your highnesse special pardon I dare not relate.

Edw. We pardon thee, and as neere as thou canst
Tell me, What said Lewis to our letters?

Mes. At my departure these were his verie words,
Go tell false Edward thy supposed king,
That Lewis of France is sending ouer Maskers,
To reuill it with him and his new bride.

Edw. Is Lewis so braue, belike he thinkes me Henry.
But what said Lady Bona to these wrongs?

Mes. Tel him quoth she, in hope heele proue a widdower shortly,
Ile weare the willow garland for his sake.

Edw. She had the wrong, indeed she could saie
Little lesse. But what saide Henries Queene, for as
I heare, she was then in place?

Mes. Tell him quoth shee my mourning weeds be Doone, and I am readie to put armour on.

Edw. Then belike she meanes to plaie the Amazon.
But what said Warwike to these iniuries?

Mes. He more incensed then the rest my Lord,
Tell him quoth he, that he hath done me wrong,
And therefore Ile vncrowne him er't be long.

Ed. Ha, Durst the traytor breath out such proude words?
But I will arme me to preuent the worst.

But what is Warwike friendes with Margaret?

Mes. I my good Lord, theare so linkt in friendship,
That young Prince Edward marries Warwikes daughter.

Cla. The elder, belike Clarence shall haue the Yonger. All you that loue me and Warwike
Follow me.

[Exit Clarence and Summerset.]

Edw. Clarence and Summerset fled to Warwike.

What saie you brother Richard, will you stand to vs?

Glo. I my Lord, in despight of all that shall Withstand you For why hath Nature
Made me halt downe right, but that I

Should be valiant and stand to it, for if
I would, I cannot runne awaie.

Edw. Penbrooke, go raise an armie presentlie,
Pitch vp my tent, for in the field this night
I meane to rest, and on the morrow morne,
He march to meet proud Warwike ere he land
Those stragling troopes which he hath got in France.
But ere I goe Montague and Hastings,
You of all the rest are neerest allied
In bloud to Warwike, therefore tell me, if
You fauour him more then me or not:
Speake truehe, for I had rather haue you open
Enemies, then hollow friends.

Monta. So God helpe Montague as he proues true.

Hast. And Hastings as hee fauours Edwards cause.

Edw. It shall suffice, come then lets march awaie.

[Exeunt Omnes.]

Enter WARWIKE and OXFORD, with Souldiers.

War. Trust me my Lords all hitherto goes well,
The common people by numbers swarme to vs,
But see where Sommerset and Clarence comes,
Speake suddenlie my Lords, are we all friends?

Cla. Feare not that my Lord.

War. Then gentle Clarence welcome vnto Warwike.
And welcome Summerset, I hold it cowardise,
To rest mistrustfull where a noble hart,
Hath pawnde an open hand in signe of loue,
Else might I thinke that Clarence, Edwards brother,
Were but a fained friend to our proceedings,
But welcome sweet Clarence my daughter shal be thine.
And now what rests but in nights couerture,
Thy brother being careleslie encampt,
His souldiers lurking in the towne about,
And but attended by a simple garde,
We maie surprise and take him at our pleasure,
Our skouts haue found the aduenture verie easie,
Then crie king Henry with resoluéd mindes,
And breake we presentlie into his tent.

Cla. Why then lets on our waie in silent sort,
For Warwike and his friends God and saint George.

War. This is his tent, and see where his guard doth
Stand, Courage my souldiers, now or neuer,
But follow me now, and Edward shall be ours.

All. A Warwike, a Warwike.

Alarmes, and GLOSTER and HASTINGS flies.

Oxf. Who goes there?

War. Richard and Hastings, let them go, heere is the Duke.

Edw. The Duke, why Warwicke when we parted

Last, thou caldst me king?

War. I, but the case is altered now.

When you disgraste me in my embassage,
Then I disgraste you from being king,
And now am come to create you Duke of Yorke,
Alasse how should you gouerne anie kindome,
That knowes not how to vse ambassadors,
Nor how to vse your brothers brotherlie,
Nor how to shrowd your selfe from enimies.

Edw. Well Warwike, let fortune doe her worst,
Edward in mind will beare himselfe a king.

War. Then for his minde be Edward Englands king,
But Henry now shall weare the English crowne.
Go conuiae him to our brother archbishop of Yorke,
And when I haue fought with Penbrooke & his followers,
He come and tell thee what the ladie Bona saies,
And so for a while farewell good Duke of Yorke.

[Exeunt some with Edward.]

Cla. What followes now all hithertoo goes well,
But we must dispatch some letters to France,
To tell the Queene of our happy fortune,
And bid hir come with speed to ioine with vs.

War. I thats the first thing that we haue to doe,
And free king Henry from imprisonment,
And see him seated in his regall throne,
Come let vs haste awaie, and hauing past these cares
He post to Yorke, and see how Edward fares.

[Exeunt Omnes.]

Enter GLOSTER, HASTINGS, and SIR WILLIAM STANLY.

Glo. Lord Hastings, and sir William Stanly,
Know that the cause I sent for you is this,
I looke my brother with a slender traine,
Should come a hunting in this forrest heere
The Bishop of Yorke befriends him much,
And lets him vse his pleasure in the chase.
Now I haue priuillie sent him word,
How I am come with you to rescue him.
And see where the huntsman and he doth come.

Enter EDWARD and a Huntsman.

Hunts. This waie my Lord the deere is gone.

Edw. No this waie huntsman, see where the Keepers stand. Now brother and the rest,
What, are you provided to depart?

Glo. I, I, the horse stands at the parke corner,
Come, to Linne, and so take shipping into Flanders.

Edw. Come then: Hastings, and Stanlie, I will Requite your loues. Bishop farewell,
Sheeld thee from Warwikes frowne,

And praie that I maie repoesse the crowne.

Now huntsman what will you doe?

Hunts. Marrie my Lord, I thinke I had as good

Goe with you, as tarrie heere to be hangde.

Edw. Come then lets awaie with speed.

[Exeunt Omnes.]

Enter the QUEENE and the LORD RIUERS.

Riuers. Tel me good maddam, why is your grace

So passionate of late?

Queen. Why brother Riuers, heare you not the newes,

Of that successe king Edward had of late?

Riu. What? losse of some pitcht battaile against Warwike,

Tush, feare not faire Queen, but cast those cares aside.

King Edwards noble mind his honours doth display:

And Warwike maie loose, though then he got the day.

Queen. If that were all, my griefes were at an end:

But greater troubles will I feare befall.

Riu. What, is he taken prisoner by the foe,

To the danger of his royall person then?

Queen. I, thears my griefe, king Edward is surprisde,

And led awaie, as prisoner vnto Yorke.

Riu. The newes is passing strange, I must confesse:

Yet comfort your selfe, for Edward hath more friends,

Then Lancaster at this time must perceiue,

That some will set him in his throne againe.

Queen. God grant they maie, but gentle brother come,

And let me leane vpon thine arme a while,

Vntill I come vnto the sanctuarie,

There to preseerue the fruit within my wombe,

K. Edwards seed true heere to Englands crowne.

[Exit]

Enter EDWARD and RICHARD, and HASTINGS, with a troope of Hollanders.

Edw. Thus far from Belgia haue we past the seas,

And marcht from Raunspur hauen vnto Yorke :

But soft the gates are shut, I like not this.

Rich. Sound vp the drum and call them to the wals.

Enter the LORD MAIRE OF YORKE vpon the wals.

Mair. My Lords we had notice of your comming,

And thats the cause we stand vpon our garde,

And shut the gates to preserue the towne.

Henry now is king, and we are sworne to him.

Edw. Why my Lord Maire, if Henry be your king,

Edward I am sure at least, is Duke of Yorke.

Mair. Truth my Lord, we know you for no lesse.

Edw. I craue nothing but my Dukedome.

Rich. But when the Fox hath gotten in his head,

Heele quicklie make the bodie follow after.

Hast. Why my Lord Maire, what stand you vpon points?

Open the gates, we are king Henries friends.

Mair. Saie you so, then Ile open them presentlie.

[Exit Maire.]

Ri. By my faith a wise stout captain & soone perswaded.

[The Maire opens the dore, and brings the keies in his hand.]

Edw. So my Lord Maire, these gates must not be shut,

But in the time of warre, giue me the keies.

What, feare not man for Edward will defend the towne and you, despiht of all your foes.

Enter SIR IOHN MOUNTGOMMERY, with drumme and Souldiers.

How now Richard, who is this?

Rich. Brother, this is sir Iohn Mountgommery,

A trustie friend vnlesse I be deceiude.

Edw. Welcome sir Iohn. Wherefore come you in armes?

Sir Iohn. To helpe king Edward in this time of stormes,

As euerie loyall subject ought to doe.

Edw. Thankes braue Mountgommery,

But I onlie claime my Dukedom,

Vntil it please God to send the rest.

Sir Iohn. Then fare you wel: Drum strike vp and let vs

March away, I came to serue a king and not a Duke.

Edw. Nay staie sir Iohn, and let vs first debate,

With what security we maie doe this thing.

Sir Iohn. What stand you on debating, to be briefe,

Except you presently proclaime your selfe our king,

Ile hence againe, and keepe them backe that come to

Succour you, why should we fight when

You pretend no title?

Rich. Fie brother, fie, stand you vpon tearmes?

Resolue your selfe, and let vs claime the crowne.

Edw. I am resolute once more to claime the crowne,

And win it too, or else to loose my life.

Sir Iohn. I now my soueraigne speaketh like himselfe,

And now will I be Edwards Champion,

Sound Trumpets, for Edward shall be proclaimd.

Edward the fourth by the grace of God, king of England and

France, and Lord of Ireland, and whosoouer gainsaies king

Edwards right: by this I challenge him to single fight, long

liue Edward the fourth.

All. Long liue Edward the fourth.

Edw. We thanke you all. Lord Maire leade on the waie.

For this night weele harbour here in Yorke.

And then as earlie as the morning sunne,

Liftes vp his bearnes aboue this horison

Weele march to London, to meete with Warwicke:

And pull false Henry from the Regall throne.

[Exeunt Omnes.]

Enter WARWIKE and CLARENCE, with the Crowne, and then KING HENRY, and OXFORD, and SUMMERSET, and the yong EARLE OF RICHMOND.

King. Thus from the prison to this princelie seat,
By Gods great mercies am I brought
Againe, Clarence and Warwike doe you
Keepe the crowne, and gouerne and protect
My realme in peace, and I will spend the Remnant of my daies, to sinnes rebuke
And my Creators praise.

War. What answers Clarence to his soueraignes will?

Cla. Clarence agrees to what king Henry likes.

King. My Lord of Summerset, what prettie
Boie is that you seeme to be so carefull of?

Sum. And it please your grace, it is yong Henry,
Earle of Richmond.

King. Henry of Richmond, Come hither pretie Ladde.

If heauenlie powers doe aime aright
To my diuining thoughts, thou pretie boy,
Shalt proue this Countreys blisse,
Thy head is made to weare a princelie crowne,
Thy lookes are all repleat with Maiestie,
Make much of him my Lords,
For this is he shall helpe you more,
Then you are hurt by me.

• Enter one with a letter to WARWIKE.

War. What Counsell Lords, Edward from Belgia,
With hastie Germanes and blunt Hollanders,
Is past in safetie through the narrow seas,
And with his troopes doe march amaine towards London,
And manie giddie people follow him.

Oxf. Tis best to looke to this betimes,
For if this fire doe kindle any further,
It will be hard for vs to quench it out.

War. In Warwike shire I haue true harted friends,
Not mutinous in peace, yet bold in warre,
Them will I muster vp, and thou sonne Clarence shalt
In Essex, Suffolke, Norfolke, and in Kent,
• Stir vp the knights and gentlemen to come with thee.
And thou brother Montague, in Leister shire,
Buckingham and Northampton shire shalt finde,
Men well inclinde to doe what thou commands
And thou braue Oxford wondrous well belou'd,
Shalt in thy countreys muster vp thy friends.
My soueraigne with his louing Citizens,
Shall rest in London till we come to him.
Faie Lords take leaue and stand not to replie,
Farewell my soueraigne.

King. Farewel my Hector, my Troyes true hope.

War. Farewell sweet Lords, lets meet at Couentrie.

All. Agreed.

[Exeunt Omnes.]

Enter EDWARD and his traine.

Edw. Sease on the shamefast Henry,

And once againe conuaie him to the Tower,

Awaie with him, I will not heare him speake.

And now towards Couentrie let vs bend our course

To meet with Warwike and his confederates.

[Exeunt Omnes]

Enter WARWIKE on the walles.

War. Where is the post that came from valiant Oxford?

How farre hence is thy Lord my honest fellow?

Oxf. post. By this at Daintrie marching hitherward.

War. Where is our brother Montague?

Where is the post that came from Montague?

Post. I left him at Donsmore with his troopes.

War. Say Summerfield where is my louing son?

And by thy gesse, how farre is Clarence hence?

Summer. At Southam my Lord I left him with

His force, and doe expect him two houres hence.

War. Then Oxford is at hand, I heare his drum.

Enter EDWARD and his power.

Glo. See brother, where the surly Warwike mans the wal.

War. O vnbid spight, is spotfull Edward come

Where slept our scouts, or how are they seduste,

That we could haue no newes of their repaire?

Edw. Now Warwike wilt thou be sorrie for thy faults,

And call Edward king and he will pardon thee.

War. Naie rather wilt thou draw thy forces backe?

Confesse who set thee vp and puld thee downe?

Call Warwike patron and be penitent,

And thou shalt still remaine the Duke of Yorke.

Glo. I had thought at least he would haue said the king.

Or did he make the iest against his will.

War. Twas Warwike gaue the kingdome to thy brother.

Edw. Why then tis mine, if but by Warwikes gift.

War. I but thou art no Atlas for so great a waight

And weakling, Warwike takes his gift againe,

Henry is my king, Warwike his subiect.

Edw. I prethe gallant Warwike tell me this,

What is the bodie when the head is off?

Glo. Alasse that Warwike had no more foresight,

But whilst he sought to steale the single ten,

The king was finelie fingerd from the decke?

You left poore Henry in the Bishops pallace,

And ten to one you'll meet him in the Tower. •

Edw. Tis euen so, and yet you are olde Warwike still.

War. O cheerefull colours, see where Oxford comes.

Enter OXFORD with drum and souldiers & al crie,

Oxf. Oxford, Oxford, for Lancaster.

[Exit.

Edw. The Gates are open, see they enter in,

Lets follow them and bid them battaile in the streetes.

Glo. No, so some other might set vpon our backes,

Weele staie till all be entered, and then follow them.

Enter SUMMERSET with drum and souldiers.

Sum. Summerset, Summerset for Lancaster.

[Exit.

Glo. Two of thy name both Dukes of Summerset,

Haue solde their liues vnto the house of Yorke,

And thou shalt be the third and my sworn hold.

Enter MONTAGUE with drum and souldiers.

Mont. Montague, Montague, for Lancaster.

• [Exit.

Edw. Traitorous Montague, thou and thy brother

Shall deerlie abie this rebellious act.

Enter CLARENCE with drum and souldiers.

War. And loe where George of Clarence sweepes

Along, of power enough to bid his brother barrell.

Cl. Clarence, Clarence, for Lancaster.

Edw. Et tu Brute, wilt thou stab Cæsar too?

A parlie sirra to George of Clarence.

[Sound a Parlie, and Richard and Clarence whispers together, and then Clarence takes his red Rose out of his hat, and throwes it at Warwike.

War. Com Clarence come, thou wilt if Warwike call.

Cl. Father of Warwike, know you what this meanes?

I throw mine infamie at thee,

I will not ruinate my fathers house,

Who gaue his bloud to lime the stones together,

And set vp Lancaster. Thinkest thou

That Clarence is so harsh vnnaturall,

• To lift his sword against his brothers life,

And so proud harted Warwike I defie thee,

And to my brothers turne my blushing cheekes?

Pardon me Edward, for I haue done amisse,

And Richard doe not frowne vpon me,

For henceforth I will proue no more vnconstant.

Edw. Welcome Clarence, and ten times more welcome,

Then if thou neuer hadst deserud our hate.

Glo. Welcome good Clarence, this is brotherlie.

War. Oh passing traytor, periurd and vniust.

Edw. Now Warwike, wilt thou leaue
The towne and fight? or shall we beate the Stones about thine eares?

War. Why I am not coopt vppe heere for defence
I will awaie to Barnet presently,
And bid thee battaile Edward if thou darest.

Edw. Yes Warwike he dares, and leades the waie,
Lords to the field, saint George and victorie.

[Exeunt Omnes.]

Alarmes, and then enter WARWIKE wounded.

War. Ah, who is nie? Come to me friend or foe,
And tell me who is victor Yorke or Warwike?
Why aske I that? my mangled bodie shewes,
That I must yeeld my bodie to the earth,
And by my fall the conquest to my foes,
Thus yeelds the Cedar to the axes edge,
Whose armes gaue shelter to the princie Eagle,
Vnder whose shade the ramping Lion slept,
Whose top branch ouerpeerd Ioues spreading tree.
The wrinkles in my browes now fild with bloud
Werelikened oft to kinglie sepulchers.
For who lu'd king but I could dig his graue?
And who durst smile, when Warwike bent his brow?
Lo now my glorie smeerd in dust and bloud,
My parkes my walkes, my mannors that I had,
Euen now forsake me, and of all my lands,
Is nothing left me but my bodies length.

Enter OXFORD and SUMMERSET.

Oxf. Ah Warwike, Warwike, cheere vp thy selfe and liue,
For yet thears hope enough to win the daie.
Our warlike Queene with troopes is come from France.
And at South-hampton landed all hir traine,
And mightst thou liue, then would we neuer flie.

War. Whie then I would not flie, nor haue I now,
But Hercules himselfe must yeeld to ods,
For manie wounds receiu'd, and manie moe repaid,
Hath robd my strong knit sinews of their strength,
And spite of spites needes must I yeeld to death.

Som. Thy brother Montague hath breathed his last,
And at the pangs of death I heard him crie
And saie, commend me to my valiant brother,
And more he would haue spoke and more he said,
Which sounded like a clamour in a vault,
That could not be distinguisht for the sound,
And so the valiant Montague gaue vp the ghost.

War. What is pompe, rule, raigne, but earth and dust?
And liue we how we can, yet die we must.
Sweet rest his soule, flie Lords and saue your selues,
For Warwike bids you all farewell to meet in Heauen.

[He dies.]

Oxf. Come noble Summerset, lets take our horse,
 And cause retrait be sounded through the campe,
 That all our friends that yet remaine aliue,
 Maie be awarn'd and saue themselues by flight.
 That done, with them weelee post vnto the Queene,
 And once more trie our fortune in the field. [Ex. ambo.]

Enter EDWARD, CLARENCE, GLOSTER, with souldiers.

Edw. Thus still our fortune giues vs victorie,
 And girts our temples with triumphant ioies.
 The bigboond traytor Warwike hath breathde his last,
 And heauen this daie hath smilde vpon vs all,
 But in this cleere and brightsome daie,
 I see a blacke suspitious cloud appeare
 That will encounter with our glorious sunne
 Before he gaine his easefull westerne beames,
 I mean those powers which the Queen hath got in France
 Are landed, and meane once more to menace vs.

Glo. Oxford and Summerset are fled to hir,
 And tis likelie if she haue time to breath,
 Her faction will be full as strong as ours.

Edw. We are aduertisde by our louing friends,
 That they doe hold their course towards Tewxburie.
 Thither will we, for willingnes rids waie
 And in euerie countie as we passe along
 Our strengthes shall be augmented.
 Come lets goe, for if we slacke this faire
 Bright Summers daie, sharpe winters
 Showers will marre our hope for haie. [Ex. Omnes.]

Enter the QUEENE, PRINCE EDWARD, OXFORD, and SUMMERSET, with drum and souldiers.

Quee. Welcome to England my louing friends of France,
 And welcome Summerset, and Oxford too.
 Once more haue we spread our sailes abroad,
 And though our tackling be almost consumde,
 And Warwike as our maine mast ouerthrowne,
 Yet warlike Lords raise you that sturdie post,
 That beares the sailes to bring vs vnto rest,
 And Ned and I as willing Pilots should
 For once with carefull mindes guide on the sterne,
 To beare vs through that dangerous gulfe
 That heretofore hath swallowed vp our friends.

Prince. And if there be, as God forbid there should,
 Amongst vs a timorous or fearefull man,
 Let him depart before the battels ioine,
 Least he in time of need intise another,
 And so withdraw the souldiers harts from vs.
 I will not stand aloofe and bid you fight,
 But with my sword presse in the thickest thronges,
 And single Edward from his strongest guard,
 And hand to hand enforce him for to yeeld,

Or leaue my bodie as wnesse of my thoughts.

Oxf. Women and children of so high resolute,
And Warriors faint, why twere perpetuall
Shame? Oh braue yong Prince, thy
Noble grandfather doth liue againe in thee,
Long maiest thou liue to beare his image,
And to renew his glories.

Sum. And he that turnes and flies when such do fight,
Let him to bed, and like the Owle by daie
Be hist, and wondered at if he arise.

Enter a Messenger.

Mes. My Lords, Duke Edward with a mighty power,
Is marching hitherwards to fight with you.

Oxf. I thought it was his pollicie, to take vs vnprouided,
But here will we stand and fight it to the death.

Enter KING EDWARD, CLA. GLO. HAST. and Souldiers.

Edw. See brothers, yonder stands the thornie wood,
Which by Gods assistance and your prowesse,
Shall with our swords yer night be cleane cut downe.

Queen. Lords, Knights & gentlemen, what I should say,
My teares ganesaie, for as you see, I drinke
The water of mine eyes. Then no more
But this. Henry your king is prisoner
In the tower, his land and all our friends
Are quite distrest, and yonder standes
The Wolfe that makes all this,
Then on Gods name Lords together cry saint George.

All. Saint George for Lancaster.

Alarmes to the battell, YORKE flies, then the chambers be discharged.
Then enter the KING, CLA. & GLO. & the rest, & make a great shout and crie, for YORKE, for YORKE, and then the QUEENE is taken, & the PRINCE, & OXF. & SUM. and then found and enter all againe.

Edw. Lo here a period of tumultuous broiles,
Awaie with Oxford to Hames castell straight,
For Summerset off with his guiltie head.
Awaie I will not heare them speake.

Oxf. For my part Ile not trouble thee with words.

[Exit Oxford.

Sum. Nor I, but stoope with patience to my death. [Exit Sum.

Edw. Now Edward what satisfaction canst thou make,
For stirring vp my subiects to rebellion?

Prin. Speake like a subiect proud ambitious Yorke,
Suppose that I am now my fathers mouth,
Resigne thy chaire, and where I stand kneele thou,
Whilst I propose the selvesame words to thee,
Which traytor thou wouldst haue me answer to.

Queen. Oh that thy father had bin so resolute:

Glo. That you might still haue kept your

Peticote, and nere haue stolne the Breech from Lancaster.

Prince. Let Aesop fable in a winters night,
His currish Riddles sorts not with this place.

Glo. By heauen brat Ile plague you for that word.

Queen. I, thou wast borne to be a plague to men.

Glo. For Gods sake take awaie this captiue scold.

Prin. Nay take away this skolding Crooktbacke rather.

Edw. Peace wilfull boy, or I will tame your tongue.

Cla. Vntuterd lað thou art too malepert.

Prin. I know my dutie, you are all vndutifull.

Lascinious Edward, and thou periurd George,

And thou mishapen Dicke, I tell you all,

I am your beiter, traytors as you be.

Edw. Take that, the litnes of this railer heere.

Queen. Oh kill me too.

Glo. Marrie and shall.

Edw. Hold Richard hold, for we haue doone too much already.

Glo. Why should she liue to fill the world with words?

Edw. What doth she swound? make meanes for

Her recouerie

Glo. Clarence, excuse me to the king my brother,

I must to London on a serious matter,

Ere you come there, you shall heare more newes.

Cla. About what, prethe tell me?

Glo. The Tower man, the Tower, Ile root them out.

[Exit Gloster.

Queen. Ah Ned, speake to thy mother boy? ah

Thou canst not speake.

Traytors, Tyrants, bloudie Homicides,

They that stabd Cæsar shed no bloud at all,

For he was a man, this in respect a childe,

And men here spend their furie on a child,

Whats worse then tyrant that I maie name,

You haue no children Deuils, if you had,

The thought of them would then haue stopt your rage,

But if you euer hope to haue a sonne,

Looke in his youth to haue him so cut off,

As Traitors you haue doone this sweet young prince.

Edw. Awaie, and beare her hence.

Queen. Naie nere beare me hence, dispatch

Me heere, heere sheath thy sword,

• He pardon thee my death. Wilt thou not?

Then Clarence, doe thou doe it?

Cla. By Heauen I would not doe thee so much ease.

Queen. Good Clarence doe, sweet Clarence kill me too.

Cla. Didst thou not heare me sweare I would not do it?

Queen. I, but thou vvest to forswear thy selfe,

Twass sinne before, but now tis charitie.

Whears the Diuels butcher, hardfaured Richard,

Richard where art thou? He is not heere,

Murder is his almes deed, petitioners

For blowd he nere put backe.

Edw. Awake I saie, and take her hence perforce.

Queen. So come to you and yours, as to this prince.

[Ex.

Edw. Clarence, whithers Gloster gone?

Cla. Marrie my Lord to London, and as I gesse, to Make a bloudie supper in the Tower.

Edw. He is sudden if a thing come in his head.

Well, discharge the common souldiers with paie

And thanks, and now let vs towards London,

To see our gentle Queene how shee doth fare,

For by this I hope shee hath a sonne for vs.

[Exeunt Omnes

Enter GLOSTER to KING HENRY in the Tower.

Glo. Good day my Lord. What at your booke so hard?

Hen. I my good Lord. Lord I should saie rather,

Tis sinne to flatter, good was little better,

Good Gloster, and good Diuell, were all alike,

What scene of Death hath Rosius now to act?

Glo. Suspition alwaies haunts a guiltie mind.

Hen. The birde once hmded doth feare the fatall bush,

And the haplesse maile to one poore birde,

Haue now the fatall object in mine eie,

Where my poore young was hmded, was caught & kild.

Glo. Why, what a foole was that of Creete?

That taught his sonne the office

Of a birde, and yet for all that the poore

Fowle was drownde.

Hen. I Dedalus, my poore sonne Icarus,

Thy father Minos that denide our course,

Thy brother Edward, the sunne that fearde his wings,

And thou the enuious gulfe that swallowed him.

Oh better can my brest abide thy daggers point,

Then can mine eares that tragike historie.

Glo. Why dost thou thinke I am an executioner?

Hen. A persecutor I am sure thou art,

And if murdering innocents be executions,

Then I know thou art an executioner.

Glo. Thy sonne I kild for his presumption.

Hen. Hadst thou bin kild when first thou didst presume,

Thou hadst not liude to kill a sonne of mine,

And thus I prophesie of thee.

That manie a Widdow for her husbands death,

And many an infants water standing eie,

Widowes for their husbands, children for their fathers,

Shall curse the time that euer thou wert borne.

The owle shrikt at thy birth, an euill signe,

The night Crow cride, aboding lucklesse tune,

Dogs howld and hideous tempests shooke down trees,

The Rauens rookt her on the Chimnies top,

And chattering Pies in dismall discord sung,

Thy mother felt more then a mothers paine,

And yet brought forth lesse then a mothers hope
 To wit: an vndigest created lump,
 Not like the fruit of such a goodly tree,
 Teeth hadst thou in thy head when thou wast borne,
 To signifie thou camst to bite the world,
 And if the rest be true that I haue heard
 Thou camst into the world

[He stabs him.]

Glo. Die prophet in thy speech, Ile heare
 No more, for this amongst the rest, was I ordainde.

Hen. I and for much more slaughter after this.

O God forgie my sinnes, and pardon thee.

[He dies.]

Glo. What? will the aspiring bloud of Lancaster

Sinke into the ground, I had thought it would haue mounted,
 See how my sword weepes for the poore kings death.
 Now maie such purple teares be alwaies shed,
 For such as seeke the downefall of our house.

If anie sparke of life remaine in thee, [Stabs him againe.]
 Downe, downe to hell, and saie I sent thee thuther.

I that haue neither pittie, loue nor feare.

Indeed twas true that Henry told me of,

For I haue often heard my mother saie,

That I came into the world with my legs forward,

And had I not reason thinke you to make hast,

And seeke their ruines that vsurpt our rights?

The women wept and the midwife cride,

O Jesus blesse vs, he is borne with teeth.

And so I was indeed, which plainely signified,

That I should snarle and bite, and plaie the dogge.

Then since Heauen hath made my bodie so,

Let hell make crookt my mind to answer it.

I had no father, I am like no father,

I haue no brothers, I am like no brothers,

And this word Loue which graybeards tearme diuine,

Be resident in men like one another,

And not in me, I am my selfe alone,

Clarence beware, thou keptst me from the light

But I will sort a pitchie daie for thee,

For I will buz abroad such prophesies,

As Edward shall be fearefull of his life,

And then to purge his feare, Ile be thy death.

Henry and his sonne are gone, thou Clarence next,

And by one and one I will dispatch the rest,

Counting my selfe but bad, till I be best.

Ile drag thy bodie in another roome.

And triumph Henry in thy daie of doome.

[Exit.]

Enter KING EDWARD, QUEENE ELIZABETH, and a Nurse with the young PRINCE, and CLARENCE, and HASTINGS, and others.

Edw. Once more we sit in Englands royall throne,
 Repurchasde with the bloud of enemies,
 What valiant foemen like to Autumnes corne.

- 1 Haue we mow'd downe in tops of all their pride?
 Three Dukes of Summerset, threefold renowmd
 For hardie and vndoubted champions.
 Two Cliffords, as the father and the sonn
 And two Northumberlands, two brauer men
 Nere spurd their coursers at the trumpets sound.
 With them the two rough Beares, Warwike and Montagus,
 That in their chaines fettered the kinglie Lion,
 And made the Forrest tremble when they roard,
 Thus haue we swept suspition from our seat,
 And made our footstoolle of securitie.
 Come hither Besse, and let me kisse my boie,
 Young Ned, for thee, thine Vncles and my selfe,
 Haue in our armors watcht the Winters night,
 Marcht all a foote in summers skalding heat,
 That thou mightst repoesse the crowne in peace,
 And of our labours thou shalt reape the gaine.
- *Glo. Ile blast his haruest and your head were laid,
 For yet I am not lookt on in the world.
 This shoulder was ordaind so thicke to heaue,
 And heaue it shall some waight or breake my backe
 Worke thou the waie, and thou shalt execute.
- Edward. Clarence and Gloster*, loue my louelie Queene,
 And kisse your princely nephew brothers both.
- Cla.* The dutie that I owe vnto your Maiestie,
 I seale vpon the rosiate lips of this sweet babe.
- Queen.* Thankes noble Clarence worthie brother thanks.
- Gloster.* And that I loue the fruit from whence thou
 Sprangst, witnesse the louing kisse I giue the child,
 To saie the truth so Iudas kist his maister,
 And so he cude all haile, and meant all harme.
- Edward.* Nowe am I seated as my soule delights,
 Hauing my countries peace, and brothers loues.
- Cla.* What will your grace haue done with Margaret,
Ranard her father to the king of France,
 Hath pawnd the Cyssels and Ierusalem,
 And hither haue they sent it for her ransome.
- Edw.* Awaie with her, and wafte hir hence to France,
 And now what rests but that we spend the time,
 With stately Triumphs and mirthfull comicke shewes,
 Such as befits the pleasures of the Court.
 Sound drums and Trumpets, farewell to sower annoy,
 For heere I hope begins our lasting ioie. [Exeunt Omnes.]
